$345,500,000 DEFICIT SAYS FLEMING

Free-Spending Mr. Consumer Came To Rescue

Canadians Made More And Spent More in '60

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian consumers with their fatter wallets, bigger demands and freer spending helped bolster the economy last year at a time when things might have gone badly the government said today.

Finance Minister Fleming's pre - budget white paper, tabled in the Commons, made clear that higher expenditures at various levels of government and a record year for exports also helped to do with sustaining the economy.

Still, the consumer gets much of the credit. He made more money than in 1959 — a picture true even of farmers. He also had more taxes, but there still was more cash left over. Personal savings dipped slightly.

Against this background, and in a year when prices of goods and services showed their smallest rise in a year and since 1955, the consumer increased his spending.

He bought more food, more clothing, more new cars, liquor, cigarets, household electricity and gas, more services — often slightly on outlays for second-hand cars and furniture and appliances.

PRODUCTION ROSE

That increased consumer spending and bigger shipments of goods to export markets happened while imports — in volume — remained roughly unchanged. Thus the economy in Canada met its own increased demand — and production went up accordingly.

This sustaining of the economy was reflected in a 2.2-per-cent rise in the value of all goods and services produced — the gross national product — to $35,989,000,000 from $34,857,000,000 the year before. Mr. Fleming had expected a rise of six per cent. However, the report added it is a year "of special complexity."

A high level of economic activity was continued; the other hand there was also a high level of unemployment, human and material. It is also clearly apparent that there was an unusual conjuncture of economic forces, some of a special and others relatively "technological," and still others of cyclical character.

The sore spot was unemployment.

Globe and Mail Cited But No Penalties Set

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail was cited by contempt of court Tuesday by Mr. Justice W. F. Spence of the Supreme Court of Ontario in connection with an account of a bribery trial which appeared in the newspaper May 30. He did not assess any penalties against the newspaper.

On May 30, Defence Counsel Joseph Sedgwick asked that submissions made to the court in the absence of the jury not be reported in the press. Mr. Justice Spence agreed and advised reporters at the trial.

Mr. Justice Spence said Thursday the report would have prejudiced a fair trial for the three accused and said the newspaper was a "flagrant disregard" of his order that any persons or legal bodies place in the absence of the jury were not to be reported.

"It was a real bad quite accidental and unintentional contempt," he said. "I am satisfied that the purpose was to show the public that these things were being given a trial and not every conclusion of law."

At the trial, Robert J. Wright, Windsor Feeley and Joseph McDermott were acquitted of conspiring to bribe provincial police constable.

Parliament At a Glance

Prime Minister Diefenbaker tabled the report of the royal commission on public unions which urges diversion of Canadian steamship dollars from U.S. magazines.

Finance Minister Fleming declared to say when legislation dismissing Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada will be introduced.

J. R. Garland (L—Nipissing) called for a cut in National Housing Act mortgage rates, calling this "a matter of burden."

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said subcontractors are convinced "some dirty work is going on" in the awarding of contracts.

The Senator heard Senator Jean - Francois Pouliot in an emotional appeal for retention of the present murder statute, opposite a government bill setting up a non-capital murder degree, free of the death penalty.

LITTLE HOPE OF REDUCING MORTGAGE RATE

-- Walker

Housing Principal Subject of Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Walker says no one would be more delighted than he to be able to reduce the interest rate on National Housing Act mortgages.

But he told the Commons Thursday during debate of his department's 1961-62 spending estimates that there is little hope of such action in the immediate future.

Mr. Walker was replying to Liberal housing critic J. R. Garland who said the current rate of 6¼ per cent on NHA mortgages is placing a "tremendous burden" on home owners.

Mr. Garland, member for Nipissing, said he saw some hope for a decline in the NHA rate in the government's "change of heart" on economic policy—an obvious reference to Finance Minister Fleming's hint Wednesday the government may ease off next Tuesday night's budget.

Mr. Walker said the NHA rate is based on the yield on long term government bonds. Under the National Housing Act—as framed by a Liberal government"—the yield would not be more than 2½ per cent above long-term government bonds.

COULD BE HIGHER

"The present long-term yield on government bonds is approximately 5.2 per cent," the minister said. "Therefore, the maximum NHA rate under the rule promulgated by the late Liberal government could be 7½ per cent.

"However, under our government the present rate is 6¼ per cent and that is considered to be

Rescue Unit Hunts for Two Orillia Men

RCAF search and rescue headquarters here said 10 RCAF aircraft, including a helicopter, and several civilian planes began the search at dawn. Also in the air was a float-equipped Cessna was found in a search Thursday.

The aircraft, owned by Uren Construction Company of Orillia, reportedly piloted Reta Uren and passenger Blake Uren. The pilot's brother, Coroner Theodore Thompson of Chatham, said day morning after taking off from Orillia for the northern tip of Manitoulin Island.

It was reported the aircraft carried no provisions.

Weather in the search area today was described as excellent.

Donald Gordon Faces Day Of Testing and Teasing

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF MP Douglas Fisher denied today that he had scuttled a CNR fast freight service by a speech in the Commons but railway president Donald Gordon told the Port Arthur member's intervention had forced a costly delay in introduction of the service.

Mr. Fisher, speaking in the Commons railway committee at the question period, said of Mr. Gordon's appearance Thursday, said that he wildcat strike developed among CNR employees but Capreol, referred to by the CNR president Thursday.

Mr. Gordon said a wildcat strike in the yards at Capreol caused the CNR had to delay introduction of the new freight service with which it had hoped to get a jump on its competitors.

Mr. Fisher said union leaders came to Ottawa and told him they were worried that the new CNR's proposal to change the work plan so as to introduce the service. He said he had suspected that if they really felt strongly about it, there was little they could do but strike or threaten to strike in wildcat fashion.

"In other words," Mr. Gordon said, "you as a member advised them to break the law in doing that."

Mr. Fisher said his speech in the Commons was made weeks after the wildcat strike threat was made. Mr. Gordon said he was referring to Mr. Fisher's counselling at the time the issue was hot.

"Let me put it this way, you did not succeed in scuttling the plan," Mr. Gordon said.

Mr. Fisher complained that the interpretation of the situation resulting from Thursday's exchange was that by a speech which Mr. Gordon described as exaggerated, the plan was scuttled for all time when in fact it had been only delayed.

Mr. Gordon said the delay had been costly to the CNR.

The burly Scots-born banker demonstrated as he was pressed for a no-holds-barred contest with the labor leaders of his chief critics in Parliament.

During later questioning, Mr. Fisher asked Mr. Gordon to give next year's committee a full report on the utilization of railway freight marshalling yards in Moncton, N.B., and Montreal.

"I'm glad to know you expect me to be back next year," Mr. Gordon observed.

"I said very clearly when I referred to you that I meant the management of the CNR," Mr. Fisher retorted.

The issue of the Northern Ontario freight service was regarded by committee members as just the prelude to a Gordon-Fisher battle.

Mr. Gordon's critics dwelt mainly on the CNR's mounting

West Said Studying Drastic Approach to Berlin Issue

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Telegraph says Western experts in Washington are reported working on a drastic new approach to the Berlin issue involving recognition of Communist East Germany.

The newspaper says a diplomatic correspondent says no decisions have been taken but "important advisers in Britain and the United States are in favor of an entirely new approach."

Such a plan would be certain to encounter "the strongest opposition from Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany.

LAYS OFF WORKERS

TORONTO (CP) — John Bassett, chairman of television station CFTO, said Thursday 40 of the station's employees will be laid off today. He said CFTO became over-staffed during its first months of operation. The lay-offs will leave the station with a staff of 334, 27 of whom are temporary employees.

HOUSE WATCHES FOR NEXT MOVE IN COYNE CASE

Successor May Be Already Chosen

Most speculation centered on when the government might ask Parliament to carry out its announced intention of ousting James E. Coyne's tenure as governor of the Bank of Canada.

Looking beyond that, political and business circles wonder with whom Mr. Fleming will deal on to take over the $20,000-a-year post.

Mr. Coyne kept the feud with the government aflame Thursday, taking issue with Finance Minister Donald Fleming's declaration in Parliament Wednesday that the board governor's "restrictionist" economic policies ran counter to the government's "expansionist" policies.

The trouble was not in monetary policy, the domain of the central bank, Mr. Coyne asserted in a sharply worded statement.

Instead "what has been lacking so far is adequate action" by the government in the field of fiscal policy to make a real contribution to economic recovery and growth of the Canadian economy under Canadian ownership and control."

BUDGET COMES FIRST

Mr. Fleming's only entry into the dispute Thursday came in the Commons when he told Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson that he plans to wait until Tuesday before introducing dismissal legislation in Parliament before his budget speech next Tuesday night.

There is some expectation that the government might bring in its legislation shortly in view of the effort to end the present parliamentary session in the next two weeks whether by prorogation or adjournment over the summer holidays.

A reliable Mr. Pearson told in his statement to Parliament Wednesday on the case led to speculation that the government may already have a successor in mind.

Had Mr. Coyne acceded to the request for his resignation, said the statement, the board of directors of the bank would have had to meet and consult with the other two days to take action on the resignation and, if so disposed, to take immediate steps with the approval" of the cabinet.

The bank would remain in entirely unofficial speculation on a successor is James R. Beattie, currently deputy to Mr. Coyne, governor of the Bank, the same position Mr. Coyne held before he took over when Graham Towers retired at the end of 1954.

WAS SECOND CHOICE

Mr. Beattie is second in command at the bank. Under him are three senior deputy governors and the name of one of these—Louis Rasminsky, expert on international finance — has also cropped up as a possible successor.

A native of Greenwood, B.C., Mr. Rasminsky has been with the bank since 1935 and succeeded Mr. Coyne as the deputy governor. Then in Montreal in 1956, Mr. Rasminsky served on the working party which exchange Control Board starting in 1939 and became a deputy governor of the bank six years ago.

A Toronto report Thursday listed three others as possible choices—F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University in Montreal; Douglas Gibson, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia; and A. T. Lambert, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Fill World With Salesmen Is Hees' Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Hees today called on Canada's trade associations to send their own sales missions abroad and "fill world markets with Canadian salesmen."

"We don't have to ring doorbells, open our sample cases and give our sales talks to the great many more buyers' offices around the world."

Mr. Hees made his own sales pitch to a meeting of the Electronic Industries Association of Canada, announced in advance plans to follow his own advice.

He said that when parliamentary duties permit, he plans to visit and explore markets in Southern Africa, the Far East, Australia and New Zealand.

WILL STOCK WATERS

BRANTFORD (CP) — More than 20,000 fish will be shipped during the next two weeks from the Ontario fish hatchery at Mount Pleasant, five miles south of here, for distribution in various waters. Distributed in 19 counties in this area will be 16,000 speckled trout. Some brown trout will be taken to the Lake Simcoe district.

Revenues Slump, Spending Jumps Due To Recession

Stage-Setter for Budget Tuesday Given House

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal budget deficit of $345,500,000 in the fiscal year just ended — the fourth red-ink year in a row — was reported today by Finance Minister Fleming.

The deficit for the year ended March 31 contrasted with the $12,000,000 surplus forecast by the minister in his original budget March 31, 1960.

With the recession, revenues slumped and expenditures jumped from his original predictions and last December 20, when he tabled a $285,000,000 deficit estimate.

The story was told in a white paper tabled in the Commons by his minister as the stage-setter for his budget speech next Tuesday night.

The white paper accounts — still preliminary since 1960-61 books aren't yet closed — for one of the fourth - highest peacetime deficit on record. The four-year string of deficits since April 1, 1957, totals $14,820,000,000 including the peacetime peak of $609,-300,000 in 1958-59.

REVENUES, COSTS, UP

Budgetary revenues climbed six per cent in the year to $5,618,600,000 from $5,289,800,000 the previous year. Expenditures rose five per cent to $5,961,100,-000 from $5,702,900,000.

Both were at all - time highs.

The economic growth Mr. Fleming predicted 15 months ago didn't materialize. Gross national product registered a year - to - year gain of 3.2 per cent to $35,959,000,000 in the 1960 calendar year from $34,-857,000,000 in 1959. The minister's March 31 budget last year based on a six - per - cent growth.

Hoped - for tax collections didn't shape up and the government boosted spending in some areas to meet the business slump.

As a result, budget revenues fell $276,400,000 short of the original forecast. $78,400,000 below his baby budget prediction. Expenditures exceeded the figure in his first budget by $81,100,000 and were $139,100,000 more than the Dec. 20 budget estimate.

The white paper blamed the calendar for playing one trick with the accounts. It said that with the March 31 year - end falling on Good Friday, much of the cash that would have become tax returns weren't filed until after the long weekend.

It reckoned March revenues were about $40,000,000 below normal and said the effect of

Only One Degree Of Murder Says Quebec Senator

OTTAWA (CP) — A Quebec Senator introduced in the Senate Thursday against a government bill setting up two degrees of murder—with only one punishable by death.

Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot said:

"For me, there is either murder or no murder. And if it is murder one should be punished by the maximum penalty."

The bill provides the death sentence for capital murder—a deliberate or premeditated slaying. A life prison term would be the maximum for lesser or non-capital murder.

The bill now will await committee study.

Pomeranian Dog Saves Toronto Family From Death, Then Burns

KESWICK (CP) — A pet Pomeranian dog saved a Toronto family from death by fire today, then died in their flaming cottage near this town 40 miles north of Toronto.

Mrs. Wasa Schwilpo and her two sons, Leo, 16, and George, 8, escaped their second - floor rooms by using a rope and ladder after the dog awakened Mrs. Schwilpo at 3 a.m. by whimpering and licking her face. The room was smoke-filled and the woman could see the glare of flames.

"Mother thought she had blackie wrapped in a blanket," said Leo, "but he must have wriggled loose. We never saw him again."

National Dept. $687 Per Head Up Five Dollars

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's net national debt at March 31 stood at $687.90 for every man, woman and child in the country.

The pre - budget white paper, tabled in the Commons today, shows an estimated net debt on that date of $12,442,200,000. The population then was 18,085,000.

A year earlier the debt was $12,089,200,000 — about $683 per capita.

The debt, thus showing an increase of $353,000,000 over the year, is calculated by subtracting the value of all assets from total liabilities.

In the 1960-61 year covered by the white paper, assets are estimated to have climbed to $6,150,000,000 from $5,797,200,000 the previous fiscal year. Total liabilities rose by $721,601,300,000 from $20,986,400,000.

Cost of carrying the public debt — mostly interest payments — rose to $797,200,000 at March 31 from $782,500,000 a year earlier. Debt charges make up about one - eight of annual government expenditures.

Major Gordon Bennett Johnson, OBE, FRES, of the Royal Engineers in England, a well-known Belleville family, died at Eastbourne, Sussex, England, on June 8. He was 80.

Born in Belleville, son of the late J. W. Johnson, MLA, and Mrs. Johnson, he was educated at Royal Military College, in Kingston, and later became the Canadian government's trade commissioner in Scotland. He was commissioner of RC Engineers in 1900 and served in the U.K., Ceylon and China. He joined the Canadian foreign service in 1913 and was a Canadian trade commissioner in Japan until 1914 when he rejoined the Royal Engineers in which he served throughout the First World War.

Major Johnson rejoined the Canadian foreign service shortly after peace was declared in 1918 and was appointed Canadian trade commissioner to Brazil at Rio de Janeiro. He was posted to Scotland in 1924. He retired from the foreign service in 1930.

Major Johnson was married to Anne Vaughn Avery of Ottawa in 1916. He has one surviving son, Lt.-Col. G. B. A. Johnson, of Croydon, Surrey, Another son, the late Capt. M. W. Johnson, was a member of the Highland Light Infantry.

NESBITT N. HAGGARTY

A funeral service was held Wednesday at Wooler United Church for Nesbitt N. Haggarty of Wooler, who died suddenly at Munroe, Mich., last Saturday. The service was conducted by the Rev. John MacCallum and the Rev. G. W. Olford, of Wooler.

Honorary bearers were Ernest Irvine, Alfred Nelson, William Beckham, Hon. Wm. Goodfellow, Reuben Herrington, Steve Hanna, Lorne Stinkle and J. K. Tompkins.

Interment was in McPhail's Cemetery.

On Tuesday evening, a service under the direction of Prescott Lodge, No. 127, A.F. and A.M., was held at Haggarty's home. Mr. Haggarty was a member of the lodge, a member of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, Peterborough Lodge of Perfection and Peterborough Chapter of Rose Croix. He served as the representative of Mt. Hermon Berland School Area Board and was a past master and member of Wooler United Church.

Mr. Haggarty, who was 69 at the time of his death, was born in Crookston and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Marmaduke Haggarty. He was educated in Crookston and Belleville school.

He was a lifelong resident of the Wooler district and was engaged in the agricultural pursuits of Port Ltd.

He is survived by his widow, the former Lillian McColl; two daughters, Mrs. Terrance (Dorothy) Hall of Wooler and Mrs. Mac (Kae) Anderson of Woodstock; two sons, Harold and Max, both of Wooler; a sister, Mrs. Herman Morrow, Wooler, and a brother, Richard, of Cherry Valley.

Bowling Notes

The women's section of the Bowling Club held its weekly competition on Thursday afternoon with 26 participating. Although the weather was a little on the cool side, the discomfort was made up for by the fine competition in the matches arranged. A rink of Mrs. Pearl Legault, Mrs. Rita Lloyd with Mrs. Elsie Humphreys as skip, had the high score of the afternoon.

At the conclusion of the games Mrs. Pearl Legault, Mrs. Hazel Boyle and Mrs. Elsie Humphreys acted as tea hostesses and a most enjoyable tea hour was held followed by a social hour before departure to the several homes.

As usual the greens were lightning fast and true.

On Saturday the first tournament of the season on the local greens will be held and Orlo Hagan, Jr., in charge of the artistic committee, have done a wonderful job. Prizes will be on display at the district tournaments have been down from previous years but the committee has worked hard and it is expected a full entry of 32 rinks will be in play. Entries have been received from Kingston, Trenton, Brighton, Madoc, Campbellford and Stirling. This will be a mixed doubles tournament with three bowled games. The prizes have been purchased and are well worth winning. The members of the women's section will serve sandwiches, dessert with coffee and tea and a most pleasant afternoon and evening of bowling is anticipated.

Two rinks of trebles were in attendance to Campbellford on Wednesday and a rink of Mrs. Jessie Hunter, Mrs. Nora Kyle with Mrs. Edna Jackman as skip won the two-game high score. The other rink of Mrs. Ida Marcuse, Mrs. Grace Clapp with Mrs. Mildred Smith as skip were edged out on the three-game high by a few points. There were 10 rinks in play and a Peterborough rink was the top scorer.

Incabod Best Looking Kid At Meeting

TRENTON — Reporting committee chairman and the guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club meeting last night to have their remarks interspersed with loud and prolonged applause from the head table guest.

It is not to be thought, however, that any club member had forgotten his manners to comment in such a fashion on the rhetorical remarks being made by the speakers. Nothing of the sort.

The comments and asides were emanating from "Incabod," who, while being a member in good standing of the West Hastings Kiwanis Club, nevertheless is also a member of the goat species. In other words he is a kid. He is a kid. Kid Norman.

Bill Norman, president of Norman's Kingston clinic, arrived at the meeting with Incabod under one arm and a book of instructions in the other with Incabod's diet, habits and record of progress, under the other.

According to the rules laid down, Incabod was to be presented to president Norm Davis' cellar during his stay in captivity. The fact that Norm doesn't possess a cellar presented no drawback as several other Kiwanis Clubs immediately offered to dig one for him.

His diet must consist of warm milk, pablum, grass and occasional bottle of beer. He scrounges. He has a decided preference for cigaret butts but does like a filter tipped. One night he smacked his lips over the complete cream pie at the club dinner.

Incabod also let it be known that his preference in the way of a foam pillow, and Mr. Davis was instructed to refrain from holding cigaret over his head during his sojourn in the new home.

Incabod is travelling from club to club in Division 8A, and the Trenton Kiwanis Club would care to present him with a perfect record. If not, he would graciously accept same.

Any club member was heard to say that Incabod had "the best looking face at the head table."

RCAF Operation Hopper Stopper Continuing

Two C-119 Flying Boxcars, each carrying 12,000 pounds of insecticide, have just completed a flight to Lethbridge to join an addition to 325,000 pounds of bug killer already on hand at the RCAF Station Downsview to Regina.

The airlift started after an urgent request from Saskatchewan Agriculture Minister Mitchell C. Nollett to the federal government. The government responded with the 12,000 pounds of insecticide. Ottawa also promised to help farmers in their fight against a "bumper crop" of clgworms next grasshoppers.

Because of the desperate need to replenish stocks and meet the demands of the prairie farmers, it became clear that the deadly insecticide, Dieldrin and Phosdrin, would have to be airlifted from Toronto, where they are manufactured, to Regina.

Two C-119 Flying Boxars, North Stars and Hercules transports have flown 18 loads into Regina, where they are met by lorries which in deliver the stuff by road to Moose Jaw, where the insecticides are distributed.

Normal consumption of the poison is 5,000 to 8,000 gallons a day, but this year there has been no rains to delay hatching. Hot dry weather has already blasted crops in southern Saskatchewan, according to E. W. McKenzie Saskatchewan government official in charge of the shipments. Tuesday was the busiest day of the peak week, the demand hit 60,000 gallons and airlift service the only answer.

For a while the insecticide was also used to combat a serious cutworm infestation of the province; however, this now appears under control.

Although 14 million acres in Saskatchewan alone may be infested with crasshoppers it is estimated that the RCAF now already flown in enough poison to cover nearly two million acres of farmland.

Reduce Charge In Lloyd Death

WINDSOR (CP) — A charge of murder against Leonard Arthur Jodoin, was reduced to manslaughter Thursday after a 36 - year - old laborer was arrested two weeks ago in the death of Lloyd, 47, formerly of Belleville, died of head wounds following a fight.

CLAIM SETTLED

WINDSOR (CP) — A settlement of $787 was reached Thursday in a civil suit against Chief Bryce Monaghan of the suburban Riverside police force. The action was brought by Mrs. Joan Schuler, 20, and her husband Anthony as a result of an auto accident last October.

PUC Sends Poems Out With Bills

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission has hit on a unique method of notifying consumers of changes in their electric or water rates. It will be cut off unless bills are paid.

The final statement includes a poem:

"We are your willing servants, and we like to work for you.
We'll shine, we'll splash, we'll dash about with glee,
But we cannot work unless you let it be free.
Because we have to build our lines and mains and pay taxes too,
And all the other things it takes to bring us here to you.
So if your bill you have forgot, or just upon a shelf,
Please send us your cheque right away, to stop turning off our gears."

Recently, an overdue account was received, with the following poem attached to it:

"It is not that I would not pay,
But rather that I was away,
And as your notice was in vain,
So is mine, and probably yours.
So here's your cheque and what the heck,
We're sadder, wiser late,
We like to get that discount,
We think it's really great."

Weaver Pays 'Official' Visit To Own Club

TRENTON — Al Weaver, lieutenant - governor of Ontario, visits division 8A, paid an "official" visit to his home town club as well as other clubs in the division, was that of an appeal for help to enlist more members in sufficient numbers to maintain status quo in membership through unavoidable circumstances. He urged the club members to get out and sell the club to the community and asked that immediate action be taken to remedy the situation, as the board considers it a menace to health.

The board will notify the maintenance superintendent of the Trenton school board that the burning of a large pile of brush behind Prince Charles school, near Bayne Park, would be against the terms of the recently-passed air pollution by-law, if the board thought fit in the area would menace the health of persons living in the area and that the smoke might be detrimental to food stuffs in a nearby market.

Present at the meeting were H. E. Pane, chairman; Miss Marjorie Gerhard and Miss Dow.

PLANETS MISTIMED

Astronomers suggest the planets Jupiter, Saturn, Neptune and Pluto may consist largely of solid hydrogen.

Sea Cadets Learn About First-Aid

TRENTON — Members of the Trenton Sea Cadet Corps have been instructed in emergency treatment for accident victims by members of the St. John Ambulance Corps, Sgt. J. C. Reid, Mrs. Lily Reid and Mrs. June Reid.

The cadets were divided into groups of three for concentrated demonstrations in procedures. Mrs. Ellsworth, divisional officer of Sea Cadet Corps, was in charge of the program. RCAF Dr. L. N. Bowlett lectured the corps on month-to-month resuscitation and a movie on the subject was shown.

An RCN minesweeper squadron will be sailing eastbound on Lake Ontario late this month and several of the Trenton cadets will be guests aboard the ships. They will embark at Oshawa, sail east and disembark at Kingston. While aboard they will receive seamanship training and may be allowed to "take the wheel."

Further cadet news is that the summer camp for Sea Cadets will be guests of the U.S. Navy aboard the "Shenandoah" for a three-week cruise to Bremerhaven, Germany. Eight of the cadets will be from Ontario. Officers of RCSCC "Trent" have submitted the names of local cadets eligible for the trip.

Several cadets are expected to attend a week's training camp at a naval establishment on Canada's east coast. The cadets will receive a taste of naval training and spend some time aboard ship.

The corps' Ladies' Auxiliary is planning a picnic for the cadets, the date of which will be announced later.

The corps' band is making rapid progress under the direction of RCAF Sgt. Kelly. Recruits are invited to join the band and for the corps itself. Any boy, who is physically fit and at least 14 years old, may come down to the ship in the Community Gardens any Tuesday night and try out. There is a six-week preliminary period during which the boy may decide to continue with cadet training.

Health Board Ponders Problem Of Drainage

TRENTON — Members of the Board of Health discussed at lengthy discussion Wednesday about drainage problems in the B.E.P. subdivision in the Dundas Street area.

Land fill in the subdivision has been disturbed and has blocked off water outlets. One area resident complained that water had made its way into his cellar. Health officer Dr. E. W. Dow has written to the company and asked that immediate action be taken to remedy the situation, as the board considers it a menace to health.

The board will notify the maintenance superintendent of the Trenton school board that the burning of a large pile of brush behind Prince Charles school, near Bayne Park, would be against the terms of the recently-passed air pollution by-law, if the board thought fit in the area would menace the health of persons living in the area and that the smoke might be detrimental to food stuffs in a nearby market.

Present at the meeting were H. E. Pane, chairman; Miss Marjorie Gerhard and Miss Dow.

IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS. — In ever loving memory of Colin James Adams, who died June 18th, 1964.
Time speeds on, three years have flown
Since death its gloom, its shadows threw
Within our home, where all seemed bright
And joy shone from us a shining light.
We miss that face so much still
His vacant place there is none to fill
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For up in heaven we will meet again.
Sadly missed by Mom and Pop.

ADAMS. — In ever loving memory of Colin James Adams, who passed away June 18th, 1964.
Three years today our brother was called
To his eternal rest:
God saw the longest sun to set
And knew when God knew best.
His presence oft seems nigh,
His voice we seem to hear still
Where no one says goodbye.
Sadly missed by sister Maureen and brother-in-law Tom.

DAVIS. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Ernest Albert Davis, who passed away June 18th, 1954.
He marked the path
With which we'll never part;
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
— Ever remembered by sister Kay, Lorne, Bob and Bill.

FOSTER. — In loving memory of a wonderful mother, Florence Evelyn Foster, who would have been 69 years ago today, on June 18th, 1896.
If we had all the world to give,
And all the years to live,
To hear her voice and see her smile
And greet her at the door
But all we can do, dear mother,
Is go and weep and mourn,
And leave behind tokens of love,
To be kept during our years to come.
— Always remembered by her family.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank our relatives and relatives for the many acts of kindness shown to us during our illness and kind expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement of a dear niece, Keitha Mackenzie.
— Everett and Mabel Prindle.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my friends and neighbors for the lovely flowers, cards and goodies; also a special thanks to Dr. Dow, the nurses on 3 East as well and the nurses and staff on the Emergency ward while in the Belleville General Hospital.
— Samuel Houghton.

Five Realtors Pass Exams

Five Belleville and district realtors have been successful in passing part 1 of a three-part course offered by the Appraisal Institute of Canada at Queen's University.

They are Gerald W. Joyce of Joyce Realty Ltd., of Belleville, Wesley Downs, sub-agent at Hilton for McCormick Realty Ltd., of Belleville; Vic Simonds, internal revenue, Belleville; Bill Slater, W.A. Foulkes, and Jim Maloney, county assessor, Lennox-Addington, of Napanee.

Part 2 of the course will be offered next year, as will part 3.

Part 1 was a basic study course dealing with the true values inherent in billions of dollars worth of land, homes, farms, business properties and mortgages in Eastern Ontario. It began last October and final examinations were completed a few weeks ago.

Editors successful in passing all three parts of the course will receive accreditation with the Appraisal Institute of Canada.

Mrs. Thompson's duties will involve the placement of children of all ages in adoption, and the supervision of children placed in adoption.

Two Belleville Men Fined In Police Court

Two Belleville men were fined in city magistrate's court today when they pleaded guilty to violating the Unemployment insurance Act by making false statements in applying for unemployment insurance benefits.

Henry G. Hubbs was fined $20 on each of six charges. He received $154 in unemployment insurance while his actual income during the period the offences were committed was $250. He was also assessed $3 court costs and ordered to pay the $120 fine within three weeks or go to jail for two months.

Melville Bartley was fined $20 on each of nine similar charges involving the receipt of $346 in unemployment insurance benefits while his actual earnings during the period the offences were committed were $941.70.

Mr. Bartley asked for three months in which to pay the $225 fine, but Magistrate T. Y Wills advised him that the Queen's court was not a finance company and that he would have to either pay up within three weeks or go to jail for three months. The magistrate said he was pleased to see that the Crown had asked for stiff penalties in view of the common occurrence of similar offences.

Man Lost in Bush 11 Hours But Dog Never Left Him

PICTON — A man's best friend is his dog, is a saying with which Tip-year-old Mark Lambert of Waupoos agrees. He was lost more than eleven hours in the bush and farm land in Cressy and Waupoos areas. Wednesday, yet the faithful Collie never left him. Mr. Lambert, the dog and Winston Colin Wright farm home at Waupoos about five o'clock in the morning to bring the cows in for milking. Mr. Lambert went one way in search of them and Winston in another direction. The latter discovered the animals and drove them home. When Mr. Lambert did not return, a search was started and a large group of neighbors along with many priests at the Oblate Fathers School on Waupoos Island, organized a search. Carl Weese raised many men at his general store, Pete Sissons, a member of Prince Edward Flying Club, secured two aircraft to assist.

MANY HOURS OF WALKING

Ten minutes after four o'clock a very tired and hungry man, and an equally tired Collie, reached the home of William Dobinson on Lakeside Cressy. Mr. Lambert had after many hours of walking, covered around a dozen miles before reaching a house.

He was picked up by Laverne Wright and brought back to Sunnydale Farms where he has lived for the past fifty years. Yesterday, he was none the worse for his adventure.

Searchers reported the area well wooded with much new growth which would confuse anyone. One of the searchers George Williamson was lost for a time in the woods, finally recognizing his whereabouts when he reached a sap house in Kerr's woods.

Call Tenders for 8.5 Miles Grading on Highway 62

The Ontario Department of Highways is calling for tenders for new grading, drainage and granular base for 8.5 miles of No. 62 Highway from Bannockburn from the village of Bannockburn. Tenders will be closed on Wednesday, July 19th.

District Engineer Cameron Robertson today said he expected the work would get under way early in August and in all probability would extend into the spring of 1962 before the job is completed. The 8.5 mile diversion runs north from Bannockburn to the St. Ola turn.

The paving contract for the new grade was not expected to be called until next year, following completion of the new grade.

Rev. R. Sherwin Accepts Call From Durham

Rev. Robert Sherwin, assistant minister at Bridge Street United Church since 1957, has accepted a call from Durham Ontario, and will be inducted in the Toronto Conference charge June 29.

Mr. Sherwin, a native of Cobourg, was ordained in Bridge Street United Church in 1954 when the Bay of Quinte Conference was held in Belleville.

He came to Belleville four years ago from the Athol Township charge in Prince Edward County.

Since coming to Bridge Street Church, Mr. Sherwin has been mainly responsible for the church's Christian education program and has shared in the pastoral work of the congregation.

He has been chairman of the home missions committee of Belleville Presbytery and secretary of the Conference committees on Christian education.

Mr. Sherwin is married to the former Evelyn Taylor and is the father of an 18-month-old son, David. Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin were married near Stirlingmanville after he had accepted the call to Bridge Street church.

Mr. Sherwin has been active in the YMCA's Y's Men's Club, the Belleville District Boy Scout Council and the Belleville Film Council.

His successor at Bridge Street Church has not been named.

Weekend Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was slow and bidding was sluggish on all classes and grades of slaughter cattle this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Generally, prices were a strong 25-50 cents and more lower across the board. Demand for replacements was light with prices a strong 50 cents to $1 per hundredweight lower. Veal calves, under pressure, sold at lower prices. Hog prices were also lower and spring lamb prices $1-2 down.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers $22-22.50, with singles and odd head lots 22.75; good 21-22; medium 19-20; common 16-18; choice heifers 21.50; good 20-21; medium 18-20; common 15-18; choice fed yearlings 22.50-23.50; good 21-22.50; good cows 17-17.50, sales to 18; mediums 15.50-16.50; common 14.50-15.00; canners and cutters 12-14; good heavy bologna bulls 18-19.50, odd tops to 19.75; common and medium 16-18.50.

Replacement cattle: Good to choice feeder steers 21-25, selected lots to 23.50; common and medium stockers and stock heifer calves 20-22, with plain ends downward to 18.

Hogs: Grade A [illegible] heavy sows 20-20.25; light sows 19; graded 22 premium; sows 17.50 on a dressed weight basis.

Out Of The Past

It seems unlikely that a new TV cartoon series about a lazy but amorous bear by the name of Calvin and a fox who is a southern colonel will make the names of Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll household words.

In this there will be no change, for how many today recognize these names? Yet, when the young fry watch this cartoon and the southern accents of bear and fox drift out from the living room to the kitchen, or the front porch, it may be that mother and dad, or perhaps grandpa and grandma, will be suddenly seized by an inexplicable wave of nostalgia. Perhaps, they will sniff the air, to discover whether it is the sudden scent of new bread or of old-fashioned hollyhocks which is responsible. Discovering nothing, they may go about their tasks, or relax and dream. Eventually, though, surely there will be some phrase, some intonation, which will stir up their memory cells and lead them back into years past.

Then they will not be listening to bear and fox, but to Amos and Andy and the Kingfish—for Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll were all three of these, as well as being the voices of the two Calvin the bear and the southern fox who is a colonel, and it may come as may be sure, for his roots go back to both Amos and the Kingfish, both of which used the voice of Gosden. Correll's bear will be deep-voiced, like Andy. We wonder who will be the alter ego of Madam Queen? We can think of no reasonable facsimile amongst the animal kingdom of the southland, more's the pity. But if she is missing, none of today's cartoon clique are likely to mourn, for Amos and Andy were born in 1926 and though their radio life did not end until last November most of their ardent admirers, legion in the early days of the thirties, had long since been lured away. Perhaps, for all we know, Madam Queen departed this world at a much earlier date." How say that this might be so, and us unknowing. How sadder the fact that this separation the years bring between the people of fantasy-land and their friends is often mirrored in real life.

No, we do not think we shall search the TV channels for Calvin and his colonel. If we chance upon them, well and good. It will give us brief interest, like meeting the children of friends once known, but it will not restore to life Amos and Andy and the Kingfish, nor the days in which they lived.

It Will Be A Brave Fight

Friends of Donald Gordon — and he is acquiring some unexpected ones these days including supporters from amongst the labor unions connected with the CNR—could ask for nothing better than the treatment planned for him by the Commons special railways committee.

Both Government and Opposition members of the House, we are told in a report from Ottawa, have served notice that they plan to subject the CNR president to exhaustive and detailed questioning.

This may prove a little wearing on the well known Gordon temper, but that is likely to be as hard on questioners as on the man they question. And we rather suspect that Mr. Gordon himself, far from shrinking from the prospective ordeal, will welcome it. "Say goes the Gordon to a fight," said the poet. If, at the conclusion of the inquiry, thirty lads lay on hillside bare, it will be impossible for them all to be Gordons, a condition of affairs which puts the Gordon clan in a much better strategic position than in the battle of which the bard sang.

It should be a brave fight, but of one thing we can be sure, the truth will not suffer. Mr. Gordon may be wrong but nobody would ever suggest that he would hesitate to speak out plainly and let everybody know exactly where he has stood—and stands today.

The public interest cannot suffer—and may be considerably benefited.

Lay on MacDuff.

What your country needs are not satellites who vote with you automatically on all issues because they want your money, but friends who support you from conviction—and who may also oppose you from conviction.—President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia to the U.S.A.

The truth is that today, in spite of all the talk, there are no sex displays on the screen that you can't see in real life—in public—without too much trouble—Movie producer Adolph Zukor, on censorship.

Reds Making Right Turn

Vancouver Sun

Indications of a right turn in Communist Party policy continue to show in Russia above the bubble of Prawda and the rest of the press. Now and then, amid the party-line prattle, appear the few significant quotations from which both Russians and Westerners can take their time.

Mikhail Suslov, a member of the Russian presidium, is quoted by Prawda as declaring about the need for tactics of co-operation of local Communist parties with bourgeois and even capitalist parties.

And in a party book with the formidable title, Lenin on the Struggle for Program Adopted at The Eighth Congress of the Russian Communist Party, the archpriest of Communism is invoked in favor of economic co-existence. Instead of Mao Tse-tung's dictum that war is the locomotive of history, Lenin calls the great leap.

Some observers in the whole strategy will find its full expression in the program to be adopted by Khrushchev at the 22nd Soviet Party Congress.

It has a familiar sound, to those who remember the hopeful far fronts of the thirties. But in its suggestion that even the capitalists and the best decorated leaders of Communists, it goes farther.

In part, this is probably due to the realization that simple confrontation is a dangerous game against the Baltic states for instance, can't safely be used in the face of the atomic bomb.

It is to be hoped that it also dawned on the unreconstructed Marxist that the world of which Mr. Marx wrote no longer exists.

It could also be what the Russian common man desires. He wants peace and peaceful coexistence; he is anxious for peaceful contact with his own borders, free of the NKVD. He wants his share of Soviet bounty. He wants consumer goods that modern technology has made possible.

He wants more privacy.

He would probably rather have Khrushchev than with the world to Marxism.

The true twist developing in the party lines does not mean that Khrushchev and the rest consider Russian aristocracy have surrendering their dreams of world domination. To them, this is a new line of attack on the same policy.

But it is a change that history may show to have been irreversible and which may prove irreversible.

Nina Knows K-K-Kissing

Windsor Star

Mrs. Nina Khrushchev proposed a toast to the "love of human emotions of a Moscow party in honor of President Kekkonen of Finland. A couple of pretty Indonesian girls became kissy kissy on her bosom, who evidently was in an ebullient mood.

Sukarno wanted the equivalent from Russian girls. They approached rather modest about it and Mrs. Khrushchev said its prevail on one to be more demonstrative. "You only have to kiss him once, not twice" she explained. There was quite a distinction. Evidently. What a two kisses, in her mind.

There is, of course, quite a difference. One kiss can be nothing more than a pleasant salutation. Two or more kisses can mean more; how much more depends on the participants. Mrs. Khrushchev was implying one kiss would be harmless; two or more kisses probably not.

Those experienced in the art would suggest it isn't only the number of kisses that allow inferences. It is also the nature of a kiss. A kiss can be a polite peck or it can be a passionate act.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

June 16th, 1931.

In conjunction with the current Victory Loan campaign the home of Mrs. W. W. Reppard of Bleecker Avenue was judged the best decorated house in Belleville in the home-business decoration contest, and the best decorated building in the down-town area was judged to be the St. Carthy Theatre, which is gayly decorated in patriotic colorings. The prizes awarded for decorations in the local portions of the Cavalcade of Floats which paraded in Belleville on Friday, were announced as follows: Best decorated bicycle — Douglas Bone and John Doyle (equal); best decorated motor car — Al Reynolds; best "kiddy car" — Larry Hughes.

Despite the fact that Reeve Charles Kerr of Tweed refused to sign the Roads and Bridges report as a member of the committee, Hastings County Council at its closing session yesterday afternoon, adopted the report which called for paving of seven-eighths of a mile of the Belleville-Madoc Road and a double surface for a mile of the same highway extending from Moira Lake to Madoc, after nearly two hours of argument, motion and amendment. Following the presentation of the report by chairman Roscoe Robson, Reeve Kerr immediately charged that the discussion of the report of the committee did not agree with the report as read. The Belleville-Madoc Road cost the County between $12,000 and $15,000 a year; "and this is by far too much money" charged Reeve Kerr. While the council in January session had voted $1 million for road purposes, it had been expected that this would be cut to two mills by the Department of Highways.

Victories Of Willpower

Hamilton Spectator

The resources of the human spirit are rarely used to greater advantage than when the body, from birth or as the result of an accident, suffers a disability. Byron was lame, Beethoven was deaf, Milton was blind. The roll of disabled great ones is long.

In the weeks by-election, Mr. J. R. Matheson, a paraplegic as a result of a war wound, campaigned through a riding on crutches. His disability, far from being a disadvantage, seems to have been a stimulus for success.

On the same day that Mr. Matheson won his election, a blind student and a paraplegic received their degrees in Convocation Hall, University of Toronto.

Such triumphs are more than dedication to study; they are victories of willpower. The disability becomes, by some mysterious paradoxical process in the human spirit, a rally to battle against itself.

People who are whole, in possession of all their faculties, admire these feats and feel, or should feel, something near to shame that with all their advantages, their will to win seems weak beside these shining examples of determination. The challenge in life are here for the fit, but sometimes those in line with the Fate does not provide spurs which urgently goad endeavor in the whole, so still they stand proudly pounding the rest.

Willpower is a much abused in our times. It is dragged into use to describe the push-on-to-success mandible verse, but there are occasions when no other word will do. And these are three such occasions, for deeply embedded in the spirit of humanity lies not cruel-seeming, can be found the given power to turn apparent misfortune into triumphant success. From this we can all, with humility learn.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

JUDGEMENT DAY

The Bible teaches that eventually there will be a Day of Judgement. At that time the nations of the world will be gathered together — a multitude so great that no man can number. Then will be the final good be separated from the evil. Then will God's words and acts be weighed in the balance.

Yet much as we may believe in an ultimate Day of Judgement, we never really live our lives as we should until we realize that every day is a Judgement Day for us. There must be a final totalling up of the accounts of our lives after death, but surely there have to be tens of thousands of accountings before that time. Is our life going forward in the right direction? Do we have an ideal — an ideal we are seeking after? Have we been faithful to our trusts, both great and small? Are we living for what we can get out of life, or are we living life to the full and putting back more than we take out? Are we forgiving or are we hostile and vengeful? are we jealous and envious? which have about them cosmic and eternal significance?

Give Awards To Obscure Fellow Men

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every spring, as you know, is the time for annual awards of all kinds — the Oscars, the Emmies, the Tonies and the Pulitzers. All these awards go to more or less famous people for their contributions to the arts or the world of entertainment.

This year I would like to inaugurate my own awards — call them what you like — to unknown and undistinguished citizens who nevertheless deserve recognition for behaving in a manner that places them beyond and above the run of common humanity.

For instance, there is Oswald Q. Flab. Although an obscure filing clerk for a company manufacturing library paste, Flab is a unique citizen in one respect. When depositing a letter in a mailbox, he never gives the flap a second lick, in order to make sure the letter slides down the slot. He simply opens the lid, drops the letter and strides off.

Congratulations on your assurance and dignity is Gardish Gamut, the widely-known magic painter. Gamut has never in his life pressed a elevator button that someone has just pressed a moment before his arrival. He just stands and waits for the elevator to come, secure in the knowledge that the previous person must have a good job of pressing.

We must add to our gallery of unsung heroes the name of Alphonse Levy-McPherson, the financier, who reads his daily paper at the newsstand. He takes the first paper off the top and deposits his dime. He doesn't skilfet out the second paper and hand it back. They all have the same cross-word puzzle anyway.

We must not forget that meek-mooie marvel, Crashaw Donne, who writes jingles for use on the women's journals. Unlike the rest of us mortals, when Donne looks at his writhings to learn the time, and a moment later someone (having seen him do this) asks him the time, he replies promptly, "3:47" without having to look at his watch again. Who among us can do the same?

Perhaps standing highest in this Parnassus of triviality is my old friend, Dermot Ire, the Breton basket weaver. He is the only person I know ever to get at a big cocktail party who didn't say at one, "I hate big parties." Instead, he either attends a big cocktail party, and happily enjoys himself, or he stays home. He would never dor a moment dream of talking down an activity which he can voluntarily accepted. In him, I think, humanity reaches at least the threshold of sanctity.

There are many more, but space is running out. Nominations become cheapened if they are too numerous. I am already accepting nominations for next year's accolades. Drop them in the mailbox — and don't lick!

'Diverticulitis' Means Infected Diverticulum

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: So far you haven't mentioned on diverticulitis. — Mrs. S. E."

"Please explain the cause and treatment of diverticulitis — Mrs. M.K."

The problem was diagnosed as diverticulosis, a colon trouble. I was placed on a bland diet, and told not to become constipated, and I take about six ounces of prune juice before breakfast.

"I was not given any hope of complete recovery, and was told to live with it. I understand this is a common trouble and wonder—if you have any advice.— M. G."

Yes, it's very common, however, I deay that I haven't commented on it. I have. But you know how it is — you just don't happen to read the column on the day I write about the thing that most interests you.

Diverticulitis is a sir-syllable word for one of the common conditions (note that I do not say "diseases") in people after 50.

Technically, it is a disease. But I suppose, most of us would regard it as one in the first place ordinarily use that term, any more than we would consider flat feet a disease. It is a nuisance, or a headache.

Let me give you three definitions, Molner style, of what we are talking about.

DIVERTICULUM: (Dye-ver-tick-you-lum) means a small pouch that has developed somewhere along the colon tube that we refer to as a digestive tract. It is not unlike the bulge in the gullet to the large bowel, a weak place develops, and it swells out a bit, like a weak spot in a balloon, or something like that.

DIVERTICULOSIS: (Dye-ver-tick-you-lo-sis) is the term we use when a diverticulum has developed — or several of 'em. The plural of diverticulum (dye-tick you-lye-lis) is the term we apply when one of these pouches becomes infected. Hence, the "itis" ending indicates.

We must not forget that meemoole marvel, Crashaw Donne, who writes jingles for use on the women's journals. Unlike the rest of us mortals, when Donne looks at his writhings to learn the time, and a moment later someone (having seen him do this) asks him the time, he replies promptly, "3:47" without having to look at his watch again. Who among us can do the same?

Perhaps standing highest in this Parnassus of triviality is my old friend, Dermot Ire, the Breton basket weaver. He is the only person I know ever to get at a big cocktail party who didn't say at one, "I hate big parties." In him, I think, humanity reaches at least the threshold of sanctity.

There are many more, but space is running out. Nominations become cheapened if they are too numerous. I am already accepting nominations for next year's accolades. Drop them in the mailbox — and don't lick!

"Dear Dr. Molner: Does hard swallowing always indicate cancer of the throat? — F. K."

Most certainly not! It may mean that something's wrong, if only with one's nerves. There are any number of reasons, the majority of them not being cancer.

Note to Mrs. P. G.: These vaginal discharges are quite common. Since this disease had also recurred it should be checked. The newer treatment starts, the easier the cure. Don't be frightened, just go to your doctor and have him check.

Claim CBC Needs a Rest

Ottawa Journal

By the very nature of things, because even Commissions and Boards of Parliament eventually need a session to go home, the Commons Broadcasting Committee will conclude its examination of the CBC some time this year.

Then, if they are wise, members will give the national radio system a rest.

Nobody calculates that it has been examined once every 27 months since its inception, by parliamentary committees or commissions.

Certainly the CBC must be subjected to parliamentary inquiry periodically. But this is too much.

The Broadcasting committee like other committees, will make recommendations to improve the CBC, and the CBC board of directors will be informed and make its own checks on operations. Looking after the CBC shareholders at another authority, the CBC officials must heed the directives of the Board of Broadcast Governors. Additionally, there are the auditors, and under the sharp eye of teh energetic Tobacco Commission, checking on efficiency.

With all this going on, the CBC hardly needs the Broadcasting Committee inquiry next year. It isn't as though an iron curtain will fall. Questions may still be asked in the House and CBC triumphs or blunders.

Without a committee to make them prisoners in a smoke-filled committee-room, we have a dream of the CBC brass all next year working without interruption on the improvement of programs, and developing ideas to strengthen Canadianism. If they did that they might be able to come back before the committee with a few more with more achievements than good excuses.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two young men, office workers, got into conversation with me at the lunch table, and out of the blue they began to ramble and philosophe mien asked me some questions in line with the topic of conversation that was occupying them.

"What is life," they asked, "that all bosses, all managers, are such stinkers?"

"Well, for one thing," I explained, "you don't rise in authority in business by being democratic. The board of directors in business look with favor upon popular managers. The only man who can afford to be popular in business is the president. And his popularity is founded on the impression that he is so much more affable and friendly than the men he employs to run the business. As a rule, the more affable the president, the more ruthless the general manager and other executives."

"That's true at our place," agreed the young men, surprised.

"The owner of a ship," I elaborated, "may be a dear old gentleman living on dividend. But don't ever go out in a storm on the ship of which the captain, coming on the bridge to take charge, looks to the deckhand, 'oh, Mr. Jones, would you be so kind as to have the bow lines cast off, and away we go!'"

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOU KNOW THINGS

We never know from the looks of a man how much money he has in the bank.

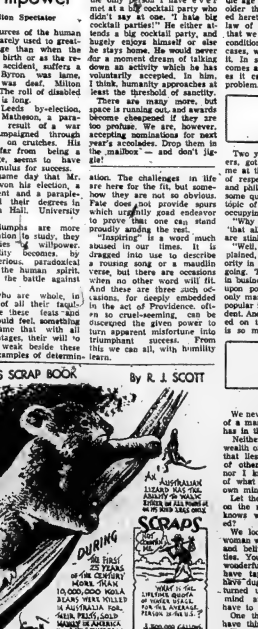
Neither do we know the wealth of knowledge and wisdom that lies hidden in the brains of other people. Neither you nor I know the extent, even, of what we have within our own minds.

Let the right spark but light on the right spot — and who knows what we may be revealed?

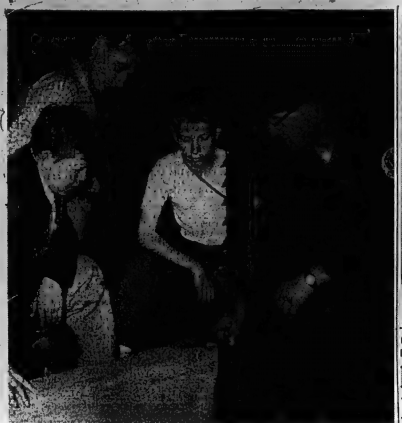
We look upon some man or woman who has achieved much, and belittle our own possibilities. You do not know your wonderful potentials until you have tapped them, until you have dug deep, until you have turned up the soil of your mind and learned what you have to work upon.

One thing is certain — you have things!

There are no two brains alike in all this world. You have things that no one else has. Simply develop and cultivate what you have, and it will not be long before you will stand out with that something no one else has. This will give you distinction.

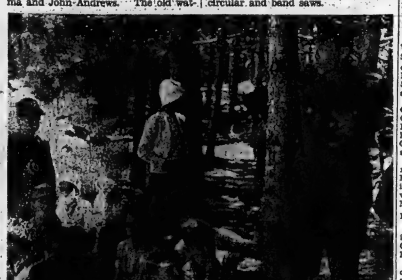


Every mind reacts to what it sees in a different way. No two persons see or feel the same.



There is nothing so inspiring to the world as original expression.

And there is no other way to attain original expression quite equal to getting off of beaten paths — blazing new trails — thinking for yourself.



You know things. Get them out of your mind. Associate your ideas with those of others. Try them upon the flint of minds that have already had the courage to express what they honestly thought.

And then battle for your ideas.

Operation of century-old "muley" type saw at O'Hara's Mill is explained by Authority employee Mac Sarles to Eugene Wannamaker, Raymond Bouma and John Andrews. The old water-powered saw worked with a straight up and down motion. Sawing lumber with this method was a slow process in comparison with speedy modern circular and band saws.

William Hiscock, forestry expert from Tweed, answers questions on forestry matters during a stop at a 22-year-old red pine plantation in the Potter Settlement area. The planting here was done by Hungerford township. This planting was thinned three years ago by removing every other row of trees.

Jack Stark directs students to the Old O'Hara Mill north of Madoc, during tour yesterday by grade 7 students from Queen Victoria School. Pupils inspected the old mill and dam north of Madoc, which has been restored as a tourist attraction by the Moira Authority.

Lloyd Flequel, from the Tweed Forestry Branch, explains the difference between red and white pine to students Jim Murray and Beth Wardle at a four-year-old reforestation project in the Potter settlement. That is a white pine they are inspecting.

Students Visit Factory, Farm, Old Sawmill; View Reforestation Plots on Trip

A day in the country and a lesson in conservation was combined for 84 grade 7 students at Queen Victoria Public School yesterday as they enjoyed an all-day trip around the Moira River watershed.

With two buses sponsored by the Queen Victoria Home and School Association, and accompanied by school principal Bert Frink and teacher Jack Stark, the pupils took off shortly after nine o'clock.

They visited the Foxboro Canning factory, the farm of Cecil Ketcheson in the Zion Hill area, a sawmill at Chisholm's and had lunch at the Vandervaart Conservation area at Thomasburg.

In the afternoon they visited reforestation projects in the Potter settlement east of Actinolite and wound up the day with a visit to the old O'Hara Mill north of Madoc.

FIELD OFFICER GUIDE

The guide for the day's trip in the country was Michael Chubb, field officer for the Moira Conservation Authority.

First stop for the school children was at the Foxboro canning factory where canning processes were outlined along with a description of how the factory had overcome river pollution problem with an irrigation system.

At the Ketcheson farm at Zion Hill, the kiddies had a close-up look at dairy cattle, calves and hogs. Then, although it was a bit out of season, Mr. Ketcheson took them to his maple sap shanty and explained how sap from the maple trees is made into syrup and sugar.

At Chisholm's Mill they viewed the big lumber yards and 15 acres of pulp ready for the sawmill.

Then at Potter's Settlement in the Actinolite area they viewed reforestation projects four and five years old and another where the pines were over 20 years old and had already been thinned out to allow for better growth.

Two forestry experts from the Tweed forestry office were on hand, along with T. C. Graham of Tweed, chairman of the Moira Conservation Authority reforestation committee.

The forestry experts told the children how to distinguish between red and white pine and how forested area conserve the water supply and help to build up the soil.

VISIT OLD MILL

At the old O'Hara Mill north of Madoc, water power in the reconstructed millpond was turned through the water powered mill and the young visitors were able to see just how the Hastings county pioneers manufactured lumber to build their homes and barns.

The old O'Hara mill was reconstructed by the Authority and is being maintained as a tourist attraction. It is the oldest mechanical sawmill in the district and possibly the only one of its type still in existence in Ontario.

SUSPEND SENTENCE

OTTAWA (CP) — Petty Officer Arthur Wayne Chisholm, 30-year-old father of eight children, was given a two-year suspended sentence Thursday for theft of Community Chest funds. Chisholm was charged in connection with $1,200 shortage in Ottawa naval headquarter's Community Chest drives over a two - year period. He pleaded guilty. The Community Chest has been repaid the amount stolen.

70 Attend Lions Club "Ladies' Night"

CAMPBELLFORD — About 70 members of the Campbellford Lions Club and their wives enjoyed the 'Ladies' Night' banquet on Wednesday evening.

Guest speaker of the evening was District Governor Lion Jim Clarke of Campbellford. He introduced the Rev. C. K. Dolby of the Baptist Church, who played a tape recording of the Campbellford Citizens' brass band during the Lions convention held recently in Kingston.

Governor Clarke spoke briefly to the group, and told them how he has enjoyed being Governor and believed that the more one gives to Lionism the more one gets out of it. He said the motto of the club is "We Serve," and to build a better community members must be of service to everybody to make a good Lion, and thus a good member of the community. He complimented members of the Campbellford Lions Club on their accomplishments since they were chartered in 1953.

Following the dinner and the speeches, all enjoyed a social evening and dancing.

Preparations are progressing for the Lions Carnival to be held in July, which will feature a draw for a travel trailer.

MISSING FISH REPLACED

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—A trout hatchery near North Bay has provided 20,000 yearling speckled trout to replace a similar number stolen recently from a hatchery 38 miles east of here. Some of the trout have already been stocked in Haliburton District lakes which otherwise would not have been re-stocked this year, lands and forests officials said.

George Stratton New President Of Lions Club

The last regular meeting for the season of the Lions Club of Belleville was held Thursday evening at the Shrine Club with president Harvey Frid in the chair for the last time. The next regular meeting will be on the first Thursday in September when a new slate of officers, headed by George Stratton, will take over the executive responsibilities of the Club. Those elected for office were as follows: president, George Stratton; 1st vice-president, Roger Neas; 2nd vice - president, Stu Babcock; 3rd vice - president, Jim Seekings; secretary, Gerry Brennan; financial secretary, Bill Henderson; treasurer, Don Whalen; one-year directors: Bob Knox and Elmer Scott; two-year: Bill Shaw and Lionel Hinds; lion tamer, Bil Nickle; and tail-twister, Jack Hammond.

President Harvey thanked the members for their whole-hearted co-operation during his year of office during which, with the help of the citizens of Belleville and district, much was accomplished, especially in aid to the blind, and support of the Belleville Association for Retarded Children.

GIVEN FAREWELL GIFT

Vice-president Al Bryant, project chairman for the past year, will be leaving Belleville soon to take up a new position with his company in Toronto. Lion Al headed up the committee in charge of procuring and renovating the former Catholic high school on John St., for use as a school for Retarded children. Alvin Parkhurst, representing the Association, presented Lion Al with a handsome leather billfold as a farewell gift and in appreciation of the many hours of work Lion Al and his committee spent on this project. President Harvey Frid added his thanks on behalf of the Club.

Lion Bill Lowen reported on the Belleville Charity Horse Show sponsored by the club which will take place at the fairgrounds on June 30th. The annual boat draw in support of the Retarded Children's Building Fund, will take place at the Horse Show.

Guests for the evening were Lions Nels Salter and Maurice LaRoche of Trenton, Alvin Parkhurst and Bob Walle of Belleville.

MISSION CIRCLE

THOMASBURG — President Mrs. C. Irvine of the Fuller Presbyterian Mission Circle presided at the regular meeting held recently. The Scripture lesson that in Timothy 4 was read by Mr. D. Thompson. The minutes of the previous meeting was read and adopted. There were 28 members present.

The topic for the meeting was given by Reginald Irvine and was based on youth's christian training, by parents. The program consisted of readings by Mrs. D. Thompson and Mrs. R. Redcliffe. A lovely solo was rendered by Muriel Swan entitled, "I Need No Musician Here" another reading was given by Irwin Post, "The Home of the World".

Lena Belnap; Emily Beal; Gladys Bonnor; Dorothy Sagar. Receiving the tea were Judy Flindle; Maud Craig; Mrs. Guerrie Rogers; Wm. Reed; Ada Whaley and Jean Salisbury.

The delicious tea was made by Sister Florence Pollitt, while, along with the dainty sandwiches and cakes was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The treasurer for the tea was Sister Annis Webb and the home cooking table was convened by Sisters Verna Oliphant and Margaret Novinson, assisted by Sisters Phyllis Pope; Helen Miller; Connie Wilkinson and Doris Clark.

British Women Delighted With U.K. Supermarkets

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Canadian housewife would probably be impressed with the average London supermarket but for the most part the women here are delighted with them.

When a handful appeared on the shopping scene in 1956, critics said the supermarkets would never last. The chains swept from their traditional rounds to greengrocer, butcher and fishmonger—and the small retail affair in the day of the British housewife.

Since then the number has grown to more than 500, with 230 of them in London and the south of England, and present expansion plans will push the total to 1,000 in two years. Despite the strong sentimental ties with the little shop, the promoters are investing heavily in bigger, brighter and more efficient outlets.

Already there are some supermarkets but generally they are smaller than the Canadian variety, with narrower and the stock less varied.

STICK TO GROCERIES

For the most part the big supermarkets stick pretty close to the grocery lines, avoiding magazines, paints and other clothing, kitchen utensils, drugs and cosmetics.

And some supermarkets do not encourage back parcels with the neighborhood greengrocer. Most have a full fruit and vegetable section with their clean, firm fruit and vegetables and sometimes even a dump interiors and out onto the sidewalk.

Small, hand-pushed carts are used in many local shops and even rope are often provided grudgingly—for customers to carry their own baskets.

In the supermarket the inexperienced shopper may find herself at the end of the checkout counter, surrounded by her purchases, and no equivalent of the brown paper bag provided. She may, however, buy a paper shopping bag with string handle—called a "carrier"—for a few pennies.

Many shops have always been popular here and because of the scarcity of refrigerators the housewife has made her traditional rounds three or four times a week.

AFFEALING IDEA

Now, with refrigerators more common, more women were coming outside the home, the idea of buying most of the weekly groceries in one trip is appealing. One manager says the idea originated in Sweden as a way of shopping, particularly like the supermarkets.

Housewives find the decision a difficult one: The supermarket with its same-day service and prices or the little shops with their chatty clerks and personal service.

Bargains are the supermarkets' big draw. Barry Hall, manager of a market in fashionable Kensington: "Most women enjoy a bargain, even those with titles."

But the few pennies off is no bargain to the woman who boasts that she can phone her butcher, order a steak and ask him to run across the street to the greengrocer for mushrooms to go with it.

"He delivers the whole thing—and there's no delivery charge."

To counter this appeal, supermarket managers have used some extreme gimmicks. One of the more ingenious is the sprinkling of sugar and coffee on the floors—to give the place the familiar grocery smell.

Christ Church P.G. Enjoys P-L Repast

On Tuesday afternoon the members of Christ Church Parish Guild held their regular monthly meeting. This was in the form of a pot-luck luncheon attended by a number of members and guests. Corsages were presented to the guests by Mrs. W. N. Adams.

Following the delicious luncheon there was a short business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Dawson. A gracious welcome was extended to all present.

Various reports were given and the recent "Blossom Tea" was an outstanding success. The convenor of the tea, Mrs. R. Slavin, extended a warm message of thanks to all members who had helped so willingly.

At the conclusion of the business period, Mrs. D. Stevens gave a humorous reading which was greatly enjoyed.

The president, Mrs. Dawson, wished everyone a happy summer and all look forward to meeting together again in the fall.

Plaque to Be Erected To Founder of Institutes

ST. GEORGE, Ont. (CP)—A plaque recognizing as a national figure the founder of the first Women's Institute will be erected this summer at the Adelaide Hunter Hoodless Homestead by the National Historic Sites and Monuments Board.

The homestead, just west of St. George about five miles north of Brantford, will be landscaped and furnished in the style of the period in which Mrs. Hoodless lived there.

Mrs. Hoodless founded the first Women's Institute at Stoney Creek, Ont., near Hamilton, in February, 1897. Invited to speak to the wives of members of the Farmers' Institute, she suggested farm women should have their own organization to study such things as home management.

"Since then Women's Institutes have spread throughout Canada—the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada was organized in Winnipeg in 1919—and to other countries. There now are more than 90,000 members in Canada.

The homestead is open daily to the public and Mrs. Horace Lockman of St. George has been named custodian.

To assist the custodian, the Brant County Women's Institutes undertook to maintain out linen towels with a picture of the homestead printed on them. Money from their sale goes to the project.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Oliver are pictured signing the register in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, following their marriage. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

OLIVER—WESTLAKE

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church parsonage on May 27, when Wanda Joan Westlake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Westlake, Plainfield, became the bride of William Gerald Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Oliver, R.R. 3, Belleville. The Reverend Harry M. Davis performed the doublering ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Frank Westlake, the bride looked lovely in a waltz-length dress of white Chantilly lace and net in scalloped tiers and featuring a bouffant skirt with satin cummerbund accented by a back bow. The fitted bodice had short sleeves and rounded neckline. She wore white gloves and white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home in Plainfield, which was tastefully decorated with spring flowers. The bride's table was daintily appointed in white damask, centred with an all-white wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Many beautiful gifts were received, as well as cards of "good wishes" from distant points.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY STREET W.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Holloway Street United Church Women's Association was held Thursday afternoon, June 15th, at the home of Mrs. Clifford Keith, Redmerwille Road. Over 40 ladies sat down to the delightful picnic dinner, which boasted on proving that the old vaying "Little more than kin, is less than kind" is correct.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Mrs. Harold Ostlaughter, who opened with a poem entitled "Thanksgiving Others" taken from the Rev. March's book.

The business, minutes and reports were dealt with in the usual manner and special mention was made of the fall bazaar.

Mrs. B. Moorman and her group took charge of the meeting and after singing "Let the Beauty of Jesus Be Seen in Me", Mrs. Moorman gave the meditation on relationship with one's fellowman. She pointed out that you should not pray for brief your gifts to the latter, unless you are recruited with your brother. "Let us look inward at our own hearts and free them from bitterness before we criticize others." Reconciliation makes a big difference and is the key to harmony and contentment of the soul. Mrs. Moorman closed with prayer.

Mrs. G. Dobbs brought an interesting report from the conference of the higher boards of the organization; the Dominion Council and the Bay of Quinte Conference at Whitby, and the Belleville Presbytery at Madoc. Mrs. Dobbs passed on to the group much information gained at these conferences and which will be very helpful to the local organization. Also notable quotations from speakers, for example the Rev. D. Pelby asks "to consider the African woman as a child of man, down in a pit, and we as Christians should get in that pit with him, take a side style and show him our way". Dr. MacLeod, moderator, states "it is only he who serves who has really lived. To serve, is an honor and privilege". Mrs. Creighton, of Overseas Relief, mentions the tremendous help received from used clothing, and bales, but pleads that there is so much more one could do for these distressed persons. Mrs. Peter Wong; representative from the Church of Christ in Hong Kong, says "carvers are find angels imprisoned in a block of wood and beauty in stone and maybe. There is a spark in every person, but can either serve or destroy".

Summing up her report Mrs. Dobbs stated that an open door can be an opportunity or a means of escape. "May we face a new day and our new organization," and "May we be at rest wherever asked to serve. May the Lord give us His peace, and the light of the World" and "Let not our hearts be troubled neither let them be afraid".

The collection was received by Miss Ethel Wilson and Mrs. Sibbant. Mrs. T. F. Towsend gave a humorous reading about Old Moses and the Ark, at rest in Boston.

Mrs. Bertrand thanked the speaker, Mrs. Towsend, and Mrs. C. Smith for covering her home for the meeting.

A friendship circle and the benedict benediction closed the meeting.

A social half hour of games and contests was enjoyed while lunch was being prepared.

Mrs. T. Anger, Mrs. D. Wiley and Mrs. D. MacLeod.

Mrs. Griffith thanked everyone for an enjoyable meeting.

Men's Dessert, Coffee Party Proves Gay Colorful Affair

It was "Father's Night" at the Casa McCutcheon at 120 Albert Street last evening.

Aside "dads" came through in droves and the "Men's Annual Dessert and Coffee Party" of the Quinte Skating Club's Carol Ann division, the big success it deserved to be.

The lovely home and grounds of Dr. and Mrs. William McCutcheon were "open house" to the guests from 4.30 to 8.30.

They were received by Dr. and Mrs. McCutcheon in the well-appointed living room and ushered by "willing dads" to buffet tables where dessert in all senses and phases of the word was served.

On the lush green of the maple - shaded McCutcheon lawns, was table-seating capacity for some 125 guests.

Here again the "dads" played important roles.

Well-groomed in becoming tweeds, casuals, tropical worsteds and flannels, they mingled without benefit of cap and gown, chef's apron or hat, to see the needs of their guests in a manner that bordered on the professional.

At the coffee table with its snowy-white napery and gleaming silverware, "dads" and others showed they were adept at the pouring of "woman's exclusive" art of pouring.

In fact, some almost appeared domesticated.

Dr. and Mrs. McCutcheon proved excellent host, Dr. W. B. Beattie excelled himself as the "charge d'affaires."

Mrs. Arthur Lyons was on duty at the coffee table in a well-timed sequence that did not permit hurrying to become boring.

Other dads saw to it that "Mother" and "daughter" were supplied. Nobody was kept waiting. The coffee was always piping hot.

The "mothers" and others at the dessert side worked hard behind the scenes. They served at the dessert table but their most important function was small groups. Others moved from group to group with the bringing of the delicious dessert creations that featured the party.

The scene on the McCutcheon lawn was one of color and gaiety. People chatted in slowly among the tables or moved strolling.

Less evening's Dessert and Coffee Party was the fourth since the club was inaugurated by Mrs. McCutcheon, the "parties" have proven pronounced successes.

The proceeds of the affairs go into the kitty of the big chaquer of the Figure Skating Division's programme and activity in this phase of ice recreation has incurred additional expenses. The expenses of professionals dig deeply into membership and other sources of revenue.

That parents of figure-skating children, students are extremely interested in the recreation was and has been evidenced in the list of signings of the Dessert and Coffee Party.

At least last night's highly successful function proved that at least there is enough "dads" to go around

Family Honors Mother on 85th Birthday

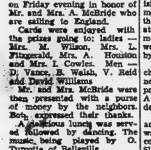
2ND SIDNEY — A happy evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock, on the evening of June 10th, when the children of Mrs. James Sandercock held a birthday party in honor of their mother who was celebrating her 85th birthday.

The nieces and nephews, on the Meyers' side of the family, brought her a large bouquet of red rosebuds and the children presented her with a large array of useful gifts, one of which was a lovely Bible with large print for easy reading.

There were 47 persons present at this joyful event and with some not having seen each other for a number of years, there was much reminiscing.

Mrs. Sandercock had her picture taken beside a lovely birthday cake, which was made and appropriately decorated with candles by her daughter-in-law. A fine lunch was served by the daughters-in-law and daughters.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sandercock and twins Betty and Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. William Sandercock; and Mrs. Ivan Sandercock; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thrasher and family of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sandercock of Toronto; Mrs. Fred Wilson of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock and family; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Jones of Belleville; Marilyn and Judy Sandercock, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar and family, five old neighbors were present also, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Curtis.



The nieces and nephews on the Meyers' side, present were: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dunn of the 3rd concession; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Taylor of Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Alva Meyers; Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Meyers of Foxboro; Mr. and Mrs. Blake Cox, Codrington; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wannamaker of Carrying Place.

Those who contributed but could not be present were: Mr. Bruce Cox of New Westminster, B.C.; Mrs. Gray of Edmonton; Miss Edna Finkle of Trenton; Doris Crosbie of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. John Reid of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Meyers of Trenton; Mrs. R. Eggleton of Hillier; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sanhard of Lakewood, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Southard, U.S.A.

O.S.D. Graduation Exercises Viewed by Capacity Audience

Bright as the sunshine that washed the campus grass and lovely with promise as the opening buds that bordered the walks at the Ontario School for the Deaf were the dreams of the 37 graduates who received "farewell" yesterday afternoon to their beloved Alma Mater.

Long before the processional began, every seat in the tiered standing spaces was filled by parents, relatives and friends for this long - awaited event.

Heading the processional, which slowly made its way down the long aisle to the chords of the Coronation March rendered by Mr. G. Alec Gordon at the piano, were two superintendents, Mr. J. G. Demeza, and the assistant superintendent, Mr. A. E. Kennedy, followed by the teaching staff and instructors of the school, and then the young graduates, two-by-two, the girls lovely in their white dresses with shoulder corsages of deep red roses, and the young men in dark blue suits with white carnation boutonnieres; the school personnel in the rear formation, and the graduates in their specified seats at the front of the auditorium. Lovely floral displays of rose-colored peonies adorned the stage which was highlighted by a special lighting with its cloth-of-gold draping ear backing, held in place by blue rosette. Here were the trophies won, the awards and the certificates which would be presented later during the program.

SUPERINTENDENT'S APPRECIATION

Mr. J. G. Demeza extended a most cordial welcome to the visitors; to the interested parents and friends, with a special word of appreciation to Dr. MacKenzie of Albert College, for use of the swimming pool to the parents for their continued support and co-operation with their children; to the staff members for their fine work, and to the pupils of the intermediate, senior and junior schools who were not on the platform to the hour reserved for their assistance and guidance for all the events; to the staff members who are leaving the staff; to the senior class for its fine co-operation during the year, and to the graduates for their co-operation through the school years.

Following the superintendent's welcome and expression of appreciation, Miss Marjorie Hegle, supervising teacher of Jr. School presented the Catherine Ford scholarship to two pupils of the senior and junior school grades who have made the greatest effort in Speech and Speech Reading; achieving satisfactory progress, who were, Miss Margo Miles and Gordon Snider, both of whom are profoundly deaf. In announcing each of the presentation, each one made her first public speech.

PROFICIENCY PRIZES

These in order followed the presentation of the proficiency prizes to those of the Intermediate school, for 1 vocational Fr. Mr. Vader to Patsy Gaylor; 1 vocational 2, by Mr. Stration to Wayne Stobolchwalie; 1 academic 1 by Miss Denis, to Betty Fitchett; 1 academic 2, by Mrs. Simpson to Dale Kasarda; 2 vocational; 1, by Mrs. Brown, to Marianne Lafleche; 1 vocational 2 by Mrs. Mann, to Nancy Pattison; 2 academic by Mrs. Ryan to Anne McKercher; 3 vocational 1 by Miss Van Allen, to Doyle Johnson; 3 vocational 2, by Mr. Bryant to Angela Hagan; 3 academic by Mrs. Wannamaker, to Billy Gregory; sewing to Shirley Bruce and Angela Hagan, (equal) by Miss Norman; industrial arts and crafts by Mr. Stration, to Kenneth Warren; and elementary mechanics by Mr. Vader, to Michael Mooney.

INTERMEDIATE AWARDS

The intermediate award presented for progress and proficiency in Speech and Speech Reading was presented by Mrs. Wannamaker to Shirley Bruce, for Speech and to Carl Easterbrook for Speech Reading.

Miss M. A. Oare Gives O.S.D. Valedictory

Mr. Demeza, Mr. Kennedy, Supervising Teachers, Parents, Teachers, Supervisors, Honor parents, Fellow Pupils and Friends:

For many months we have looked forward to our graduation. Although we are happy today, our happiness is mixed with a feeling of sadness because we must bid farewell to our school, the staff and our friends here whom we have known for so long.

We are sure thanks to the Province of Ontario, for providing us with such a wellequipped school. Many changes have occurred during our years here. We are very proud of our school and of the excellent training we have received.

We are also thankful to our parents because they sent us to this school where we have had many useful lives after we leave.

For their good care, we are grateful to the nurses, the dietitian, and the doctor who have looked after our health and protection. We realize that these careful years have made us strong and healthy and thank them sincerely.

We know too, that the matron and the staff have always provided the best food necessary for our good health. Our sincere thanks go to them for their daily efforts.

To the superintendent, the teachers, instructors, supervisors, and housparents, we wish to say that we are grateful for their patience with us. Throughout our school lives, they have been given a great deal to us.

We express our sincerest thanks, for their instruction and guidance, their kindness and understanding.

My classmates and I hope that the Graduating Class of 1949 will remember us, and perhaps two will enjoy their graduation year as much as we.

Although we are happy to be going home today it is with regret that we say "Farewell" to you all.

Mary Anne Oare,
Graduating Class.

Gregory, Jack Cyliax, and Miss John Wright. This concluded the presentations.

In making his farewell address to the graduating class, Mr. Demeza hoped they would remember what they had learned; that they would be good citizens; live good lives, and be good Canadians. He said they would do their best all the time, and take away with them the knowledge they had learned in school life as the happy smiles in times of difficulty, adding that they had been much help ful and co-operative, and have been a joy to work with. He gave his best wishes, adding that they write as often as possible, telling how they are getting along, and that they carry away with them his congratulations.

So ended another consecration, the experiences which is a search through which "phoenix that untravelled world whose margin fades forever and forever as they approach." Rest before them.

Gradually, almost subtlely, the recessional began, pacing up the aisle to the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" composed by Sir Gordon for this special occasion.

Picture-taking by the school's Belleville photographer was the climaxing of the day.

COLLEGE HILL W.A.

College Hill W.A. afternoon: Prayer meeting for May was meeting at the church on 18 members present.

Mrs. A. Dickens was in charge of devotions. Mrs. F. Hawkens read the Scripture lesson taken from St. Luke 10:38-42, and Mrs. Dickens the hymn commenced, "Jesus Lover" joined the story of Martha going to far too much trouble in preparing for Jesus and being rebuked by Jesus. In Christian homes nowadays we think that Christ is the guest; yet one often gets fussy and out of humor because we become more important than the guest. Let all welcome the divine guest into their homes, and make Him welcome and thankful for His presence in our fellowship and understanding.

Grandmothers Contribute to W.I. Program

MOUNTAIN VIEW The June meeting of Mt. View Women's Institute was held in the Sunday School rooms with Mrs. Fred Barker and Mrs. Wilfred Motley, as hostesses.

The meeting was opened with the president, Mrs. W. Hawkins, presiding. Roll call was well responded to.

A number of business details were taken care of by Mrs. Stanley Barber and Mrs. Clifford Barber volunteered to see about the display at Belleville Fair.

Mrs. Neal was appointed delegate for the County convention to be held at Mt. View the following Tuesday.

This was grandmothers meeting and was under the convenership of Mrs. W. Burnett. Each grandmother contributed in some way to the program. Mrs. Burkitt for her contributions asked her granddaughter Lora Minaker to play a piano solo which was much enjoyed. Mrs. Burkitt's own mothers conducted contests and Mrs. Burnett read a humorous

A prize was given to the grandmother with most grandchildren which fell to Mrs. M. Sprague of Belleville.

PRESENT FASHION SHOW

There was also a fashion show of the ladies' hats and dresses of the ladies' head dress during the winter and spring courses.

Mrs. Willet Barber acted as commentator for the wearing apparel and Mrs. Clifford Barber for the millinery.

Each lady modelled her own costume or hat and these were heartily applauded as they made for each individual.

The meeting closed and Mrs. W. Hawkins and Mrs. Bailey assisted by several ladies served refreshments.

The July meeting will be held at the summer home of Mrs. Lorne Bell on Big Island on July 5 at 12 o'clock noon, in the form of a pot-luck dinner.

QUESTION BOX

Question — I am going to a very formal dance. My gown is very lovely and is made of soft, cashmere material. I know that my escort will present me with a corsage. If I wear it on my dress, I'm afraid it will tear. What do you do in a case like this? I don't want to hurt him. — Miss F. C. J., Meadville, Pa.

Answer — I sympathize with you in this predicament. But there is a way out! Pin the corsage on your evening bag and all will be well. Your gown will not be harmed either with the feelings of your escort.

Question — We live in a two-type house, all on one floor. My daughter will be being married next month and there is one question that bothers us. She will be married in the large living room and the reception will follow immediately after the ceremony. When she comes down the reception to change her clothes to start on her honeymoon, how does she throw her bouquet? Is there are set steps to stand on when s he throws them to her sis waiting bridesmaids? I understand that Mary Ann Barker for the bride to follow this custom. I am waiting above them. — Mrs. K. G. Smith, B. Children, Ohio.

Answer — Not necessarily. Any of the daughter's attendants should be placed at one side of the living room, grouped together. The bride walks to the other end of the room, and when she has bouquet high in the air, aimed at them. The result is the same as throwing it from the stairs. Usually the bride who reaches up and catches it, will according to tradition be the next one to wed. Have the aisle with her Prince Charming!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Adelaide R. — There's a Golden Age Club nearby, but she won't go.

Jeannette M. — That's no substitute for her former visits to me.

* * *

Adelaide R. — Jeannette and I are friends from 30 years back when we were next-door neighbors. When I moved to another city we still saw a great deal of each other — visiting back and forth and making lunch dates in midtown.

But now we're both in our 70s. Travel is hard and there's no one take us. In recent years I've made most of the trips because Jeannie's arthritis has her depending on a cane, and the subways are too much for her. Actually, they're too much for me, too. I've joined a wonderful club in the city, by way; and I've begged Jeannie to join one in her neighborhood. Then she won't miss my visits so much.

* * *

Jeannette G. — If there's anything worse than being old, losing your health, and being poor, it's being deserted by your friends.

I know all about those clubs. I've gone to a few of them and ex-cers who jump around a lot and make believe they're happy. I'm not that kind of person. I'd much rather be with them than by myself — me, after all these years. We have no end of fun together over a cup of coffee, swapping reports on our respective ills and our families. Why she and I even plan to take trips together — crazy ones with cross-hands and all.

The subway excuse isn't true. She still has to take a bus to get to me, but I guess everything ends. When you're down, you're out too.

* * *

The Council — If there's anyone you know who's lonely, tell it's being too full of birthday here Friday. Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, Mrs. Simpson came here 35 years ago.

ing you to put that best foot forward, cane and all, in the direction of that nearby group.

From the outside looking in, Jeannette may see no point in dragging herself to the scene of deliberate cheering up by "a bunch of strangers." What have they in common? How can they possibly guffaw over Mrs. Miller's slacks or Jim O'Hara's goat the way she and Addie did?

But oh, Jeannette, they've all acquired something new — the ability to grow. That makes their present lively and their future titillating. When a lot of lonely people decide to be lonely together, surprising things happen. first to the loneliness (which dies), and then to the people (who come alive)!

Recently we observed some of the by-products of this coming-together movement for the aging who, living in their own homes, can no longer depend upon family and friends for succulent companionship. The community Centre at Kingston New York presented a "serenade in Spring" by about 60 participating clubs. We are particularly moved by the "sharing" spirit, which is so prevalent in their 70s and 80s and even 90s take part in a Fashion Show, a Bird-house exhibit and in pleasant concertizing. "Summertime" as one group called itself, continue to be part — and a valued part, for each other's loneliness.

Adelaide has found — and is wisely belaboring Jeannette to do likewise — a community revolving in its latest age, sensibility and loneliness with dignity.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

In-Laws Pose Problem

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband is anxious to take me to visit his parents, who live in another country. I have never met his father, but his mother came on an extended visit to us when we were first married and did everything she could to come between us. The situation is so bad that I cannot carry on a conversation with her at all as she wants forever to tell us how wrong we are in all we do.

The sensible compromise seems to be to stay at a hotel in their city, but as they have a large home, this is causing a major family war. But staying with them would cause a major calamity, I feel, and risking good relations with my husband isn't worth that.

What do you suggest? Personally I'd rather stay home but he won't go without me. I am unwilling to visit their home under any circumstances. This is hard on the two men involved but too much is at stake.—QUNDARY.

DEAR QUANDARY — Staying at a hotel is at least an insult. If you just can't take your mother-in-law on her own ground you'd better not go. It's a wise woman who knows when to efface herself.

I'd prefer to think, though, that for the sake of your future with your husband you'd brave the lioness in her den. It might be unexpectedly pleasant to meet your father-in-law. You would have to summon up all your self-discipline and charity to manage it, but it does take two to make a quarrel. A definite time limit would have to be put on the visit and agreed upon ahead of time.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Suddenly several couples I know have obtained a divorce. Some of these people appeared to have satisfactory marriages.

I am getting a real "thing" about this. Do they just give up instead of putting up, or what is it that is changing the pattern of marriage so radically?—SPECTATOR.

DEAR SPECTATOR:—According to the Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, more men than women are to blame for divorce action. The men are usually reliable and successful on the job but deprive their families of emotional and spiritual attention.

In many cases it appears that divorce is the resort of selfish people who will not see marriage through in order to assure their children of two parents to take care of them. Married women who work are also blamed for part of the increase.

In other cases, of course, divorce is the blessed solution to a situation which has become unendurable and which harms both child and parents.

Divorce is still the exception rather than the rule, thank goodness!

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—My mother is my problem. I paid the taxes on the family home and even left her provided with a housekeeper before I moved into the city and took a new job.

Then three weeks later she fired the housekeeper, packed a bag and came to by apartment house. She bothered neighbors for a key and told them a pack of lies about how badly I had treated her. Well, I took her in reluctantly and have been putting up with torrents of abuse about everything and nothing.

Now I've hit the frozen limit. A gentleman friend called to take me out and as we were leaving she came into the room with her hat and coat on, said, "You weren't going to leave me home, were you dear?" and linked her arm through his! We were both dumfounded and found ourselves stuck with her.

I know she will scare off any men who want to go out with me, and lately I have taken to meeting such people on the street corner. This cannot go on—but what on earth can I do?—NOT-SO-DUTIFUL.

DEAR NOT-SO-DUTIFUL —Certain older folk have no trouble convincing themselves that the world should revolve around them. But you have a right to a life of your own.

It may be foreign to your nature but your only way to peace is to take a stand. What the neighbors think, what your men acquaintances think, is secondary to accomplishing your end. Which is to get your mother back into quarters of her own. Or move out yourself.

You may chase present male companionship away (which I doubt, if your side is explained properly), but you will at least pave the way for sane living later.

District Votes To Amalgamate Hydro Systems

STRATFORD (CP) — The Grand Valley District of the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association Wednesday night became the fourth district to support a proposal for amalgamation of the Southern Ontario Hydro system with the northeastern and northwestern systems.

Voting in favor of the proposal were Ajax, Galt, Goderich, Harriston, Listowel, Milverton, New Hamburg, Palmerston, St. Marys, Stratford and Waterloo. It was opposed by Guelph and Preston.

Nine districts are to vote on the proposal.

It has been estimated that the amalgamation will initially increase the cost of power in the southern system by 71 cents a kilowatt hour, while the cost will decrease by 82 in Northeastern Ontario and $5 in Northwestern Ontario.

D. P. Cliff, a member of Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, said the southern system would eventually get the 71 cents back.

FUND HAS SURPLUS

The report also showed that the Old Age Pension Fund, which finances the $53 monthly pensions to all 70 and over, turned up the first surplus in its 10-year history.

The fund, which operates outside the province's budgetary accounts, paid out $582,600,000 in pensions but took in $603,100,000 from the three special taxes earmarked for the fund. The resulting $10,700,000 surplus was seized to whittle down a $28,000,000 deficit carried forward from the previous year. What's left is covered by a temporary loan from Mr. Fleming's treasury.

Counting pension fund operations, the government's total spending in the 1960-61 year was $6,533,200,000 and its revenues $6,218,700,000.

Personal and corporation income tax revenues showed strong gains even though corporation profits fell six per cent to $3,300,000,000 in 1960. This was due in part to higher rates in the 1959 budget that weren't effective for the whole of the previous fiscal year, and in part to the fact that substantial amounts were collected on account of 1959 corporation profits.

The 3.3 - per - cent gain in gross national product compared with a six - per - cent rise in pension in 1958. The general price level was 1½ per cent more moderate climb than in record years. The two-thirds of the rise in national product was an actual gain in physical output.

The main economic punch was on the job front.

Unemployment for the year averaged 448,000 — seven per cent of the labor force — compared to 1959 average unemployment, of 373,000 a 5.8 - per - cent rate. A one - per - cent rise in the number of people at work didn't keep pace with a 2.8 - per - cent jump in the labor force.

One economic mainstay was consumer spending, which rose to $22,468,000,000 from $22,042,000,000. The 4.1 - per - cent increase compared with a gain in personal incomes of 4.3 per cent to $27,442,000,000 from $26,319,000,000. But taxes took a larger bite and the rate of personal savings slowed down.

The report's outline of government accounts showed the treasury's cash balances declined by only $71,200,000 despite the big deficit of $240,300,000.

The government financed part of it through a $222,800,000 increase in unmatured debt - holds and other securities— held by the public, and got another $31,300,000 from a series of non - budgetary transactions.

GOT FUND LOAN

One of the year's non-budget cash demands on Mr. Fleming's treasury was a $67,000,000 loan to help bolster the dwindling Unemployment Insurance Fund. Despite the loan the balance in the fund sank to $367,000,000 from $377,000,000 during the year.

Insurance fund expenditures totalled $518,000,000 including $510,000,000 in benefit payments and $7,000,000 in losses on sales of investments. The fund got $276,000,000 in contributions from employers and employees, $55,000,000 in government contributions, $10,000,000 from investment income and the $67,000,000 in federal loans.

The government's gross debt rose to $21,801,200,000 from $21,996,400,000. This is partly offset by various assets, and the net debt rose by $853,000,000 to $12,442,200,000.

This increase is equivalent to the budget deficit plus a bookkeeping adjustment relating to transactions in prior years.

The treasury's two biggest money - earners bolstered the budget revenues.

Personal income taxes rose by $144,500,000 to $1,711,200,000 and corporation income taxes advanced $123,700,000 to $1,276,600,000. The first provided 30.5 per cent of budget revenues, the second 22.7 per cent.

Sales tax returns dropped by $12,100,000 to $729,600,000. The report said this is believed due to year end tax remittances being delayed because March 31 fell on the Easter holiday weekend.

Defence remained the heaviest spending item — 26 per cent of the budget — with delays by the defence department a $1,300,000,000, down by a small $4,100,000. This fell $30,000,000 short of the amount appropriated by Parliament.

Cost of carrying the public debt rose by $13,700,000 to $797,300,000 — 13. per cent of the budget.

Subsidies and tax - sharing payments to the provinces increased by $18,900,000 to $537,800,000, and the expanding population pushed family allowance payments up by $15,000,000 to $506,200,000.

1.7 per cent or 100,000 jobs. Meanwhile the labor force went up by 2.8 per cent or 175,000 persons.

Thus with the labor force rise outstripping the employment gain, the average number of Canadians out of work for 1960 as a whole was 448,000 against 373,000 in 1959.

There also were other factors.

Construction activity was down five per cent, a drop blamed entirely on a 17 - per - cent decline in home building.

An excess capacity described by the report as temporary appeared in some of the key material industries. There were more changes in industrial technology. Domestic and foreign competition for markets "was becoming more intense."

The aftermath of the 1959 United Steel[illegible] strike was felt in Canada, with declines in the U.S. economy and fewer purchases from Canada. There also was a huge movement of inventories during the year from $732,000,000 in the first quarter — which added to production — to minus $132,000,000 in the third quarter, depressing production.

Other statistical data to the economy's portrait:

Personal income last year rose to $27,442,000, about 4.3 per cent more than in 1959. Farmers' net income went up by seven per cent to $1,207,000,000, a big difference from 1959 decreased 13.2 per cent to $2,538,000,000. After tax deductions, disposable income still was 3.8 per - cent higher than 1959 at $23,064,000,000, but only 4.7 per cent of that was saved as against 7.2 per cent the previous year.

Corporation profits dropped six per cent to an estimated $2,735,000,000 from $2,907,000,000 in 1959.

PRICES ROSE

Prices of goods and services produced in Canada rose about 1½ per cent. "This was the smallest year - to - year increase in prices since 1955 and compares with an average annual price rise of nearly 2½ per cent from the years 1954 to 1960," the report said.

Private and public capital outlays declined 2.8 per cent to $8,200,000,000. This, again, was mostly due to the 17 - per - cent decline in housing investment.

Combined expenditures of federal, provincial and municipal governments rose $12,100,000,000, compared with $11,189,000,000 in 1959. The result was an increase in combined deficits to $800,000,000 from $536,000,000.

The report said the current deficits narrowed the trade deficit in 1960 to $148,000,000, one-third the 1959 deficit. This was more than enough to offset another increase in the non-merchandise deficit. As a result, Canada's current account deficit — on international transactions in goods and services — dropped to $1,270,000,000 from $1,494,000,000.

the lowest competitive rate (now 3 per cent) on other bonds and industrial yields."

The government's April 17 decision to adjust the NHA rate twice yearly should keep the rate in relation to other yields.

"There is no one in Canada who would be more delighted to make it possible to reduce interest rates on NHA loans than myself," Mr. Walker said.

"Having gone through the experience, however, of the unprecedented lender's market conditions which we had a few months before I became minister—when the rate was at six per cent—I know what a hazardous expedition it is to reduce interest rates, as a result of which we can get no money from approved lenders."

Mr. Walker, who reports to Parliament for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said he was sure that Mr. Garland did not want to exclude private lenders from the market. Such a development would force more direct government lending at a cost of "hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars."

Mr. Garland said that at a time of high employment there can be no justification for keeping the NHA rate so "unrealistically low" a reduction of only one percentage point would have stopped the flight of price of a house than any conceivable technological development.

He also urged the government to make NHA mortgages available for purchase of older type homes, to lower the two-percent mortgage insurance fee which was "as unrealistic as it is unnecessary," and to provide a moratorium on home-owners' mortgage payments in the event of unemployment because unemployment for more than six months.

Mr. Garland suggested that the moratorium could last a year, with the government making the payments, to be reimbursed by the owner when he went to work.

Mr. Walker said Mr. Garland's proposal for a moratorium fails within provincial jurisdiction. It was a matter involving property and civil rights over which the federal Parliament had no jurisdiction.

"Surely it is within the capabilities of a society such as ours to introduce legislation which would have a very humane effect on preventing the wage earner of a family from losing his entire savings as a result of being out of work through no fault of his own," Mr. Garland said.

Mr. Garland said NHA mortgages for older homes would mean more home ownership in Canada. With sales of such houses encouraged and present owners able to cash their equity, they would be able to buy new homes.

HEARS OF 'DIRTY WORK'

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said subcontractors across Canada are convinced that "some dirty work is going on" in the works department in the awarding of contracts.

Mr. Walker said he said the department feels it has a "good and honest system."

Mr. Winch said there is a general understanding among subcontractors that there is under the Conservative government "a selected list of contractors) in every province."

Mr. Walker said twice that there is no list. Jr Mr. Winch deficits, totalling nearly $200,000,000 in the last four years, and on failure of the railway to give much advance notice to railroading towns of management decisions vitally affecting them.

DONALD GORDON

He said the financial structure of the CNR still was heavily overburdened with debt inherited from pre-nationalization days. The CNR, unlike the integrated and carefully-planned CPR was a amalgam of railway lines never intended to be a national system. They were bankrupt before they started, designed to meet political ends and never expected to show a surplus, he added.

As a result, debt charges and unrealistic old-fashioned depreciation charges put the CNR's books in the red. Last year, the CNR had profits of $52,237,907 from its operations. This was converted into a $67,686,777 deficit by depreciation and interest.

As to complaints of insufficient notice, Mr. Gordon said the railway adheres strictly to the union contracts it has with its workers, but tries to consult them in advance of giving formal notice of work changes.

EVERYBODY CRITICIZES

The main trouble, however, came from politicians, municipal leaders, and even parish priests, who get many changes. Since the CNR is publicly - owned, every time a fire had a right to put pressure on management. The CPR, privately-owned, had no such troubles.

Ferguson Browne (PC—Vancouver Kingsway), questioned him about agreed charges—the agreements railways write with shippers to apply special rates in return for guaranteed business. Mr. Gordon calls in the charges, while lower than regular rates, had to give a profit to the line, even if it was small.

John Magee, executive secretary of the Canadian Trucking Associations, who listened to the testimony, said in a signed statement to the committee frequently cut their freight rates by hasty telephone calls in order to meet competition from trucks had information of any kind that "some dirty work is going on" in the works department in the awarding of contracts.

However, Mr. Walker said the department feels it has a "good and honest system."

Mr. Winch said there is a general understanding among subcontractors that there is under the Conservative government "a selected list of contractors) in every province."

Mr. Walker said twice that there is no list. Jr Mr. Winch

Castro Charges U.S. Violates Cuba Air Space

HAVANA (CP) — Fidel Castro's government accused the United States Thursday of repeated violation of Cuban air space and said a note of protest is being sent via the Czechoslovak Embassy to Washington.

The foreign office gave no details of the alleged violations but said a full list of those since Jan. 30 would be attached to the note.

The protest apparently was prompted by the flight of a jet June 13 over Havana's La Cabana prison and the naval hospital near the capital. Officials claimed the plane was a U.S. military aircraft.

Experts Jailed, Bank Holdups Cut in Half

MONTREAL (CP)—There are half-as many bank holdups in Montreal this year because most of the experts are in the penitentiary, Detective - Lieutenant William Fitzpatrick said in an interview Wednesday.

Inspector Fitzpatrick, chief of the holdup squad, said sentences of up to 25 years for armed robbery make would-be gunmen think twice.

Police statistics show 11 bank holdups and 240 holdups to June 1 this year compared with 21 bank holdups and 270 holdups in the same period of 1960.

KILLED BY BALL

COCOA, Fla. (AP) — A 12-year-old Little League baseball player died after being struck in the neck by a pitched ball. The ball bounced off home plate and hit him in the neck between the chest protector and face mask, apparently rupturing a large artery.

Revulsion Grows Against Bloodshed in the Congo

By LYNN HEINZERLING

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — A tiny gleam of hope is shining through the political jungle of The Congo. But it is still very dim.

The old Belgian colony that never really achieved nationhood despite all months of freedom still teeters on the edge of anarchy. The tribe is still more important than the nation.

But there appears to be a growing revulsion against double-crossing, violence, assassination and backwardness.

Huge billboard signs all over Leopoldville would have been a confession of inferiority and unthinkable six months ago. Erected by the Leopoldville provincial government, they say:

"If the politicians agree, if national unity is realized, if tribal fighting is stopped, there will be an end of unemployment."

ALMOST BANKRUPT

The Congo is still divided, on the brink of bankruptcy and almost leaderless. Yet there is an air of expectancy here. Diplomats who have watched the whole incredible performance since June 30 last are beginning to express a faint optimism.

They point to a slow improvement of relations between President Joseph Kasavubu's government and the United Nations. Another sign is the frank admission by some Congolese politicians that The Congo cannot afford to be regarded as the world's backward child much longer.

Perhaps the most important sign is the emergence of Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko as a force in shaping policy.

Bomboko is only 33, but he is one of the most sophisticated of the Congolese. He was foreign minister in Patrice Lumumba's government. He served in the same capacity in the interim government apparatus established by Maj.-Gen. Joseph A. Mobutu last September. He has remained close to Kasavubu throughout.

THOMBE ARRESTED

Together they brought about the arrest of the recalcitrant, secessionist Katanga leader, Moise Tshombe, at Coquilhatville. Tshombe had chosen to isolate an illiterate to President Kasavubu about his co-operation with the UN rather than cooperate in the work of the Coquilhatville constitutional conference.

Kasavubu has ordered Tshombe detained indefinitely while a commission decides whether he should be tried for treason.

Bomboko impressed foreigners during the army mutiny last year. He constantly toured the city and embassies, trying to prevent incidents. He opposed many of Lumumba's wilder ideas and particularly the introduction of the Russians and their satellites into The Congo. Kasavubu's closer relations with the UN and his decision to summon Parliament after Coquilhatville conference undoubtedly were pushed by Bomboko and Mobutu.

SOME ABSENT

It is still doubtful that a session of Parliament will be anymore than a Kasavubu claque. Only three of the original six Congolese provinces were represented at Coquilhatville.

There is no assurance that Antoine Gisenga, Lumumba's deputy who has set up a separate government in Orientale Province, will participate.

It seems unlikely that copper-rich Katanga Province will send any deputies to represent its ruling Conakat party.

8th Tyendinaga

8TH TYENDINAGA — Mr. and Mrs. William Alford have returned from Wiarton where they spent the winter with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. V. Wampole. They are now spending a few days with their daughter, Mrs. B. Curtis, of Trenton, where Mrs. Alford is recuperating.

Mr. David Skelly and several other school children, along with their teacher, enjoyed a trip to Toronto, sightseeing at several places of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith svent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. Cross.

Mr. and Mrs. William Alford and Mr. and Mrs. B. Curtis called on Mrs. J. Cross and Betty on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Watson and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cross, and Mrs. Reta Haight spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. Boyle and Miss Janice Boyle, at Masassauga.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a communion service Sunday afternoon with a good attendance. There was also a baptismal service, when Carol Neille, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cross, and Jack Glasier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cross, and Charles Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cross, were baptized.

20th Century Shows Science, Tyranny Growth Meet Told

MONTREAL (CP)—The 20th century has been characterized by the growth of science, nationalism and tyranny, the Conference of Learned Societies was told Wednesday.

Prof. Marcus Long of the University of Toronto said science has grown to the point where it cannot wisely be denied a place in liberal or humanistic education.

"In the next generation the man who lacks knowledge of science will neither be able to communicate with most learned men nor form an adequate conception of man and his world."

One thing shaping this new world was the tide of nationalism flowing over the colored peoples of Asia and Africa who for many years had been under white rule. This posed a new challenge to education in Canada.

"We are moving inevitably to a multi-racial society and, the sooner we prepare our children for it, the greater the chances of making this transition without unnecessary bloodshed or recrimination."

Prof. Long said the extension of tyranny over much of the world is being matched by a retreat from freedom in North America, where many are becoming convinced that security and efficiency are life's highest values.

The age-old cry for social justice had been taken up by those who say it cannot be achieved unless individual enterprise is curtailed in favor of central planning and regulating of the economy.

Businessmen should speak up in defence of the free institutions thus menaced, Prof. Long said, but they can only do this effectively if they are farmed with the values of a humanistic education, an education concerned with man as an individual.

Adopted Four Children Sight Unseen and Now Have Small United Nations

WESTON, Vt. (AP)—"Why are we going to Troy today?" the child asked.

It was a tough question for Mrs. William R. Newhall of Weston to answer.

She thought a moment as she and her husband drove toward Troy, N.Y. She glanced at the four children in the car: two Korean, one Navajo, and the two girls, a Canadian Chippewa and a Negro. Then she replied:

Mrs. Newhall related the fragment of dialogue after a meeting of the board of directors of the Troy YMCA. The Newhalls were the guests of honor: Newhall had just been signed on as a director of Camp Van Schoonhaven.

The Newhalls—she's a school teacher, he's a distributor of health foods and a farmer—plainly do not think their family is as unusual as other folk do.

ADOPTED SIGHT UNSEEN

In the last five years the Newhalls have taken these children of different racial and cultural backgrounds into their home and adopted them: Kim, a 5-year-old Korean boy; Virgil, a 13-year-old Navajo; Mona Lisa, an eight-year-old Chippewa girl; Linda Ann, a five-year-old Negro.

The story of the origin of this multi-racial family begins with the death of a son of the Newhalls. He had a heart defect.

"You can't have a family if you don't have children," Newhall said matter-of-factly.

"But we were told we were too old to adopt a child, and they told us we didn't have enough money. So when we heard that you could adopt Korean war orphans, we jumped at the chance."

'KIM AND BONES'

Several months and a few hundred miles of red tape later, Kim, a frightened, 3-year-old weakened nine year old boy, stepped off an airplane and into the hearts of the Newhalls.

"He was just skin and bones," Newhall recalls. "He had no co-ordination at all."

SCOHARIE — Thought the kindness of Belleville Quinte Field Naturalists several of the swamps were visited in the north where large and small yellow ladyslippers were found in full; also the large pink showy ladyslippers, not yet out, and a few of the dainty little ram's head orchid, which had not been found before. The first stop was made to the swamp Tuesday and in addition to the yellow and white ones which grew in abundance, several plants of a new variety were found which are believed to be the purple fringed orchid. They are just starting to bud so will be about three weeks before they are in full bloom and will let the Belleville friends know about them.

Mrs. John Thompson, England, arrived Tuesday evening to visit her daughter, Mrs. Reg. Lindfield, Mr. Lindfield, David and Barbara, for three months. All welcome her and hope she will enjoy her visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom May, Mr. Bob Day and Miss Linda Peck, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Foster attended a Junior Farmers dance at Harrowsmith, on Friday evening.

Sincere sympathy is extended to all members of the May family in the passing of Mrs. Stanley May, Sunday night. Sympathy is also extended to Mrs. Morley Istead in the passing of her brother, Miles Kleinsteuber, 'ast week.

Mrs. Ralph Stone, Mrs. William McGee, Mrs. Burton Hobson and Mrs. Don Andrew enjoyed a bus trip to the O'Keefe Centre, Toronto, on Thursday. They enjoyed the musical, "The Flower Drum Song," at the Centre.

Mr. Theodore Foster motored to St. Thomas on Friday last.

Sunday School Lesson

Learn Common Decency

By ROY L. SMITH

A very great deal of the New Testament is concerned primarily with matters of conduct. The Epistles of Paul, for example, contain long sections that are almost entirely speculative and theological. This is not to say that they are not important, for they are — extremely so. Correct thinking is as essential in the field of religion as in any science. It is to say, however, that when the theological questions have been wrestled with, there still remains the necessity of instructing the people in the matters of common decency.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 18: "Guarding The Tongue," Proverbs 6:12-19; 15:1-7; Acts 4; James 1:19-20, 26; 3; 4:11-12.

This is exactly what the little Epistle of James, in the New Testament, undertakes to do. We will read it in vain if we are seeking any guidance in such matters as the virgin birth, the atonement, the second coming of Christ, or the redemption of lost men.

But in matters of good conduct, neighborliness, common honesty, clean speech and the like virtues of the common sort, the Epistle of James is an excellent example of the kind of practical preaching the first century Christian church found into the life of the ancient world.

The Jewish synagogues of the first Christian century were houses of worship, of course, but they were also educational institutions. The teaching function of the rabbi was much more conspicuous than his preaching responsibilities. Associated with every synagogue there was a group of teachers to whom were assigned some of the most important public responsibilities of the community.

The Christian church organized their activities very largely on the basis and pattern which prevailed in the synagogues, and again and again some New Testament writer refers with great respect to the "teachers."

The author of the Epistle of James, however, undertakes to warn all Christian teachers of the profound burden of responsibility they carry as teachers. No one compelled them to become teachers. They made the choice of their own free will. But, at the very moment they made that choice they also assumed responsibilities of the most severe sort.

No person in any community lives under a more sobering responsibility than that which rests upon the shoulders of the teacher. Once that anyone has accepted the obligation to teach, he has also accepted the duty of being different from other people — the obligation to live on a higher plane than the average citizen.

While this principle holds true of public school teaching, it holds doubly true of Sunday School teaching. Up until the moment that we agree to teach there are some attitudes we can assume without jeopardizing the good name of Christ. But from the very first moment that we stand before a class to teach boby things, the church, the children, and God Himself, have a right to expect us to be holy in our own lives.

There is a crying need in every community for a fire-fighting brigade dedicated to the task of putting out the fires that have been set by careless speech.

Into one community there came a stranger who passed as a "big person from Boston." His lecture to one of the local clubs had much in it to commend it, but at one point in his address he raised a serious question as to the "loyalty of the pulpit to the preachers" of the community. Thereupon gossip and rumor got into the act. Within the space of hours the character of a splendid citizen was called in question, several years of faithful ministerial labor were undermined, and great spiritual damage had been done. If someone had only risen to say, "I know this man. I trust him. I will vouch for him, his loyalty, and his Christian character."

Because no one arose to put out the fire a serious damage was done to an entire community.

Little Hope of Preserving French Language in Areas Of English Newfoundland

By JOE DUFUS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) — Leo Gallant, 63, is an Acadian, a fisherman - farmer whose weather - beaten features are those of a man who has spent his life outdoors.

They have never met Mrs. Charlotte Benoit, mother of four, who came here in 1946 from her native Normandy with her Stephenville - born soldier husband.

But the two Stephenville families reflect what is happening to the dual French culture along the west coast of Newfoundland.

In Leo Gallant's family, only the eldest daughter, married to an American in French-settled Presque Isle, Maine, is bilingual. She picked up French at an early age listening to conversations between her father and grandfather. Most of the Gallant children have come under the English-speaking influence of their mother.

GIVEN UP

"In effect, the Gallants have given up any hope that their family might help retain the heritage and traditions of hundreds of years of French culture in this area.

The Benoits, living in an area where 50 years ago practically no one spoke English, are fluently bilingual.

"I won't allow my children to speak English in this house," says Mrs. Benoit, who runs a small grocery store attached to her home in suburban Kippens. "I even make them read aloud and say their prayers in French. My husband feels even more strongly about this than I do."

But even the Benoits hold little hope of preserving the tongue because of the English influence of radio and television and the big Ernest Harmon U.S. Air Force base on the town's fringe.

Asked if she thought her children would pass on their parents' love of French to the grandchildren she answered without hesitation.

"Oh, no, no! I don't think so. You see they just can't find any use for French. It actually embarrasses them to speak it outside of the family."

FRENCH NOT PERMITTED

Her mother-in-law, 93-year-old Mrs. Alice Benoit, was of the English-speaking Meaghe family when she came to Stephenville many years ago. She raised 11 children in the French tradition but some of their offspring speaks French today.

"When I think back to the hard time I had learning, I never thought I ever would learn to say my prayers in French," Alice Benoit recalled. "But I did, because I had to. But nobody speaks French today."

Leo Gallant suggests the decline of French began years ago. When he went to school, he says, "we weren't allowed to speak French or you'd get a real trimming."

He says the area's French heritage is doomed.

"It's not a good thing but what can we do?"

There are no French schools in Newfoundland and Leo says teaching of French in English schools will have no effect on the trend because "they'll never learn how to speak out of books."

NORTHERN PROSPECTS

Stirling

STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fox and Miss Mary Hulin are attending I.O.O.F. Grand Lodge and Rebekah sessions in Toronto this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Stapley, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence West, attended the wedding ceremony on Saturday, June 10, of Miss Rosemary Black, to the Rev. Paul Packman in Princess St. United Church, Kingston. A reception followed in the church parlors for 50 guests. Paul has accepted a charge in North Hastings.

Several relatives from the village attended an "At Home" on Saturday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Montgomery, who were celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Arthur Packman is leaving Toronto on Thursday evening, for England, where she will visit her daughter, for the next three months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Haggerty of Smiths Falls have moved to their new home on Church Street. Mr. Haggerty has recently retired from the Hydro Electric Power Commission.

Mr. Joe Irish, Scout Commissioner, reports approximately $100 proceeds from the Cub social held recently at the public school grounds.

The Evening Guild of St. John's Anglican Church held its annual bridge and euchre dessert luncheon. There were 19 tables in play and all enjoyed a delightful afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bakker spent a few days with their cousins in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and attended the graduation exercises of their daughter, who received her Bachelor of Science Degree. She was awarded a $1,300 scholarship.

Tyendinaga Twp. Council

At the June meeting Tyendinaga Township Council moved the due tax date ahead to December 5th from December 15th.

The general tax rate for 1961 was set at 50 mills on farm and residential assessment and 54.5 on Commercial assessment. The general tax rate comprises County rate 20.7 mills, high school 16.3 mills and township residential 13 mills or township commercial 17.6 mills. This is a reduction from 1960 of 5 mills for farm and residential and 9 mills for commercial properties. In addition to the general rate there are school section levies and area rates. The school section rates based on school board requisitions are: School area No. 1, 13 mills; No. 6 14.8 mills; No. 7, 14.2 mills; No. 10, 11.5 mills; No. 15, 22.1 mills; No. 29, 16.1 mills; No. 17, 12.4 mills; Richmond and Tyendinaga, 15 mills; North Thurlow 18.6 mills; Hungerford and Tyendinaga 5.2 mills; and Union Section 13 mills. The rate for Shannonville Street Lights is the same as 1960 at 3.9 mills.

A By-Law to change the boundaries of School section No. 6 and School Area No. 1 was passed. The north part of lot 20 and concession 1 and the south part of lots 21 and 22 in concession 2 are detached from School Section No. 6 and attached to School Area No. 1.

Publishers Wait Anxiously, With High Hope or Anxiety, To Find if Report Accepted

OTTAWA (CP) — Stern proposals aimed at keeping the Canadian magazine advertising dollar at home recommended Thursday in the report of the royal commission on publications, stirred an extreme range of reaction at home and in the United States.

Canada publishers welcomed them with open arms. The Americans fumed at the proposed crackdown, had other thoughts.

Publishers from both countries now are waiting with opposing anxieties for indications of government action on the basis of the report, tabled in the Commons by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Canadian periodical spokesmen said implementation of the report's recommendations would spell salvation for the nation's magazine industry and mass-circulation magazines, by returning $9,000,000 in lost advertising revenue to Canada each year.

However, a Time magazine spokesman said the recommendations clearly indicate an effort to destroy the Canadian operations of the New York-based publishing empire. He added:

"We cannot believe that the government would adopt such recommendations or that the Canadian people would approve such action."

CLAIMS DISCRIMINATION

Reader's Digest, which—like Time — publishes a Canadian edition, said certain of the recommendations are discriminatory in regard to the Digest—which has carried on Canadian publishing operation for more than 20 years.

In the report the three-man commission said there is a danger Canadian magazines may go entirely out of existence unless advertising revenue now going to American-owned publications are channelled back to Canada.

Canada's particular responsibilities, her government, her constitutional structure, her ideals and aspirations, her memories and milestones, every one of these facts is her existence which cannot be approached unde'r standingly or usefully by mere commercial nations media 'owned or controlled in the other country, even though that country be friendly."

One commission recommendation would deny to a Canadian advertiser using a foreign periodical printed in Canada—such as the Reader's Digest—the privilege of deducting his advertising costs as a business expense for tax purposes.

"The result of non - deductibility would be approximately to double the cost of domestic advertising in a foreign periodical wherever printed," the report said.

WOULD BAR ENTRY

Another recommendation would deny entry under customs tariff regulations—to foreign magazines containing "substantial domestic advertising" aimed at the Canadian market.

The commission regards as domestic advertising that which is directed to consumers in Canada. This advertising is the lifeblood of periodical publishing.

Time magazine's Canadian edition has 150,000 circulation although it had announced plans to drop it because of publishing restrictions being imposed by Canada. Time and Reader's Digest have a combined 70 per-cent chunk of Canada consumer magazine advertising.

A target of this recommendation is the growing influence of Canadian editions of U.S. magazines, which has created a situation described by that portion of a magazine's circulation destined for a particular geographic region.

"Thus an American company can direct a message in an American magazine specifically at Canadians in all copies of the magazine exported to Canada," the report said.

Signing the report with Mr. O'Leary were Georges Johnson, chairman of a Toronto public relations firm, and Claude Beaudoin, vice-president in charge of public relations for a Montreal manufacturing firm.

MAY NEED LIMITATIONS

In making the observation that limitations have been applied in the past to freedom of expression for instance, no publication has the right to libel—the commissioners added:

"It is our conviction that new limitations may be necessary in the future, seeing that the increased importance and mounting power of mass communications have not been a corresponding gain in the power and importance of the relatively few people who control the media and, therefore, a decrease in the status of other individuals in the community."

Washington dispatches said the U.S. state department was waiting to see whether Canada will take action on the recommendations.

Should the Diefenbaker government accept the recommendations, it appeared likely that the U.S. would be obliged to implementation would be a breach of GATT — the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

In past years, the U.S. took strong objection to a provincial Canadian attempt to give native Canadian publications a favorable break in a competition from U.S. periodicals—which prompted the Canadian output 4 to 1 in readership.

USED 8 FISCAL TAX

Canada's special 30-per-cent excise tax imposed in 1957 on the gross advertising revenues of Canadian editions of foreign magazines—a measure aimed mainly at Time and Reader's Digest.

The law, passed by the Liberal government in 1958 by the new Progressive Conservative administration, which said it was found to be ineffective.

The royal commissioners sought repeatedly in their 25,000-word report to dispel any implication that they were making recommendations in a spirit of anti-Americanism.

The commission feels confident that the people of the United States understand the facts as we have presented them, will agree that their country, placed as it is, has no desire to interfere, would not hesitate to take the measures which we recommend for Canada."

HE DISSENTS

Alone in the dissenting Canadian voices came from Michael Wardell, publisher of the Fredericton Gleaner's Digest "both vicious and foolish."

Lawrence Sabourne, manager of Time International of Canada Ltd., Limited, said the report "contains particularly contradictory on critical points"

MPs Simply Went on Reading, Despite Protests

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons had two spats Thursday over its most lightly regarded rule — the one against reading speeches, in both cases the MPs simply went on, reading.

One occasion was when Reward Chatterton (PC — Brome-Missisquoi) interrupted J. R. Garland (L — Nipissing) to challenge him for reading during House debate on works department estimates.

Mr. Garland looked up, "I hear a series of squeaks," he said. When Mr. Chatterton persisted, the Liberal MP called it "squawking" and added that "I was under the impression that the Brome area produced no hot dogs like that."

Defence Minister Harkness and Gordon Churchill (PC — Prince Albert) came to the chair at last cause and claimed Mr. Garland was reading "every word" of his speech. Ralph Campney (CCF — Vancouver East) then warned that if the Conservatives made an issue of it, he would start challenging every back-benches MP.

Gordon Chown (PC — Winnipeg South) was the chair at last and quickly settled the issue by presuming that Mr. Garland was referring to "notes." Mr. Garland then said he had no apologies to make for coming to the House fully prepared, and the row ended.

Two hours later Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) complained that a Welsh MP (Watelon North) was reading. John Pallett (PC — Peel) said he wasn't. Mr. Welchel said nothing.

At this point, Mr. Winch disclosed that he had slipped behind the curtain near Mr. Welchel and was reading from a typewritten text.

"You're a stoolie," someone said.

Mr. Welchel continued.

Finances Major Concern of Presbyterians

TORONTO (CP)—The Presbyterian Church of Canada closed its General Assembly Thursday, one that was tagged with the nickname, "the financial assembly."

During the nine days of the session finances were a major concern of the commissioners from across Canada. The economic picture was not a bright one.

Almost every committee and board presented requests for increased grants, and in almost every instance they were told the money was not available. At the same time the assembly decided to increase the basic minister's stipend to $5,000 from $3,000 annually.

The assembly approved through a total authorized expenditure for 1961 of $1,075,311. The budget objective for 1960 was set at $2,030,000. Revenue above the authorized expenditure was to be used to finance an increase in stipend—a move expected to cost $225,000 a year.

A suggestion earlier this week by the administration council to be asked to consider a capital campaign to raise needed finances was referred back to the council for study and a report next year.

In the final session the assembly expressed cautious criticism of the Diefenbaker government's action on unemployment, asked for immediate amnesty and conferred the help of the board of evangelism and social action.

The assembly refused to sever relations with other churches which practise baptism of the infant's flame. A three-man team of observers will be named to attend negotiations of the church union being held by the United Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Vaniers Meet Bearded Bishop In Far North

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—A bilad, bearded Arctic bishop who came south for the first time to dig greeted Governor - General and Madame Vanier Thursday and then flew with them overland into the Northwest Territories.

Continuing the warm beard theme that has marked this tour from the time it took off from Ottawa last Saturday, Bishop Marcel Gerval and his wife didn't look much like Mrs. Smith rounds until late morning.

Their first stop was St. Joseph's Island where the bishop went for tea in the parish hall. Bishop Gerval, his beard fluttering across his chest, stood Roman Catholic Bishop Pierre Fallaize in his cassock.

Bishop Fallaize wears glasses across the bridge of his nose but it's more from force of habit than for aid in seeing. His slight began to fall after an 18-months stay at Port Radium on Great Bear Lake.

Blindness came to stay in 1929. Eye specialists blame radiation poisoning. In 1932, he went home to France.

Bishop Gerval, Vanier's aide, after talking with Bishop Fallaize in French turned to reporters: "Bishop Fallaize went back home to France, but the bishop came back again to die. I think it's rather wonderful."

By the time they get back to Government House on the evening of June 28, the Vaniers will have travelled more than 8,000 miles.

Election Rigging, Perjury Testimony Given at Meet With Allegations of Fraud

OTTAWA (CP)—A tale of bitter waterfront dissension in the Seafarers' International Union unfolded Thursday before the Canada Labor Relations Board with allegations of fraud, election rigging and perjury.

Included was a description of a one-punch bar-room fight.

In testimony sometimes punctuated with shouted or muttered oaths, the controversial SIU was attacked by two of its former officers who said Canadian Director Hal C. Banks "thought it was a joke" to help mark about 60 ballots before a 1958 election was held.

The key witness was John R. Wood of Verdun, Que., formed director of the licensed engineers' division of the SIU who was fired by Banks Thursday he had lied to the board in December and March on applications for SIU card for certification rights on certain vessels.

He said he was reversing his stand because he realized Banks had failed to apply for certification torial direction to the engineers' section of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild. The SIU was ousted from the Canadian Labor Congress in a war for control of seamen.

Part of the N.A.M.E. was taken over by the U.S.-based and affiliated with the Canadian Brotherhood.

Nine separate certification applicants were involved Thursday, each based on actual votes given handily by the SIU aboard vessels of seven companies. The board's job now is to decide whether the SIU should repre-sent those workers in view of the evidence submitted.

Wood said that in 1958, on Banks' orders, called a meeting of marine engineers in Montreal which agreed to hold a vote to amalgamate with the SIU. It affected the Eastern Division — Lakehead to east coast—of the N.A.M.E.—itself deeply riddled with dissension.

The Montreal meeting was attended by only 15 of some 800 members of that Eastern Division, he said, an then in Banks' office about 60 ballots were marked in favor of amalgamation.

Corroborating his testimony was Michael Sheehan, former SIU organizer who said he quit the union "disgusted."

WENT TO LAKEHEAD

Wood said he put the preamalgamation ballots, most in favor of engineers lining up with the SIU, into a shoebox and sent others to the Lakehead and Thoroid, Ont., for "token" distribution to engineers on ships. But he said the actual results—votes with a big majority for the SIU — was never out long before the official count was made by men unaware of what had happened.

He said he had in previous testimony to the board in applications from engineers for membership cards been destroyed. In fact, he said, no such applications were received or else old applications were given a new date to make them acceptable to the board.

Mr. Wood referred to the allegations of perjury. He said when represented as engineers from various ports involved in that hearing. In fact, only about 15 were engineers. The rest were ordinary seamen never employed, who had been hurriedly signed on Banks' orders in Montreal to impress the board in Ottawa.

He scoffed at suggestions he quit the SIU and came back to the union because he was fired.

"I sure did," he responded when asked whether he had been fired at SIU pay. Now-ton is a Montreal bar during an argument about Banks, Gil-thier, Wood's assistant before the latter resigned, joined Leonard McLaughlin, Banks' deputy assistant, and Newton in testimony that Wood freely threatened to "screw up" the engineer vote by going back to Ottawa and committing "perjury" if necessary.

Toughest Test for OAS May Be in Dominican Republic

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A more encouraging development perhaps is the announcement that Dr. Alberto Bedrera of the opposition Dominican Republican Party has been given permission to return to the country to start a newspaper to participate in elections promised for next May.

FRIGHT AND HONEST

Balaguer says political parties will be free to participate in the elections and the OAS will be invited to send witnesses to confirm their honest conduct.

The crucial question is why the Dominican leaders have considered it necessary to make such overtures to its opposition at this late date.

The answer may be that the economy, strained by the maintenance of an oil-sluiced police machine, is feeling the pinch of the OAS sanctions.

It is here that the organization may exert real pressure on the republic to make sure reforms are maintained. The OAS contact with a few friends of the Dominican Republic and may be used to put up a solid front in a hostile world for continuation of the sanctions.

In any event, the organization has managed to get a thin edge of the wedge into the pre-viously impenetrable Dominican affairs. If it can use that wedge it may be a lever for the Dominican Republic into the 20th century. It may establish a useful precedent for future joint action.

CHOOSES JURY TRIAL

TORONTO (CP) — A former Dorchester, Ont., jeweller was elected trial by judge and jury on theft charges involving more than $100,000. Mervyn Cohen, 36, faces five counts of theft from Regina Kirshenblatt, of Toronto, involving $36,162, and four involving theft of $77,320 from Max Grossman, Harry Herman and Harry Smith, all Toronto, and a city investment firm. Trial will be held in the fall.

Defence Spending Reduced $90,000,000 in Fiscal Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence all federal spending, defence spending in the 1960-61 fiscal outlays decreased to 36 year fell $90,600,000 short of the cent from 37 in 1959-60. Defence amount originally provided by Parliament for this purpose, a preliminary report tabled in the Commons revealed Thursday in the Commons revealed.

Budgetary expenditures by the defence department in the fiscal year ended last March 31 were $1,519,000,000. The original estimate was $1,629 000,000.

This saving enabled the government to keep its over-all deficit by $90,000000 to $345,600,000, the latter short - fall in 1959-60 was $190,000,000.

Estimated defence expenditures in the current fiscal year are $1,630,500,000 or $101,500 000 more than actual spending in 1960-61.

However, spending in 1959-61 was practically unchanged from the previous fiscal year. There was an increase of $4,100,000.

However, as a proportion of $111,000,000 from 1939-60.

The government's contribution to the Canadian forces ex-pansion account — an amount equal to 1 2-3 times the contributions by service personnel — was $41,000,000, down

U.S. Maritime Strike Will Tie Up 990-Ship Merchant Marine Fast if Not Settled

NEW YORK (AP) — A maritime strike spread from port to port today and threatened to paralyze most of the U.S. ship merchant marine in the United States unless settlement is quickly reached.

More than 80,000 officers and unlicensed crew members sailing out of east, west and gulf coast ports were affected.

Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg, who was sent here Thursday by President Kennedy, planned new efforts today to settle the contract dispute between shipping companies and the seven striking unions.

The 70,000 union members on strike include deck officers, engine officers, radio officers, unlicensed deck and engine room crew members and stewards department workers.

HIT MOST SHIPS

Members of the striking unions man the bulk of the passenger ships, tankers, dry cargo ships and other seagoing craft flying the American flag.

Their no - contract - no - work strike hit the last midnight when contracts expired.

Picket lines were set up at piers in the vast port of New York and in some other ports.

A number of seagoing unions with an estimated 10,000 members were not on strike because their contracts have not expired. But many of the ships crewmembers man were expected to be immobilized because a nonstriking crew can't sail a ship without a captain.

Ships at sea will not be affected by the strike, but they can ports.

Joseph Curran, president of the big National Maritime Union, said support of the strike has been pledged by the International Longshoremen's Association, the Teamsters Union, union oil workers and a number of labor councils in 30 ports.

The issues at least in dispute is the union demand for a right to organize and represent the crews of American-owned ships that fly so-called "flags of convenience." Most of these ships are tankers registered under flags of Liberia, Panama and Honduras.

The unions call them "runaway ships," with lower pay and inferior working conditions compared to American - flag ships with union crews.

Bill laughed. "Hence those ulcers," he commented. "But how old are they?"

"Too old and too young," the other replied. "One is 19, the boy's age is the sum of the girls' ages multiplied by the difference between the squares of their ages."

What were the ages?

Russian Dancer Seeks Asylum In France

PARIS (Reuters) — Rudolf Noureev, star of the Kirov ballet, left the Soviet Union today sought asylum in France as the troupe was leaving for London after three weeks in Paris.

The troupe departed for London leaving Noureev in the Le Bourget airport police office after being told by the Soviet Embassy he would be flown to London with the rest.

Ballet-master Constantin Sergueev intervened and there were long exchanges, apparently in an unsuccessful attempt to persuade the young dancer to go back to Moscow.

Canadian Garden Service

It's Hurry — don't worry if you haven't got your garden started yet. In most parts of Canada, there is still lots of time. As a matter of fact people usually start far too soon and stop too soon.

It is a serious mistake to plant seeds when the soil is still decidedly cool. There are a few things that should go in early and like to grow in the cool weather, but most annual flowers and vegetables can be planted right up in the middle of June and later in many parts of Canada and will do well. The long hours of sunlight plus the well-warmed soil bring these along at what is an amazing rate to those who have never before seen Canadian summer growth.

And we shouldn't stop too soon. It is an excellent idea to continue sowing carrots, beans, beets, lettuce and other quick growing vegetables at fortnightly intervals up to early July. In this way we spread out the harvest and have the highest quality. With annual flowers too, we can also spread out the time of bloom by repeated sowings. In too many cases, the flower and vegetable garden is completely planted early and then there is shortages of bloom and fresh vegetables at the other end of season. No matter what the reason, if the garden is not planted yet, there is still plenty of time.

These will push growth — For the gardener with average or poor soil, chemical fertilizers will push growth along in really amazing fashion. They are also a boon to the northern gardener as they "coax" slow things quickly as the frost-free season is short. But chemical fertilizers should be used with reasonable care. Most fertilizers if they come in direct contact with plants or roots will burn them. In the very small garden the fertilizer is best dissolved in water and applied in liquid form. Or it can be carefully sprinkled along the rows close to but not actually touching the seed plants.

Most fertilizers are a mixture of three main chemicals, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, expressed on the package in three numbers, like 10-8-4. This would mean ten parts nitrogen, eight of phosphoric acid and four of potash. For green growth we want lots of nitrogen and that is why lawn fertilizer and mixtures for salad vegetables have the highest count of the first number.

Even in good soil, gardeners use some chemical fertilizer for pushing growth, especially for things like lettuce, cabbage, spinach, carrots and beets. They do so because they know that the speedier the growth the more tender and higher the quality. Quickly grown vegetables do not have fibrous cores or stringiness.

PROTECTION FROM PESTS

Bugs and disease are not the only enemies the gardener may have to guard against. Sometimes there are flocks of birds who concentrated attacks by rabbits, ground hogs, coons or deer. But the smart gardener can easily outwit all of these as well as most bugs and diseases. Treatment for the last named will be left for a later date.

To scare birds there are all sorts of fluttering bits that shine in the sun and spin on wires or strings. There are also scarecrows and even shotguns. We can also plant special fruit and nut trees that the birds will prefer to the garden and will give us hours of pleasure watching them eat. For the rabbits, some people surround the vegetable garden with a row of glass bottles, with no tops and standing firm in just an inch or so of soil. The wind blowing across the open tops makes a noise that alarms the rabbits. For ground hogs, coons and deer, sometimes an electric fence will be necessary and it will also keep out the rabbits. Sometimes a single strand, however, the fence may have to include a foot or two of poultry wire.

RODDING DOWN THE CONCRETE — To prevent "honeycombing" and cavities in foundation walls of a new house the concrete is rodded as it is poured into the forms. Rodding can also be done mechanically with a special vibrator.

Proper Handling of Concrete Gives Sound Foundation

Before the concrete is poured all debris should be removed from the bottom of the formwork. If bits of wood and other foreign matter are left in they will eventually rot and may develop later on.

The quality of the concrete, which depends only on the ingredients but also on the way it is handled and "cured," determines the soundness of the foundation. Concrete should be poured in one continuous operation to avoid fractures in the finished wall through which water can infiltrate.

It should be poured into the forms within 30 to 40 minutes after water has been added to the mixture. If ready-mix concrete from a mixing plant is being used everything should be in readiness at the site to receive the concrete and place it in the forms without delay. As the concrete is being chuted into the forms, workmen will be rodding it down with poles. The mixture should be rodded sufficiently to prevent any voids or pockets in the concrete.

These voids may be caused by entrapped air or by concrete adhering to the sides of the form. They frequently occur under window sills, a point difficult to reach. Voids will also appear in the foundation surface following a poor rodding job. In the trade they call this "honey-combing."

A device known as a concrete vibrator can be used instead of rodding, but it should be used only by an expert.

When all the concrete has been poured the top of the foundation wall is struck off or filling when the framework is built. Levelling is especially important if the walls of the house are to be finished in masonry veneer. The bricklayer on our home and industrial properties, and to growing extent on our highways, but there is still a long way to go. This new emerging break-through to abundant beauty is important to us as property owners and the possibilities in this direction for the future are exciting indeed.

by builders, either because they are in a hurry to get on with the job, or because they want the forms moved to the next building site. Some builders will strip the forms less than 24 hour after the concrete is in place. Normally, forms shouldn't be removed for five to seven days, but in any event they should stay on for two full days after pouring.

Except in winter, or in damp weather, it is advisable to wet the foundation after removing the forms. Wetting is particularly important if the forms have been removed before the recommended time, since it prevents the concrete drying too quickly.

After the forms are removed a lapse of a few days is required before cutting off wire form ties. Concrete may chip off if it hasn't had time to harden before the ties are removed. This is true even when using a "snap off" type of tie. If the tie rod is located about in the concrete while removing it the wall may be damaged, affect the quality of the concrete. This is often overlooked by basement.

Break-Through to Beauty

Take any street on which the homes are properly landscaped and what do you find?

More civic-conscious people — more prosperous and happier people!

The use to which people put their land often marks the difference between ignorance, both of mind and property, and deterioration. Juvenile delinquency, according to the Canadian Association of Nurserymen, is far less in landscaped areas, due, of course to the higher economic standard, but also to the fact that the land is well-cared for, utilized in productive beauty and more interesting and gracious living.

J. V. Stenason, landscape authority, put it this way: "We have made the break-through from an economy of scarcity to an economy of abundance. Can we make the break-through from an economy of abundance to an economy of abundant beauty? We shall not become truly masters of our economy until we have taught it to serve our ideals of beauty."

Atomic and solar energy, automation, all of the great scientific and technological developments of present and future will be of no great benefit to mankind unless they serve to enrich the lives of the whole population. That they do is precisely that, is a challenge — the break-through to abundant beauty, better living for all. This is a goal that should be in the thoughts of all property owners.

Beauty and better living, tranquility in a complex world, solidly established, living more naturally amidst the pleasures of flowering plants and fruits and all the other things nurtured by the warm sun, the fertile soil and the good rains.

Everywhere, we should find beauty, whether at home, in town, or driving on the turnpikes. Moreover, we find that proper use of land, or landscaping to provide better living, whichever way we word it, serves other purposes than beauty alone. At home, it expands our living to the healthful outdoors, at the factory it encourages better work and better human relations, while on the highways it lessens monotony, reduces headlight glare and lowers the accident frequency — actually saves lives.

The break-through from economy abundance to abundance of beauty can, in great measure be derived from proper landscaping that offers, in turn, more natural and more gracious living.

One road for Canada lies toward a sort of supersonic push-button "slum", the other toward more natural and beautiful living, a blending of economic development to serve the only stable goal: a Nation beautiful, happy, morally and physically strong. Such a break-through is just beginning in the expanding push of recent years for outdoor living rooms, more landscaped beauty

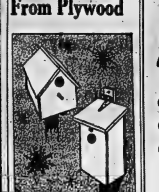
Modern Variety in Stones and Designs Make It an Important Decorating Item

The stone fireplace, symbol of comfortable living for centuries is enjoying a new importance today as a focal point of living room decoration.



The modern age of decorating with stone offers extraordinary variety for interior use. New methods of processing quarried stones have created a wide variety of textures in precut, lightweight, modular shapes which are identical in interior use, reports the Building Stone Institute. Rare travertine and marble are being used widely by decorators. The traditional fireplace frequently is expanded to double effects. as a room divider and the fireplace opening may be extended muted shades of modern stone to double use. Local stone yards have a wide selection of these popular quarried stones, suitable for home decoration.

The design of the fireplace wall is limited only by the decorator's creative imagination. Geometric or random patterns tical opening for one usually

It is a relatively easy project to dramatize an existing fireplace with a smart new fireplace wall of textured stone. If there is no fireplace a practical opening for one usually can be built in the existing wall. The increase in resale value of the home will substantially offset the construction cost as a rule. It is important, however, to check local fire protection regulations and make sure fireplace wall construction meets these rules.

Bird House From Plywood

Bird houses are like women's hats — every time you turn around you see something different.

Whatever style of bird house you prefer (and depending on the types and quantities of birds in your part of the country) a cosy home is easy to make in your home workshop. Mounting near a window, it will provide endless hours of pleasure.

A few pieces of fir plywood suffice to make the most elaborate bird house. Fir plywood made in Canada is bonded with a completely waterproof glue and will stand up to great abuse in the outdoors. It is ergo-marked PMBC exterior.

Many bird house designs incorporate some type of opening flap (or roof) so that it can be cleaned out from time to time.

Generally speaking, only houses intended for wrens and martins should be hung from trees. Other birds prefer their homes securely fastened to trees, or posts.

Besides the customary perch outside the entrance-way, it's often a good idea to arrange a small feeding area on which bread crumbs and the odd piece of suet may be offered.

Birds vary greatly in the size of house they prefer, and the size of the entrance hole. A visit to your public library should solve the problem of dimensions.

Type of Finish Roofing Determined by Roof Slope

When the last roof rafter has been nailed in place the sheathing can be applied and work inside the shell may then proceed regardless of the weather.

Roof sheathing is either 3-4 inches thick or plywood panels. Generally, sheathing boards should not be more than six inches wide. Wide boards are not recommended for sheathing purposes as they have a tendency to curl at the edges, although certain species do not display this characteristic.

Plywood used for roof sheathing can be of varying thickness, depending on the spacing of the supporting rafters. When plywood roof sheathing is installed a slight gap should be left between panel edges to allow for expansion under excessive moisture conditions. Otherwise the panels may buckle and warp.

Conventional roofing materials are shingles for a sloping roof and built-up tar or asphalt roofing for flat, or nearly flat, roofs. A roof is considered flat if the slope does not exceed three inches in every foot. Roofs falling between these two categories are called flat-pitch roofs. Wood shingles or cedar shingles or composition shingles may be used. Cedar shingles are more popular on the west coast and are often employed where a rustic effect is called for.

Composition shingles are either asphalt felt or asbestos fibre with Portland Cement. Asphalt shingles should weigh not less than 210 lbs. for every 100 square feet of roof surface covered, while asbestos cement shingles covering an area of the same size should have a minimum weight of 250 lbs.

Asphalt shingles in three foot strips can be applied to either flat or flat-pitch roofs, provided certain precautions are taken. The roof must first be covered with a layer of building paper. In order to prevent water from inching its way up along the lower edge of the roof a wide starter strip of heavy roll roofing material is applied at this point. Shingles should not be fixed as well as they have a tendency to curl at the edges, although certain types or

GordieHowe Wants Five More Years

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Gordie Howe, 33-year-old captain and left winger with Detroit Red Wings, said Thursday he expects to play "at least another five years" in the National Hockey League.

Howe, who has played 15 seasons with the Wings and scored more points than any other player in NHL history, said in an interview he wants to play 20 years with Detroit.

"Then I could hang up the skates with a paid-up, 20-year pension and some great memories."

Quinte Marksmen Practice for Shoot

The Quinte Marksmen held their third weekly practice of the international course on the Belleville range Wednesday night.

Harold Howring led the course with a score of 98 96 92. Stan Millard ran a close second with 97 93 90. Doug MacDonald was third with 93 94 83.

In addition to the pistol course organization is now underway for rifle shooters. Marksmen interested in rifle match shooting should get in touch with president Doug MacDonald or range officer Cliff Smith.

Carr Draws Tough Test

Bobcats Lose To Kingston

Belleville Bobcats dropped a 7-6 decision to Prince George Indians in a Kingston Senior softball league game played at Kingston last night.

It was a fairly even game all the way with the Bobcats leading until the fifth and sixth innings when the Indians, first place team in their league, scored the tying and winning runs.

The Bobcats scored their six runs on seven hits but committed five costly errors. Kingston collected ten hits and bobbled twice.

Pat Heaney pitched the Indians to victory, striking out 11. Jim Mercer lost the decision, allowing ten hits before Bob Hunter came in in the seventh. He too struck out a pair.

Bob Green paced the Belleville hitters with a double and single while Floyd Crawford hit a triple. Other hits were to, Morton, Ted Batchelor, Doug Hull and Earl Cousins.

Sports in Brief

CAR KILLS FOUR

MODENA, Italy (AP) — A speeding British - built racer veered out of control of the Modena autodrome Thursday and plunged into the heavy traffic of an adjoining highway, killing three persons and injuring four.

Five automobiles, a motor scooter and a bicycle on the highway were involved in the wreckage left in the wake of the racing car's hectic course. The driver of the Cooper racer was Giulio Cabianca, 32, known in Italy as the "mountain king" because of his many victories in uphill and mountain road races. He was critically injured.

SETS GLIDING MARK

BRANTFORD (CP)—Charles Yates of Brantford set a Canadian soaring record Thursday by gliding 330 miles to an airport in Marion, Ind. Yates was in the air more than 8½ hours after leaving Brantford airport and broke the record of 313 miles he set two years ago. He is president of the Southern Ontario Gliding Association.

BRAZIL BEATS MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Ademir da Guia, the blonde young son of a South American soccer great, supplied the payoff goal Thursday night when Bangu of Brazil shaded Montreal Concordia 1-0 in the International Soccer League.

TURNBERRY, Scotland (CP) — It was still defending-champion Joe Carr against the field as eight golfers entered the quarter-finals of the British Amateur championship today.

The four survivors of the quarter-finals hope to enter the semi-finals this afternoon.

In the fourth round Carr beat Laurie Ranalls of England, 3 and 1 and Ronald Jamieson of Scotland 8 and 6.

Walker defeated Leslie Taylor of Scotland 5 and 3 and Ronnie Shade of Scotland 2 and 1.

BOTH NEEDED

Walker and Carr are both needed as a Martin Christmas of England. Christmas, who plays against Janes Wright of Scotland this morning, went down to the wire Thursday to defeat Brian Stockdale of England 1 up. He beat John Beharrell of England 3 and 2.

The other seed still in competition this morning is Michael Bonallack of England who was paired against Laurie Foster of England.

Donallack came up with two 3 and 2 victories Thursday over R. A. Stewart of Scotland and David Frame of England.

He defeated Leslie Monro of Scotland 3 and 1 and eliminated David Moffat of England 3 and 2.

Morrow was paired against Geoff Dixon of England this morning. The winner of the Morrow - Dixon match played the winner of the Carr-Walker match in this afternoon's semi-final.

Windsor Bids for Pro Berth

Edward J. Houston, president of the league, said Thursday that he has talked to Windsor promoter Bill Butcher and said him the terms under which a team could enter the league.

A meeting of the league governors is scheduled for North Bay Tuesday and a decision on which of the two teams will be allowed into the loop may be made then.

Other teams in the league are Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds, Sudbury Wolves, Kingston Frontenacs and Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers.

Bucs, Braves Announce Player Deals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Milwaukee Braves announced Thursday, the purchase from Boston Red Sox of catcher Sammy White, who has decided to try a comeback. White, 33, announced his retirement in spring training last year when the Red Sox traded him to Cleveland for catcher Russ Nixon. The exchange later was voided, but White said he would stay out of baseball and devote his time to his bowling interests in Boston.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates traded outfielder Glen Cimoli to Milwaukee Braves Thursday night for shortstop Johnny Logan in a straight player deal.

At the same time, the Pirates announced the sale of catcher Bob Oldis to their Columbus club in the International League and the purchase of catcher Don Leppert from Columbus.

The Pirates also asked waivers on infielder Gene Baker to make room for outfielder Walt Moryn, purchased earlier in the day from St. Louis Cardinals.

WILL BACK CHANGE

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — The British Lawn Tennis Association (LTA) announced Thursday night it will support the idea of ending the distinction between amateurs and professionals. A spokesman described the move as a "great change of heart."

Minor Softball

The Colts downed the Argos 23-17 and the Comets defeated the Bears 19-12 in a couple of Bantam softball league games last night.

Johnson and Moon pitched for the Colts while Smith, Meens and Johnson all hit home runs. Soule, Caughlin and McCabe hurled for Argos. Homers went to Young, Blakely and Soule.

The Athletics whipped the Angels 24-7 and Tigers downed the Orioles 17-15 in Peewee group "C" games also played last night.

Smith, Matier and Mueller shared the Tiger pitching chore while Jones hit two doubles and a home run and Mueller had four singles. Parsons and Roper pitched for the Orioles while Pete Cudeikin had a homer.

Bosox Trim Tigers 10-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees, with unbeaten righthander Ralph Terry going all the way with a seven-hitter, boosted their lead to 3½ in the innings Thursday night and climbed into first place in the American League race by .005 percentage points. The loss dropped the Indians into a second place tie with Detroit Tigers, who were whipped 10-1 by Boston.

Washington tied Baltimore for fourth place by beating the Orioles 5-2, the eighth - place Chicago White Sox won their seventh in a row, 3-2 over Los Angeles Angels and Minnesota beat Kansas City 4-3.

The Yankees, winning 13 of their last 15, beat the Indians when pinch - hitter Bob Cerv walked, stole second and came in on a two-out single by pinch-hitter John Blanchard off losing relief ace Frank Funk (7-5). The Indians, losing two in a row for the first time in a month, have a 1-0 lead in the series after Mudcat Grant, but tied it two-all in the ninth on a single by Johnny Romano.

Grant had blanked the Yankees on three hits until the seventh inning. Then Mickey Mantle led off with his 19th homer, Yogi Berra was safe on a two-base error by Tito Francona and Elston Howard brought him home with a single. Terry (5-0) walked just one and struck out four for his third straight complete game and second victory over the Indians.

RUNNING LOST

A grand-slam homer by Vic Wertz capped a winning, five-run fifth inning for the Red Sox and beat Jim Running (5-6). Righthander Bill Monbouquette (6-) was the winner. He allowed four hits and had the Tigers shut out until the ninth, when Rocky Colavito singled and scored on a double by Larry Osborne.

The Senators backed the four-hit pitching of Ed Hobaugh (4-3) with an 11-hit attack against the Orioles, scoring in clinching run on a walk and singles by Gene Green and Chuck Cottier in the sixth inning. Hec Brown (6-3) was the loser.

Jose Valdivielso, a .116 hitter subbing for the injured Zoilo Versalles, batted in the game-winning run in the ninth. Hank Bauer hit a two-run homer for the As and Bob Allison swatted a three - run double for the Twins' circuit blast (4-4) was the winner.

The White Sox broke up a two-hit shutout by Eli Grba (5-6) with three unearned runs in the eighth. Billy Pierce (3-5), winning two in a row for the first time this year, and reliever Warren Hacker combined for a four-hitter against the Angels, who dropped their eighth straight.

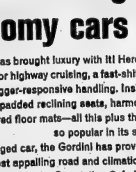
Leafs Clip Marlins 6-2 Wings Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The International League-leading Charleston Marlins can thank Ron Kabbes's torrid bat for their still cozy two - game lead over Columbus Jets.

Kabbe's two - out, two - run triple drove in the winning runs as Rochester Red Wings beat the Jets 5-4 Thursday night while Toronto Maple Leafs were completing a sweep of a two-game series from Charleston, 6-2.

Kabbes, in the last eight days, has smacked 11 hits in 21 at bats for a .524 clip, including the three doubles, a triple and four runs batted in.



The victory moved the Red Wings only 5 game behind first-place Buffalo Bisons, who lost 4-1 to Jersey City Jerseys. The last-place Syracuse Chiefs went on the biggest run-making spree of the year in a 16-2 win over Richmond Virginians.

Bob Johnson's triple drove in two of the Wings' three runs in the ninth and Columbus tied it on Chuck Leonard's solo homer. Two doubles and an error in a three-run fourth. Don Clendenon's single put the Jets ahead 4-3 in the eighth before Kabbes's big triple. John Kurks (5-2) won his fight over the Jets. Bob Veale lost.

Fritz Brickell's wrong - field double and Ron Piche's run-scoring put Toronto in front 2-1 in a big six - run second inning. Chuck Tanner drove in two more with a homer, and the other pair scored as the result of passed balls. Rip Coleman won and Bob Sadowski lost.

Syracuse rapped 12 hits and Bauer hit pitching from. Al Schroll, putting it away with a six-run third.

Longden Seeks 1st Plate Victory

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Longden, the jockey with the Midas touch whose mounts have earned about $20,000,000 in purses, may realize a life-long ambition when he hops aboard a bargain - basement colt this afternoon.

The 54-year-old Longden will ride Just Don't Shove in the $50,000 - added Queen's Plate classic for Canadian-bred three-year-olds at the suburban New Woodbine track. Longden has won just about every worthwhile race in North America, but he's still looking for a Plate winner.

Just Don't Shove, a three-year - old that Conn Smythe bought for $2,200 as a weanling at an action sale here, will be the public choice when the 13-horse field goes to the post about 5:45 p.m.

Final nominations closed Thursday with payment of $300 a horse and 15 were entered. This means a gross purse of $71,475 with the winner getting $46,475, the $2,000 gold cup and the Queen's 20 guineas. Second-place money is $12,500, third $7,500 and fourth $5,000.

It's still a wide - open race among the 10 colts and three fillies.

Likely to receive heavy backing is Hamblin Wreck, owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto. He turned in the fastest time of the three Plate trials last Monday and is a definite threat, particularly if jockey Avelino Gomez is fit.

HAS CUT KNEE

Heading the fillies is Maid O'North, owned by Frank Sherman of Hamilton. Bought for $25,000, she returned almost all of that last Saturday when she won the $31,000 Canadian Oaks, the richest race for fillies in the history of Canadian racing.

Other fillies are Flashing Top and Victoria Regina, owned by E. P. Taylor, president of the Jockey Club who has won the Plate six times since 1945. Taylor won it with Victoria Park last year.

Prince Tour, the "dark horse" from Montreal, had trainers talking to themselves Thursday morning as he worked a mile in in 1:38 4-5 in preparation for the race. Prince Tour is owned by William A. Carol of Verchere, Que.

"Trudeau Motors handed Point Anne its third defeat of the week by defeating the Cementmen 6-4 at the Point last evening.

The winners had to come from behind twice to get the hard-earned decision after the Pointers led 2-0 and 4-3. Trudeau's scored two runs in the second, three in the sixth and another in the seventh.

Junior Day pitched seven-hit ball for the victors, striking out four and walking three.

Jim Hunter also allowed seven hits on the losers' hilltop, fanning three and passing none.

Lyle Wannamaker and Phil Murray hit home runs for Trudeaus, while "Shaker" Baker and Sine each had two hits. Doug Murray added the odd safety.

Pete Green collected a double and single for Point Anne with Ray Brannigan also doubling. Singles went to Maracle, Nicksero, Rusty Logue and Jim Hunter.

Doug's Food Service overcame a 4-1 deficit to edge Bishop Seeds 5-4 in a second Commercial softball game last night.

Bishop's led 4-1 after three innings before Doug's scored two in the fourth and two in the fifth to register the win.

Ted McLaren pitched the victory, allowing five hits, striking out three and walking five.

Moe Huddleston toiled in defeat, also giving up five hits, fanning four and walking five.

McLaren also sparked his own attack with a brace of doubles. Other hits went to Mike Ryan, Doug Moreau and Bobby Dugan.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Herbie Hems Memorial Fund has closed and the response to the appeal for funds to purchase a suitable memorial for one of the city's finest athletes and sportsmen was exceptionally gratifying.

A handsome trophy, known as the "Herbie Hems Memorial Trophy" has been purchased after due consideration of the committee in charge of the fund. The only expense taken from the donations were those incurred by the purchase of the trophy, this season's miniature and the engraving.

The remainder of the monies donated will be presented to Mrs. Doris Hems and her family on Sunday next. Members of the committee felt "Father's Day" would be an appropriate time.

As chairman of the committee and co-treasurer of the fund, this reporter extends his heartfelt appreciation, with that of his fellow committee members for the, generosity of fellow-players, friends, and others in donating the great amount of $347.10. The cost of the trophy, etc., was $67.90. This leaves a net amount of $288.10 for the family of the late Johnny Osborne.

Our thanks goes to committee members Harry Morrison, Bill Hurst, Don Leh, "Sonny" Belch, Jack Devine and Bob Temple, with a special pat on the back for a terrific job to Harold Bawden. "Bawdy" went out of his way, spent hours of his time in assisting to raise funds.

Donations ranged from a "dime" to $35.00. Special mention goes to Frank Langabeer of the Queen's Hotel for a fine job in collecting the "silverware", not to mention sums of folding money.

The trophy will be presented annually with miniature, to the player named by a panel of coaches and managers of the Belleville and District Softball League as the "Sportsman and Gentleman of the Year," somewhat after the National Hockey League's Lady Byng Trophy.

Managers, and coaches of the Belleville Bobcats, Joyce's Real Estate, Picton Wells, Trenton RCAF and Cobourg Merchants will be notified later this week as to what is expected of them. Players will be judged during the schedule season only. An eleventh vote will be cast to decide a tie.

"The Herbie Hems Trophy" is the second handsome memorial tribute which will be in possession of the league. The other is the beautiful "Jimmy Barriage Trophy" donated by a brother, Harold Barriage, last year. This trophy with miniatures annually pass is the player voted the "most valuable to his team." Both trophies will be presented after the schedule by members of the respective families.

Again to all who in any way donated to the Hems fund,

Thank You!

JOYCE'S-CATS TONIGHT!

What is beginning to loom up as a "family" feud gets under way at the Fair Grounds tonight when the Bobcats of Tempie and the Real Estaters of Joyce cross softball raptors. As of now it looks like Bobby Hall of the Joyce crew facing Bobby Hunter, who is having a fine year for himself, as the master mound dualists.

The league is beginning to settle down to a tight race. Picton Wells came up with a decisive 7-0 victory over the Cobourg Merchants the other night, and previous to last night's Joyce-Picton game the top four spots were closer than a dowager's bustle to her backbone.

Gerry Joyce and Bill Shaw have their fingers crossed with eyes squinting at the weatherman. Twice now they have had the troops standing at attention only to have the rain come and halt the action. However tonight's till is the Cat's home affair. Game at 8.15.

ORONO HERE SUNDAY

Ken Soden's Belleville Kenmores hope to stretch their two-game win string to three at the Fair Grounds Sunday when the Orono club will be their guests at a 2.30 Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League affair.

The Kenmores hit their batting and pitching stride in the last two outings, pounding out 31 clouts in all over the dual route. Larry Soden will likely get the starting nod for the city crew.

HODGE-PODGE

Meanwhile tonight there's a merry melange of muscle-mauling slated for Memorial Arena when four of the wrestling fraternity leave themselves in the ring at the same time and square off with the devil taking the hindmost. Somewhere in the crowd you will see two guys garbed in white. They will be the referees.

It should be quite a hassle with Ivan and Karol Kalmikoff taking on the Men Mountains, Campbell and Townsend. Pat Flanagan will act as a judge with an unnamed associate. Whoever he is, they'll have the time of their lives, either getting in the way or out of it.

Pirates Pay Bonus Baby $175,000?

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday signed 18-year-old prep baseball star Bob Bailey for what may have been baseball's biggest bonus.

Rumors place it around $175,000. The Pirates and Bailey aren't saying. The previous high figure—one carefully guarded in baseball circles — was believed to be about $80,000 less.

Bailey, just over six feet, weighs 185 pounds and hits like the village blacksmith. He batted .475 in 18 high school games this season. He got better - than - average grades and turned down several football scholarships to big - name colleges to sign with the Pirates.

They are sending him to Asheville of the Class A Sally League to play shortstop.

Virtually every big - league club made an overture to Bailey.

Giants, Redlegs Win

Leap-Frog Hops See Dodgers Tops

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Righthander Joey Jay, overdue as a winner and figured dependable by Milwaukee Braves, is keeping things rosy for Cincinnati Reds in that leap - frog race for the National League lead.

Pal Joey, 25, who had only a 24-24 record for seven seasons with the Braves when he was swapped for shortstop Roy McMillan last winter, ended the Reds' losing skid at two games with a breezy 9-1 victory while eighth straight—over Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday night.

That kept the Reds in a second-place deadlock with the Giants, a half-game behind Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Giants began the day on top, fell to second when San Francisco whipped Milwaukee 6-3 in an afternoon game and slipped to third when the Reds won. But they then leap-frogged back on top by beating Chicago Cubs 6-3 in 12 innings on a three - run homer by Tommy Davis.

St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia Phillies 4-3.

MIZELL LOST IN

The Reds put together a four-run first inning off loser Wilmer Mizell (4-5). Gene Freese and Wally Post each drove in three runs, with Freese doubling home three in the first. Post singled, doubled and homered in Cincinnati's 13-hit attack.

Jay (5-3) allowed eight hits. He had the Pirates shut out until the eighth, when they scored on a walk and singles by Bill Mazeroski and pinch - hitter Rocky Nelson.

All three Dodgers runs in the 12th were unearned, scoring on an error, a hit batter by Davis's two-out homer off losing reliever Barney Schultz (0-1). They also had picked up an unearned run while scoring two in the ninth for a 3-2 tie, after the Cubs had cracked a dual between Glen Hobbie and Roger Craig with two in the top of the ninth.

FARRELL WINS

After giving up a run in the first, Hobbie blanked the Dodgers until he was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the ninth. He allowed only four hits, retiring 16 in a row over the span. Craig came on in the first when Johnny Podres gave way because of a sore arm and allowed only three hits until the ninth. Dick Farrell (5-4), the Dodgers' fifth pitcher, won.

The Giants scored three in the third inning, two on Willie McCovey's two-run homer, and then beat Tony Cloninger, a $100,000 bonus righthander making his major league debut for the Braves, with three more in the fifth. A single by Joe Amalfitano drove in the deciding run. Mike McCormick (7-5) won but gave up home runs by Frank Bolling and Joe Torre and needed ninth - inning relief by Dick Lajeski.

Southpaw Ray Sadecki (5-4) combined with reliever Bob Miller for a five-hitter against the Phils and knocked in the Cards' deciding runs off Art Mahaffey (6-8) with a two-run double in the fourth inning. Mahaffey, who was 2-0 against St. Louis and Sadecki this season, now has lost three in a row and hasn't finished any of his last four starts — after reeling off eight complete games in his first nine starts.

Outlast Picton 8-6

Joyces Win Weird One

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Joyce Real Estate overcame 4-0 and 6-2 deficits on their way to a weird and wild 8-6 victory over Picton Wolfs at the Fairgrounds last night.

The win hoisted Joyces into undisputed possession of first place, two points ahead of the Picton, Odessa and Picton. The Cats and Joyces clash on the same field tonight at 8.15.

Last night's affair featured hits, including three homers, errors aplenty, arguments, one ejection and the oddity of seeing one pitcher strike out five batters in one inning.

The Real Estaters woke the game in the eighth inning on a two-run homer by Guy Austin. Joyce's had tied the score an inning earlier with four runs, two on Gary Goyer's solid circuit smash. Hits by Kingston and Carr and four Picton errors accounting for the inning's other two runs.

The winners' initial run came on Kingston's hit and a couple of errors, the losers charged with eight in all while the winners had five, while a walk, Elliott's sacrifice, a passed ball and a wild pitch plated another.

Walls opened the game with a three-run explosion in the first, on two errors, Mulholland's double and Hefferman's single. Keith Stacey's home run made it 4-0 in the second.

Restaurant on Rue Daunou Proves Instantly Beguiling

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PARIS (CP)—The restaurant on the rue Daunou is instantly beguiling. The decor is luxurious without, as the French say, "tapping at the eye." The waiters are actually smiling.

Or not exactly. Pierre is a career diplomat, his squiline features bronzed in colonial service. He is a bon coup de fourchette—a handy man with a fork —and expects others to match his gourmandizing.

He insists that you start with stuffed mussels. Then comes steak au poivre, a hunk of meat saturated with fresh cream, cooked in flaming cognac and studded with pepper cloves. An accompanying Clos Vougeot, 1953, induces a sense of well-being.

"Reflect a little, old man," he says, with gestures. "Just look at that old woman over there, no longer young and not very beautiful, of course, but every so often she smiles to herself, so happy at just being in a place like this.

"After all, there's no country to compare with France. What a difference from those places we went to in London!"

Another Specialty LAMB, With a grimace, he remembers his English lamb cutlet, veined with fat and smeared with mint sauce, the bane of every Frenchman. The peas, billed as "petits pois," were big as marbles and exuded rivulets of emerald water.

A Canadian, mindful of a misguided Anglo - French heritage, could see the other side. Think of the English schoolboys returning from holidays abroad, drooling with ecstasy at the thought of a "real English breakfast." Bacon and eggs, toast and marmalade, the lot—not just a measly roll and coffee, continental style.

How is it the Canadian ice hockey player who said his team would have won, all right, if only the boys had been able to get a "good steak" in Paris?

Or the Canadian government official, on his first visit to Europe, lying somberly to show him a restaurant where he could have a simple meal, shorn of those rich Parisian effects?

TO EACH HIS OWN

But is there something to be said for grey skies and austere diet, for Anglo-Saxon tolerance and kindliness and national cohesion and steadiness, as opposed to Gallic individualism, douceur de vivre, exuberance pushed to excess, the rigors of the French critical spirit?

Maybe. A Canadian feels caught between cultures, a foot in either camp. Well, not to worry. Let's make the best of both worlds.

Okay—garcon! We'll try that steak-and—and don't spare the creme Chantilly.

Most Newfoundlanders Happy, With Reservations, About Relocation Program

By JOE DUPUIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GLOVERTOWN, Nfld. (CP)—How much better is the "better" life? The question is topical in this undeveloped Bonavista Bay community on the northeast coast of Newfoundland, 40 miles from Gander. Here the provincial government's program to relocate people of the outports in areas of more public services is meeting a severe test.

The number of families that have moved into, or near, Glovertown from the bay's innumerable islands is not known. Government officials estimate it may be as high as 300 families.

For some, the new life has meant disillusion. Others are not living any better than before. Rev. G. L. Morgan of the Glovertown United Church says "they'd live the same no matter where you put them."

But most are happy, with some reservations, about the change. They are particularly pleased about the opportunity to send their children to bigger and better schools.

"I'm not making a report," he shrugged." I'm too mad at the government to say anything nice, so I'm not saying anything."

Mr. Samson was annoyed at the government's settlement of his claim under the resettlement plan for moving his family here from Flat Island.

The government pays up to $600 expenses to help families to relocate.

R. C. (Charlie) Brett, the government's youthful, pipe-smoking welfare officer here, says, however, cases like Mr. Samson's are not typical.

The people from Flat Island are, rugged and independent, men who have for generations fished the Labrador shores in schooners.

They are like Ed Morgan, a storekeeper who claims that Flat Islanders are losing in their independence and should "take a leaf from our Flat Island people."

"If a Flat Islander gets a dollar to spend," said Morgan, "he'll spend it. Otherwise, he'll do without rather than go in debt. There are not too many people like that left today."

Mr. Morgan said his schooner in 1951, before the centralization program began, and went to work there.

Work ended at noon or 1 p.m. at the latest, and from then on Saturday was pay day.

Saturday was pay day, the day when the men of the island held its head up in the neighborhood, failed to leave a series of rings in the bathtub.

Saturday was the day for new haircuts, the kids in the afternoon and early evening. Saturday was when the local sports enthusiasts held in the local hall and had their tight yellow shoes shined, sometimes twice just for the heck of it.

Saturday was the day when the farmers came to town and the wives did their shopping.

Saturday night was the night for courting and taking candy and flowers and strolling through the dimmed-lighted park.

Saturday was one long splurge of excitement, from the noon whistle until they rolled up the shutters.

Sunday, however, so longer is quite the day it used to be, is it? Golf and television and the motor car have rather changed the day and the wonders some times whether it is altogether for the better.

But the greatest change in the old Saturday has happened to Saturday and Friday.

Not so many years ago Saturday was the day of the week one spelled in capital letters.

Sullivan Show Appearances Have Aided Robert Goulet

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — On a chilly Sunday night last January, a tall, dark and handsome young man with a rich baritone voice was introduced on the Ed Sullivan on his CBS television show and sang a solo.

"The result," said Robert Goulet this week, "was fantastic. Before that night, almost nobody knew me. Our show had just opened but only a few people had seen it then. I was really unknown. But the day after the Sullivan exposure, people started recognizing me on the street."

Goulet since then has made three more TV appearances — another Sullivan Show, an Omnibus and a Garry Moore Show. Although he is one of the featured, not starred, performers in the new Lerner-Loewe musical Camelot, Goulet has become in a few months a widely recognized and "hot" theatrical property. Offers of movie roles, dramatic parts and nightclub appearances flow in.

Goulet, 27, is a native of Massachusetts but grew up in Edmonton, Alta. He went from there into New York show business six seasons ago, almost starved and went back to Canada and became a TV star there.

TOPPED CANADIAN BILL

He was chosen from many applicants for the role of Sir Lancelot in the musical treatment of the legend of King Arthur and his Round Table which is a Broadway hit.

"One night on an Ed Sullivan show is worth a season of steady work to a performer," Goulet estimated. "And television constantly helps by sell tickets. The day after we had done some excerpts from the show, the box office line

He will be one of the guests on Sullivan's 13th anniversary program Sunday night — and a very grateful one.

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, June 17
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: The daytime is excellent for enjoying yourself as you most prefer and for getting your personal appearance and your charm evident for all to see. Then tonight get out into the world of sports, entertainment, recreation and enjoy the social and general popularity and prosperity that can come thru surprise invitation. Be receptive to it.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —This can be a particularly enjoyable day. Step up activity with those individuals who are truly congenial and restore your waning energies. Attend some amusing party or ride favorite hobbies. Advance in business, socially, too.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Look about you and see if you can't make your surroundings far more beautiful and comfortable by adding a few little pieces here and there, sprucing up with soap and water, etc. P.M. Invite friends in for a delightful tete-a-tete.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —It is relatively easy for you to get the right people to come along with you at the recreations or hobbies you most want to enjoy today and this evening. But be sure you make your plans early enough so that it will be worthwhile for all.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Concentrate on pulling real estate in better order today and then seeing that you collect what is due from others as well as pay outstanding bills of your own. P.M. Fine for fun and frolic, but be sure you do not spend much.

Leo (July 22 to August 21)—A day when just about anything can come into your head is all right, so be sure you contact the right friends to go along with you on this Saturday spree of innocent fun. You will come across some wonderful business opportunity, too.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)—Handle anything of real importance today, since the planets are with you. Also, get small duties out of the way quickly first. P.M. Get out to that fine nightclub or other place of amusement you have wanted to visit for some time.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Here is the Saturday you promised to get out with good friends for recreation, so be sure you do not go back to your work; but if you must, be emphatic. P.M. Be sociable. Don't work all the time.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Quietly strive to be more popular and achieve fame, as in your heart's desire. If you go to see the right people, your talents will soon be recognized P.M. Settle down, out with a fighter — up and be your most charming self. Have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You have a wonderful chance now to get out and look into new channels of expression, to meet interesting and famous people so that you make greater headway in your career. Be inspired by them and you will learn to achieve, also.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you try, you will now be able to see the authorities who can help you with your problematical affairs so that life becomes more happy and successful. P.M. Have an exciting, joyable time with loved one by being very happy, full of life.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Stick close to kind and generous partners today. Also, by co-operating you find that you can turn an enemy into a valuable ally too. Dine out pleasantly in P.M., then opt to some place of amusement with good friend.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Get all small duties out of the way quickly today and then take the treatments that improve health and appearance. Make surroundings more beautiful and comfortable, too. P.M. Get together with coworkers and have a ball.

If your child is born today . . . he, or she, will be one of those adorable children that others will take to readily and forever be showering gifts upon. This is all very fine, but the incentive for work and achievement may easily be lost and the tremendous promise in this chart never realized. So, be sure you early teach that happiness comes from work and that nothing is truly enjoyed to the full that is not earned personally and honestly.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Now and then everybody gets a "tired-out" feeling, and may be bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary condition caused by urinary irritation or bladder discomfort. That's the time to take Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's help stimulate the kidneys to relieve this condition which may cause backache and tired feeling. Then you feel better, and better, work better. Get Doan's Pills today. Use only as directed. Don't let the first hint of backache or other kidney discomfort lead to drug reliance. You can depend on Doan's.

CHILD FOR ADOPTION

If we can find another future parents through this advertisement something very special will have been achieved. It is hard to find parents for children of Anglo-Saxon and Negro background and a year old GIRL needs one of them. But perhaps there is a couple of similar background who are accepting white second-class citizens. This baby girl is really very attractive. Her mixed parentage is reflected in her beautiful skin, her hair and eyes are brown; she has Negroid features, but not to the exclusion of Caucasian; who, from all indications, is temperamentally sound. We are invited from Roman Catholic quarters.

Many French-Canadians Would Form Separate State If Aspirations Denied

By ALEXANDER FARRELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — An eminent historian says a majority of French-Canadians will be prepared to form a separate state if they find their awakening aspirations are not being fulfilled in Confederation.

Prof. Maurice Brunet, director of the Institute of History at the University of Montreal, said in an interview that nationalism and the desire for social progress are the most dynamic forces at work in French-Canada today.

French-Canadians, he said, have always had a sense of nationality but they tilted at windmills until in recent years, the force of political events gave them a sense of direction to go with it.

This sense of direction had emerged from "a major evolution in political thinking" since the Second World War. The rising generation in French-Canada seemed less prone to waste time on such things as crusades for federal bilingualism and was more interested in ending their own economic and social servitude.

LOOK TO QUEBEC CITY

In the 20th century the Quebec government, he said, is the most powerful means at the disposal of French-Canadians for supporting collective action and assuring their progress as a group. Until recent years, however, they did not know how to use it and they were only now learning that "good government in Ottawa is no substitute for self-government in Quebec."

In Quebec, he said, the "provincial right issue" is a struggle for the fullest possible measure of self-government because the Ottawa government "is, in the last analysis, an instrument for enforcing the decisions of the English-speaking majority on a minority of 5,000,000 people who intend to survive as a community and, in fact, have no choice but to survive."

They were too numerous to be assimilated and they were collectively conscious of themselves as a distinct people. The French in Quebec "have their own language and traditions, their own culture, economic and political institutions; professors, scientists, writers and artists; collective ways of thinking and living; common aspirations and common aspirations."

In short, he said, French-Canada is here to stay. French-Canada is different, and the leaders of both the national and major ethnic groups can act wisely only if they accept these facts.

ILLUSIONS SHATTERED

Prof. Brunet said the attention of French-Canadians shifted dramatically to their provincial capital after the federal election of March, 1958, gave the Progressive Conservative party "such a crushing majority that it could dispense with the support of its Quebec members.

"French - Canadians were finally stripped of the last illusions they held about being needed to govern the country. They became obligated to measure their weight in Confederation more accurately.

"At this time Maurice Duplessis was in the twilight of his career as premier of Quebec. Only his most stubborn political zealots would deny that he rendered French-Canada a service by drawing attention to the problems of provincial rights and fiscal autonomy, but in the last years of his administration were distressing. He ruled by force. The shift he had to effect.

"His death opened the way to Paul Sauve's policy of making the Quebec government the real champion of Quebec's progress, and of co-operating with the federal government as closely as possible without compromising French-Canadian interests. Then Sauve's death sapped public confidence in the ability to the Union Nationale to carry out this policy."

The Quebec Liberals, he said, were smart enough under Jean Lesage to fill the vacuum by making the policy of nationalism their own and adopting it to the needs of a modern society democracy, "after years of being stimatized as lackeys of Ottawa."

DEMAND QUICK ACTION

However, the Lesage government was under much political pressure to move ahead quickly. "The people seem to want to go faster than their leaders but the pace calls, especially in education, for fundamental and carefully thought-out reforms rather than spectacular changes."

Prof. Brunet said three false approaches have been taken to the problem of cultural existence in Canada: The optimistic, the paternalistic and the social-leftist.

The optimistic approach was based on the premise that only small differences divide the country. In the name of national unity French-Canadians were expected to accept all the decisions made by the majority

SEES SECESSION TREND

Prof. Michel Brunet, director of the Institute of History at the University of Montreal, says French-Canadians have been swept up by the dynamic forces of nationalism and a desire for social progress. If they are not real Confederation, he declares, most French-Canadians are prepared to secede and form a separate state. (CP Photo) and let themselves be persuaded that these decisions were for the common good.

Prof. Brunet said this approach "has been adopted by many federal politicians, well-wishers in general and all those who cannot face the facts as they are.

"They have made themselves believe that Canadians form one people under the leadership of a central government. To placate Quebec, they pay lip-service to French culture and to the so-called unique French-Canadian contribution to the building of Canada.

"They even pretend, in spite of all the evidence to the contrary, that this nation is bilingual and bicultural."

RESIST MAJORITY

He said this pleased "those petition-minded French - Canadians who still accept the nationalist - messianic interpretation of their history — the notion that Quebec has a mission to make the French presence felt on this continent from sea to sea.

The French population, when faced with an English majority group, "does not get prepared to accept, resigned and protested, feeling it was being pushed around.

The English population, having been told by the nation's leaders that all Canadians were really alike, was understandably mystified and prone to denounce "Quebec's separatist leanings."

The bi-brother approach was founded on the notion that the English have brought, or been trying to bring political liberty and material prosperity to a backward people.

"If the French fail to show appropriate gratitude," Prof. Brunet said, "the English conclude that they are ill-bred, ignorant, biased and priest-ridden."

He said many French-Canadians detest such and other nationalist people, working for English employers and associating with English friends, are constantly tempted to adopt this approach.

Looking at the dark side of their society—and society has a dark side—they like to consider themselves more enlightened than the majority of their compatriots.

"One can only understand why they speak and act as they do, but one must not pay much attention to their statements. They speak for themselves, they represent a tiny minority, and it pays them to say things that people who listen to them or hire them like to hear."

UNITY IS MYTH

Behind the social-leftist approach lay the idea that the real division in Canadian society is economic, not cultural.

"In other words, the class struggle is supposed to have modified the pattern of social relations in Canada and united the have-nots throughout the country. This is nonsense.

"French - Canadians want much more than ever before to improve their standard of living and get all the advantages of progressive social-security legislation but they also realize that their life is linked to their own collective progress and to their influence as a group within the Canadian confederation."

As for the French-speaking minorities in the English-speaking provinces, Prof. Brunet said their status "is almost that of immigrants; they are desperately trying to survive as a cultural group."

"The English majority should realize that these people who want schools where their children can study French and catechism for a few hours a week

Flooding of St. Lawrence Valley Caused Government To Buid Historic Village

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UPPER CANADA VILLAGE, Ont. (CP) — A mid-made flood, fragments of wallpaper and a country courtship 100 years ago all helped make this new-old community a faithful reproduction of a pioneer life in Eastern Ontario.

The flooding of the St. Lawrence River valley for the Seaway power project prompted the Ontario government to save threatened historic buildings and assemble them here on the new river bank seven miles east of Morrisburg.

Wallpaper scraps established the date of an elegant home rescued from the now - submerged village of Mills Roger, near Cornwall. Fragments of paper from the parlor wall were sent to the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, England, where they were matched with a pattern produced by a British wallpaper maker in 1820.

Village works boss Doug Hough, his men remind him, would not be here except for courtship sparked by the bulging of a tamarack shed a century ago at nearby Hallville. The young carpenter went to Hallville to build the shed fell in love with a local girl, married, had children and grandchildren, including Doug Hough. The shed stands now in Upper Canada Village, reconstructed by the grandson of its original builder.

AUTHENTIC LOOK

Several score experts and artisans working on this 2,000-acre site since 1957 have seized on such plans and accidents, on document and chance, to create an authentic early Canadian atmosphere.

The community of some 40 old buildings, clustered along dirt lanes and crushed - rock roads, is ringed with split-rail fences and watered by a mill stream, will be opened June 24 as part of the centrepiece in a chain of riverside parks run by the Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Commission.

The 200 horses, inns, mills, churches, schools and even a vintage privy recall the harsh life of the late 18th century, when loyalists settled in the eastern Ont a rio wilderness after the American revolutionary war.

The village traces the progress of the settler families for 100 years, sometimes telling the story in a single homestead. A corner in the village contains the family's success story in four buildings—the original pioneer shanty, its log cabin replacement, the frame house which succeeded the cabin and finally a fine stone home.

Historian Ronald Way, director of historical sites in Ontario and chief of the $2,000,000 village project, assembled a talented team to invest the collection of buildings with a living, workaday atmosphere.

Restoration architect Peter Stokes and a crew of researchers scanned yellowing documents, consulted the oldest residents, compiled a sporting checklist and cross-checked to separate history from legend, fake from fact.

When written records failed, workmen on the site often volunteered key structural details from their memory of family lore. "I cannot, the right chair, a 19th century soup ladle or a tomahawk but rich.

She persuaded local women to polish up old skills and they lend new in the village knotting rugs and quilting. The village blacksmith, George Fawcett, came from Yarmouth, N.S., to operate the smithy transplanted from Glengarry County.

Clare Breeze works again in the old Anglican church and still as he did before it closed down 14 years ago on its original site on Jessup's Point, and his successor, William Breeze, did more than a century ago.

Jeanne Minhinnick worried whether the accumulation of details really was producing the atmosphere of a "living museum" until one sunny day early in June. That day she toured one of the homesteads. "I walked through the kitchen and it felt like a kitchen for the first time. It even smelled right.

"Then I heard the jingle of harness on the horses and the creak of the wagon moving along a laneway. I felt I was living 150 years ago."

HISTORIC VILLAGE — Scores of buildings typical of 19th century life along Canada's St. Lawrence River shore have been reconstructed on 45 acres of Crysler Memorial Park in Eastern Ontario. The buildings make up Upper Canada Village, to be opened to the public June 25. This is a view from the waterfront showing the pastor's house (centre) built from original 1848 designs. (CP Photo).

Drink Liquor Straight Advice Of Pathologist

Mundi plenty of pretzels, crackers or other dry carbohydrates (this slows digestion and blocks entry of alcohol into the intestine where it readily enters the blood stream).

Engage in serious deliberation (also slows absorption).

Take a couple of aspirins and a tactical beer. This is just in case the other advice didn't work.

Dr. Charles P. Larson, well-known Tacoma, Wash., pathologist and a former star of Washington State Athletic Commission, wasn't trying to be facetious at the American Society of Medical Technologists Convention Tuesday.

As one of the principal speakers he was discussing what he called the "facts and fallacies of alcoholism," and came up with these tips on drinking during the course of his talk.

OLD LAUNDRY TUB — Wearing a costume typical of the 1840s, this girl pours hot water into a wooden laundry tub, reconstructed as part of a display at Upper Canada Village near Morrisburg, Ont. The village was reassembled from authentic designs of buildings along the St. Lawrence River as a monument to the mid-19th century social history of Canada. (CP Photo).

Swears Senator Got Portion Of Hospital Grants

'Kickback' Cheques Mysteriously Disappear

MONTREAL (CP)—A former administrator of Jean Talon Hospital testified Friday that Senator Henri Courtemanche demanded, and got, a kickback of 10 per cent from every government grant made to the hospital.

The testimony was given by Romuald Belhumeur, administrator of the hospital from 1953 to 1956. Mr. Courtemanche, he said, received $37,000 from the hospital between 1956 and 1960.

Senator Courtemanche was Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Labelle for seven years before he was summoned to the Senate in 1960.

Georges - Marie Lavoie, hospital accountant, said the cancelled cheques made out to Mr. Courtemanche or made out to cash and delivered to him have all disappeared mysteriously. He said an inspector for the federal income tax department visited the hospital some time ago and looked at a number of cheques, particularly those cheques made out to Mr. Courtemanche.

Shortly after, he said, another man came to him with a letter of introduction from Mr. Courtemanche asking that the cheques issued to Mr. Courtemanche be shown. After that, the cheques could not be found in the hospital records, Mr. Lavoie said.

Former Progressive Conservative member for Labelle constituency, Canada appointed by the provincial government to investigate the medical, financial and administrative affairs of the hospital in northeast Montreal.

Mr. Courtemanche was one of the members of the hospital's first board of directors, formed when the hospital was incorporated as a public institution in 1953. He later served as treasurer.

At the time, he had just been defeated as member of the Commons made Labelle. He was elected again in 1957, and later became secretary of state in the Diefenbaker administration before being made a senator.

The hospital was founded by Vancouver - born Dr. George Hori, who Mr. Belhumeur said decided to convert it into a public hospital when "we found that the taxes were mounting."

MAN TO SEE

He said it had been suggested that Mr. Courtemanche, who is a son-in-law of the late Dr. Albiny Paquette, then health minister in the former Union National provincial government, would be a man to see about getting government grants.

"The first time I saw him, Mr. Courtemanche said he would expect 10 per cent of the grants," Mr. Belhumeur testified. "It seemed a bit expensive but we needed grants and he was paid 10 per cent."

When the hospital got two $52,000 cheques from the federal and provincial governments, Mr. Courtemanche got a third cheque for $10,000.

"You got that statutory grants?" asked Judge Victor Chabot of St. Hyacinthe, Que., chairman of the inquiry board.

"He got 10 per cent of all grants," said Mr. Belhumeur.

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Henri Courtemanche said today he received a total of $17,000 in legal fees from the president of the Jean Talon Hospital, but denied he had ever taken a kickback on government grants made to the hospital.

Senator Courtemanche was commenting on testimony given by Romuald Belhumeur, administrator of the hospital from 1953 to 1956 before a provincial inquiry commission Friday.

Senator Courtemanche said in an interview Mr. Belhumeur had once offered him a percentage of federal and provincial grants given the hospital but he refused it. He said he is ready to testify before the commission at any time.

He said he received two cheques from the hospital president, Dr. George Hori, for legal fees in expropriation work he had done for the hospital, but was assured many times by Dr. Hori that the money was drawn from his private account, and that the cheques were so stamped.

The first cheque, in 1957, was for $7,900, Senator Courtemanche said. The second, "in 1960, was for $9,300.

But, he emphasized, he received no money from the hospital while he was a "minister of the Crown."

HOUSE CAUGHT IN LULL BETWEEN SESSION STORMS

At Times Chamber Almost Empty

It was a respite from the heated controversy of the James E. Coyne dispute which had Parliament Hill in turmoil earlier in the week.

The lull is to continue for a day with works estimates again scheduled to be debated by other departmental estimates.

Plenty of noise still lies ahead, however, with Parliament sticking for a windup of business by June 30 or, failing that, by holiday break as suggested twice by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

WORK AHEAD

Some highly important items remain, including the debate which normally follows the budget address and the proposed government bill to have Parliament approve the appointment of the governor of the Bank of Canada. He has been named.

Mr. Diefenbaker also has promised that a bill granting government assistance to farmers

Secret Payload Aboard Satellite Now In Orbit

U.S. Hopes to Recover Capsule in Four Days

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (AP) — The Discoverer No. 25 satellite was circling the earth every 91 minutes today, carrying a secret payload the U.S. Air Force hopes to recover in one to four days.

The 2,100-pound satellite, 18th in the series to achieve polar orbit, blasted into space through a heavy fog at 4:03 p.m. PDT (7:03 p.m. EDT) Friday.

Because newsmen and reporters a mile from the launch area were unable to see either the missile or its exhaust, they heard its roar as it sped upward.

An hour and 45 minutes later, tracking stations in Hawaii and Alaska reported the space vehicle was in orbit.

Since the first Discoverer launching Feb. 28, 1959, only seven have failed to orbit. But the figures on capsule recovery are much impressive:

Twenty of them have had the reliability for recalling their capsules, but so far only four capsules have been recovered.

Officials would neither confirm nor deny that sky - spy camera equipment for the highly secret Samos satellite surveillance system was aboard. Plans call for the Discoverer No. 25 capsule to remain aloft as long as possible — perhaps three or four days—so instruments may photograph the parachute as it drifts down near Hawaii.

NOT TOO MANY STRAW BOSSES SAYS GORDON

CNR President Still on Grill

OTTAWA (CP) — The count appeared to be two down and possibly three to go today in CNR President Donald Gordon's innings with the Commons railway committee.

The committee, heralded as the site of a head-on collision between Mr. Gordon and his parliamentary critics, scheduled day-long Saturday sittings to enable him to get back to his job of running the nation's biggest railroad as soon as possible.

On two issues expected to be big ones, Mr. Gordon on Friday:

That the publicly owned CNR is overrun with straw bosses, cited insisted it does not profit on every special - incentive rate it grants to wish shippers in competition with trucking companies.

Three issues still unlouched or barely scratched centre on CNR operation of trucking services in competition with privately owned lines, operation of a telephone service in the Yukon, and hotel operations.

Freight and passenger services generally still were to be studied in detail by the committee but Mr. Gordon withheld comment on the Macdonald royal commission's report suggesting the government sell railcar and curtailment of light traffic density, services on the railway industry on its feet.

DEFICIT MAIN TARGET

Criticism of the burly 55-year-old former fighter pilot's chairman of the wartime prices and trade board centred on the fact that for four years running the CNR has had a deficit, amounting in the nearly $67,500,000. His critics held the view that he was not a millionaire and he was too difficult to get along with.

But in his appearances Thursday and Friday, he patiently explained in detail the problems confronting the - debt - ridden company and its peculiar operating difficulties as a publicly owned, uneconomic regional services.

After one careful explanation of how diesel engines are more costly but more efficient to operate than steam locomotives, he asked:

"I don't know whether that makes me a railroader, but God knows I try to be."

He declined Friday to make a forecast of the company's annual opportunities because it could cause uneasiness among railroad investors.

But he said the CNR is still there and is also ready to recruit the workers it needs — and denied that the lower ranks are overrun with too many chiefs for the number of Indians."

Two Stopped For Questioning In Slaying

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Two men were stopped by police at Simcoe for questioning Friday in connection with the fatal shooting of an elderly storekeeper at nearby Rockford.

Provincial police stopped the men 130 miles south of here after police broadcast that a .1950 car and the two occupants, aged about 40 and 20, were being sought.

Harold Harris, 59, was found Thursday by two customers lying behind the counter of his store, alive but unconscious, Mrs. Russell Reid and Mrs. William McNabb stopped a passing motorist for a lift to Owen Sound to use telephone since the store had been ripped out.

Mr. Harris died dead when police arrived. Cash in the till was unlocked and investigation revealed a set of a major gle. An empty .22-calibre shell was found on the floor of the store.

West Indies Independent On May 31, '62

LONDON (Reuters) — British Lesser Antilles will, on May 31, 1962, on the date of independence for the 11,000-mile chain of sugar-and-rum islands making up the West Indies Federation.

The colonial office announced the date at the end of a 17-day conference called here to work out details of the federation's independence within the British Commonwealth.

The date is subject to acceptance by the West Indian legislatures of the plans produced by the constitutional conference which wrapped up its work in a marathon 12-hour session Friday night.

Major Strike Grips Shipping

NEW YORK (AP) — The crewing parapet of a major maritime strike spread to seaports around the U.S. today as federal mediators pleaded for a full resumption of peace talks. There were reports that a federal injunction might be sought to end the walkout.

Thirty port cities and almost 1,000 freighters, tankers and passenger liners were involved in the strike, which began last Thursday midnight.

Coyne Controversy Throws Light on Bank of Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — This week's Coyne controversy has thrown the spotlight of publicity on the Bank of Canada, by the institution which controls the country's lifeblood—money.

The clash between Bank Governor James E. Coyne and Finance Minister Fleming is not, of nothing else, drawn public attention to the role and powers of the country's central bank.

The debate in the country and in Parliament, by the time it is ended, likely will have clarified some of those powers and created a wider understanding of what the bank is all about.

The man in the street knows the central bank as the agency that issued the dollar bill in his pocket and Governor Coyne as one of the two bank officials whose signatures are on the bill. The other is Deputy Governor J. R. Beattie.

He probably doesn't fully appreciate, however, that the central bank's operations may ultimately be the deciding factor in whether you get a loan from his chartered bank—or, indeed, whether his employer can get a loan that might mean the continuation of his job.

The Bank of Canada's main role lies in deciding monetary policy — in effect, the money supply. It does this mainly by buying and selling bonds and other securities in the market.

When it buys, the result is to increase the cash reserves of the chartered banks on deposit with the Bank of Canada. When it sells, the reserves are reduced. And the size of a bank's reserves determine how much money it can lend to the public.

The size of a bank's reserves also are affected by how much currency it holds. But the amount of currency in circula-

Claims Voodoo Not as Good as Avro Arrow

MILTON (CP)—Liberal Commons member Paul Martin charged Friday night that the Canadian-built CF-105 Avro Voodoo jet interceptors aren't as good as the Canadian - built Arrow jet scuttled two years ago by the government.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced this week that Canada will equip Voodoos to re-equip RCAF squadrons in Canada now flying the CF-100 Mk. 5 aircraft. He said it is so slow that it can't even catch a Russian bomber that is alone intercept Russian bombers.

Mr. Martin, MP for Essex East, told a Liberal rally here that the Voodoo is far superior to the Arrow. He said the Arrow was a "made to order" interceptor in the Western world.

"Furthermore, the Arrow, designed especially for Canadian conditions, had an all-weather capacity not available in the Voodoo."

A decade in Canadian aeronautics was scuttled overnight, said Mr. Martin, and Canadians were put out of work.

Now, for these reasons, the government finds itself in the position of having to acquire a less suitable American plane."

Gromyko Stalls on Reply To Canadian Plan for Laos

GENEVA (CP)—The 14-country conference on Laos came to a moment of truth — or compromise—today on a Canadian proposal that the three-nation commission in the tiny South-east Asian country be discussed with Indochina.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green was asked to request for planes and helicopters Thursday and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko discussed it Friday night in a meeting with Britain's Malcolm MacDonald. Russia and Britain are co-chairmen of the conference.

A British spokesman answered questions about the Gromyko - MacDonald private talk said Britain was in favor of creating the Canadian request for three aircraft and three helicopters for the India - Canada - Poland commission in Laos.

But Gromyko who left for Moscow today, made no reply to the Canadian request, the spokesman said, adding that "the two co-chairmen are looking into the best terms and means of enabling the international control commission to carry out its tasks."

The spokesman said Russia put its own ideas for equipping the commission. He declined to disclose them.

Green, who later had dinner with MacDonald Friday night, said the Russian attitude put the conference in an "extremely difficult" position, but in an interview he gave the impression he was not discouraged about eventual solutions.

Observers felt that the issue of inspection aircraft put into focus the question of whether East and West really intended to reach the international agreement a cease-fire in Laos.

Green told reporters that the commission has been unable to make first-hand observations of cease-fire violations.

Boun Oum and Souphanouvong met in Suriteh's plush Dolder Hotel where the premier and Souvanna, the Pathet Lao leader's half-brother, conferred Friday.

There was no immediate comment from Souphanouvong about the meeting.

Phoumi said Boun Oum will continue to meet with his rivals in an effort to iron out details of what he said will represent "a general agreement."

"If there are further intervention steps, there will be no conflicts," Boun Oum said.

Believe Plane Crashed in Lake

ORILLIA (CP) — Two brothers, who disappeared Thursday on a plane flight from Orillia, may have crashed in Georgian Bay where a search for wreckage and a possible oil slick were discovered Friday.

Search officials said Blake, 40, and Russ Uren, 33, may have found their way to one of the islands in the area.

The paddle was identified by a member of the Uren family as one carried on the plane.

Tim Aircraft of the Royal Canadian Air Force and two private aircraft searched the area.

Senator Fears Reds May Develop Deadly 'Death Ray' Neutron Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "death ray" bomb that would kill all life within its target area has been discussed as a weapon of the future. But just how far in the future is worrying at least one senator.

Democratic Sen. Gruening said he might make the hydrogen bomb seem clunky — is called the neutron bomb. It would release thrust back into the news by Senator Thomas Dodd, Connecticut Democrat.

Dodd hinted the Russians could be secretly experimenting to develop the neutron bomb while Washington talks about ordering an atom-test moratorium.

He put forward such a possible weapon as a deterrent to resuming tests.

Dodd, who referred to the neutron bomb as "a kind of death ray," said in a Senate speech he opened a letter to bomb "would do next to no physical damage. It would result in no (radioactive) contamination. But it would immediately destroy all life in the target area."

Dodd, in warning of the possibility of the Russians developing such a bomb, said it was one way for destroying us at relatively small risk to themselves."

Scientists have speculated on two possible versions of the bomb:

1. A small nuclear reactor that would shoot radioactive neutrons through a lead tube.

2. A scaled-down version of an atom bomb tailored to give out more neutron radiation than damage producing energy. In conventional A bombs, 85 per cent of the energy comes from blast, shock and heat; the rest is radiation.

When told of the two alternative versions, Dodd told reporters: "You can put it either way."

"I don't believe the United States has developed such a weapon or we would have," Dodd said.

Last November, the late Thomas Murray, former member of the Atomic Energy Commission, wrote an open letter to both presidential candidates, John Kennedy and Richard Nixon. He spoke guardedly of a revolutionary type nuclear weapon.

Murray's letter didn't mention the neutron bomb but some scientists speculated that that was what he meant.

But some scientists have down-graded the military potential of such a weapon.

Arrest Two Rabbis and 8 Ministers As Freedom Riders Visit Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Police arrested 17 persons for breach of peace in disturbances that involved 24 "Freedom Riders" in North Florida.

Trips by racial integration-testing groups also provoked five arrests in Mississippi.

The "Freedom Ride" leadership Delegation conferred in Washington with Attorney - General Robert Kennedy on the week help in preventing further arrests.

Police in Tallahassee, Florida's capital, charged 10 hunger-striking clergymen, including seven white men, after they defied an order to disperse Friday at Tallahassee airport.

Two Negroes and almost without incident at lunch counters in Tampa, St. Petersburg and Gainesville.

Jackson, Miss., authorities raised to 116 their total of arrests of "Freedom Riders" when five of the integration-testers alighted from a bus that brought them from Nashville, Tenn. The five riders were charged with breach of peace when they failed to obey a police order to move on.

The group arrested at Tallahassee comprised two rabbis, five white ministers and three Negro ministers. They were jailed in lieu of posting $500 bond each on charges of unlawful assembly. Also there were two Tallahassee Negroes and a white man on charges of failing to leave the scene.

Rev. Charles Hunter of Tallahassee provided bail Friday night. The 10 "Freedom Riders" went on a hunger strike a day before in protest at being detained in the airport restaurant. In jail, they ate their first meal since breakfast Thursday.

Meanwhile, "Freedom Riders" were arrested almost with-

City, Town and County Fail To Respond to Plea to Pay For CAS Prevention Work

The City of Belleville, the County of Hastings and the Town of Trenton have not yet responded to a request to enter into an agreement with respect to the cost of prevention and family services provided by the Children's Aid Society, the directors of that organization decided at their regular monthly meeting Thursday. The three municipalities have been approached in connection with this matter early in April.

"By the end of June, only two weeks away, we will have received not a penny of the total almost $11,000," Treasurer Bernard W. Hurley told the meeting. "We have received but $6,300 in payment. No business, with any sense of worthwhile and essential, can continue to operate in this fashion. The proposed agreement was submitted to the local municipalities in an attempt to place the Society's budget on a business-like basis. It asks the municipalities to pay for the service they receive in exactly the same fashion as does the Federal Government in respect to services provided the people of the Tyendinaga Reserve. In the latter case it has been satisfactory to all concerned."

The motion was moved by Mr. Hurley and seconded by Reeve J. Brown of Bancroft that the board request the President to inform the Council of the County of Hastings and the Council of the Town of Trenton that unless agreement was reached, service would be suspended.

The Board moved to resubmit the agreement to the Council of the City of Belleville and named a delegation to appear before City Council at its next regular meeting.

MEET IN LIBRARY

The meeting was held in the Belleville Public Library. In her opening remarks the president, Mrs. James H. Forrester, made mention of the debt owed Bridge Street United Church by the Society for the many years it had used the church as a meeting place. Impending renovations to Bridge Street Church have caused the Society to meet elsewhere. The secretary was instructed to express appreciation.

Mr. George H. Whitman presented the report of the personnel committee in the absence of the chairman, Mrs. Ralph Jarvis, of Trenton. The local director was instructed to obtain the necessary estimates for repairs to the Receiving Home and on training at both the Receiving Home and the Society's offices.

Mrs. Edward E. Follwell reported on the foster parents' night held earlier in the month. Said Mrs. Follwell: "The evening was a great success. Approximately fifty foster parents and staff met together at Tabernacle United Church. The program was interesting and informative and it was the unanimous opinion that all concerned that another meeting should be held in the fall."

Dr. C. E. Thompson, chairman of a committee appointed to introduce a policy around the provision of preventive services announced that the second meeting of the committee would be held dat the Society's offices on Monday night of next week. One topic to be discussed will be

NUMBER UNCHANGED

Mr. Bruce Kerr, the local director, informed the meeting that there were, at the end of May, the same number of children in care as there were at the beginning of the year. "At the first of January we had 161 children under supervision. Since that date we have provided shelter for 41 and placed a child of time for an additional 33. Six youngsters have been legally adopted, or have been returned to their natural parents. Two have been discharged as retained the age of eighteen and left our care."

Mr. Kerr stated that 14 of the Society's children will be commencing grade 9 in September and moving into high school. At the present time, the Society is helping one girl at the Ontario Business College, one girl taking nurse's training and one boy at Queen's University. Recently two girls graduated from the Ontario Business College and, another plans to enter Teachers' College in the fall. By unanimous decision, the Board agreed to continue to assist these young people financially as long as interest earned on bequest funds held by the Society.

Mr. Kerr asked the Board to approve the appointment of Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, B.A., B.S.W., to the staff of the adoption department. Said Mr. Kerr, "Mrs. Dice plans to go on full staff."

In reporting the financial position of the Society at the end of May, the local director said that the Society was living within its spending in relation to the annual budget. "In fact," said Mr. Kerr, "we have underspent our budget for the first five months by more than $3,500."

The Board authorized the Executive Committee to act in any emergency during the summer recess and instructed the Finance Committee to pay all legitimate accounts.

Second Subway 'Blow' Damages Queen's Park'

TORONTO (CP)—Fear of further flooding in the provincial legislature buildings grew Friday when a mixture of silt, water and air exploded through a concrete floor in the sub-basement of the Queen's Park building above the new University Avenue subway structure.

Officials had warned earlier that the buildings were endangered by the weak stoppage in the subway because of inattention to tunnel faces.

MRS. CHARLES M. CAWKER (Fexboro)

In ill health for nearly three years and in hospital for a lengthy period, Mrs. Elinor Louise Cawker of R.R. Fexboro died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Sunday morning.

Mrs. Cawker was born in Oshawa, 42 years ago, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick John Bellas and had been a resident of the community for sixteen years. Eight years ago the family moved to the Fexboro Road just outside Foxboro. In both communities Mrs. Cawker endeared herself to a wide circle of intimate friends, who will sincerely mourn her death.

She was a woman of infinite charm, gracious to a degree. Mrs. Cawker was a gracious hostess in her home and she enjoyed being entertained in her many friends. She was a faithful neighbor and interested in the social affairs of her community.

A member of the Anglican Church; she is survived by her husband, Charles M. Cawker, two sons, Stephen and Peter Cawker, at home; one brother, Harold Bellas of Wooler, and one sister, Mrs. C. E. Margaret Davidson of Campbellford.

George Greer, T. S. Ketcheson On Committee

TRENTON — The Board of Education met in special session last night. Chairman L. G. Phinney called the meeting to make changes in the board committees to the vocational addition. Following the Thursday night's meeting, Mr. Phinney appointed Paul Tytjo and W. C. Bedley to the committee which was set up to deal with matters pertaining to the proposed vocational school. Mr. Tytjo is chairman of maintenance and Mr. Bedley chairman of the teacher-board relations committee.

According to government regulations, the chairman of the board is the separate school representative to the board, must form a part of the committee. The board must appoint two additional board members to the committee, such as the Trenton board plans to form, is considered advisable. Members of the local employee group and two laymen.

Mr. Phinney said he had been in error in appointing Mr. Tytjo and Mr. Bedley to the committee. He said it had been pointed out to him that the chairman of planning (T. S. Ketcheson) should sit on such a committee. He said that the Thursday night appointments be annulled and that the board appoint two members at the next election.

Mr. Ketcheson said he considered that the chairman of planning and the chairman of finance should automatically be named to the new committee, and that the board should continue, regardless of the individuals who held these offices on the board.

The committee will continue to function after the school has been erected having the power to make weighty decisions regarding the running of the school and handling finances. The Board expects that by the end of year on the committee, industrial representatives may sit for the board.

ALL AGREE

All board members were in complete agreement with the suggestion of Mr. Phinney and Mr. Ketcheson.

A motion was passed appointing Mr. Ketcheson and George Greer, chairman of finance, to sit on the board with the board chairman, Mr. Phinney, and secretary-treasurer, Secretary, T. A. McNally, for the remainder of the 1961 term, at the beginning of next year, following the election of a new board and new committees. It was decided that the chairman of planning and the chairman of finance will be eligible to sit on the vocational advisory committee. The chairman of the board, Mr. Phinney, the separate school representative will automatically become chairman of the school committee.

The board also voted to purchase a post-hole digging attachment for a new tractor which the board voted to buy last week.

Paul Tytjo, chairman of maintenance, reported that a unit of month's rental on the post-hole digger would cost $40 a unit whereas the attachment could be bought for $180.

Mrs Eva Bakey, who will take over as board secretary in August, acted as secretary last night in the absence of secretary V. F. Carswell.

New Hydro Sub-Station Is Planned

TRENTON — A new hydro sub-station will be built in east Trenton to alleviate the overloading of present hydro facilities in this locality.

Thursday, members of the Public Utilities Commission awarded the contract for the purchase of a 5,000-kilowatt transformer to the Westinghouse Company. The transformer will be used in connection with the new sub-station, the exact location of which has not been determined.

The commission will order 30 distribution transformers. A tender for the redecorating of a commission-owned apartment above the utilities office was awarded to a local contractor.

'Army' Captain Is Moved

TRENTON — Senior Capt. Arthur Robinson has been moved as head of the Trenton Salvation Army Corps for the past year, has been transferred to Bowmanville, and will leave Trenton at the end of this month.

Captain Robinson joined the Salvation Army when he was seven years old and has had a long and distinguished career in army ranks.

During his stay in Trenton he has been active in community service work. He is a member of the Lions Club.

Stirling Man Hurt in Mishap

TRENTON — Elton Emaile of Stirling is in hospital here with head injuries suffered early today when his car went out of control on North Front Street and struck a cement bridge.

He was thrown from the car and a passing motorist found him lying unconscious on the road. Damage to his car was estimated at $350.

Police believe the car skidded and spun out of control as it was rounding a curve.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all those who remembered me with cards and visits during my recent stay in the Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Drs. Douglas, Bruce Crook and Hall, to my special nurses, to the nurses and nurses' aides of Ward 3, and to Rev. R. Ker. Mrs. Ella Bird and Rev. Sherwin and friends for special prayers and cards.
—Clara M. Wilson.

Mrs. William Alford of Roslin would like to thank her many friends for the lovely flowers and cards, sent to her while she was a patient in Wingham General Hospital; thanks to the ladies of the 9th Line Women's Guild.

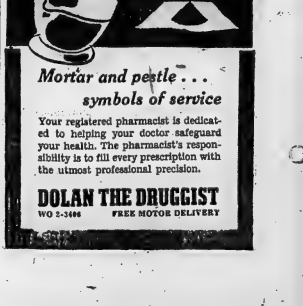
IN MEMORIAM



CARTER. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Wilbert Carter, who passed away June 18th, 1954.
Quietly and suddenly came the call
His sudden death surprised us all
Dearer to memory than words can tell
The loss to a father we loved so well.
—Sadly missed by wife Carrie, son, daughter, son-in-law.

ELLIOTT. — In loving memory of a husband and father, George Sydney Elliott, who passed away June 18th, 1956.
When twilight sets the day to rest
And all the world is dim
We think of you dear father,
Thoughts of you come stealing back
Within our dreams to stay.
Though we cannot see you dearly,
When the twilight ends the day.
—Loving memories are treasures.
—Sadly missed.

KELLAR. — In loving memory of a dear father, Herbert L. Kellar, who passed away June 18th, 1960.
His happy smile I cannot see,
His hand I cannot clasp,
Still I have so many memories,
Of the love he showed me.
His memory is my keepsake,
With which I will never part,
God has him in His keeping,
I have the memories of his heart.
—Always remembered by his daughter Ethel.

MASACLE. — In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Edward Masacle, who passed away June 18th, 1960.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we used to hear.
The path is dreary for sight or speech,
But God in His mercy took him to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Missed by wife, son Clifford, daughters Mae, Ruby, Gladys and Lorraine.

MASACLE. — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Edward Masacle, who passed away June 18th, 1960.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
His weary trials and troubles are past.
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to rest forever more.
—Sadly missed by daughters Ruby and Mae, son-in-law Leonard and grandchildren.

New Life Begins for 53 As They Swear Allegiance, Become Canadian Citizens

A new life began Friday for 53 citizens of other lands when they broke formal ties with their homelands and swore allegiance to Queen Elizabeth at the first citizenship court held in the new Hastings County court house, County Judge J. C. Anderson presided.

Most of the New Canadians were natives of Germany and the Netherlands, but one came from Russia, another came from China, while still others came from Poland, Lithuania, the U.S., Belgium, Italy, Greece, Czechoslovakia and France.

Following the ceremony, at which two scarlet-coated members of the RCMP stood at attention as symbols of Canada's history while the oaths of allegiance were made several guests spoke brief words of welcome to the new Canadian citizens.

Canon A. S. McConnell, chairman of the Belleville Ministerial Association who earlier had presented each new citizen with a New Testament on behalf of the Upper Canada Bible Society, said:

"You are very brave people for renouncing your nationality of the country from which you came. Our country, as you probably already know, is made largely of good people like yourselves, who came from other lands. You have much to add to Canada."

Mrs. Alex Cunningham, regent of the Argyll Chapter of the IODE, also spoke.

PRESENTED PINS

"It is interesting to note that our new Canadians are representative of 13 different countries, each of which undoubtedly has its own customs and traditions which will blend into the Canadian way of life. I hope you find here new faith and hope with weakness left behind."

The Argyle chapter and the St. Julien Chapter presented pins and cards of welcome to the new Canadians, in keeping with an institution they started several years ago.

Mrs. R. M. Patterson, regent of the St. Julien Chapter, wished every new citizen the best in gold health and prosperity and urged them to participate in the activities of Canada.

Reeve Harleigh Hamilton of Hastings County said:

"Don't devote all your time to material things, but give your time to community service".

Mayor A. McLean Haig said: "Citizenship is a great privilege, but it is also a great responsibility. See what you can do for your new country . . . Perhaps one day your son or grandson will become Canada's prime minister or its governor-general. Please donate much of your time to community service. We need new blood and your help".

Capt. Harold Vaughan, representing Lt.-Col. A. B. Doyle commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, also welcomed the new citizens.

EXPRESS THANKS

When asked by Judge Anderson if any of the new citizens cared to say anything, one arose and said: "We wish to express our very deep gratitude to the people of Canada. It is not easy to renounce one's native land . . . But we are very grateful that we now can take part in things here".

A woman, who received her citizenship certificate from the court, said: "We are very grateful for the privilege of becoming Canadians and to be able to raise our children as Canadians".

Judge Anderson said that although he was born a Canadian he appreciated the mixed emotions which are undoubtedly aroused when a person cuts himself off from old, familiar things in order to take on a new and better life.

"You hate to give up the old but you want to take up the new," he said. "But because you renounce your allegiance to your homeland does not mean that you cannot bring the good things from them to add to the blood stream of this country".

The district's newest Canadians are:

From Germany: Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Wagner, Batawa; Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Bock, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Sigbot Winterhelt, Wellington; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilhelm, R. The IODE sponsored a reception in the officers' mess at the Armories following the citizenship count.

Strawberries 35 Cents a Pint On Market

Today's outdoor market was both a busy and a colorful affair as the good weather brought out over two dozen vendors from the surrounding area and large numbers of buyers both rural and urban. Several interesting new faces were in operation with mostly baked goods on display.

Previously these people had utilized the amenities of the indoor market but prospered renovations, which have as yet to make their appearance have forced many of the dozen or more vendors out of business. But two of them have found their way onto the outdoor market where their displays add considerable atmosphere and taste to the entire market.

There is some talk that renovations to the indoor market will not be taking place this year and that the area is still available for use. No confirmation of this rumor has been made as yet but neither has it been denied.

Strawberries were on the market although in quite short supply. Selling at 35 cents a box there was a total of 70 cents worth to be seen at about 10 o'clock this morning. A more bountiful supply is expected to be available by next weekend, however Eggs were selling at 50, 45 and 40 cents the dozen for extra large, large and medium respectively. No poultry was offered for sale.

Honey was selling at 25 cents the pound or 90 cents for a four-pound tin. As yet, of course, there is no new honey available and such is not expected until at least August.

Lassie pups (and Laddies also) were available this morning at one dollar a head for either sex. They were about one month old and were the centre of attraction for the younger set about.

The market was probably one of the best so far this season from both the social and commercial viewpoints. A great many people could be observed stopping to chat with each other as well as to acquire some of the many varied examples of local produce. The prices of these were much the same as the preceding week.

ELEPHANT AREA

Laos, which gained independence from France in 1953, was long known as the "Land of the Million Elephants."

Among the New Canadians to receive citizenship certificates during yesterday's ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Sigbot Winterhelt, seen holding sons Douglas, 1, and Gregory 2½. The Winterhelts came to Canada seven years ago from Frankfurt, Germany. Mr. Winterhelt is gamekeeper on Nicholson's Island in Lake Ontario off Prince Edward county.

GETS SIX YEARS

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Bertha Pertursson was sentenced Friday to six years in penitentiary for the fatal stabbing of her husband, Thor, 58, last Dec. 16. Mrs. Pertursson, 60, was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the stabbing, the result of a quarrel over $10.

Deputy Mayor, R. Temple, Seeking Liberal Nomination

Deputy Mayor Robert Temple today announced that he will seek the Liberal nomination for Hastings South at the July 5 party nomination convention at BCIVS. The party expects a federal election to be called within a few weeks.

Mr. Temple, 34, a native of Belleville, is a well-known barrister. He has been a member of City Council since the age of 24 and now is the senior member.

Mr. Temple was married in Vienna last year and now has an infant daughter.

He has been secretary of the Central Ontario Liberal Association for five years and at the age of 27 was nominated for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal Party a position currently held by John Wintermeyer. He was elected executive vice-president of the party at 26.

Mr. Temple has since his youth been very active in amateur sports and now sponsors a team, the "Bobcats", in the Belleville and District Softball League.

He has travelled widely, has visited Russia, France, Austria, Germany, Czechoslovakia and several other European countries in an effort to learn more about world affairs

He is a graduate of the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall law school. He has practised law here since 1951 and lives at 44 Lambert Drive.

Moments in History

In 1794, Captain John Walden Meyers built the first all-brick house in Upper Canada at Meyers Creek (now Belleville). It stood on Mount Pleasant Road, on the hill east of the Moira River. Its two big chimneys indicate how it was heated. Today, home heating is more efficient and effective with modern units and fuel oil delivered automatically. At the turn of this century the predecessors of the Schuster company first began; it has grown up with Belleville. Reactor Tank Ready to Move To Chalk River

The trucks, escorted by two provincial police cruisers, will make the 230-mile trip in two days at a speed of about 15 miles an hour.

The tank was constructed here by Canadian General Electric Company Limited. It measures 22 feet by 17 feet, is 18½feet high and will overlap the truck trailer by about three feet. Other trucks measure the height of bridges, lift power lines if necessary and transport fuelling machinery for the tank.

The Chalk River power station will begin operating early in 1962.

SETS PRODUCTION MARK

OSHAWA (CP) — Production of the 4,000,000th vehicle here is announced by General Motors of Canada Ltd., 53 years after the first McLaughlin-Buick was built here. General Motors said it took 30 years to build its first 1,000,000 cars and trucks, 13 to build the second million, 5½ to build the third and five to build the fourth.

Senators on Monetary Control

The presentation of the report of the special Senate committee on manpower to the upper House on the very same day that Hon. Donald Fleming was announcing plans to the Commons for legislation to dismiss James E. Coyne from his post as governor of the Bank of Canada was timely to a degree which suggests that it was not wholly coincidence.

The Senate report was, of course, the result of investigations conducted long before the present storm blew up between Mr. Coyne and the Government. Therefore, it has no direct bearing on this current controversy. It does, however, contain two pertinent references, considerations of which will, we think, help to illuminate a couple of points.

For instance, the report says: "The idea that monetary and fiscal policies are independently determined and can be separately pursued is incompatible with the realities of a highly complex money and exchange economy in which the operations of the government play so large a part."

The chief value of this observation to the average layman will be to call his attention to the fact that there does exist a distinction between monetary policies and fiscal policies. The Senate committee says they cannot be separately pursued, but it does not say that they do not exist separately. A distinction is made between them in present legislation governing the Bank of Canada and the bank's jurisdiction covers only monetary policy, though it may act as the government's agent in some phases of fiscal policy. A failure to distinguish between the two realms makes some of the statements which have been made by opposing sides in the Coyne case hopelessly contradictory. In this respect the Senate's report may help to clarify the situation for the layman, although perhaps not as completely as he might wish.

Secondly, and most significantly, the Senate committee says "- - - - There is a strong case for a comprehensive study and re-examination of our machinery for monetary control," that is of the Bank of Canada and the act governing its operations.

In this connection the Conservative Montreal Gazette has editorially called attention to the differing interpretations placed on existing legislation since the bank was established by the Bennett Government.

In 1934 Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance in the Liberal Government of the day, said: "The monetary policy which the Bank (of Canada) carries out from time to time must be the Government monetary policy." It was Mr. Ilsley's contention that while the Government must leave to the Bank the choice of ways and means of carrying out a given policy, the Bank's right of choice was limited to ways and means and did not include the right to select the policy itself.

By 1956, however, an entirely different interpretation was being placed on the act, though the Liberals were still in power. M. J. Coldwell, leader of the CCF, asked " . . . is it not a fact that the Bank of Canada was established in order that it might control the economy and carry out Government policy . . . ?

Replied Hon. Walter Harris, Minister of Finance at the time: "I do not think that is a correct interpretation of the statute, though anyone may put that interpretation on it if he so desires. I think the purpose was not only to vest ownership of the Bank in the Government, as has been done, but to vest in the officials of the Bank independent authority because, as I recall it, some members of the Opposition thought that perhaps the Government might not do this thing properly."

It is this latter interpretation, that of his immediate predecessor, Mr. Harris, which has been taken by the present Minister of Finance, Mr. Fleming. "The Government does not exercise any sway in the field of monetary policy," he said on April 27, 1959, and again, on August 10 of the same year, "The Government is not in control of the monetary system."

Mr. Coyne, on the other hand, holds to Mr. Ilsley's interpretation, that the Government determines or should determine, monetary policy.

One would imagine that this is one of the aspects of "our machinery for monetary control" which the members of the Senate manpower committee believe should be given "comprehensive study."

West Indies University

Brasshed Expositor

"Too few of us in the United States realize that a new democratic English-speaking nation is being created peacefully and intelligently just off our southeastern shore line. This is the British Caribbean Federation, now officially known as simply the West Indies.

This is the introductory paragraph of a brochure, "A Warm Welcome from America to A New Neighbor," issued by the American Foundation for University College of the West Indies.

It has been set up to educate people for the new federation and to make it unnecessary for them, as it has been in the past, to go abroad for their education.

This is more than the provision of a university for the making of a mere goodwill gesture.

Mr. James S. Duncan, a leader in several spheres of activity in Canadian life, who is now supporting the West Indies enterprise. With that well-known American, Thomas Symons, he has assumed co-chairmanship of the college foundation. He explains why:

"The Cuban crisis," he writes, "has brought to the fore not only the serious problems which exist throughout the countries of Latin America, but the significant progress which Communism is making in this part of the world.

"Many of these who study these problems are agreed that time been aware that both the U.S.S.R. and China are giving high priority to the Communization of Latin America with the ultimate objective of the downgrading of the position of the United States by carrying the conflict into the North American continent of Defence."

Mr. Duncan mentions the Soviet Union's recent establishing of a new "Friendship University" for students from Latin America, Asia and Africa, for the obvious purpose of Communist indoctrination.

However the British, despite preoccupation with the life-and-death struggle in the Second World War, were at least one move ahead. They set up plans for establishing institutions of higher learning in many of their dependencies. The University College of the West Indies, was one of those institutions. Funds initially provided from Britain, it has grown rapidly and now has a student body of more than 700 and a faculty of 130. It anticipates an enrolment of 2,000 by 1966.

"But another world cause to which to contribute? Certainly and much more.

"Never in the closet", Mr Duncan emphasizes "that in the struggle for men's minds. which is taking place at an ever - increasing tempo, between the two ideologies which divide the world, the education of the young men and young women of less developed countries is becoming increasingly important."

This is a form of "foreign aid" that could be much more fruitful than some of the more common economic varieties.

Ronnie Had Better Year

Ottawa Journal

Ronnie Stewart, mighty stom of Ottawa Rideau Minor baseball Club, is having his difficulties signing his contract for the coming season. Before signing his price, the club's general manager explained:

"Why, Ronnie! Even Prime Minister Diefenbaker doesn't make that much."

To which the laconic Stewart replied: "Maybe, but he didn't have as good a year as I did."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

THE ASTOUNDING AGE

The Prophet Jeremiah is usually looked upon as the gloomy prophet of doom. He was a man of great courage and sound judgment who watched the approach of the most appalling crisis the Hebrew people have ever experienced. He saw it coming. He knew why it was coming. He knew how it could be averted. He cried out for men to submit their selfish wills to the will of God. They failed to do so and their nation plunged into ruin.

The day of prophecy is not passed. There are present day prophets. It is no exaggeration to say that the problems confronting the whole world today are more serious than humanity has confronted in its history. People are warning us about many aspects of the present day problems in every field of prospect, the scientific, and above all the spiritual aspect. With the world going forward by leaps and bounds in scientific progress we stand in imminent danger either of being blasted off the planet or of being involved in unprecedented struggles.

Let us listen today to our prophets. Let us seek to know the will of God. Let us consecrate ourselves and our wills in the carrying out of His purposes.

God has placed on this generation responsibilities too great to be measured. We may well tremble not only for ourselves but for the safety of our race.

Upwards of six hundred crippled children have received care and treatment through the Crippled Children's Fund of the Belleville Rotary Club. Chairman Charles Symons revealed in his annual report to the Club at its weekly luncheon. Chairman Symons outlined the work of his committee, telling several cases that have shown improvement since being under the sponsorship of the Club and its professional members. The president announced that next Monday will be Crippled Children's Day at which several of the progress of the club will be made.

A red fox, both persistent and considerate in his raiding forays in the Oak Lake district is making serious inroads in the poultry flocks of Mr. Roy Smith, it is reported. Almost a dozen chickens one night comes around the fox raids the barnyard where the chickens have a pen for the night and never fails to make off with his quarry despite efforts on the part of the owner to foil him.

Dirty Trick Of the Year

By John Lindblad in the Windsor Star

Dirty trick of the year award —Police agents report a recent rash of collect wires sent to people behind in payments to stores. One case was said to involve information on welfare who had a collect wire delivered. Like most, she thought it brought bad family news and scraped up the money to pay for it. Once opened she learned the store was getting impatient for their money. There is no refund possible on such messages. The store deserves their money but it seems to me there is a rotten way to get it. Agreed?

Game Spoiled By Parents

Brandon Sun

The real fool balls in Little League baseball often are the parents of the youngsters on the team. In an article in the Saturday Issue of the Reader's Digest, a Little League coach says bluntly that the objective of the game — to teach children basic sportsmanship — is being defeated by constant nagging criticism and intrusions by parents.

Many parents have no interest in the game, says coach Donald R. McNeil, "They only want their children to win so they can brag about it or as reflected glory of their success. They try to superimpose their own frustrations and make the game designed for children 8 to 12 years of age, abusing their boys for errant fielding, batting or pitching like professionals. Some parents have been heard to threaten to withdraw their own children as a result of a decision rendered by the umpire."

Little League baseball is not come under heavy fire from medical men. One pediatrician says "the sense of failure in the boy who does not make the team or who fails to make the crucial play, the obvious disappointment of the parents when the boy fails, the apparent difference in social acceptance by playmates and adults between winners and losers — all have a profound effect on a child's emotional and social development."

Memorial For Mullins

Montreal Gazette

The suggestion has been made that some memorial should be erected to Mrs. Mary Mullins. And Mrs. Mullins had one great distinction. She is believed to have been the last of the Lavender sellers in London who kept up the ancient, traditional songs.

Lady, buy me sweet lavender; pennies.

Lady, buy my sweet lavender;

Sixteen branches for two pennies.

You will buy it once, you will buy it twice,

There's sixteen branches for two pennies.

Mrs. Mullins sang this old song in London for 50 years. She had learned it as a girl from those who had sung it before. No doubt it went back to the Eighteenth Century perhaps even earlier.

But why should Mrs. Mary Mullins be remembered? It is because she old street cries have died away, though in earlier days the cry of one another, they echoed in many a street.

These street cries go back to very faroff days. But some cries could be heard in the city recently. Many will remember the vegetable vendors whose curious waggons, sometimes horse drawn, were sounds than words.

Mrs. Mary Mullins grew too old to cater for her trade. Her cry about the lavender died on the air, like the cry of the strawberries have done in other old cities.

But the streets have not been left to silence. In place of the old quaint cold cries, with their lore of past days, there are the shrieks and blares of a mechanized clamor.

Make Mud Hut Attraction

Cape Breton Post

From Ghana comes information that President Kwame Nkrumah's birthplace, a mud hut in a small village in western Ghana, is to be taken over by the Ghana Tourist Board.

In the Ghana Parliament at Accra it was announced that the board will "make it as a source of inspiration and tourist attraction".

There is an American precedent for this sort of thing. Abraham Lincoln's birthplace is a log cabin which today is preserved under a sheltering canopy in Kentucky.

It could be that mud huts will become fashionable, such as the other former African colonies of the Ivory Coast where they are the birthplaces of boys who grew up to become U.S presidents.

Times have changed completely. A few generations ago for statesmen to be the sons of the rich—Bronze Plaques to mark their birthplaces in the hinterland henceforth will have to be attached to the walls of humble rooms in hospitals.

For some time, the newly-independent African nations can glorify the mud huts in which their presidents reputedly were born, but the time will come when being born in a hospital will be a real distinction. Even as it has become for us.

Company Tie Denounced

Financial Post

This country takes in England's younger sons and romantic men, with considerable nonchalance. With relief we employ Britain's Queen back rather than have no flag at all. We accept English tailoring and even get used to the pre-lightful, if schizophrenic idea that a Queen can somehow or other, be "still backing" various fully independent nations.

But if England has produced as much that is desirable, acceptable and necessary, one of its exports should be limited to shreds before it gets through Canadian customs.

We refer to men's ties that tell who the wearer is, was, or has pretensions of being.

Some English management consultant has found the distinctive company ties improve the esprit de corps of British workers. Well, maybe it has the company tie idea caught on widely, but some U.S. companies are using different colored ties (all with the same company crest) to indicate the length of the employees' service.

This public branding of employees is an outrageous invasion of personal privacy. It is cheap company advertising. It is a form of slavery at its most degrading.

Whoever invented this scheme should be strangled in his own school tie.

Diverticulitis an Adroit Mimic, Can Cause Pain

By Joseph G Molner M.D.

As I wrote yesterday, it is quite true that a great many adults have a diverticulum, or pouching or bulge here, somewhere in the digestive tract. It is equally true that a great proportion never know they have any distress from it, never need to worry about it.

Indeed, a lot of diverticulums, which never caused a symptom and never will, were discovered only incidentally, in the course of X-raying for some other purpose.

What about the cases in which a diverticulum, or pouch, becomes infected, inflamed, troublesome? What are the signs? Treatment?

Diverticulitis, if so happens, is an adroit mimic. It can cause severe abdominal pain at times — the belly is tender. There may be fever. There may even be a lump that can be felt. It can seem, at first look, to be gall-bladder disturbance, or inflamment of an ovary — it can give the constant signs of almost any illness of the abdominal area. But of course it will be more likely to suggest itself if evidence is suspected and X-rays are taken.

The condition occurs with equal frequency in men and women. In about one in 10 per cent of the cases will involve some degree of inflammation. In men, diarrhea is more common.

If the pouch ulcerates, there may be bleeding. In very serious cases of this kind infected or a heat lamp would be of more benefit for the arthritis anywhere.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"How," demanded a man who owns one of these pretty semi-farm estates beyond the outer fringes of suburbia, "do we get rid of the starlings?"

"How," retored the university biologist to whom he was speaking, "do we get rid of the white man?"

To get rid of the starling from North America would be as inhuman a task as to rid North America of the white man. Like the white man, the starling came to North America as an immigrant. Like the white man, the starling has succeeded in driving the native population down the road to extinction. Like the white man, the starling has taken over the continent not only by the sheer force of numbers but by reason of superior adaptability.

The starling does not migrate except in the most northern and southern climates; it even there he is becoming acclimatized. Therefore, he is already on the job, when spring comes, to seize not merely the best but sometimes all the available nesting sites. By the time the native birds returns from the south, the starling is in possession.

He is tough, busy, prolific, adaptable and as full of determination as the most formidable of the other two-legged immigrants to America. What may be said in favor of the starling is that he is so like us.

TODAY'S TALK

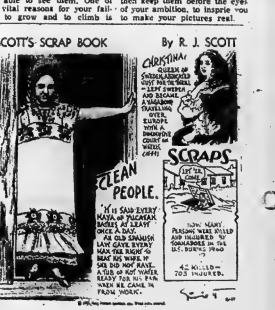
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

SELF-PHOTOGRAPHY

There is nothing like a picture to visualize a thing and make it clear. It is graphic and as a part of experience. When the Scottish poet, Robert Burns, wrote those memorable lines of some flower that a giffie gie us to see oursels as ithers see us!" he paid an unwitting tribute to the usefulness of self-photography.

But the greatest thing is not to see ourselves as others see us, but to see ourselves as we really are.

No man or woman — no matter how learned or great — is able to see the great thing within you is the way that you are able to see them. One of the vital reasons for your failure to grow and to climb is your indifference toward what you are.



Every time you make a mental picture, every time you self-photograph the blank page before you, you have half done the job.

How amazed we are at times at the sudden rise of a man or woman, at the out of the sky leaps his or her fame. But if we could be allowed into the picture gallery of such a person, probably he or she could reveal the plodding and fame long years ago, developed and built and added to the fame that finally came.

Begin today to "take pictures" of yourself, your ideals and your hopes. Develop them — then keep them before the eyes of your ambition, to inspire you to make your pictures real.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

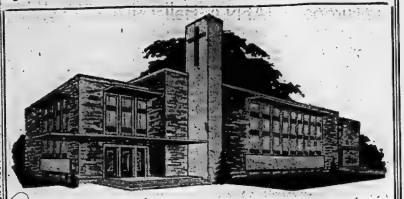
BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

BOUNDARIES



Do you realize that every pair of nesting birds owns not only a home in which to bring up children but property around that home? The size varies greatly, depending upon whether or not the bird belongs to a colony, and the special requirements of the particular species. The gannet, surrounded by his brothers and sisters, asks for just a few inches; the great horned owl insists on several square miles. The majority of songbirds own just enough territory to support an entire family; ovenbirds, for instance, require about an acre.

In all cases, the boundaries, though invisible to us, are clearly defined for all inhabitants of Birdland. With few exceptions, the holding is defended by the occupants from all others of the same kind but birds of a different kind are tolerated. To poach on the property of a similar species is extremely risky. Doubtless the main reason for this is that similar birds have similar requirements. The nest of an insect eater might be placed quite close to the nest of a fish eater because their desires would not conflict, but this arrangement would not do at all for, let us say, two kingbirds.

The song of a male in nesting season is an invitation for a female to join him and a demonstration of ownership of territory with a warning to similar birds that there must be no trespassing. If this behavior is insufficient and the holding is invaded there may be a real fight with a clash of bills. The female does not generally take part in this. A young male migrant sometimes has difficulty in finding suitable unclaimed territory, and may be obliged to remain single.

to the same property year after year. One example is the great blue heron that remains faithful to a site until disease or land has removed the last chance of survival.

Weddings

ALEXANDER — VATERS

At 2 o'clock on Saturday, May 6th, Trinity Chapel, Port Henry Heights, Kingston, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Dorothy Rose Vaters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Pittman, Glace Bay, Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, became the bride of Thomas Edward Alexander, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Alexander, Oshawa, Ontario. The Rev. J. Joanson officiated. The chapel was decorated with baskets of flowers and pots of the ceremony.

The bride entered the church with Mr. Gordon Buttle who gave her in marriage. The gown was of pink organza and her fingertip veil was held in place by a small sequin cap. She wore long white gloves and carried a corsage of pink and white rosebuds.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Patricia Odrizzi of North Bay, who was dressed in blue organza with matching headdress, white gloves and carried a corsage of blue and white baby mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Maurice Windover of Napane, with Mr. Franklin Coulter of Roslin and Mr. Lawrence Windover of Napanee as ushers.

Miss Judith Elayne Moffatt, of Kingston, and Mr. Lawrence Roy Tucker, of Belleville, whose engagement is announced.

Love and Lilacs

By ALMA MASON

It is a rainy spring day. It is not a grey, depressing day. Between the silver, slanting rains I have been able to glimpse my garden. The white Parisian lilacs seem to glow through the cellophane mist like lovely white phantoms. The valley lilies stretch thirsty little cups through dark green nails just budded. A few purple and gold pansies, more courageous than their fellows, march in irregular formation to the flagstone walk. I find myself longing for sunshine or bright, happiness that could be induced by bringing some of the outdoor enchantment indoors.

The kitchen door swings in. A broad face beams at me over an immense bunch of purple lilacs. My neighbor braved her garden in the rain! Suddenly the house filled with a bewildering fragrance of romance that only the dancing, tempting months of spring can bring.

I had been weary and bedraggled. My head ached and I was acrid. My neighbor, a jubilant, dripping figure crowned with Irish shamrocks and Scotch heather, had whisked away the drabness. She had succeeded in lifting my heart. I was soon in tune again with a cheerful intriguing world.

Again the door swings wide and a little round rocket wrapped to the eyes in rain gear projects herself into my kitchen. She wants "I love you. Have you any cookies today?" run hopelessly together. After considering several dumb kisser, we reach the mecca of childish desire, the cookie jar.

Tomorrow has arrived, a radiant sun is shining on a well-washed and combed world. Thoughts of rainy yesterday hover in a yesterday nostalgic, intimate manner. Yesterday was a special saga in my book of days. It was written the hearty, neighborly script of kindliness. It bore the indelible print of the innocent and unaffected love of a child. Yesterday was unforgettable! They will resound through the hills of my heart for many years.

Today my heart is echoing thoughts of yesterday.

"Its spilling o'er with, baby love

Brimming full of laughter and friend

In a rain-washed garden spread.

Women's Institute

RYLSTONE W.I.

"Rylstone — The president of Rylstone Women's Institute was elected to the annual meeting at the Sunday School room of Zion United Church on Wednesday evening, when there was an attendance of nine. This is the first time in many years, if ever, in the history of Rylstone Institute, when a June meeting was held.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin was delegate to the annual meeting of North Hastings district, held in Bancroft on June 1st, from which she took a splendid report.

A $25 donation was paid to the caretaker of the church in lieu of rent for the use of the Sunday School hall for institute meetings during the past year.

As this was an unscheduled meeting, there was no program prepared, and it was a "Do-It-Yourself" program with several members taking part, as follows: Institute Life and Mary Stewart Collect: "Riddles," by Mrs. Cyril Stewart, "Tried Them Where You Can," conducted by Mrs. Jack Watson; current events, Mrs. Mary Lindsay Anderson; "Tree" contest by Mrs. Don Kerr; and song exercises led by Mrs. Ernest Irwin.

The exchange of bulbs, seeds and plants brought the meeting to a close.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

PLAINFIELD W.I.

PLAINFIELD — In spite of inclement weather, a fine representation of members and guests of Plainfield Women's Institute assembled at Gilead Community Centre for the May meeting, held recently.

The president, Mrs. Garfield Hall opened the meeting and all sang the Ode and repeated in unison the "Mary Stewart Collect". Minutes were read and financial status given by the secretary, Mrs. Vivian Elliott. Business arising from the minutes was a reminder of the forthcoming Cemetery Concert to be held in the fall. Each member is asked to donate a favorite recipe for compiling of a W.I. recipe book in the near future, preferably for the July meeting.

The report of the District Annual held recently at Canifton, where four delegates attended, was given by Mrs. Gerald Hall. Mrs. Hall also outlined the various points of interest, stressing that 100 per cent completion of reports must be forth-coming, and this registration is being enforced in spite of the most interesting reports that were given, dealing with each in minute detail, with the actual display of the "Millinery Short Course" presented by the Belleville ladies of the Quinte Branch in person. Mrs. Hall read the roll call and a short courses and their value to many interested members and also that the Institute has available W.I. members should endeavor to take advantage of the come Junior Institute and 4-H Club members.

The splendid worthwhile project on woollens was given in person by two girls of the Foxboro branch, the theme being "Extensive memorial service by Carmel Branch; also on preparations for the international ploughing match was given by Mrs. Gerald Hall, also people, by stating that the W.I. is situated in agricultural zone No. 5 of which many had never before been informed.

The splendid program was prepared by Mrs. Horace Palmer, convener for "Agriculture and Canadian Industries", the motto given by the convener that "The soil and a citizen by a the foundation of our security and nation", and this stated many timely facts and ways of better living with agriculture. Various readings pertainure of the topic were given by members, each filled with enthusiasm and helpful hints. Musical selections on the electric organ were given by Bruce Swan.

The meeting closed with a most instructive and delightful demonstration on the making of fruit and vegetable salads by Dorothy Chapman, Betty Sullivan, and Jane Wright, after which the ladies enjoyed sumptuous refreshments, including fruit bread, cheese, potato chips and salads.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Hodgen, with Mrs. Gerald Swan, public relations officer in charge.

A vote of thanks was tendered to all who helped make this evening such a wonderful success.

Forget Those Queer Notions About Travelling in Europe

By Shirley and Bob Sloane

This week we introduce our Q.N.'s, or Notions Question! — test for novice travellers to Europe. The best part of this quiz is that to pass, all you've got to do is change your wrong idea to the right one and you'll be in shape to appreciate your trip without misconception.

Right Idea: If you can afford it, fine. But if it means cutting into your hard-earned trip money, just step and ask yourself if you're going over to show up the Duke and Duchess of Windsor or to show yourself a good time.

We receive countless letters from readers outlining exotic and proposed wardrobes in detail. All can be answered by saying to buy just what you need, take along the basic and durable clothes you would to the country.

Anyway, nobody but you cares much what you wear, and you can do something like walk down Champs Elysee in jeans and Bing Crosby sport shirt. People would look at you pretty much the same as they would on St. in St. Paul that way.

YOU'LL LEARN QUICKLY

Q.N. 2: You'll have to forget trying to shift gears into foreign money.

R. I.: No you won't. You'll become used to each country's currency very quickly you'll start thinking in it. If you need help, send a stamped addressed envelope for one of our free converters.

Here's a rule of thumb for each country, (divide by five in Paris, four in Germany, etc.) but shop owners can train kids to dollars quicker than you can do the mental gymnastics of long division. For tipping, the basic order is 15 cents in Italy, 100 francs in France, one shilling in Britain, one mark in Germany, and a generous "grazie" — equals with our tries' standards of living, and you'll find yourself using them with ease.

Q.N. 3: Travelling in Europe is cheap.

R. I.: It's not cheap, but it can be cheaper than at home. If you do a bang-up tour, you don't have to worry because everything is taken care of in advance and you can analyze your costs before you leave. On your own you'll indulge in restaurants a little cheaper, tipping and can save money about the same as home. There are, of course, some bargains in Europe that you should get to know your way around. If you're thrifty you'll get about every time you save a dollar.

Q.N. 4: European hotels are as cold as ice.

R. I.: Only the very best of them are, and they're not prepared for limited facilities in the other. But the service is better.

Q.N. 5: All Europeans speak English.

R.I.: It just isn't true. You'll get great dividends from your trip by studying some of the handy phrase booklets put out by Berlitz and other people, available in all book stores. At least, you won't have to be only a waiter and guides all day, and eat nothing but steak and potatoes.

MUTUAL RESPECT

R.I. Collectively, there is some sore resentment. But individually, now that the day of the loud-mouth tourist is past, we find that the average European responds as warmly as any one else to gratility and consideration. Mutual respect is the key.

Q.N. 7: You'll get sick eating the rich food and drinking the wine for a month.

R.I.: You'll get sick eating too much, and we don't mean water. Neither food nor water is that different. Just take it easy on the intake.

R.I.: There are parts of this hemisphere where even natives will be cheated a lot quicker. Considering that the money is always a little unfamiliar to visitors at first, it's amazing that more of us are not cheated.

Nearly everywhere, you can put your fortune in your hand and tell a cab driver, waiter or cashier to take what's coming to him, and he won't take any more, most is liberal.

Q.N. 9: You don't need a travel agent; you can plan your own trip.

R.I.: You can also defend that theory, but it turns out your own appendix — once.

If you're on a group tour, it's usually cheaper to have your trip would on an individual basis however, and you'll be interpreting all those rooms and sightseeing arrangements wholesale.

On your own, you'd have to take an extra day off to do the work to set up the details that you'd lose more than you save on the agent's small service charge.

Women's Activities

EGGLETON W.A. - W.M.S.

MARCH MEETING — The March afternoon of June 13th, 12 members of Eggleton W.A. journeyed to Thomasburg where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Tyrrell in the pretty songs for the June meeting.

The W.A. president, Mrs. Wilbur Bedford, presided over the program, prepared by Mrs. Earl Bridge, and the meeting was opened with the W.A. theme song and prayer. The secretary, Mrs. Ernest Bennett, read the minutes. Each member paid her W.A. fee.

The July meeting will be held at Eggleton Church on the afternoon of July 13th. This will be the annual union meeting with the W.M.S. and W.A.; the Mission Band and the Easter Basket meeting together. Mrs. Forde Shipley offered to assist the Baby Band leader, Mrs. Murray Martin, with the preparations for the meeting. W.M.S. and W.A. members are to bring lunch. All mothers and Baby Band members are especially invited to attend this meeting.

In W.A. treasurer, Mrs. Warren Harlow, gave an itemized report of procedure and finances of the W.A. for the year. The supply secretary, Mrs. Forde Shipley, reported that the quilt for the Home Mission allocation had been sent away. Bills for flowers and other items were presented and a motion was made by Mrs. Milton Bird and Mrs. Earl Bridge that all bills be paid.

It was noted that Mrs. Ethel Danford of Belleville had sent out a quilt-top, which she had pieced, also the backing. The Eggleton W.A. will quilt this for her at a later date.

Mrs. Dyson spoke at some length on the new organization, the United Church Women, relating out some of the changes that would be made. The selected Scripture lesson from St. John 10:1-23, was read by Mrs. Earl Bridge, who gave a splendid meditation on the lesson given by Mrs. Warren Harlow.

The hymn, "Come Let Us Sing of A Wonderful Love" was sung,

Boy Scouts' MA Enjoys Euchre At N.A. Hall

The 20th Belleville Boy Scout Mothers' Auxiliary held a euchre at the Neighbor's Aid Hall on the 2nd Concession of Thurlow on Wednesday afternoon. The evening was a great success due to the direction of an energetic committee composed of the president, Mrs. Kennedy Jones, the treasurer, Mrs. Ella Ray, the social convener Mrs. Olga Lazaruk, and Mrs. Emilius Greatrix.

The winners in the ladies section were: 1st Mrs. C. Turnbull, 2nd Mrs. A. Mitchell, and consolation, Mrs. Shortt. In the men's group, 1st prize to Mr. Farrell (playing in man's place), 2nd Mr. J. Donaldson, and the consolation to Mr. O. Stanley. There were two consolations for the lone hand prize —Mrs. Florence Greatrix and Mr. J. Donaldson; Mrs. Greatrix was the winner.

The evening closed with a delicious lunch served by the Auxiliary Mothers with Mrs. Olga Lazaruk as convener. Everyone enjoyed the social get-together.

Chinese Sisters, Both Doctors Work Together

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Two Chinese sisters, both doctors, are working together for the first time in seven years.

Dr. Ann Chan and Dr. Virginia Ling of Hong Kong are adding to their medical knowledge at St. John's St. Joseph's hospital here.

"They're enjoying Canadian life so much," says Anna, who has been here since December. Mother Superior is anxious to help us get the most out of our time here."

Virginia, who arrived in April, says "everyone has made us feel at home." She is one of two institution right from the start."

Anna is a gynecologist. She will leave from the Queen Mary and Kowloon hospital of Hong Kong. Virginia has been studying for seven years in Spanish universities.

Their father was a government official in China before the Communists moved into China and we did not go back."

after which a lovely poem, "Alone With God" was read by Mrs. Earl Bridge, which we enjoyed the duet, "Sweet Hour of Prayer" by Mrs. Dyson and Mrs. Bruce Stapley playing the accompaniment. A reading "Prayer" was then given by Mrs Keith Johnson and a reading by Mrs. Bruce Stapley. Another reading, "The Golden Day," was given by Mrs. B. Dunham.

Mrs. McMullen thanked the hostess, program convenor, and all who who assisted on the program.

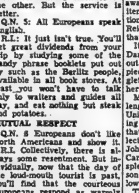
Mrs. Dyson read a part of an interesting letter which she had received from her daughter, who is a patient in Kingston.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and a social half hour enjoyed.

This — and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

At the risk of seeming to belabor a question, "I and I" would like to touch on a few more points about accidents and safety — and to be fair. It seems that this is an important time of year for their consideration, when children have more time to themselves and are around the house or in the street more. We are lucky to have in our community such a fine safety officer as Sgt. Blatchford who has done such an outstanding job in helping our children to understand hazards and to be careful. We hope that all the parents are as aware of these points as the children are.



A list of safety tips on bicycle riding came to hand recently and it might help to set out the points again. These are particularly for adults and parents who want to help keep young bike riders safe.

Teach children safe bicycling practices. According to a recent survey, bike riders violate the law in four out of five bike-car accidents. Lack of necessity of obeying all traffic signs can cause immediate injury.

Finally, do not allow the youngsters to bicycle at night unless it is absolutely necessary. If they do, make sure the bicycle has a headlight and rear reflector. Have the children wear clothing of light-colored clothing that can easily be seen by motorists. Motor vehicles are required to up 26 per cent of the seven deaths in accidents. Other vehicles account for 8.2 per cent.

Fire hazards in the home are often ignored even though we know that they can cause things are dangerous. Many of the common products found around homes are potential fire hazards and women should know how to cope with fire if it should break out.

One of the best safety products to have handy in the kitchen is baking soda. Throwing baking soda on flames, especially fires from cooking oil, will tend to smother them. Do not use water on a fat or cooking oil fire — that may spread it. Only baking soda should be used. Flour, for instance, could give disastrous results. Flour and other dry substances, in dust form, are highly inflammable. Never use them in their dry state nor unless they are packaged

REFLECTIONS . . .
CONCERNING . . . PETS

Do you inflict your pets on others? I do, and I'm like that one other afternoon, after I took my little schnauzer-setup I want to visit friends. To begin with, I had not asked them if it would be all right for me to bring him. When we arrived I made a dive for their cat, which I had forgotten they had, and with the turmoil quieted down, and the cat was safely cooped up, suddenly dawned on me that my dog was calmly sleeping on the sofa. He is allowed to do this at home. I ordered him down, and apologized to my hostess. I have a sneaking idea that she was glad when I left.

It is so easy, when we have spoiled pets in our own homes, to show no consideration for others. After all, the way they act is our fault, not theirs. A little patience and perseverance will teach your beloved animal to behave himself when visiting, and to do as he is told.

First, never take your pet to another's home without asking if you may bring him along. Some people just don't like dog hairs on the sofa, or muddy feet prints on the new-colored rug. The person receiving the inquiry is the one whether or not you may bring Fido along, should be perfectly frank. If he isn't wanted, say so. It would be an overzealous owner whose feelings would be hurt.

During the summer months, be especially careful that the screen door doesn't dig in your neighbor's flower garden. Don't allow him to run loose, making a general nuisance of himself by jumping on the neighbor's children, or playing in the yard. With open windows, all about, make sure he doesn't bark just for the fun of it. Dogs are very valuable when it comes to their watch-dog capacity of watching over you and your home, but they should be taught when to bark and when not to.

There is one important thing for pet owners to remember. When a visitor comes to your home for the first time, be sure to ask if he or she likes dogs, a dog or a cat. It's hard, for some of us to realize that there are those who do, but there are many who are violently allergic to animal hair, for example. So why not make sure your visitor isn't before you send him on his way, sneezing his head off!

Suggestion to the visitor if you are allergic, or just don't like to be around animals (that I can't imagine, but it happens), be frank with your hostess if she neglects to ask you. There is no point in being miserable. Ask her please to shut them up during your stay. She should do so immediately — making no comment — if she is a lady.

Question — I have been secretary to the boss of a small contractor's office for a long time. We have recently become engaged. I have always called him "Mr. Smith." Now in the office call each other by their first names, but I never have. Should I stop being "dear" and the rest of them call me, and address me by his first name? — Miss H. F. R., Newark, N. J.

Answer — Keep right on being "stuffy"! This "first-name-calling" in offices is certainly anything but businesslike, and have always been against the idea. In your case, particularly, I would maintain the dignity you have shown so far, and continue to call your "boss" by his surname.

QUESTION:

It is said I be convening a graduation party. I wonder if you would care my tension as to what to serf for a change. Previously it seems they had hot dogs and it seems to get so tiresome and every other occasion. There are 53 students plus 8 retires. We are allowed $30 — $8. for coke, $3 for retires, out of $30. Would fried chicken be economical or Sloppy Joes appropriate, french fries, cake and ice cream . . . Do you have any suggestions for a few games besides pop corn and dancing? . . . Mrs. P. B.

ANSWER:

Think you should have Sloppy Joes We know they are economical, appropriate, plus are much less work than fried chicken and more economical. Would suggest you serve with it cole slaw and sweet pickles and cake and ice cream and fruit juice instead of coke — it is much cheaper and of course better.

SLOPPY JOES (to serve 50 generously):

2 lbs. of good quality ground beef, (ground shank is fine), 4 cups breadcrumbs, 4 teaspoons salt, 4 teaspoons oregano (optional), 1 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoons garlic salt (to taste), finely chopped celery, 5 oz. finely chopped green pepper, 1-3 cup chopped onion, 1 16-oz. can tomato paste, 3 16-oz. cans tomato puree, 2 cups catsup, 2 cups water, 4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 4 tea. spoons prepared mustard.

Mix tomato puree, paste and water. Worcestershire sauce, prepared mustard in a bowl. Add to all other ingredients in large container and mix well. Turn into shallow roasting pans and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. stirring frequently — for about 1 to 1-3 hours. Scoop onto heated split hamburger buns to serve.

HYPPY.

Game: Active games are best. Try "Portia" — The leader stands behind the judge and holds one of the forfeit articles over his head where he cannot see it, saying "Heavy, heavy, hangs over your head." "Fine or imperfine" and the judge "Superfine" says the leader if the article belongs to a girl. "Fine" if it belongs to a boy. The judge then pronounces the sentence. Also a band can be formed by the player. The following are suggested: Assembly Milk Bottle Stool: Sit on an inverted milk bottle, hold feet off the floor, and try to walk a little a tune. Pick Up Paper: Set a newspaper on the floor. Hold one foot up behind, hold it with one hand, bend down and pick up the paper with the teeth. Compliment Yourself: Say 3 complimentary things about yourself. Chinese Get Up: Hold the arms and lie flat on the floor, get up using hands or elbows. Impromptu Acting: Imitate one of the following: Just after waking up. A typical typist. A timid person. Give a speech on Broadway. A soap box orator. A country boy proposing. Select a class that will be for complaster. Telling The Truth: Answer truthfully the questions asked by anyone in the group. Compliments: Pay a compliment to the other people in the group. Admirations: Give five reasons why the girls (boys) admire you.

As to Mrs. W.'s demurrers, we might remind her that she has many advantages as enable her to "mother" children more than her own mother could. The new pill button blessings in the home release time and strength. A large house offers "escape hatches" of each family member's privacy, as a relief in times of interruptions, invasions and visitations. Most important Robert's marriage in 1831, to Mary Randolph Custis, a granddaughter of Mrs. George Washington.

Thus, back in Britain, a pilgrimage of the Britts, Lee to elude the town of Alveley, where a parish church contains stone coats of arms of the Lee family. Nearby is the squirrel Inn, said from the name given on the medieval crest of the Lees. At the village of Kingsnordley, Richard Lee, who left for Virginia, had some property. At Langley Hall a gabled house remains that once boasted a coat of mention and family chapel. The parish church of Acton Burnell has a marble slab of an Elizabeth Lee, who resembles the famous general, in likeness.

Lee Hall, north of Shrewsbury, (a Tudor house on the site of a house built about 1300 by Reyner de Lee, a Norman knight and founder of the Lee line in Shropshire) was built by a Lee in 1584. The current owner is Samuel Mayall, who ("... we are farmers and quite busy,") is perfectly willing to show visitors about, but likes to have plenty of notice. He may be reached by telephoning Bomere Heath 342.

BRITAIN'S LEE COUNTRY

"I will allow that Abraham Lincoln was a great man, but Robert E. Lee was greater"—said a Virginia girl to a northern visitor.

• • •

The little Welsh colony, which we came to love during our "exchange" stay in England, nestled on the border of Wales' Montgomeryshire and England's Shropshire.

At that time and place, just one telephone served the entire village and motor cars were as rare as motorcycles were common. Thus we found ourselves exploring this miniature Switzerland — landscape of green valleys and hills dotted with white sheep contentedly grazing in tiny hedged fields, on a motorcycle of our own (with "you'll be killed; you can't even ride a bicycle," horror from home.) Among our proudest, brightest memories now are early May morning jaunts with other companions, bouncing through woodlands carpeted with daffodils, and small, obscure hamlets and with toy jewel-box churches aglow with the rising sun.

But England's and Wales' unfathomless historic sites and content overwhelms its small size geographically, and a year was too short a time really to discover the "Lee Country" near Shrewsbury, Shropshire, so-named by the British Travel Association, with this year's centenary of the American Civil War in mind. It has done considerable research and marked all the important sites, which includes seven cities within the Shrewsbury area, where visitors and Southerners especially, will find many interesting bits of family lore, if they so wish.

It was from near Shrewsbury that Richard Lee, one of the ancestors of General Robert E. Lee emigrated to Virginia in 1640, arriving there in 1865, of 27,000 men, only 8,000 had spent to stand. The veneration for this austere, chivalric man is still so strong in the South, that his birthday is celebrated as a legal holiday in all 11 of the secessionist states and in Tennessee.

Lee's brilliant mastery of strategy may be traced to his father, Henry, who was the famous cavalry commander of the War of Independence. Robert was born on Jan. 19, 1807, at Stratford, Virginia, west to Westmoreland County. His father, debt-ridden and in poor health, died when Robert was 11 The family fortunes were somewhat restored upon Robert's marriage in 1831, to Mary Randolph Custis, a granddaughter of Mrs. George Washington.

Thus, back in Britain, a pilgrimage of the Britts, Lee to elude the town of Alveley, where a parish church contains stone coats of arms of the Lee family. Nearby is the squirrel Inn, said from the name given on the medieval crest of the Lees. At the village of Kingsnordley, Richard Lee, who left for Virginia, had some property. At Langley Hall a gabled house remains that once boasted a coat of mention and family chapel. The parish church of Acton Burnell has a marble slab of an Elizabeth Lee, who resembles the famous general, in likeness.

Lee Hall, north of Shrewsbury, (a Tudor house on the site of a house built about 1300 by Reyner de Lee, a Norman knight and founder of the Lee line in Shropshire) was built by a Lee in 1584. The current owner is Samuel Mayall, who ("... we are farmers and quite busy,") is perfectly willing to show visitors about, but likes to have plenty of notice. He may be reached by telephoning Bomere Heath 342.

Mother's Helper

By Hammond P Pearson

TOTS, GAMES and books do the trick for Mother's helper home for a child confined to bed in a hospital. Good gifts for a small patient are coloured postal cards, a ball paint pan, a box of non-dissel stationery (with space for little secret hopes). Or, a tiny flashlight may be a comforting—if perishable— friend. Try for one prayful night-time hour.

Rev. G. H. Johnson To Speak Here

The Reverend Gilbert H. Johnson, education secretary of the Christian Missionary Alliance, general superintendent of the four colleges, the Nyack Missionary College, at Nyack, N.Y.; St. Paul Bible College, St. Paul Minn., Simpson Bible College at San Francisco, and the Canadian Bible College, at Regina, Sas. will be the guest speaker at the Alliance Church here on the evening of June 20.

For the past 20 years he has been associated with the Christian Master. Jesus never shall His eyes be had closed. He saw sins more clearly than any social reformer. Yet He had no sin of obsession. He saw sin as bad in men. Yet He banked on their love. He did not condemn the sin of the women about to be stoned for adultery, but He called her back from death to life. He was aware of the shifting lies in the individual and the impulsive Simon, but He had faith that the man could be transformed into the Peter who means "rock."

He saw the greedy schemes, the blighting hatreds and the fighting moods of men. But He saw also their yearnings after goodness, their possibilities of achievement and their divine sparks of devotion. He "saw life steadily and He saw it whole," thus living and He had with the good. It is this wholeness of outlook we need to recover in these days of deepening suspicion.

The evils of living on the defensive are cumulative. Disciplinary habits destruct and—then poisons both possessors. The friend, the son or the husband who knows that he is unjustly suspicion is sent to guilty himself. He acts a bit queerly and thus tends to confirm the dark doubts about himself. In this way the shadows of suspicion thicken into the clouds of open strife. And the end thereof is hell on earth.

Inner integrity is the initial corrective for this curse of living on the defensive. We must cleanse the inner chambers of life so that they do not need concealing defenses.

As individuals, much of our defensive attitude is due to the defects of our inner lives. We keep up the strain of pretense because we do not wish others to see us as we really are. We put up a blustering bluff when we have a weak spot. We often adopt a bold front because we are ashamed of the fear to put through a deal quickly, for fear others will show how shaky our proposition is.

Nations also have this tendency. When a nation cannot find their domestic finances weaken. When we have a habit of brandishing the mailed fist. It is not true inner strength which constructs armies for war. Rather it is inward weakness which begets them. Our government mismanagement, burdensome taxation or social injustice. When a nation's domestic life of a country becomes thus ill of a cancerous type of virus diseased, the spectre of a foreign foe is raised in order to distract attention.

Integrity at the centre of life is the individual or the nation is necessary to give a sense of security at the circumferred edges. When a record is clear, he is not unduly worried about defending his reputation.

Jesus said, "Judge not that ye be not judged." We should beware of judging the inner motives and motives of others their outward appearances and actions. We should be as charitable in trying to understand them as we want them to be in understanding us.

If we are intolerant of others, we shall eventually become intolerable to others.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Audrey W. — I wanted two children. I have them. That's enough.

Harvey W. — We have a big house. I'd like a big family.

Audrey — I must precede what I say by emphasizing that Harvey and I are deeply in love. We had a sharing in decision of family-size up to me because he admits it here his job of raising them, and that we thrashed this matter out before we were married.

He was an only child and I, on the other hand, was one of 12 children. He has just come into possession of a large old homestead with 16 rooms. He grew up in a big house, he says, and unless it's full of noise it's lonely. I say, fill it with friends or even boarders, but don't like to fill it with brothers and sisters for our two little ones.

I decline. I know how badly the kids in my own family needed more privacy because my mother couldn't give them much individual attention.

• • •

Harvey W. — As Audrey says, I'm leaving this up to her. She's an intelligent woman and a wonderful wife and mother, and can see where, if she tried to do the things for 11 kids that she does for our two, Quentin, she'd have to cut a few corners and maybe even by a couple in the middle. But surely she can handle more than two, especially with a separate room for each child.

It doesn't seem as hard as Audrey thinks it is. The older children can help with the younger ones. And think of the advantages they'll all have — ready-made playmates, rain or shine, and plenty of space, both indoors and out.

It's not a matter of money. I'm not planning any serious farming and I won't need extra "hands." But I'd like a few extra descendants.

• • •

The Council — The W.'s are right in leaving the decision on family-size up to the mother, who must care for and be close to each child.

As to Mrs. W.'s demurrers, we might remind her that she has many advantages to enable her to "mother" children more than her own mother could. The new pill button blessings in the home release time and strength. A large house offers "escape hatches" of each family member's privacy, as a relief in times of interruptions, invasions and visitations. Most important Robert's marriage in 1831, to Mary Randolph Custis, a granddaughter of Mrs. George Washington.

A Lift For Living

Living on the Defensive

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

A card came to my desk recently. It was headed with the question, "Are We Civilized?" It pictured a silver dollar cut into sections. This indicated that 73.8 per cent of our nation's annual budget goes for wars — past, present and prospective.

I have not verified the figures. But they are plenty enough to be frightening. And now Russia and we are being propped-ed for competitive space exploration. How far can we go before our backs break under the burden of taxation?

But the loss in morale is even worse than the waste in money. In these dangerous times we must keep our eyes open to the very real evils which beset us. But too much suspicion distorts the vision.

Suspicion is something worse than pessimism. The suspicious person not only looks on the dark side of things, but he looks for the dark side of every situation. He considers himself clever enough to "see through" the pretensions and falsehoods of others. But when he says he always "sees through" others, we do not really "see" them.

If we would keep our vision from being distorted by suspicion we can turn to the Galilean Master. Jesus never shall His eyes be had closed. He saw sins more clearly than any social reformer. Yet He had no sin of obsession. He saw sin as bad in men. Yet He banked on their love. He did not condemn the sin of the women about to be stoned for adultery, but He called her back from death to life. Successful Living

Unwanted Reader

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My sister is raising a family of three boys and has her hands full. Now the eldest is 17. He goes with some smart-alecky pals and likes to show off.

Last week she read in his diary that he went to a show his father had forbidden. She accused him and said his aunt had seen him in the line-up. So he took his punishment.

Our argument is about reading the diary. I say that if she wants him to be trustworthy she should be sure she can also be trusted. Reading the diary and lying about the aunt are both dishonest, and in my mind the end does not justify the means. What do you say?—AUNTIE.

DEAR AUNTIE:—Agreed. Murder will out—and this works both ways.

Sooner or later she would have learned about her son's disobedience anyway, and dealt with it. Sooner or later her son will learn that his mother is not to be trusted—if he hasn't already.

Young people must be made worthy of trust, in small things, early. Then when they break a rule, which they will, it will worry them. Parents just have to let some things slide and depend on good consciences to assert themselves. If there is trust and honesty between them, the crimes will not be big ones, and the boy's better self is bound to win out in the end.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I am part of an isolated, close-knit community in Northern Canada which has been developed by a large mining company. The only activities are motion picture shows and social gatherings organized by the company and where there is a great deal of drinking.

I do not appreciate liquor or spending money on this type of entertainment, just for the sake of an evening out. My husband and I are very close and are quite happy at home with hobbies, but if one does not go out once in a while you are completely left out of activities. There just seems no happy medium.

It is all on my nerves and the strain is being felt by all the family. I can no longer hide my feelings and frequently end up crying over a very little incident. How can I get out of my rut?—ALL NERVES.

DEAR ALL NERVES:—You do need friends—the kind you can talk with in your own kitchen, and have in for dinner. You are not alone in finding noisy gatherings unsatisfactory. But perhaps the other couples find your absence full of criticism and hesitate to try to make friends with you.

Are you sure there is not one kindred spirit in that place with whom you could share experiences and laughter. I would suggest you find one couple you can enjoy. Have them for dinner or for bridge. Be open-minded and don't expect perfection—just companionship.

Physical lack of stamina may be affecting your nerves and your outlook. Get your doctor's verdict about this and see if he can help too.

'You Can't Look Back,' Just Make Up Your Mind And Then Close the Book

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Imperturbable Donald Fleming by now has tested the economic air and made all the calculations the country demands once a year from the minister of finance.

Tuesday night, shortly after 7:30 p.m. EDT, this stocky 56-year-old man with the clipped mustache will enter the House of Commons and start telling it and the nation what he has decided.

Most of those decisions will be his, and his alone. What else could have kept him—a man said to be decisive—all these months on a punishing schedule of 80 working hours a week, his only recent break an occasional game of tennis?

It's a schedule that testified to a great physical capacity for work and an almost Spartan life. It hints at his known reluctance to delegate authority—to handle much of his own research.

STICKLER FOR GRAMMAR

His speech will have been edited meticulously for precise Fleming grammar, as well as for exact meaning, rectified by the traditional care taken with statements on fiscal matters.

Ahead will be public reaction and opposition criticism, expected to be particularly lively at this time when Mr. Fleming is involved in the controversy touched off by his demand for the resignation of James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada.

None of that is likely to change the sober ministerial countenance and tenacity that has characterized Donald Fleming and won him grudging respect in all quarters.

"You can't look back," he says. "You've got to make up your mind and then close the book. If a man in this portfolio were to be guided by a determination to escape criticism, I doubt he would do much."

"To do one's duty in this portfolio—and as a minister—one must take one's responsibilities seriously. I don't make any apology for taking my job seriously.

"But that's a different matter from worrying. I'm not a worrier. I doubt if a worrier could last very long in this portfolio."

and careful attention to his simple diet, he hasn't been ill since he became minister of finance in June, 1957, even going three full years without a head cold.

He does little reading for recreation, except during the summer when he will occasionally take up a book on history or biography. He isn't a television watcher, a recent exception being episodes of the series on Winston Churchill's Second World War history.

Tennis is his best game, although so far this year he has had time to play only twice. He shoots an average of one round of golf a year. A former long-distance swimmer, he still enjoys a dip when possible in a lake in the nearby Gatineau Hills. Once last year he swam 1,000 strokes — counting them "for something to do."

He is a regular church-goer—Chalmers United Church in Ottawa or Bloor Street United in Toronto where he is still an elder.

Born in Exeter, Ont., and brought up in Galt where his father taught at the collegiate, he was part way through high school when his father's health broke down. Every summer from the age of 13 until a university graduate, he had summer jobs as a laborer.

He's proud that he repaid his family every cent contributed to his education at the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall law school. He was a successful lawyer and alderman there for six years before entering the Commons in 1945 for Toronto Eglinton.

Donald Methuen Fleming will be sitting behind the heavy green curtains of the Commons chamber Tuesday night when the House assembles. Then he will make a dramatic entrance — a bit of ministerial mummery practised by earlier finance ministers—and prop his speech atop a special lectern on his front-row desk.

Only then will another of the country's best-kept secrets be revealed.

ELEPHANT AREA

Laos, which gained independence from France in 1953, was long known as the "Land of the Million Elephants."

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By CECIL H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If you can believe the rosy reports of some of the sportswriters in the Eastern Professional Hockey League circuit, their brand of the mended game is the best thing to hit sport since a wobbly Scotsman kicked a stone in a hole and yelled "Gowf".

One wrote the other day "the EPL provides an exciting brand of hockey — far superior to the old senior "A" days".

There are quite a few people in Kingston who will disagree with that statement. As far as this office-beat observer is concerned, we saw the Kingston Frontenacs, circa 1958-61 play two games. It must have been two of their off nights, or Manager Wren Blair was exercising his tonsils over a bowl of Boston bean soup or breathing the prairie breeze.

In our opinion and on the basis of the team's efforts on the two nights mentioned, the old Belleville McFarlands at full strength would take them five games in a seven-tilt series.

And from newspaper reports, a flock of the old school of Kitchener Dutchmen fans stayed by the television sets and gnawed on spare-ribs or pig-tails instead of wending their way to the Auditorium to watch what proved to be the White Elephants — pardon — the Kitchener Beavers jump through the hockey hoops.

Muzz Patrick, boss-man of the Beaver-sponsoring New York Rangers announced the other day the Beavers went neck-deep into the red to the tune of $91,000. Close on the heels of that announcement came another to the effect that Beaver coach-manager Frank Currie would not get his mail in Taylor-town next winter.

"Figure their operating deficit and their approximate gate they must have gained something like $119,000" says Taylor. "The league budget limit was supposed to be $120,000."

In passing it could be noted the Montreal Canadiens blew $100,000 operating the Montreal Royals — and thus another hockey grave was filled.

"There was bad management somewhere" comments Taylor on the Beaver deficit," but it hardly seems fair to lay all the blame on Currie. The Rangers were paying the bills for more than half the season. Surely someone up there had a chance to look at the books."

After taking a $91,000 kick in the wallet, it seems the Ranger brass want a new deal with the Kitchener Auditorium Commission, a body that double-talked its way into the pro ranks last year.

The Beaver bosses ask a new rental deal that would bring 30 per cent of the gate as the auditorium split instead of a flat rental of $200 per game the building received last season. This, Taylor says, looks like a $10,000 drive in revenue for the civic authorities. In addition the Beavers want the program rights worth a minimum of $6,000 and which could be more with better promotion.

A further condition is that 1,000 season tickets of the $1.75 variety must be sold before the Beavers will operate. Even in their best days, says Taylor, and at lower prices, the Dutchmen seldom sold more than 500 or 600 season tickets.

He adds with a touch, perhaps of satire, "People are hardly disposed to lay out more than $40 apiece for hockey tickets with summer vacations staring them in the face and with the knowledge that they can go up the box office window and get a good seat 10 minutes before game time almost any night in the winter."

It looks like the Beavers are in the drivers seat and with no other winter attraction within sight, they appear to be in a pretty good spot to dictate terms.

And Taylor remarks, "The chickens have come home quicker than anyone could have anticipated."

Which reminds us of the question asked by some Belleville fans "How much did the big Boston Bear pay for the frolics of the Frontenac cubs?"

Free Tennis Clinic Here Wed. Next

Junior tennis enthusiasts in Belleville will receive some professional instruction free of charge here next week from George Mansfield, the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association's ranking pro.

A series of free junior tennis clinics and a special clinic for instructors will be held here under Mansfield's direction on June 21. His visit here, held under the auspices of the Canadian Junior Sports Development Program, is jointly sponsored by the C.L.T.A. and Pepsi-Cola Company of Canada, Limited.

Mansfield, now a well-known figure in local tennis circles, is giving free instruction to junior tennis players across Canada for the sixth consecutive season. This year his tour is taking him through some 44 towns in Western, Central, Eastern and Northern Ontario; Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. He is to visit this area again in August.

Last year Mansfield covered 38 cities and towns in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. Altogether more than 4,000 juvenile and junior players took advantage of the opportunity to have professional instruction free of charge.

APPROVE $15,000 SWIM

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian National Exhibition board of directors approved Friday the idea of a privately sponsored 15-mile swim at this year's exhibition with $15,000 prize money. Date of the swim, allocation of prize money and the course will be decided by the CNE sports committee next week.

Bonus Baby Hurls Shutout In Debut

Lew Krausse 3-Hits Angels

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Lew Krausse Jr., so admittedly frightened he was a sure goner, proved Friday night that baseball bonus babies can be worth their cost.

The strapping shoulder, just two weeks out of high school, lived up to the $125,000 bonus he got for signing with the Athletics by pitching a three - hit, 4-0 shutout over Los Angeles Angels.

The 18-year-old son of an Athletics' scout who once toiled for the old Philadelphia Athletics, young Krausse delivered the goods before the largest home crowd of the American League season, 30,500.

"I pitched just like dad told me to pitch before the game," Lew said. "He told me to throw strikes. That's all he told me."

Throw strikes he did. He walked five men but struck out six and in most cases was well ahead of the batter. Four double plays aided his cause. He delivered only 114 pitches.

Krausse also got two of the Athletics' eight hits and exe-cuted a perfect sacrifice bunt.

CHECK STRIKES

The fans cheered every strike as the game neared an end. When Krausse got Leroy Thomas to pop up for the final out the field became a scene of pandemonium.

Said manager Joe Gordon: "The kid is a major leaguer, a great prospect, no doubt about it." Gordon said that under the circumstances it was the best game he ever saw pitched.

"That boy has a great curve ball," said Kansas City catcher Joe Pignatano. "And he came in with that fast one when I asked for it."

Finley said he "wouldn't sell that kid for $2,000,000 tonight."

Experts could recall no previous instance of a pitcher just out of high school starting a major league game, much less finishing it and pitching a shutout.

Perfect Conditions

Plate Attracts 25,000

TORONTO (CP) — Some 25,000 persons were expected today to focus their attention on 12 horses during the 102nd running of the Queen's Plate, Canada's most prestige-laden horse race.

The Plate, oldest continuously run stakes race in North America, was due to start at New Woodbine about 5:40 p.m.

The 1½-mile race for Canadian-bred three-year-olds is a $50,000-added affair, with first place money good for $46,475, the $3,000 Gold Cup and the Queen's personal gift of 50 guineas.

Weather forecasts indicated the race would go in perfect conditions—a sunny and warm day with temperatures reaching into the 80s.

Turf experts consider the field the most wide - open in years and are wary of nominating one outstanding horse—unlike 1960 when Victoria Park, from the Windfields Farm of E. P. Taylor of Toronto, was chosen early as the winner and proved it when she came in easily.

The Plate has drawn a jockey whose name is legend and who now has ridden more than 3,500 winners. Jimmy Longden will be aboard Just Don't Shove, a Conn Smythe entry, with Jammed Lucky.

The entry is expected to start at 2-1.

HASN'T WON PLATE

Longden will be making his fourth appearance in the Plate in 21 years and has yet to win this event.

"This could be the year," he said Friday. "I only hope so."

Near the top when considering favorites is Ramblin Wreck, a colt owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, with Avelio Gomez aboard, who will go to the gate with odds of around 7-2.

Third morning-line choice behind the Smythe entry and Ramblin Wreck is Gramp's Pride from the Willie Morrissey stable of Toronto—at 4-1. The E. P. Taylor entry of Victoria Regina, Flashing Top and Queen's Park will start at approximately 6-1.

The best of three fillies in the field appeared to be Maid O'North, owned by industrialist Frank Sherman of Hamilton, who was quoted at 8-1.

GO AT 12-1

Rounding out the field are Milton Man, 15-1, and Prince Tour and Edgor's Lane at 20-1.

As in every race, there is a dark horse. In this case it is Prince Tour, owned by Bill Graul of Vercheres, Que., who worked the mile in 1:39 4-5.

Reds Win, Giants Beaten

Lew 5-Hits Dodgers, Has Homer

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Manager Fidgety Burdette makes other clubs nervous and suspicious that he throws a spitter, it's nothing to what he does to Los Angles. He gives the Dodgers a fit in their own ballyard.

The big righthander knocked the Dodgers out of the National League lead with a bonus run and a five-hit pitching performance that gave Milwaukee Braves a 3-1 victory Friday night.

It was Burdette's ninth straight victory at Los Angeles Coliseum. He's the only pitcher who has beaten the Dodgers twice there this season with complete - game decisions. It also was his 10th career home run in the majors and his sixth against the Dodgers—all over the leftfield screen at the Coliseum.

Cincinnati Redlegs moved into first place by a half-game over Los Angeles with a 4-1 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. San Francisco Giants slipped a game behind, in third place, after a 13-6 parting by Chicago Cubs. St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3.

WALKED ONLY ONE

Burdette, (5-5) walked one man and struck out five, blanking the Dodgers on four hits until Charlie Neal homered in the seventh inning.

The Braves, four games below .500 in sixth place but 7-3 against the Dodgers, collected eight hits and beat southpaw Sandy Koufax (9-3) with a decisding run in the seventh inning on four walks, the last by reliever Larry Sherry. Burdette's home run in the fifth off Koufax, who had won six games in a row since May 16.

The Reds were shut out on two hits for seven innings, then broke loose for all four runs in the eighth off loser Johnny Burkhardt (3-1) and relievers Ken Lehman and Jim Sullivan. Consecutive singles by Gordie Coleman, Gene Freese and Wally Post scored the first run, for a 1-1 tie, and pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch made it stand up with a double off Lehman.

Ken Hunt (7-3) was relief winner, pairing with reliever Jim Brosnan for a three-hitter. Hunt gave up and three hits, a two-run homer by George Altman, in the seventh inning of Burdette's shutout.

Don Demeter.

A grand-slam homer by Billy Williams off loser Billy Loes (4-4) gave the Cubs a 5-1 lead in the third inning at San Francisco. They trashed up Sam Jones, Jim Duffalo and Jack Sanford for the other seven runs on eight hits, one a two-run homer by George Altman. Bob Anderson (4-5) won in relief.

Both clubs had 12 hits, with Felipe Alou, pinch-hitter Jim Marshall and Sanford socking solo homers for the Giants, who had won four straight battles.

The Cardinals broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the seventh inning off southpaw Harvey Haddix (4 - 2). Consecutive bases-loaded singles by Tim McCarver and winning righthander Bob Gibson (4-3) scored the first two runs and sewed things up.

Twins Clip Chicox Win String

Tigers Claw Yankees, Indians Win

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

It was the September, 1951, and Philadelphia Athletics, having already wrapped up a third straight American League pennant, turned to 23d pitcher Lew Burdette giving the big three of the Left Arm Grove, George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg a rest before the world series.

One of the kids was a 18-year - old righthander named Lew Krausse. Making his first start in the majors, he beat Boston 7-1 with a four - hitter.

Friday night the same Lew Krausse was in the stands as the Athletics, now in Kansas City and the second division, spott a $125,000 bonus pitcher to the mound for his first start.

The kid was an 18 - year-old righthander named Lew Krausse Jr., and he pitched a wonderful, three - hit shutout for a 4-0 victory over Los Angeles in his first game as a professional.

GIVEN SUPPORT

Lew Jr. gave up nothing but singles. He walked five men and struck out six. The Athletics backed him up with five safeties.

Krausse's performance stole the spotlight from the pennant race as Detroit Tigers dropped New York Yankees out of first place, beating the Yankees 4-2, and climbed into a first - place tie with Cleveland Indians. The Indians, sharing a one - game lead over third - place New York, beat Baltimore Orioles 3-1.

Boston Red Sox whipped Washington Senators 14-8, tying the Senators and Baltimore for fourth place. Minnesota Twins beat Chicago White Sox, who had won seven games in a row, 6-1.

Krausse, a slim fastball pitcher with a good curve, went to work less than two weeks after graduating from high school in Chester, Pa.

LOST NINE STRAIGHT

The Angels' three hits, by Leon Thomas, Steve Bilko and Ken Hamlin, came in the second, seventh and eight innings. The Athletics scored in the second on Norm Siebern's double to the fourth, Ken McBride (5-5) was the loser as the Angels dropped their ninth straight decision.

The record for a low - hit defeat was held by Addie Joss of Cleveland (1902), Mike Fornieles, then with Washington (1953) and Juan Marichal of San Francisco (1960). Each pitched a one - hitter and all had hurled in the minor leagues previously.

Detroit collected eight hits, four by Billy Bruton, and was helped by five Yankee errors in beating Bill Stafford (4-3), who had won four in a row.

It was the third loss in 16 games for New York, and Bruton's single and Al Kaline's double put it away in the third inning. Phil Regan (7-2) was the winner. He allowed six hits, one a two - run homer by Bill Skowron in the fifth inning.

PAIRED IN WIN

Southpaw Dick Stigman paired with reliever Barry Latman for a four - hitter for the Indians and singled home the winning run in the ninth inning off Orioles loser Chuck Estrada (4-5).

Eight runs in the fourth inning won for the Red Sox and beat Tom Sturdivant (3-5). Carl Yastrzemski, with a two - run double, and Vic Wertz, with a two - run single, had the key hits in the rally. Fornieles (3-3) was the winner in relief. There were 36 walks in the game.

Righthander Pedro Ramos (4-6), after losing six consecutive games, beat the White Sox with eight innings of four-hit, shutout relief. Bob Allison drove in three runs for the Twins and Jim Lemon and Harmon Killebrew homered. Don Larsen (3-5) was the loser for the Sox, who scored without a hit in the first inning off Danny McDevitt.

Hull Tosses Two-Hitter

Joyces Clobber Cats

By GARRY ALEXANDER

A hard-hitting attack and the masterful two-hit pitching of Bobby Hull gave Joyce Real Estate a clean-cut 9-2 victory over the Bobcats that opened up a four-point lead for the Joyce squad at the top of the Belleville and District softball league.

The largest softball crowd of the season saw Hull, who leaves for a month's holidays to California today, earn his second win in as many nights.

Hull was in complete control all the way and received error-less support in the field as well as power at the plate. He had a six-for-six batting average and only two were out in the bottom of the ninth.

A base-on-balls to Doug Hull was followed by Johnny Batchelor's tiring home run of the year, to plate the Cats only two runs. Hull struck out five walked three and hit one batter. Besides Batchelor, the only other Bobcat hit was a single by Doug Hull in the fourth.

The Joyce batters combed the slants of Bobcats ace Bob-by Hunter for 13 hits, and all nine runs, before Bobby Green took over in the eighth. Green got out of the inning untouched and also set the winners down in order in the ninth. Hunter nipped five on strikes and walked two. Green whiffed three and passed none.

Bert Faulkner was Joyces top batter with three hits. Doug Ellis slammed a three-run homer and a single while Jackie Elliott, Gary Goyer and Guy Austin each collected two singles. Chuck Kingston and Pug Kellar had the other two safeties.

The winners opened up a 2-0 lead in the second on hits by Faulkner, Elliott and Ellis, a hit batter and an error. Faulkner's second hit, a walk Keller's sacrifice and an error scored one in the fourth before Ellis rapped his blast for a 6-0 score.

Kingston and Faulkner punched singles in the seventh and Elliott drove the lead man home with a shot through the centre. Austin's hit, Carr's sacrifice bunt and an error on the play, put two aboard in the eighth and Goyer sent both home, and Hunter to the showers, with another solid smash to centre field.

Doug Ellis made two line running catches as well as collecting his two hits. Both teams came up with several good fielding plays in a well-played game.

Returning to the Bobcat lineup, after a five or six year absence, was Don Wright. Adams. He replaced Cousins in the bottom of the eighth.

West May Not Play This Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Rider offensive flanker Davey West has his arm in a cast from a break suffered in the Grey Cup game last fall and may not play football this year. It was learned here Friday.

West, 32, had his arm broken in a collision with Edmonton Eskimos defensive back Oscar Krueger in the second half. Ottawa won the game 16-6 to take the Eastern Football title for the first time in nine years.

Five months later doctors found the arm was not mending properly and early last month reset it.

Hubt Flanagan Dignity

Russ Lose Mass Battle

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

In the KalmKoof books, Pat Flanagan, who headed a two-man jury in last night's wrestling sittings, is now known as the "hanging judge."

For Flanagan's dignity, especially when he is acting as the fifth or sixth man in the ring.

In the mass melee last night which saw Ivan and Karol K. as the Outlaws of Red Gap pitched against Mac Mountain Campbell and Farmer Boy Townsend, Ivan took matters into his own hands.

While "Sheriff" Bunny Dunlop was practising quick draws in one corner with Karol and the Man Mountain, Ivan grabbed Flanagan and Townsend by the short hair and bumped their noggins together.

That happened once, twice, then Sheriff Flanagan decided to establish peace in the joint and helped hoist the Russ skyward and dump him bellyop on the canvas. Townsend took the cue, flopped on Ivan and that was the third bout and the match.

Pat counted so fast it sounded like three-fingers tapping out the Morse code.

The Russ are the first fall but the "good guys" got that one back after twelve minutes of the second fiesta.

With all six men in the ring practically everything but actual mayhem happened. There was some finger-chewing and eye-ball massaging by the Beards with the foemen retaliating with some neat nose nibbling.

The Beards staged their famous tossing-out-of-the-ring act but the Townsend - Campbell combo retaliated with the rowing stunt. There was bettering and counter - betterings and the second fall the good guys laid Ivan and Karol on the mat atop one another, then formed a four-decker sandwich by flopping on the under-dogs.

Huge 345-pound Tony Marello battled Mafia Kalmikoff in the semi-final and it was a Jack and the Giant-Killer all the way. There were boots, bites, hair and bashes aplenty in this one before the big Italian got the nod.

Prince Nero, a rough-and-tumble artist, gave Pat Flanagan a neat going over in the opener and had the fricker under control until he slugged Referee Bunny Dunlop. Bunny bounced back and lifted the Flanagan hand in victory.

Robert Colbert Gets Nod To Play Part in Maverick

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There's another Maverick hereabouts, name of Brent, relative of Bret, Bart and Beau.

His real name is Robert Colbert, but obviously that name has got to go. He pronounces it Coal-bare, just like Claudette, so he resigned to being called Coal-burt.

He is the latest of the substitutes being pressed into duty for James Garner, who blew the Maverick series amid a flurry of litigation. First there was Roger Moore, who subbed as the Maverick's British cousin, Beau. Roger proved too Picadilly for TV viewers and was dealt out of the game.

Now comes Brent, or Bob Colbert, who bears a striking resemblance to Garner, the original.

"My introduction to the role was quite casual," he reports. "I had been under contract to Warner Brothers for a couple of years, doing all kinds of parts. I had been rehearsing for a brother.

"When I got there, they put on a fancy dude's suit. I told them there must have been some mistake, because I was supposed to play a blind man who had been crawling across the desert. But I was told not to ask questions, but to report to the production office.

"I walked down the studio street and everyone was hanging out the windows. I didn't realize that this was the day after Jim Garner had won his law suit. I was wearing his costume and looking just like the reincarnation of Garner."

Colbert reported to the bosses and was eyed up and down. "He's perfect," said an ABC official. "We can use the same stock footage."

The young actor finally got the drift: That he was nominated to the new Maverick

Rosburg, Sanders Lead

Heads Roll In U.S. Open

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—A tense field of 37 waited the outcome in today's double-round windup of the $60,000 United States open golf championship after a royal head-rolling Friday.

The two-stroke halfway leaders, at one-under-par 139 Bob Rosburg and Doug Sanders—a pair of unorthodox swingers — generally were regarded as sitting ducks in the expected charge for the first prize of $14,000.

As Friday's second round produced a brisk pummelling of Oakland Hills' 6,907 - yard, par 35-35—70 course, the big question was whether defending champion Arnold Palmer, 10 strokes off the pace, could snatch his comeback — behind victory strike of last year.

Two sentimental favorites, four-time Ben Hogan and "bridesmaid" Sam Snead, were threats at 143, four strokes behind.

Palmer has 46 players ahead of him, including six tied for third at 141, two strokes off the pace. The sextet includes Doug Ford, Eric Monti, Bobby Brue, Gardner Dickinson, Al Geiberger and Gene Littler.

Palmer, who has blown six putts of two feet or under, made the exact halfway cutoff point with 74-75—149.

FORMER CHAMPS OUT

Biting the dust beyond the cutoff mark were former Open champions Ed Furgol (1954), Julius Boros (1952), Cary Middlecoff (1949) and Lew Worsham (1947). The four-time British Open champ, Peter Thomson of Australia, was a casualty at 153.

Bill Ezinicki, former National Hockey League player from Winnipeg who now plays out of North Reading, Mass., had 77-74—151.

Sanders, 27, hurt his spine Monday night when, as he tried to get seated in a canoe, somebody moved the boat. He had a shot of novocaine for Thursday's opening round, in which he scored a 72.

"I skipped that treatment yesterday and my back felt a lot better," he said.

CALLAS TO GREECE

AT THE PARK — Doris Day, accompanied by her husband, Rex Harrison, details to Scotland Yard inspector John Williams (right) the death threats she's been getting from a mysterious stranger. Scene is from "Midnight Lace", suspense drama in color starring Miss Day, Harrison and John Gavin. The Ross Hunter-Arwin production, a Universal-international release, also stars Myrna Loy and Roddy McDowall, opening Monday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program "The Grass Is Greener", in Technicolor and CinemaScope starring Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons. One complete show Monday starts at 7.30 p.m.

Blues Win Hamilton Track Meet

HAMILTON (CP)—The combined Oxford-Cambridge universities track team defeated Hamilton Olympic Club in a relay competition track meet Friday night, featured by two close finishes in distance events.

Canada's top - ranking junior runner, Bruce Kidd of Toronto's East York Track Club, was pushed to his fastest outdoor time in winning the mile by a scant foot from J. Boulter of the British team. The 17-year-old Kidd turned in a 4:19.4 clocking.

Steve James, track distance man of the Oxford-Cambridge team, managed a last - minute kick and narrowly edged Toronto's Ron Wellingford in the three-mile finish. James was timed at 14:28.2 and beat Wellingford to the tape by five yards.

AT THE PARK — Cary Grant — screen's debonair comedy favorite, co-stars with Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons in "The Grass is Greener", procucell - directed by Stanley Donen for Universal-International release, opening Monday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program "Midnight Lace", in Technicolor and CinemaScope starring Doris Day, Rex Harrison and John Gavin with Myrna Loy — there will be but one complete show starting at 7.30 p.m. for these two attractions.

BY CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday, June 18

General Tendencies: The morning is unusually good for getting the right perspective on the ways and means by which you can add to your benefits and mitigate any difficulties under which you may have been operating. The spiritual ideas that suits you best can now be understood plainly. Then thru P.M. reduce these ideals to a working basis.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Thinking kindly and generously about others. Those under your roof now will lead to more harmonious relations and bring fine benefits in the future for you. Then in P.M. you can plan a daily routine that will also make for a better life.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Change your attitude in A.M. and help those live with you. Be generous. Evening is fine for dining at some exclusive restaurant with people you admire and having a wonderful time at favorite amusements later. Be active!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Be sure to go to services of your choice in A.M. Where much information you need at this time can be gleaned. Later make your surroundings more attractive, comfortable. P.M. Invite friends in for fun and amusement. Be charming.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Sit back and think awhile of the fine, uplifting standards under which you were reared and resolve to return to them from now on. Then you can get about renewing old acquaintances and have a delightful time and inexpensively, too!

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — If you concentrate for awhile during the morning, you will know exactly what it is you want in the future and how to go after it more successfully. Later, plan for the new week along these lines P.M. Watch TV. Retire early.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Morning is best spent secretly going after anything that is of important moment, especially data you need. Going to church also helps. Evening can then be very happy if you make the social contacts you like. Be sociable, kind.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct 23) — Morning is ideal to be with good comrades at the services of your choice or taking a little trip. P.M. Make new plans for the coming week-end. Get ideas from your paper or radio, TV.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Be sure to live your religion now and make the excellent impression on higher-ups that is so important at this time. Evening is especially fine for going out socially with interesting people. Dress charmingly in good taste.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Take time to study during morning hours and become well-informed on any scientific or spiritual matters that are helpful now. Then get busy socially so that you increase prestige. However, be more discriminating than you have been.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you get into the so-called Silence for awhile during the morning, you will get that important thing you need to settle some matter wisely. P.M. Meet interesting and important people so that you can get valuable ideas from them. Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Do something nice for associates today informally so that you have greater rapport in the future and can become more successful. Give a little dinner, but be sure that all is in perfect taste. P.M. Fine for romantic interest.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Be ready to help those who come to you for assistance in A.M. Live in such a way that you are an inspiration to others. P.M. Step out with good friends and have a jolly time at whatever amusements please you the most. Be gay, carefree. If your child is here today ... he, or she, will be a naturally born philosopher and have marvelous ideas early in life. Other children will soon be helpful in unobjective way by your clever progeny and there is every indication of a big career here, provided you are understanding with your child and give proper guidance. Any profession that brings your son or daughter before the general public is best. Give a college education.

General Tendencies: This is the day for you to pitch in and to get every sort of detail organized and arranged...as will best suit your purposes for some time to come — especially in the departments of your life which have to do with your own sign following. Be sure you take the food best suited to your body today. Get everything spotless, too.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Here is a day when you can accomplish a great deal, since the work you will have to do is the type that you can do best. So, don't waste a moment. Also, discuss with associates methods that will help to co-ordinate your plans.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)— Take whatever treatments are needed that will give you a better appearance and then you will find you become more successful in life. Go out socially tonight and increase popularity. Be with the people you want to associate with in the future.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Home requires your attention today, so be sure you get everything in that realm of your existence as you want it, according to the plans you make this day. See that everything is scrupulously clean, then add the touches of art and charm.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You are able to be very efficient today in all business matters or whatever has to do with travel and making plans for the future, so get busy early. Then tonight you will be free to go out with good friends and have a ball.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Once you know what it is you want, this is the right day to consult with bankers, merchandisers, etc., who can help you to make those changes and improvements you desire. However, be sure you follow their ideas without question.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)— Become more ambitious and dress in good taste and be out early-meeting the benign people who can assist you to get ahead faster in your career, or look into new outlets that are best for you. Be of service to others as well.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Time to make radical changes wherever so that you eliminate the obsolete and start the week on a positive note. P.M. get out socially and have a good time, as a change from usual home life.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are fortunate in having a good friend today who will assist you to make a greater success of your personal life, listen to his or her advice. Be sure you take this person out to dinner in p.m. and then to some fine social affair.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) —Important you get credit affairs in fine order now so that your career matters will improve, as well as gaining prestige in political life. Begin early and worth methodically so that you make a fine impression on Big-Wigs.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make it a point to listen to the suggestions of interesting people you meet today whose background and culture differ from yours. Also, prepare to change your present methods for more modern ones that will prove lucrative.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) It is better to follow the rules and regulations that are standard in doing your work today instead of endeavoring to change things to suit own desires. It is important that you are very devoted to loved one this evening.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Stick close to those associates who truly know what they are doing now. If you co-operate more instead of trying to be a lone wolf, you will get ahead much faster. And a minimum of criticism is wise plus a maximum of hard work.

If your child is born today—cleanliness and order will be paramount in this youngster's life and so it behooves you to give an education in professions where sanitation is a prerequisite, such as nursing, medicine, dentistry, etc, whether a boy or a girl. However, early curb any tendency to be overly critical of others and be sure that own work and character are flawless instead. There can be real success here if you guide properly and are patient.

Tax Incentives For Business Are Anticipated

Era of Easier Money Budget Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—Most speculation about Finance Minister Fleming's budget has suggested that it will contain tax incentives for business and industry and herald massive deficit spending.

An era of easier money—as opposed to tight money with high interest rates — has been forecast, especially since the Coyne controversy blew up. There has been little speculation about personal income tax cuts.

Canadians will learn what is in store for them after 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, when Mr. Fleming rises in the Commons to start reading his budget speech.

To many observers, the minister seemed to indicate the scope of his budget when he said in a statement to the Commons Wednesday:

"The government's policy is expansionist, aimed at the creation of more trade, more production and more jobs."

He contrasted this with what he termed the "restrictionist" policies of the past, when governor of the Bank of Canada, citing Mr. Coyne's "rigid attitude on the maintenance of high interest rates" as one example.

Mr. Fleming said the main reason the government is moving to oust Mr. Coyne as governor is that the administration is convinced that the way to cure the implementation of a comprehensive, sound and responsible economic program designed to raise the levels of employment and production in Canada is

PROMPTED INTEREST

Those statements, and the unusual delay in the presentation of the budget—the April year-end that opened last April 1, have centred more interest than usual on Mr. Fleming's budget speech.

This is a pre-budget while paper tabled in the Commons Friday, Mr. Fleming reported the government has a deficit of $345,500,000 for the 1960-61 fiscal year instead of $290,000,000.

It has been speculated that he will budget for a huge deficit for the current year. The Canadian Tax Foundation has suggested that it could be in the order of $700,000,000. Other guesses have ranged up to $1,000,000,000. The previous peacetime record was $609,000,000 in 1958-59.

Speculation has also say the budget may indicate whether there will be a federal general election this year.

It is generally considered that the budget speech would contain personal income tax cuts—but the consensus has been that there is little likelihood of such this budget.

Mr. Fleming has developed the practice of bringing in supplementary budget before the end of the year—such as he did in the fall of 1957 after the Conservatives took office in June that year, and again in December. There are no tax cuts for the individual taxpayer in this week's budget speech, Mr. Fleming could still provide them in a supplementary budget later.

Virtually all of the Dec. 2 baby bulge was aimed at business and finance, and evidence speculation has been that Mr. Fleming will concentrate on

Skindivers Parachute Into Ocean, Put Space Capsule on Rubber Raft

HICKAM AFB, Hawaii (AP)—Skindivers and parachute experts in recovering a Discoverer capsule ejected from space may mean the U.S. Air Force is ready to put a man into orbit around the earth.

The Air Force said it was thoroughly pleased with the recovery by a team of skindivers who leaped from a plane in the Pacific near Hawaii Sunday to retrieve an instrument-packed capsule. The data-gathering apparatus was ejected from orbiting Discoverer XXV after a space ride of 30 hours and 3 minutes.

The skindivers and their prize were to be picked up by a U.S. Navy destroyer today and delivered to Pearl Harbor. The capsule will then be flown to Sunnyvale, Calif., for analysis of information it gathered while circling the earth.

Four Killed As Plane Hits Power Line

MINAKI, Ont. (CP) — Divers today were still searching for victims of the crash of a single-engined American civilian plane, which fell into a deep section of Lake Winnipeg here near here Saturday after striking a power line.

Provincial police said two men and two women were believed to have been aboard the four-seat Mooney Mark 20, reported to the crash Mines, R.I. All the plane's occupants were killed when it fell in pieces into about 60 feet of water, about one-half mile from this resort centre, 350 miles east of Winnipeg.

One body was recovered Sunday by divers. No names were released, but the body was believed to be that of a member of the United States Army.

Police said a wallet believed to belong to a Winnipeg woman also was recovered.

The crash occurred about 6 p.m. Saturday as the plane struck the hydro line over the river.

The plane was reported to be equipped with floats, but there no reason was given for its low flight over the river.

Three police aids divers began a search within minutes of the crash. They found the plane's engine Saturday and recovered the mask's body Sunday afternoon. The search was suspended at dark Sunday and resumed early today.

Jim Adams, a dispatcher for a local charter airline, said Sunday that the Minot plane filed a flight plan at Winnipeg International day before travelling to this lake of the Woods area.

Coyne Unveils Plan to Cure Unemployment and Deficits

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada today made public an economic program involving higher taxes and increased spending to counter unemployment.

He said it would reduce unemployment to less than four per cent of the labor force within one year, balance the federal budget "preferably within two years," and wipe out Canada's balance of payments deficit of more than $1,000,000,000 in three years.

The program was one he sent to Finance Minister Fleming last June 29, Mr. Coyne said. He made it public today to counter what he said was a "misrepresentation" by Mr. Fleming last Wednesday that his—Mr. Coyne's—policies were "restrictionist."

His statement today, on the eve of Tuesday night's budget, was the latest round of the controversy which blew up last May 30 when the governor's attempt to have the central bank governor resign. He refused, and the government now plans to seek parliamentary action to fire him.

Mr. Coyne said Mr. Fleming "has not found time" to discuss his Feb. 16 proposals and added that his four years the minister has "refused" to allow the Commons banking committee to examine his views.

The governor said there is an urgent need to adopt non-inflationary, sound money policies to restore economic growth and achieve some minimum standard of full employment—objectives that are defeated by the march of events into unsound money, inflationary policies, which it will be alleged are necessary for economic growth and full employment."

He said his program would

Federation of East Africa May Be Broached at Talks

LONDON (Reuters) — British colonial officials and African leaders today breached ice at a meeting here called to smooth the path to independence for the proposed East African federation of East African empire.

The talks were expected to touch on a possible federation of the west territories—Tanganyika, Uganda and Zanzibar—which have been moving a bit separate pace toward eventual full self-government.

The African leaders were invited to London by Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod to discuss Britain's plans for granting independence—due in December—and its relations with the neighboring committee today, said East African high commission.

But the discussions are almost certain to range over a wider field because of tensions in some of the areas.

The commission, consisting of the governors of Tanganyika, Uganda and Kenya, administers services such as railroads, customs and excise, postal services and civil aviation.

Julius Nyerere, premier of Tanganyika, arrived by air Sunday with another African leader, Tom Mboya, general secretary of the Kenya African National Union (Kanu).

Other African leaders on hand were Benedict Kiwanuka of Uganda and Michael Blundell, the Kenya African Democratic

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons railway committee has been left in the dark about government plans to reject or implement recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on railway transportation.

Donald Gordon, CNR president, was scheduled to make his fourth appearance before the committee today, said Saturday he would not attempt to interpret a hint that some or all of the recommendations are to be put into force.

The hint was seen in a proposed government payment of $250,000,000 to the railways pending completion of the MacPherson commission's studies. Mr. Gordon pointed out that only the first of three or possibly four volumes of the report had been published so far.

The CNR president was questioned about the railways' decision last month to avoid a strike of non - operating employees by accepting the report of a conciliation board, which previously had been accepted by the unions. It would cost CNR $32,000,000 this year.

Lucien Lamoureux (L — Montreal Laurier) said the conciliation cost to the Canadian Pacific Railway and to the CNR would run to about $50,000,000.

Donald Fleming (CCF — Eglington) asked whether there was any "extraneous factor," such as an implied promise of further treasury help, in the railways' decision to meet union - accepted terms of the conciliation report on last month's strike threat.

"I am not going to deal with extraneous factors," Mr. Gordon said.

He explained that there was a hint of other issues rising between management and the non-operating unions, and that

PRIME MINISTER KNOWS NOTHING OF 'KICKBACKS'

Hectic Week Ends With a Flourish

OTTAWA (CP)—A hectic parliamentary week ended Saturday with a flourish as Prime Minister Diefenbaker was questioned about allegations that a former cabinet minister, Minister Henri Courtemanche, demanded and got a cut of government grants to a Montreal hospital.

"I make it very clear, and emphasize it, that there never was any such suggestion at any time" Mr. Diefenbaker told Liberal Leader Pearson who asked whether the prime minister had any reason to believe the former secretary of state was involved in "any alleged financial irregularities" when he was named to the post last year.

Senator Courtemanche has denied the hospital inquiry has given to a Montreal hospital inquiry.

T. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) asked for a full inquiry into charges of wrongdoing in reports flowing from the Montreal inquiry and "other disturbing rumors which point to other activities of the gentleman mentioned."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he told the justice department to get a copy of the official transcript of inquiry testimony "in order that the matter may be studied most carefully."

Senator Courtemanche said he got $17,000 in legal fees from Jean Talon Hospital but testimony to the Montreal inquiry said he got $37,000 in kickbacks on federal and provincial grants to the hospital.

ELECTED IN 1957

He was elected in 1957 and in 1958 was named to the cabinet. He resigned on grounds of poor health and went to the Senate in January, 1960.

Saturday's session was typical of the whole week—a highly charged one that began with the Canadian United States defence swap and went on to the refusal of Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada to resign, due to the request of the government and his own board of directors.

Today, the Commons moves back to legislation in the full before Finance Minister Fleming brings down his delayed budget Tuesday night. First on the agenda is the Criminal Code Saturday to amend the Criminal Code. Its main provision would provide for a speedier appeal against sex offenders.

In addition, Saturday's notice was given of a resolution preceding legislation to authorize construction of the 360-mile Pacific railway from northern Alberta to the west-side deposits on the south shore of Great Slave Lake. The CNR would build the railway on behalf of $92,250,000 for construction.

Bulk of Saturday proceedings dealt again with the $166,000,000 Canada Development Corp. to aid public works department, prime minister Diefenbaker said. It is with its consequent grass-roots interest for back - bench members of the Conservative.

Detailed study was continuing at end of week.

BARINOV REPLACED

MOSCOW (Reuters) — B. A. Barinov, 51, first secretary of the Communist party committee for the Tyumen area of Siberia in central Russia, has been eliminated for failing to improve the region's agricultural setup in accordance with top - level party decisions, Tass reported. After four years in the post, he is being replaced by F. I. Loshchenkov.

Green Assails Russian Plan At Laos Parley

Says Co-chairmen Get 'Pretty High, Mighty'

GENEVA (CP)—Canada said today that in effect the three-power International Control Commission in Laos has been asked to "beg, borrow or steal" air-inspection equipment to police a cease-fire.

External Affairs Minister Green, in a major speech to the 14-nation conference on Laos, attacked a proposal made Friday by Russia that the commission obtain its inspection aircraft from the opposing parties in war-troubled Laos.

Green, departing from his prepared text, said this proposal "means that the India-Canada-Poland commission by the Soviet Union and Britain as co-chairmen, was ridiculous."

The commission, in effect, was being asked "to beg, borrow or steal" equipment from officials in the Laos war, he suggested, "is going to a ridiculous extreme and puts the commission members in an impossible position."

ACCEPT 'COFTER OFFER

The commission, he said, should consider offers already made by France and the United States to supply inspection aircraft and helicopters for the commission to use in its functions of supervising on reported violations of the cease-fire.

Green, his tough-talking outline of the Canadian stand, then turned to the Soviet Union, agreed with a suggestion by Viet Nam Premier Diem regarding air-equipment offers be circulated as conference documents and his own board of directors.

Green's remarks appeared to get busy on details of a settlement. He proposed that the conference go into restricted sessions where free discussion rather than speeches would be the rule."

PRESSURE SETTLED

The Canadian delegation pressed for a discussion on the question "how can we get agreement for the commission when it is set up." Malcolm MacDonald will be in the chair. Green and MacDonald met privately at tea time today.

Green cited the refusal of the International Control Commission to allow the commission to visit Padong—scene of Pathet Lao attacks June 4 and 5—as indicative of the importance of freedom of movement for the commission was to work effectively.

The Canadian ranged over the whole Laos problem in the speech which stressed that failure to find a settlement would have far-reaching implications for world peace.

He said Canada's record in Korea would be a reason for making nearly three years of effort. The most striking idea was the call for special taxes to fit the economic times.

Sports Car Mob Stages Wild Riot In Small Town Near Milwaukee

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) This small community's composure was smashed Saturday night by a wild mob of sports car fans.

Authorities said only a few fought police in the village square as the violent climax of the sports car racing.

Authorities said only a few dozen of the estimated 1,000 let loose in the square Sunday night as the two-day racing program came to an end. They met reinforced police units and were ordered to leave town.

Two more young men were arrested for drinking on the streets Sunday night, raising to five the total taken into custody.

"We could have arrested a hundred Saturday night," said Deputy Police Chief John Cain, "but we couldn't handle them. We picked up that many but that's the most we have ever haven't a jail here."

Those being held were nearby Sheboygan. Elkhart Lake, a town of 387, is about 50 miles north of Milwaukee.

Two police officers were taken to hospitals for treatment for injuries inflicted by the mob which rallied behind the cry "Let's get those cops by the pedals."

Some 200 rioters swirled through the square, fighting police, smashing windows, throwing beer cans and firecrackers and cutting fire hoses brought out to control them.

Albert College Students Get Chemistry Scholarships

Mr. Steve Safe will be delivering a paper at the 44th Canadian Chemical Conference and Exhibition of the Chemical Institute of Canada, to be held in Montreal, August 3-4. Steve, a son of Mr. Ben Safe of this city, developed his interest in chemistry at Albert College under Dr. McMullen, and fed hers taking honour chemistry at Queen's University for the last three years. His paper, to be delivered in Montreal, will be on the research he has been doing in Organic Chemistry, under the direction of Professor R. Y. Moir, at Queen's University.

Queen's University also awarded two scholarships, one for $200 and one for $200 to Tom McMullen at the end of his first year in honor chemistry. Tom, son of Dr. T. C. McMullen, is also taking the honor chemistry course at Queen's University.

Start Haying Before Seeding Is Completed

Some farmers in the low lying areas in the south part of the county are just now completing their spring seeding, but haying operations in the Bay of Quinte area have already commenced.

Prolonged wet weather during the spring season held up seeding but the moisture boosted the growth of the meadows with result that haying operations are already underway.

Council Meet Is Postponed Until Thursday

IN MEMORIAM

ASHBURY. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, James Russell Ashbury, who passed away seven years ago, June 19th, 1954.
There's an open gate,
And a path that is trod,
Through which each must go alone
And there is a light to show the way,
Our Father claims His own.
Sadly missed by his loved one
Fond happiness and rest.
Deep in our memory
Is the thought we treasure
That a loving God knows best.
—Ever remembered by wife and family.

LANCASTER. — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and brother, Douglas Stuart Lancaster, who died June 19th, 1958.
Those we love we never lose,
For death cannot sever
Loved, remembered, treasured,
Locked in our memory.
—Remembered by his wife Hazel, daughter Stuart Lancaster, Ralph, Larry and Bruce.

SHELPS. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Martha, who passed away June 19th, 1951.
Yes, she slept, but not forever,
There's a glad awaking there,
Blessed promise she shall waken,
Mother dear, with Jesus rest.
Sweet the memory of her waking,
When the troubled shall be still,
When the body is raised in glorious beauty,
Will rejoice to see her more.
—Never remembered by son George.

PRICE. — In loving memory of dear mother Sarah Ann Price, who passed away June 19th, 1958.
God took mother home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
Never shall her memory fade,
While in loving hearts she's laid.
To the spot where she was laid,
Sadly I wander and remember
—Her son-in-law Joe and grandchildren Alvin and Shirley Price.

Report Shows Citizens Are Great Readers

Despite competition from television and other forms of recreation, Belleville residents are becoming greater readers.

At least this is indicated by the May report from the Belleville Public Library which shows a total of 18,223 books have been borrowed since the first of the year. Circulation of adult books during the month was 13,420 and for boys and girls books 10,236.

The reading of non-fiction by adult borrowers increased by 5,527 books since the beginning of the year and the reading of fiction by 5,303.

Circulation of books for boys and girls has also increased both at the main library and at branch locations.

During May 25 adults were added as members and in the same period, 61 boys and girls became library members.

TV Set Gone

Provincial police are searching for a portable television set stolen from the Blue Inn Motel west of Belleville over the weekend. The television set disappeared the same time as a guest who had rented a room for the night.

Decoration Day Is Observed By Legion

TRENTON — Senior Capt. Arthur Robinson of the Trenton Salvation Army Corps was in charge of the Decoration Day services at the Cenotaph Sunday.

Capt. Robinson reminded the veterans and their families that the heroes of two World Wars had fought to preserve freedom of worship, and that they must guard against the influence of present day leaders who would ignore God completely. He said that the casualties of the wars were not the only tragic consequences of battle. Many men had come home from the war broken in spirit and body and that many broken hearts and homes could be laid to the unkindness and inconsiderate attitudes of the people who remained at home.

He urged those present to "bear and forebear" with one another and to turn to God in these troubled times. He said that this attitude, if adopted by world leaders, would solve all the world's troubles.

Quoting from a hymn, he said, "May all men brothers be, the whole world round."

Councillor Ross Burtt, himself a Legionaire, represented Mayor James MacDonald at the service. Councillor Burtt said that the mayor regretted not being able to attend the service for health reasons, as he was keenly interested in all Legion activities.

John Silver said the lines of commemoration. Albert Cunnell was parade master. A Legion wreath was placed at the base of the Cenotaph by Kenneth Craddock, president of the Trenton Legion branch.

The Cenotaph service was held in the afternoon.

Sunday morning the Legionaires visited all the cemeteries in the area, placing wreaths on the graves of veterans.

Honor Teacher Retiring After 43 Years

TRENTON—Thirty-five local teachers and ex-teachers attended a dinner honoring Miss B. A. McKibbon, who is retiring this year after 43 years as a teacher here.

Miss McKibbon started teaching in 1918. For the first six years of her career, she taught at College Street School. In 1924 she was transferred to Dufferin Street School and has remained there since.

Among the guests of honor were Inspector C. E. McMullen who had taught at Dufferin school with Miss McKibbon, Miss Amelia Hayes, Mrs. Bill Shaw of Belleville, Mrs. Don Garrison of Belleville, and O. W. Larry, official representative of the many students who have come under Miss McKibbon's instruction. Miss Frances Vandervoort, Miss Eva Porter, Miss Florence Nelson and Miss Helen Bensley were unable to attend for health reasons.

Mr. Larry spoke briefly, outlining in the early years of his education, and paying tribute to Miss. McKibbon as a teacher without equal.

"Miss McKibbon gave me my first strapping," said Mr. Larry, and I imagine I deserved it."

V.P. Carswell, supervising principal of Trenton's public schools, who, for a number of years served as principal of College Street school, also spoke about Miss McKibbon's teaching record.

F. W. Sherbert, principal of Dufferin school, who has been associated with Miss McKibbon for many years, added his commendations.

TRENTON — George Neil Baker, 34, R.R. 4, Trenton, today was fined $100 in magistrate's court when he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident May 22 in which 72-year-old James Simpson of Trenton was killed by a car while walking along Dufferin Ave.

Baker was assessed $61 court costs and prohibited from driving a motor vehicle for six month.

Three Receive Minor Injuries In 2-Car Crash

TRENTON —Richard Ostrom, 7 Dixon Drive, a passenger in a car police said was driven by Donald Thompson, 22, of 169 Marmora Street, was treated in hospital Sunday for head cuts suffered when the vehicle was in collision with an auto police said was driven by Fred John Hilton, 175 King St.

Luther Perry, 43 Leopold St., another passenger in Thompson's car, suffered a bruised left arm. James Thompson, Front St., a passenger in Hilton's car, suffered a bruised right hip.

TAX INCENTIVES

Some of the speculation has included:

1. A broad range of tax incentives and other inducements to accelerate business activity.

2. Selective reductions of sales taxes for those industries facing heavy foreign competition.

3. Accelerated depreciation rates on capital investment in new machinery.

4. Tax incentives to encourage Canadians to invest in equity stocks of Canadian industries which figure prominently in the employment picture.

5. Major tax cuts and massive deficit spending as part of a vote-catching budget aimed at an election this fall.

6. A policy of easy money with low interest rates and a cheaper dollar.

7. Incentives to encourage more export activity by manufacturing industries.

8. Reduction or abolition of the 7½-per-cent excise tax on automobiles.

9. A possible increase in the old age pension — now $55 monthly to all those 70 and over —now that the old age security fund is operating out of the red for the first time in its history.

10. Tax exemptions for stepped-up research activity.

11. Creation of a national development fund from which secondary industries could borrow at low rates of interest.

An Act of Bad Faith

One of the niceties of chess is "zugswang," a perilously balanced state of affairs in which the defender has every threat effectively blocked, but in which he cannot make a move without removing the defence to one or other of several dangers.

This disastrous state of affairs is only created as the result of great skill and painstaking precision on the part of the attacker, who is, however, sometimes assisted by an over-cautious attitude by the defender and a refusal by him to face the realities of the position early in the struggle.

Even the most skillful of chess masters, however, would find it difficult to create as artistic a "zugswang" as that which is shaping up in Germany, the land in which the term originated. The chess masters would be hampered by the fact that they are required to play according to certain rules of the game, which establish whose turn it is to move. They could not, therefore, present the sort of double "zugswang" which is shaping up in connection with Germany, and particularly in regards to Berlin, in which it becomes increasingly possible that the side which moves first will lose, but in which it is not yet known who will be finally shouldered with this "burden of the move."

Latest manoeuvre in the effort to force the other side to disarrange a prepared position is Nikita Khrushchev's "fireside chat" call for a conference of all the Second World War allies on reunifying Germany.

That this is a move in bad faith is doubly plain because Khrushchev, after some lip service to the principle of a re-united Germany, was recently reported to have said that such reunification cannot occur in today's world. In this he was right, as any reasonable Western observer, provided he is not burdened with the necessity of maintaining good relations with West Germany, will agree. Khrushchev, therefore, is talking with his tongue in his cheek, not only in this call for a conference of the Allied powers, but also in his suggestion that in the meantime West Germany and East Germany carry on "private negotiations." In the first place, with respect to this latter suggestion, Khrushchev knows it is extremely unlikely that Herr Adenauer and company could ever agree to any arrangements which would meet with the approval of Comrade Ulbricht and his fellow communists—and vice versa. In the second place, if in a moment of aberration the opposing delegates forgot everything but the fact that they were Germans, it is extremely unlikely that the Allied powers would agree to accept any solution they might reach. Nothing would satisfy Khrushchev, in fact, but a united Germany, except a pro-Communist Germany, and even that might be unpalatable in the view of past history and the vivid memories of it which are retained by Germany's past victims, especially the now-satellite countries of Poland and Czechoslovakia. As for the Western powers, they would only accept a united Germany, which means an anti-Communist Germany.

Mr. Khrushchev's bad faith, unfortunately, is paired with, if not matched by, the refusal of the Western allies to face reality. The only alternatives to a re-thilfed Germany and the status quo are a divided Germany with which peace treaties have been signed. Yet, when Mr. Krushchev talks of signing a peace treaty with his half of Germany, the East, the Allies sometimes threaten to kick over the table. In chess kicking over the table is merely bad manners and sportsmanship; in international politics in the nuclear age this way of getting out of "zugswang" is more likely to result in oblivion for all that ostracism for one.

The only feasible solution of the German problem today would certainly involve a formal recognition of an existing fact—the division of Germany into two parts, one Communist, the other free. The difficulty here is the existence within the Communist area of an enclave of freedom, West Berlin. To provide a satisfactory solution would be difficult enough without Mr. Khrushchev's bad faith in calling for East-West Germany negotiations he knows can achieve nothing and the West's refusal to acknowledge the division of Germany, which has been a fact of German, and indeed European, life for over a decade and a half.

Be careful. Don't equate Communism or being Communist with African nationalism. We are anticolonialists . . . I think anticolonialism was invented by the United States of America President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana.

A judge is not supposed to know anything about the facts of life until they have been presented in evidence and explained to him at least three times—Britain's Lord Chief Justice Parker.

Visit To Montgomery, Ala.

By S.E. in the Winnipeg Free Press

I remember — it seems long ago but it was only during the bus boycott — going to Montgomery, Alabama, to see Martin Luther King.

I went into a department store and was surprised that the whites and coloreds shopped together. That morning I had watched from my hotel window long columns of Negro men and women walking to their work. They would not use the segregated buses. Negro car owners drove their neighbors to and from work.

But the department stores were desegregated.

It would be difficult, I had been told, to go simply to Martin Luther King's office. I got a reservation at the best hotel in town. I have the best captain come to my room. He would take a message to Dr. King who would tell me where and when.

But not how.

• • •

Outside the hotel I got into the back seat of a cab. A white man took the seat beside the driver, who said to me: "You first, friend, where to?"

Nobody knew where it was. In time another taxi driver booked it for a Negro section. The white man beside the driver leaned back to me. He stared for a moment, opened the door, got out, peered at me through the open window and said,

"... Nigger lover."

He slammed the door and took the other taxi.

• • •

The cab driver said: "Mister, what do you want in there?"

"You'll find a big Presbyterian church on the street. Take me there."

"Look friend, I won't take you there and a Negro cab won't pick you up and the buses are full and you don't know when they run and if you walk you'll get lost."

"I don't believe you. Take me to Nicholson St."

"This is your own, friend. Why don't you mind your own business?"

But in time he drove me to the church, talking all the time with unprintable words of bloodshed and another Civil War and many times he said, "Listen, friend."

At the church he said, "Listen, friend, I mean it about getting out of here. How long will you be?"

"About two hours."

"I'll come back for you. Don't pay me now. I'll tell you how I'll be back."

He came back for me, and on the drive from the church me to the capitol where the Confederate Congress had briefly ratified in the city that briefly had been the capital of the Confederacy. No, he said, he would not split blood to stop desegregation, though he was against desegregation.

"Most people wouldn't spill blood," he said, "but there are some who will."

He was a kindly man, afraid of social change, like a capitalist in a socialising country.

• • •

Next morning I went in see the man who was then police commissioner of Montgomery. I had been warned that he would "throw me out" and he looked as if he might have been able to do it. Thick, bull necked and rather like an overweight wrestler, he received me coldly and lapsed our conversation.

I was reliably informed that before he became police commissioner he had been in business as a termite exterminator. At the beginning of our conversation I felt a little like a termite.

• • •

When I asked my first question he said: "I'll answer questions. I'll read to you a message I have sent to the President after the murder of Patrick Henry."

He read it and had much difficulty with the longer words and I did not feel like a termite. My statement was read and pretentious and full of fine phrases about the sovereign rights of the states and the constitutional defence.

Then he talked about the old and gracious social customs of the south and about the "mongrel" who now was dealing on equality with "the Anglo-Saxons."

"We will not stand for the bastardization of the white race," said the commissioner sternly.

• • •

The commissioner spoke of "monkeys," of races inferior to ourselves, of the preservation of civilizations, of bloodshed and of the enforcement of law. And here "segregation is the law," he said.

During that week a young Methodist minister had spoken carefully about the Christian obligation to uphold the rule of federal law. His term expired soon and the officers of his congregation, in the midst of the controversy he provoked, had decided not to renominate him to the people. The officers voted 11-to-7 to ask him to stay. The congregation agreed.

It will be a great pity if we who are also full of and without pain, judge the whole south by her termite exterminators.

Good and Evil Hard to Know

Brantford Expositor

The now venerable founder and head of Moral Re-Armament, Rev. Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, is quoted from Caux, Switzerland, as declaring that there can be no neutrality in the present struggle between good and evil.

Speaking at his 83rd birthday, during the current three-month MRA conference, Dr. Buchman also expressed that man's sole chance of spiritual survival lay in a return to God.

Of Dr. Buchman's excellent intentions there is not the least doubt, but philosophers (and many others who do not assume to that status) may point out that unfortunately all things are not so simply ordered as Dr. Buchman seems to assume.

What is wise enough to say for certain what is good and what evil? There is something of goodness in things even as shakespeare and he is paraphrased by the noted 19th century philosopher Herbert Spencer, in his "First Principles."

Confidently the poet James Russell Lowell assured us that

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide

But a shrewder man, the Roman procurator of Judaea, Pontius Pilate, asked wisely, sardonically or searchingly, despondently or how you read the biblical text: "What is truth?" and the answer to that question is still being debated. Not yet, it seems has been fulfilled the promise in the third chapter of Genesis that we shall be as gods, knowing good and evil." In explaining, of course we must remember that this promise was made to Eve by the serpent.

Without sophistical quibbling, however, there is no doubt that Dr. Buchman identifies evil, in the present context, with Communism. Undoubtedly it is evil . . . and so . . . there are men and nations who do not see it are neutral in this fight. India, for instance, is not for us, but neither, on Prime Minister Nehru's assurance, is it for Communism.

Jesus said (Matthew xii:30), He that is not with me is against me"; and Dr. Buchman obviously preaches from this text. But he also noted that Jesus also said (Luke ix:50), . . . he that is not against us is for us." Perhaps he sees the neutrals appear in a different light.

The picture cannot be drawn in black and white, exclusively; there is no question of a blackness in between. Subjectid to examination, Communism may be neither as simple nor as arbitrary as we might wish.

This does not lessen the urgency of Dr. Buchman's convictions or reduce the potency of evil, be it in Communism or other elements. A lazy or indifferent neutralism is definitely from an alert and informed neutralism, which is a grave danger for those who harbor it. We of the West can not, dare not, afford to be neutral. . .

Gall Stones, Kidney Stones Are Not Exactly the Same

By Joseph C. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Recently you wrote that 'there's nothing known that will dissolve gall stones in human beings' dissolving the rest of us, too.'

"Does the same hold true for kidney stones and bladder stones? If so, why is an attempt made to dissolve bladder stones if they have to be crushed anyway? — M. R."

A cogent question.

Most bladder stones are crushed if they are too large to remove.

For stones high in the kidney there is a technique by which the stones can be treated with a special solution and they become smaller, either to be passed normally, or dissolved.

Not all kidney stones will react suitably to this treatment, and in any event it is prolonged, and one should be prepared to undergo it for a period of time.

The most certainly add that this is a relatively new procedure, so one should not expect to find it available everywhere. Like most new procedures, which require expert knowledge, the method cannot be taught by just sending out a bulletin. The technique itself has to be taught.

The difference between gall stones and kidney stones is, in an important way, a matter of fat. There's no way, short of a an operation, to get the gall bladder and whatever stones may be in it.

In the case of the bladder or kidney, the medication can be introduced to the proper place by way of the urine and it cannot be given by mouth.

However, the procedure is one which requires the skill of a specialist — in this case a urologist.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son, now almost three, just loves salt and sugar. Our doctor told me to stop him from eating too much. How to do it is a problem, but I want to know why he should want them so bad, and what harm too much salt and sugar can do? — C. H."

There's no physical "cause"; one has just happened to acquire a taste.

How to control it? Just allot him a reasonable amount and that's that! I know this works. At his age he is forming new habits more easily than older persons.

Harm? Perhaps no harm immediately, but it establishes a pattern that may affect what he may continue through life unless it is discouraged. Excess sugar is not good for young teeth or later in life it isn't good for the waistline. Excess salt may cause retention of water in the system which may not be fat, but it is weight. And in some diseases, as of heart or kidneys, excess salt may in later life be dangerous. A low-salt diet is doubly difficult for a heavy salt-eater, and very tasteless.

• • •

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a lump in both my breasts for years. I was a girl of 12, is it cancer? I have not been to a doctor because I am afraid. Please tell me what to do. — H. M. C."

Let's make a bargain. I'll tell you what to do, if you'll do it! Presence of lumps in both breasts is a very strong indication that it is not cancer. Changes would have been apparent over the years. So go to the doctor and find out about these lumps. The problem could, for example, be simple mastitis and require that nothing be done.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., for a reprint of my leaflet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Send a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of handling and postage.

Good Wishes For 'The Mary'

New York Times

Most people call her simply "The Mary," this gigantic superliner which has been such a unique role in the story of great shipping enterprises. But it is sailed more miles in the shuttle service between Southampton and New York than another ship, great or small.

In the early days of her career—now just past the 25-year milestone — she quietly departed from Atlantic ports on a faithful service in the urgent tasks of war, flanking ports in the farthest reaches of the seas she knew her incredible 81,000 ton bulk surrounded by the three towering stacks, whose enormous mass and black stripes had given way to her present camouflage.

Before the eastward troop movement across the Atlantic was ended, it had become commonplace to herd 15,000 men aboard. It was far too many, but The Mary got them to their destinations safely, packed in her vast decks. There were enemy submarine commanders who saw her ranking the sea, a prize mountain, alone, and too fast at 30-knots for torpedoes. Once in a crisis she moved with no escort and made much of its equipment to a weak point in the Middle East.

She was built like a ship in the old Cunard tradition, not only of reliable size but of barocque companions in the post-war years, but gracious appointments. It was that that makes men who love ships wish her many more years on the sea that she has made her own.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As we sat chatting in the garden of a highly-respected citizen, we could hear the telephone ringing insistently through the French doors of the living room. Nobody seemed to appear to notice.

"The phone is ringing." I informed him.

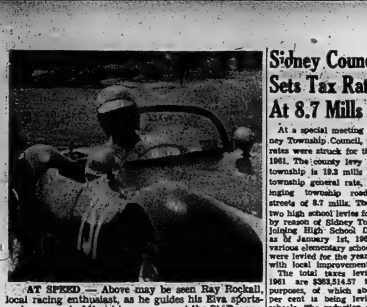
"Pay no attention," said he. "When I am in I am not home. I'm out."

After a dozen rings, it quit. A few minutes later, it rang again, over and over. My host ignored it and continued his conversation imperturbably.

"Would you like to see who it is?" I suggested, out of deference to his years.

"I'm out", he said, very explanatory.

"Mighn't it be something important?" I enquired. "your wife, maybe?"



"I'm out, can't you see?" he said quite seriously. "Why are you so concerned over the dang telephone? If it is important, they will certainly call me later. But it has been my experience that about seventy-five per cent of all telephone calls are a sheer waste of time. I'll bet a dollar I will phone up and run every time that thing rings."

It rang three times more before we went in to tea.

AT SPEED — Above may be seen Ray Rockall, local racing enthusiast, as he guides his Elva sports-racing car out of the chicane corner at the St. Eugene, Ont., racing circuit at a speed of close to 85 miles an hour. The St. Lawrence Automobile Club member was plagued by mechanical gremlins, unfortunately, and failed to finish.

Trenton Driver Is Winner At Montreal Car Club Meet

Two local sports car racing enthusiasts provided some thrilling racing for some 2,000 spectators at the Championship Races held at Connor Circuit, near St. Eugene, Ontario, by the Montreal M.G. Car Club yesterday afternoon. Both success and trouble touched the shoulders of the two district drivers.

Warren Kelly of Trenton, driving a Porsche Carrera Coupe, provided a very exciting duel with a Toronto driver, Klaus Bartels, driving a Porsche Speedster, in 1600 Improved Production event. The 150 horsepower, 90 cubic inch displacement engine of the Trenton enthusiast, sang a very sweet song of speed throughout the race and never faltered during the high pressed pursuit of the Bartels' Porsche for ten laps over the redesigned 1.5 mile circuit.

When the checkered flag ending the race came down it was given to the local driver for a well-earned first place overall as well as a first-in-class award.

In the Gran Turismo 10-lap race the Trenton and Toronto drivers were at it again with Kelly leading early in the race but Bartels overtook him about midway during the event, after having put on a particularly exciting display of driving, and managed to lead the Kelly Porsche home, leaving the district driver with second place overall honors and a second-in-class award. Mr. Kelly also picked up a fifth overall position during one of the earlier street-trap races in the afternoon.

Troubles followed Belleville enthusiast Ray Rockall with his Elva Mr. I sports racing car which is powered by an 85-horsepower Coventry Climax engine of some 66 cubic inch displacement. Although off to several very good starts during the day's racing schedule, minor gremlins under the hood plagued the progress of the usually swift car. An electrical connection which loosened foiled the first bid for victory by the local veteran of some five years' racing activity. During the under 1600 class event the Rockall-Elva contestant was having a very close dice with another Elva of a larger engine displacement, driven by Michael Harries of Montreal, when a fractured fuel line loosened the retirements of the Belleville entry while lying in second-in-class position.

Other members of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club's Scuderia Hysteria who did well during the day's racing, included Bill Aldey of Kingston, driving his Lotus Seven, who collected two first-in-class awards and a second place overall honor and Tony Polivka of Kingston Mills, with his own Formula Jr. car, who collected a second-in-class award.

Mrs. Robert Haker of Trenton were one-game high winners with a count of 42. The prizes were of high quality and thoroughly appreciated by the winners.

The women's section of the club served sandwiches, coffee and pie and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent.

On Wednesday a mixed trebles tournament will be held at Stirling and a number of rinks from the local club are making preparations to participate.

Bowling Notes

In perfect weather and on lightning fast greens, a mixed doubles tournament was held on the Lawn Bowling Club on Saturday afternoon. There were 28 rinks in play, gathered from Brighton, Kingston, Trenton, Madoc, Campbellford, and the local club. The bowling was exceptionally keen in all the games which were finished early in the evening. Two games were played in the afternoon and one in the evening under the direction of Orlo Smith and his committee.

Many compliments were received from the visiting bowlers on the condition of the greens for which the greens-keeper, Mr. Charles Matthews, and the greens chairman, Doug Rowe, can take the bulk of the credit. They have done an excellent job and it was a pleasure to play on them. Most of the greens are true with good turns on either hand.

Two of the local rinks were the top scorers in the tourney. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wright won the three-game high with a total of 53 plus seven, while Mrs. Twelna Fitzgibbon and Claude Tice were second with a count of 50 plus ten, while Mr. and Mrs. Mel Caverley of Madoc were third with a score of 44. Mrs. Geneva Mair and Ken Bulford of the local club won the two-game high with a score of 40 plus nine, while Mr. and

Sidney Council Sets Tax Rate At 8.7 Mills

At a special meeting of Sidney Township Council, the tax rates were struck for the year 1961. The county levy for the township is 19.3 mills with a township general rate, including township roads and streets of 8.7 mills. There are two high school levies for 1961, by reason of Sidney Township joining High School Districts as of January 1st, 1961. The various elementary school rates were levied for the year, along with local improvement rates.

The total taxes levied for 1961 are $383,514.57 for all purposes, of which about 70 per cent is being levied for schools. The reduction of mill rates in residential and farm assessments as the result of a per capita grant from the Province of Ontario amounts to 4.1 mills for 1961.

By-law 1463 was given its various readings, continuing the Township of Sidney tax rates for 1961.

There were 31 building permits issued during the month of May for a value of $134,700.00.

Notices of motion were given that by-laws are to be prepared appointing Gordon Plumbing Inspector and Plumbing Inspector for the Township of Sidney.

Mr. E. W. Andrews of Frankford, Page Higgins and Company, Township Auditors, presented the township audit and dealt with it in detail with members of council. A surplus of $1,753.53 for the year 1960 was revealed in the audit.

Members of council, representatives from the Ontario Water Resources, Bata Shoe Company, Gore and Storrie, consultant engineers and ratepayers of Betawe met in Batawa and discussed two sewage proposals prepared by the consulting engineers. The next meeting of Council will be held at Wallbridge on July 3rd, 7.30 p.m.

the railways were forced to accept the conciliation report in order to avoid a strike.

During the first three days of his appearance before the parliamentarians, there were few clashes between the short-tempered ex-banker and his Commons critics.

More touchy subjects were still on the agenda, however. They include the CNR's hotel operations, rail and telegraph services, purchase of trucking firms, and the expense accounts of senior executives, including Mr. Gordon.

One of the chief critics said after Saturday afternoon's sitting that he marvelled at the CNR president. He attributed it to the advance warning members had given Mr. Gordon that they should brook no nonsense.

"Railroading is the most fiendishly complicated business in the world," Mr. Gordon said Saturday afternoon when questioned about continuing unprofitably U.S. operations. "I don't think any member of Parliament is capable of analyzing the situation."

In previous years, he might have left it at that — and left committee members squirming. But Saturday he added:

"Next year, I will look into this whole subject again and try to get a simplified answer that makes sense. I will look into it my best."

He was peppered with questions about railway services and the fact that freight rates are applicable to both the CNR and the Canadian Pacific Railway. He was asked how the CNR could win business when rates were the same.

"By my gentle smile in comparison with Mr. Crump's gentle smile referring to CPR President N. R. Crump), and by the dulcet tones of my voice."

What about rattles and creaks on the trains?

"I've gone up and down a train with a screw - driver in my hand and with a little ingenuity I have found quite a few sources of noise myself. I don't think our maintenance people are doing as well as they can and I've told them to do better."

Wins Pattern-Picking Contest

A young Wellington housewife, Mrs. Wilfred Burrus, is the winner of a set of Wedgwood bone china dinnerware in a recent national "Pick Your Favorite Pattern" contest.

Ice Rose was the Wedgwood pattern picked by Mrs. Burrus and her reason in 25 words was judged by Wedgwood and Sons the winner in the Central Ontario district. The local district for the contest extended from Peterborough to Brockville.

"When I learned the size of the district in which I was competing, I almost chickened out", Mrs. Burrus said today during her visit to Stroud's in Belleville for the formal presentation of the set of dishes which she won.

North Hastings Man Instantly Killed in Crash

One North Hastings man was instantly killed and a second youth was seriously injured early Sunday morning when they were thrown out of their car on Highway 127, north of Maynooth, when it went out of control on a long curve.

Instantly killed was Lawrence Gorgerat, 23, of R.R. 1, Lake St. Peter. Injured, and in Bancroft Red Cross Hospital with concussion and broken shoulder is John Joseph Lavalley, also of Lake St. Peter.

Provincial police said that the two were southbound on Highway 127 in McClure township when the car, driven by the deceased man, went out of control on a long curve. The vehicle rolled over several times throwing both occupants out of the car.

Weddings

MAILMAN — RUSHLOW

At St. Thomas' Anglican church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 17 at 3 o'clock, Canon A. McConnell officiated at the marriage of Mildred Isabel Rushlow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rushlow, R.R. 7, Belleville, to Albert Carl Mailman of Wellington, son of Mrs. A. Mailman and the late Mr. A. Mailman.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride entered the church wearing a wedding dress of white taffeta, with nylon net overskirt, long sleeves ending in points over the wrist, V-neckline and a seed pearl tiara which held her fingertip veil. With this the bride carried a white prayer book with red rosebuds and streamers of white ribbon ending with rosebuds.

Her attendant was her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Pringle, who wore a strapy pink dress of nylon net over taffeta, pock tail length, white pillbox-style hat and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations tied with pastel colored ribbon.

The groomsmen was Mr. Gerald Pringle, of Belleville, and the ushers were, Mr. Carmen Cook, Trenton, and Mr. William Rushlow, Jr., brother of the bride.

The wedding music was played by the organist, Mr. Don Davenport, with a prelude of "Ava Maria" the processional was Mendelssohn's wedding march, and the recessional the wedding march from Wagner's "Lohengrin". Before the ceremony, Mrs. A. Downes sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register the soloist ofered "The Wedding Prayer".

Red roses and candles were on the altar.

The reception was held at the Kiwanis Centre where a three-tiered wedding cake, pink and white peonies and apple blossoms formed the decorations.

The bride's mother received, wearing a dress of blue figured satin with a side drape with white accessories, a corsage of white carnations and a white hat, flower-trimmed.

The bride and bridegroom are leaving in a few days for Winnipeg, where they will reside, the bride wearing an ensemble of green with white accessories for travelling.

Guests were present from Camp Borden; Trenton; Foxboro and Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a stag and personal shower at the home of Mrs. J. Berkhuizen, R. R. 7, a miscellaneous shower was also given by the White Cane club, of which the bride was president.

Bridge St. WA, WMS Hold Picnic Meet

Clear skies, warm sun and beautiful surroundings combined to make the picnic meeting of the Woman's Association and Woman's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church, an occasion to be long remembered.

With baskets of delicious hot dishes, salads and desserts, the members gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Fuke. Lawn chairs and tables on the smooth lawn withe its surrounding trees and hedges made a completely outdoor dining room where the luncheon was thoroughly enjoyed to the accompaniment of pleasant conversation.

Mrs. W. G. Anderson, president of the W.A., opened the meeting with a prayer which seemed more meaningful in God's great out-of-doors, and welcomed the guests and hostess for their generous hospitality were expressed by Mrs. Fairman.

Only necessary reports and business of both groups were dealt with.

APPRECIATION VOICED

Mrs. H. M. Davis, president of the W.M.S. voiced her words of appreciation and called on Mrs. E. Farnsworth, whose service of work was also on the 150th Psalm. "Praise Ye the Lord."

Mrs. Farnsworth said it was fitting that Christian women in such beautiful surroundings should lift their hearts in praise, since trees, flowers, birds and all nature join in bringing God from whom all blessings flow.

Winds in the channel of a small church are the words: "We would see Jesus." This is the objective of all church women. Unless we meet Jesus at our meetings, they are not worthwhile. Our greatest earthly treasures are not to be found in galleries of art, or in great works of music, but in the words of Jesus.

"In a world filled with fear, we find anxiety in the field of religion. Millions of the non-Christians of the world are seething with unrest and our only hope of survival is in the union of all Christians. There are hopeful signs of a closer understanding but, if Christians lack the inner light of the soul, the world will see no difference between the professing Christian and those without a Saviour. We are blessed God told his followers to "Bear one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ."

A prayer of penitence and dedication closed the devotional service.

Miss Helen Sulmen, who had been a delegate at the 29th annual meeting of the Presbytery Woman's Association gave an interesting report of helpful devotional services, stimulating reports and inspiring addresses.

PRESENTATION

Mrs. Anderson voiced the regret of all, that Rev. R. L. Sherwin and Mrs. Sherwin are leaving Bridge St. Church for service in another pastoral charge, behalf of the two organizations represented. Mrs. H. M. Davis presented them with a lamp. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin expressed appreciation for the many kindnesses shown them during their time of service in Bridge St. Church.

A brief sing-song was led by Mrs. J. Farrell. Miss Donna Robinson played several numbers on her piano accordion.

Mrs. H. F. Twiddy conducted the closing period before the members joined in the closing prayer which marked the end of a happy afternoon.

'Home Decor' Talk Given At W.F. Meet

At the June meeting of the Woman's Federation of Eastminster United Church, Mrs. Kenna Maybee, president, displayed a cheerful-looking quilt, and a warm, gaily-colored afghan, the first ones to be made by the ladies of the Federation. These two articles are to be included in a bale to be sent to the post workers. Miss Lodie Mayova, in Montreal, who forwards them to refugees and immigrants who are entering Canada.

Mrs. Frieda Bell read a most interesting letter from Miss Mayova, telling about her work there.

Mrs. Doris Glover read a letter from the missionary for prayer, who thanked the ladies for the bale of children's clothing which had been sent to her for distribution to needy families in her charge.

Mrs. Faye Wood reported on plans for the chicken barbecue which is to be held in September and gave out tickets to the group leaders for sale.

NEXT PROGRAM

The program for the evening was in charge of Mrs. June Hutchinson. At the conclusion of the worship period, she introduced Mr. Hugh Farrow, who spoke to the ladies on "Interior Decorating."

Mr. Farrow emphasized the importance of decorating in making a house into a home. Then he spoke on the use of color and color schemes to provide suitable backgrounds, not only for furniture and furnishings, but also for the people who live in the rooms.

"Wallpaper has gained much in popularity in the last few years, said Mr. Farrow, particularly since improvements have been made in the manufacture of the new pre-pasted wallpaper." He went on to tell of the many advantages of wallpaper and showed samples of new designs, of vinyl-coated wallpapers with matching drapery material and of wood fabric paper that is washable, not only for cleaning and is much less expensive. At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Farrow showed a short film demonstrating the use of color to give different effects in the decorating of a room.

Mrs. Meta Williams thanked the speaker.

Ladies of Mrs. Hutchinson's group served lunch during the social period, which concluded the meeting.

Two Columnists of Sun In Fight to Raise $6,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver Sun columnists are waging a good-natured fight to raise $6,000 needed to finance an 18-month trip he Ghana by two Vancouver home economics teachers under the auspices of the B.C. Peace Corps.

Sports columnist Dick Beddoes and society columnist Evelyn Caldwell, known as Penny Wise, have taken on the task of raising the money through appeals to their respective readers.

The winner will be declared July 1 on the basis of how much money they have been able to collect. The loser has agreed to write the winner's column for one week. The Sun has agreed to match all contributions up to a total of $1,500.

The two teachers, Judy Foote, 27, and Jocelyn King, 22, go to Ghana in September in what the B.C. Peace Corps hopes will be the first of a continuous flow of

...R/O and Mrs. Robert Arnold are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church. The bride is the former Yvonne Elenor Skinner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Skinner of R.R. 1, Bloomfield. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Arnold of Dundas, Ontario.

ARNOLD — SKINNER

A lovely June wedding was solemnized in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill Anglican Church, Saturday, June 3rd, when Yvonne Elenor Skinner of Bellleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Skinner of R. R. 1 Hallowey, was united in marriage to Flying Officer Robert Harold Arnold, Dundas, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Arnold of Dundas, Ontario. The Rev. L. Arthur Page officiated at the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with white and pink flow...tions adorning the altar, with white satin bows designating the guest pews. Mr. Robert Burke sang, "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Lyle Skinner, was radiantly lovely in a floor-length gown of white embroidered lace over satin with fitted bodice, scalloped neckline trimmed with sequins and seed pearls and long pointed lace sleeves. Her headdress was a crown effect with embroidered flowers, sequins and seed pearls, having an elbow length veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Helen Moynes of Belleville and the bridesmaids, Miss Jacqueline Skinner, sister of the bride, Belleville and Mrs. Doris Mutchie, Belleville, were alike in fairly attired in white brocade over pink satin with crown effect headdresses and shoulder length veils trimmed with seed pearls.

Little Sharon Moynes was daintily dressed in similar details to the bridesmaids, and carried a basket of pink tinted ...mums. The ring bearer was Ricky Stubble.

The groomsman was Mr. Edward Stubble, Belleville Ontario and the ushers were Messrs. Robert Love of Petrolhold, Alberta, and Yvon Bolvin of Downsview.

Following the ceremony the reception was held at the Hotel Quinte where the bride's table was prettily appointed in white damask cloth centred with an all-white four-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and white wedding bells.

Following the reception, dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

For travelling to Seattle Falls St. Lawrence Seaway, and points in the United States, the bride chose a mauve linen suit with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Penhold, Alberta; Dundas; Hamilton; Galt; Rossport; Goderich; Cookville; Roslin; Latta, and Belleville, Ontario.

Prior to her marriage the bride was entertained at miscellaneous showers held by Mrs. Doris Hubble...Miss Shirley Wilson and friends of Northern Electric and one by Mrs. Helen Moynes.

The young couple will reside at 40 Braddock Rd. Wes...ton Ontario.

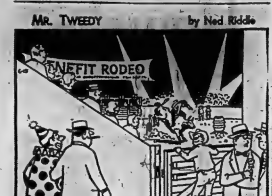
QUESTION AND ANSWER



Question — I've are facing a family crisis and I am so worried about it. I wonder if you can help us out. Your advice has been so helpful in the past, I hope you can save the day! My husband and I were divorced five years ago. We had been married twenty-two years. Our daughter is to be married in July. She has made her home with me since the divorce. She is very friendly with her father and I am certainly on polite terms if not very warm towards him. He has contributed towards her support and is now footing all bills for the wedding. He wishes to give her away and attend the reception following the ceremony. This is what our daughter wants, and it it certainly all right with me.

Our problem is that he wishes to bring a woman he married last year. None of us have met her, and we all dread having her present. It may prove embarrassing for all concerned. If she does come, where would she sit in the church and what would we do with her at the reception? — Mrs. L. N. W., Baltimore, Md.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am dreading the summer. We have a lovely cottage in Muskoka, but it's no fun for me. My husband invites a friend to fish with him, couples drop in for the weekend, and my children have pals who stay with them.

I stay in the cottage while they go fishing or swimming or just for a walk, and do all the work. I guess they think the meals appear by magic. — KITCHEN SLAVE.

DEAR KITCHEN SLAVE—If you don't put a word in for yourself, nobody else will. Your husband would probably be amazed to hear how you feel.

This is an old story. The women who have solved it have organized the work and assigned it fairly to all comers. Every child and every visitor has a set task and does it. Presented properly, everyone is glad to help.

Point out soon after arrival—or at the end of the first meal and when it is time to start on the dishes—that this is everybody's holiday and that if the work is shared you can all get to your pet diversion sooner. Have a written list of chores and write a name beside each.

Don't let the willing workers deprive would-be slackers of jobs. Don't let the men sneak off for golf until they have done their share. And don't be too blessed particular about every scrap of dust.

DEAR DORIS:—When I was at high school I was a poor student. Instead of pushing me, my mother told me I would get along all right because I had such a lovely disposition. I was popular with everybody and seldom did my homework.

I never got through high school. Now I am married and feel I have been cheated of an education. I blame my mother. Am I being fair?—SUNNY.

DEAR SUNNY—People have been riding along on the advantage of attractive personality ever since Eve misled Adam. The catch is that sooner or later the lack of character comes and they are not ready.

Your mother and others would have helped you more to have insisted on some balance between studies and fun. You could have developed lifelong habits of study and concentration. Unless you tackle the problem now through reading good books and taking courses extramurally, you may never learn how to learn.

There is some comfort in knowing that many outstanding men and women have gained an education out of books long after shortened or misspent school days.

South Hastings Baseball

Latta took a 5-0 lead and held off a late Read rally to register a close 5-4 South Hastings baseball league win over the weekend.

Lorne Crookwright received credit for the win, pitching no-hit ball until the sixth. Stan Reid took over on the seventh. They allowed four hits between them, Crookwright striking out five and Reid four. They walked a total of five.

Basil Hanley went the route for Read, allowing 11 hits, whiffing six and passing five.

Frank Ray, Gary Gow and Bob Sullivan each had two singles to pace the Latta attack. One each went to Wayne Gow, Crookwright, Howard Skelly, Art Wright and Don Harris.

Read hitters were Tom Calnery, Gerry Brennan, Percy Mulligan and Basil Hanley.

FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

If it isn't a ball game it's a parade, or a picnic. It takes time to be a good father.

But being a good father also calls for time out—for only an hour or so—to make sure that the financial provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. Are you sure your family will be cared for no matter what?

Now, Metropolitan, the company you look to for authoritative information on physical health, offers you a way to check your financial health—the Family Security Check-Up.

More than an interview—a service

Your Metropolitan representative has been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and is qualified by solid experience to bring you this service. He is equipped with scientifically designed charts and tables that show you, in black and white, exactly where you stand.

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES FOR YOU

Family Security Check-Up

With the help of your Metropolitan man—

1. You check the facts: your pension plan, your home, your life insurance, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.
2. You weigh your responsibilities: mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.
3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points . . . whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in frogfoot you.
4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions —one which makes good sense for you.

Jets Take Loop Lead, Leafs Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charleston Marlins broke a six-game losing streak—but not quick enough. They find themselves out of the International League's top spot today for the first time since their transfer from San Juan last month.

Columbus Jets, who took over first place Saturday night, held on Sunday when they split a double header with Syracuse Chiefs while Charleston divided a pair with Buffalo Bisons. Columbus won the first game 6-4 and lost the nightcap 6-5. Charleston turned back Buffalo 4-3 after losing 11-10.

Home runs powered Rochester Red Wings to 4-3 and 12-2 victories over Richmond Virginians. Jersey City Jerseys and Toronto Maple Leafs split, the Leafs taking the first game 7-4 and the Jerseys the nightcap 11-5.

On Saturday Leafs shut out the Jerseys 5-0, Buffalo edged Charleston 4-3, Rochester beat Richmond 7-4 and Columbus shut out Syracuse 5-0.

HAVE 16 HITS

The Bisons pounded out 16 hits Sunday, including Felix Torres' 11th home run of the season, to whip Charleston in the opener. Dick Ricketts notched his seventh victory. John Giesa's two-run homer in the eighth inning of reliever Max Surkont salvaged the Marlins' split. Giesa's homer, his ninth, pinned the first defeat on Surkont, who had won five straight.

Home runs by Roman Mejias and Nino Escalera won the 10-inning opener for Columbus. Ed Sada and Roberto Herrera also homered for the Jets.

Frank Lejo's seventh - inning home run broke a 3-3 tie and salvaged the final game of a five-game series for Syracuse.

Bobby Johnson's 11th home run in the eighth inning provided the winning margin for Rochester in the opener. Barry Shetrone's homer with one man on in the first inning of the nightcap gave the Red Wings a lead they never lost. Jesse Gonder hit three home runs for Richmond, two in the first game.

WON HIS THIRD

Ken Johnson, backed up by an 11-hit Leaf attack that included Steve Demeter's 16th home run, won his third game in the opener although he needed relief help.

The Leafs scored three runs in the first inning of the nightcap but the Jerseys tied the score with three in the fourth, added two more in the fifth and six more in the sixth.

Jim Pendleton, the league's leading hitter with a .350 average, led the Jersey attack with a home run, a bases - loaded triple and a single. Catcher Danny Kravitz also homered.

SETS RECORD

LACONIA, N.H. (AP) — Joe Leonard of San Jose, Calif., set a record of 1:40:52.13 Sunday in winning the 100-mile United States National Championship motor cycle race. The previous record was 1:42:11.84, Bud Koehler of New Dundee, Ont., placed ninth.

Half Mile Record Set By Bruce Kidd

Kidd, representing East York Track Club, won the half-mile in one minute 53.3 seconds, chipping seven - tenths of a second off Al Andrews' Canadian interscholastic record.

Bill Crothers, also of East York, recorded the fastest quarter - mile of the day at 47.4 seconds and erased the native mark of 47.5 established 14 years ago by Bob McFarlane of the University of Western Ontario.

Francis Smith of Cornell University bettered the junior open quarter - mile standard held jointly by Crothers and Ernas Lepa, winning the event in 48.3 seconds.

Toronto Track Club's Don McCarten edged out Bob Patterson of Woodbridge High School in a photo finish over 440 yards but both men were given a time of 48.4 seconds and shares in a pair of records — the Canadian inter - scholastic and the junior - native quarter - mile records.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Our Hope finished first by a head over Kelso, 1960 Horse of the Year, in the $56,000 Whitney Stakes at Belmont Park Saturday, but Kelso was hailed during the furious stretch drive and was declared the winner.

It was the ninth consecutive victory for Kelso. Reinzi was third.

Kelso, owned by Mrs. Richard C. du Pont, paid $8.80, $3.80 and $2.10. Our Hope returned $4.70 and $2.80 after starting at 15-to-1, and Reinzi, a 19-to - 1 shot, paid $3.70 to show.

At Inglewood, Calif., Sea Orbit came up with a great rush in the stretch to beat Dress Up and First Balcony in a driving finish and win the $54,850 Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Sea Orbit returned $8.40, $4.80 and $3.30, Dress Up paid $11 and $5.30, and First Balcony paid $2.90 to show.

At Staten, Del., Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away outran eight rival three-year-olds and captured Delaware Park's $45,000 Leonard Richards Stakes. Hitting Away returned $12.60, $6.80 and $4.80. Orienna Dage $10.40 and $6.60, with Tutankhamen $4.80 to show.

Budd Beats Jerome in 100 Dash

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Budd won his showdown duel with Canadian Harry Jerome in the 100-yard dash and Dyrol Burleson ran the mile in 4:00.5 during the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association's track and field championships Saturday.

Budd's time in the 100 was 9.4 seconds, compared to 9.5 for Jerome, who runs for the University of Oregon although he is from Vancouver. Budd also won the 220-yard sprint in 20.8. Jerome didn't qualify for the finals in that one.

Both Budd and Jerome, a Canadian Olympian, tied the 100-yard world record of 9.3 this spring.

The team championship in Saturday's meet was won by the University of Southern California.

Burleson set the American mile record of 3:57.6 last month. His 4:00.5 clocking Saturday smashed the meet record of 4:03.5 set by Ron Delany in 1958.

Cupid Thins Rider Ranks

John Joseph (Joe) Poirier, a defensive halfback with the Big Four club, married Gail Lois Fournier of Ottawa in St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church here.

Poirier is the third Rider to be married this month. Preceding him to the altar were quarterback Russ Jackson and fullback Dave Thelen.

Lacrosse

BROOKLIN (CP) — Brooklin Hills Pats defeated Niagara Falls 13-5 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior game here Saturday.

COLONIAL FUNDS

Grants and loans for colonial development and welfare approved in the United Kingdom totalled $9,727,000 in the first quarter of 1961.

The Trots

MONTREAL (CP) — Speedy Pick paced a 2:03 mile Sunday to win the $5,000 invitation pace at Richelieu Park raceway.

Driven by Charles Fitzpatrick the eight - year - old bay gelding is owned by Elms Hen Stables of Dagsboro, Del. He paid $4.60, $2.70 and $2.40.

Southern Charm ran second to pay $4.50 and $2.80 and So Long's Prince finished third to pay $4.20.

What makes TORONTO-DOMINION different from any other Canadian bank?

All banks provide you with the same kind of services. You name it. The Savings Accounts, the Safety Deposit Boxes, the Night Depositories or any number of the services we provide can be found at our competitor's branch, just across the street.

So why should you choose Toronto-Dominion as your bank?

The answer is simple.

We have the FRIENDLIEST TELLERS in banking

This is Iris Loney, a teller, at our busy Bloor and Sherbourne branch in Toronto. Iris has been with "The Bank" for 3½ years and has learned her job well. She likes meeting people too, and takes a genuine interest in her customers and their banking problems. Her friendly, efficient attitude has been reflected many times over in the number of friends she's won for "The Bank".

It doesn't matter where you go in Canada, you'll find people like Iris Loney at every branch of "The Bank". They take a great deal of pride in their work and in the kind of "interested" service they have to offer. We have often talked about our girls being "the nicest girls in banking". Why don't you make it a point to visit your nearest branch of "The Bank" and see for yourself? You'll be delighted when you discover how much…

Ford Wins No. 11 But Tigers On Top

Indians Split Hold Second

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York Yankees' manager Ralph Houk looks more like a genius each time he pitches Whitey Ford, and the stylish lefty with never won more than 18 games when given plenty of rest has won 11 under a new system of work every fourth day.

Ford beat an old New York nemesis Sunday when the Yanks knocked out Detroit Tigers' Frank Lary en route to a 9-0 victory. Whitey allowed only three hits and struck out 12, taking over the American League lead with 84. Luis Arroyo finished up after Ford developed a blister on his pitching hand.

Despite Ford's pitching and Yankee slugging, Detroit held first place with a half - game margin over Cleveland. The Indians missed a chance to take over the lead when they lost to Baltimore Orioles 7-5 in the second game after winning the opener 2-1 on Bob Nelman's pinch single. The Yanks in third place are a full game off the pace.

The onrushing Chicago White Sox took two from Minnesota Twins, 4-3 and 10-7, making it 10 victories in their last 12 outings. The Twins have lost 25 of their last 31. The second game was marred by a squabble between pitcher Camilo Pascual and first baseman Bob Allison of the Twins.

Homers by Billy Goodman, his first since 1959, and Nellie Fox, his first of the year, did the job in the opener.

GRAND SLAM HELPED

A total of 13 runs were scored in the ninth inning of the first Boston-Washington game, finally won by the Red Sox 13-12, scoring eight runs after two were out with the help of Jim Pagliaroni's grand slammer.

Willie Tasby hit a homer with the bases full in the Washington half of the ninth. Pagliaroni also won the second game 6-5 with a home run in the 12th.

Del Rice's pinch homer run enabled Los Angeles Angels to tie Kansas City Athletics in the ninth and his two - run homer in the 11th was the winner for the Angels 5-3.

In Saturday's action, Los Angeles downed Kansas City 3-2, Chicago defeated Minnesota 5-1 and Boston edged Washington 6-5. Baltimore belt Cleveland 4-1 and Detroit downed New York 12-3.

The Yanks hit two homers and scored four runs off Lary before he was lifted in the third inning before a Detroit crowd of 44,492. Johnny Blanchard hit two homers and Bill Skowron and Roger Maris one each. Ford now has won five in a row and seven out of eight for an 11-2 record.

ORIOLES BROKE EVEN

Nieman's pinch hit gave Jim Perry the first game at Cleveland but an eight - run rally in the second inning, routing Gary Bell, earned the Orioles an even break. Cleveland had knocked out Jack Fisher and scored five runs in the first inning of that second game.

Dick Hall pitched eight shutout innings in relief but the victory was given to Stu Miller who got the side out after Fisher flopped.

After unexpected homers by Goodman and Fox had won the first game for Chicago, the White Sox clubbed Pascual and two successors for 14 hits in the second. Pascual and Allison got into a dugout argument after Allison went to the pitcher to keep a runner close to the base. Turk Lown and Ray Herbert were the Chicago winners.

They had a wild day in Boston. In the opener Washington scored five in the ninth to open up a 13-5 lead only to have the Red Sox score eight after two were out. Pagliaroni broke up the second with a line drive homer into the screen, leading off the 13th inning against Tom Sturdivant. Pagliaroni's grand slammer was the big blow of the first - game rally. He had won Saturday's game over Washington with a pinch homer.

Rice was the whole show for the Angels, handing Art Fowler his first victory of the year. After his pinch homer in the ninth, Rice slammed a two - run blast over the left field fence in the 11th. Both came off loser Norm Bass.

Blue Light Wins Queen's Plate

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — If a horse fly had perched on the nose of Just Don't Shove Saturday, the 182nd running of the Queen's Plate would have gone down in history as the first dead heat. That's about the margin the favored Conn Smythe colt was beaten by longshot Blue Light. The finish was the closest and most spectacular of any Plate race that old - timers in the crowd of 28,362 could remember. And the day was complete when 80-year-old Col. R. R. Marshall walked smartly across the track at New Woodbine and into the winner's enclosure to signal his first Plate victory.

The chairman of the Jockey Club had been trying to make this short walk for nearly 50 years. In that time he had sent "a dozen or so" horses to the post but never was able to finish in the money.

All those frustrating years were eliminated in the two minutes and five seconds it took Blue Light to complete the course and when he collected the second biggest purse in Plate history — $48,475, the Queen's 50 Guineas (about $170) and the $5,000 Cup — he immediately voted it "the happiest day of my life."

The victory was a first for the Marshall stable all around — for trainer Pat MacMurchy who was "too keyed up to look" at the race which attracted 13 Canadian - bred three - year - olds and for Hugo Dittfach, the 27 - year - old German - born jockey who lives in Calgary. Additionally, it was the world with 2,517 firsts, made his fourth Plate appearance in 21 years as a Plate jockey and he still has to attain his ambition of winning the classic of Canadian racing.

"I knew I was beat on the last jump," he said.

The crowd whooped it up when the finish number was flashed on the board and the longshot bettors cashed in handsomely. His $20 ticket grew to $10.60 and $4.80 and Just Don't Shove, second in the betting entry with Jammed Lucky was a 7-5 favorite. He paid $3.80 and $2.50.

Hamblin Wreck, second betting favorite paid $3 for his third - place showing. Many in the crowd liked this bay gelding but he never got within sniffing the pace and another 2½ lengths ahead was P. Taylor's Victoria Regina.

The pace of the field was nowhere. Jammed Lucky, considered by many experts as the horse to beat, finished ninth and Taylor had two other entries besides Victoria Regina. Queen's Park finished sixth and Flashing Top was ninth.

The mutuel handle set a one - day Canadian record. It totalled $1,136,173 topping the previous best $1,074,027 established on Plate day three years ago. The betting on the plate was also another record—$214,280 against $206,371 wagered on the 1957 Plate.

Littler Wins U.S. Open

By JERRY LESKA

BIRMINGHAM Mich. (AP)— Pro golf's roaming tribe will be led by newly - crowned U.S. Open champion, Gene (The Machine) Littler, into the $50,000 Western Open which starts Thursday at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Instead of South African Gary Player, the leading Professional Golfers Association money-winner, and faltering Arnold Palmer — still second in the cash list as the 30-year-old Littler will be the man in the spotlight in this shift of the golf circuit from eastern to western Michigan.

By his 281 triumph in the Open at hicky Oakland Hills course Saturday, Littler vaulted from 34th to fourth place in the PGA money list.

Littler's one - stroke victory in a gusting, double finish was worth $14,000 to put his year's earnings at $27,966. Player, who finished the open in a three-way tie for ninth at 287, continues at top official money - winner with $53,704.

Palmer, who now has been jerked off the Master's throne —by Player in April — and untested at U.S. Open play by the rejuvenated Littler, picked up $800 for his three - way tie for 14th at 289, to hold second in the cash race at $45,585.

Palmer started too late with too little after rounds of 74-75, to match the roaring finish from seven strokes off the pace which gave him the 1960 U.S. crown.

Only other cash - collector ahead of Littler was PGA sweepstakes now is Doug Sanders, the man who didn't make $1 in Saturday's hectic Stoning Open double - round.

Sanders had a 14-foot birdie putt rim the 71st hole and trickle a foot away which cost him a potable tie with the already - finished Littler and placed him alone with Bob Goalby at 282. Sanders' $6,000 haul gave him a 1961 total of $55,531.

In seven previous Opens, Littler had won a total of only $6,860.

He attributed some of his success in his 73-68-73-68 Open conquest to a tip from fellow pro Ted Kroll. "Kroll mentioned before the tournament, that I swing a little more upright and direct," said Littler. "I was swinging too flat and hitting the ball in the neck."

Two old - timers, four - time winner Ben Hogan and Sammy Snead, now deprived of the Open title in 21 successive tries, finished with 289 and 290 respectively.

Although generally heralded as a "monster," Oakland Hills 6,907 - year par 70 layout was beaten by 18 sub - par rounds in the weekend's competition.

MAKE FINAL PLANS

CHICAGO (CP)—A National League expansion committee decides today on final plans for supplying New York Mets and Houston Colts with baseball player talent for the 1962 season. The committee will then submit its plans to league owners for final approval.

Soccer Mob Roughs Ref.

TORONTO (CP) — An angry mob of fans rushed on to the field Saturday night and roughed up linesman Kelly Haupt after an Eastern Professional Soccer League game.

Haupt was punched and kicked by fans who protested that Toronto City's last goal in a 3-1 victory over Toronto Italia should have been called offside.

Later league president Harold Ballard announced Italia goalkeeper Gianni Di Davide had been fined $25 for actions leading to the uproar.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was pre-race time at shedrow at the Fair Grounds Saturday evening. The sun shone down warmly on the lush greens of the infield. Across the way the harness-racing crowd was slowly filling into the grandstand.

There was the usual hum of activity along the row. Knots of horsemen, some, grey-thatched veterans, others younger, talked "shop". Sleek standard-breds thrust soft muzzles from stall doors. Inside, drivers and owners were giving last-minute attention to their race entries.

The program informed me that a woman owner-driver was scheduled to start in the first race. Several women strolled along shedrows, wives or daughters of owners or drivers. None were silks or the jaunty cap of a harness-horse driver.

I inquired at a nearby stall where a blanketed horse was getting attention to a foot. Three men stood near the door. I asked one of them if he could direct me to the lady I was seeking. He inclined his head toward the horse.

Squatting near the left forelock of the animal was an overall-clad figure. A dusty cap covered her short-cropped hair. I spoke and Miss Retia Herrington looked up, smiled "Be with you in a minute" and expertly attached a quarter-boot to the horse's leg. She then, patted the horse's muzzle and a pleasant smile wiped the look of surprise off my face.

Miss Herrington, five-foot-two, and 125 pounds of slim womanhood is an attractive young lady who talks "horse" like a kitchen wife airs recipes and dinners.

Her face is deeply tanned from riding the harriman desk and harness sulky. She wears no racing silks and cap as jauntily as a derby dowager does her sunk. She lives, talks and breathes horses, salties and her equine family.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Roy Herrington, R.R. 3, Brighton, and the late Roy Herrington, who was well-known as a horse-show enthusiast. She has nine brothers and five sisters, and lives at home alone with her mother.

Horse-minded since birth, Miss Herrington had a secret yearning, to raise, own and drive her own harness. Twelve years ago she determined to reach the goal. Today she owns her own brood mare "Lu Helen" and has raised seven of her offspring.

These include "Lu Attorney," "Billy Sunday H", "Lu Dale," which she sold, "April H", "Danny H" and a beautiful thirty-day-old filly "May Chief."

She started her "horse" career by operating a starting gate car. Then she had a chance to drive—took it —loved it and she was away.

On the farm near Brighton she intrepid young woman breeds, raises and nurtures her equine family. She trains them on a small track near the Herrington barn. She has been driving professionally for the past four years.

Winners? Not too many thus far. "But I have always been able to finish in the money." She proved that when a dozen Saturday night when her entry "Billy Sunday H" finished second and third in the first race heats.

She is becoming a well-known figure on Ontario tracks. She has raced at all the principal meets and county fairs and caused veteran harness-racing eyes to widen with exceptional driving performances at the Toronto Woodbine.

She has had her spills and thrills. Twice she has been thrown from the sulky in the nonchalance of a heat. Bruised, yes, but no broken bones. She takes these things in her stride. They are part of racing's hazards. In the sulky she has proven fearless, confident and competent. She drives to win.

She is one of five woman drivers in Ontario. Last summer she "gals" raced in a "Powder Puff Derby." It was a success and they tried it again. Miss Herrington finished second and fourth.

The mates of the driver species respect her ability. She gets no favors and asks none. In the sulky on the track behind the starting gate she is just another driver. That is the way she wants it to be—and that's the way it is.

The next time you see "Billy Sunday H" driving his way hard through the pack to the front and usually getting there, look at the driver. It is just another figure in silks but underneath is Retia Herrington, a young lady who has a hobby and loves nothing better than to indulge in it.

Reds Crush Phils Twice, Up Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Reds, continuing their rough - handed treatment of Philadelphia, pounded out two lopsided victories over the Phillies Sunday to put their National League lead to 1½ games.

Led by Gene Freese, a former Phillie, and his seven hits, the Reds picked up their 11th and 12th wins over Philadelphia for the season with 7-3 and 10-6 scores.

After Sunday's action, San Francisco Giants, a 7-2 winner over Chicago Cubs, was second only to Los Angeles Dodgers beaten 10-3 by Milwaukee Braves were two full games off the pace.

Howie Nunn's fine rescue pitching, no runs in 7⅔ innings in relief of Jim Maloney, earned him his second victory. Jim O'Toole pitched a unique 10-hit shutout in the second game. Don Ferrarese and Chris Short were the losers.

Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda each hit three-run homers for San Francisco, giving Juan Marichal his fifth victory. Don Cardwell, Dick Lemay, a rookie southpaw from the Texas League, gave up only two hits in four shutout relief innings for the Giants.

Milwaukee hit five home runs in a romp over the Dodgers. Hank Aaron, .537 Adcock and Frank Thomas tagged loser Don Drysdale for successive homers in the third. Aaron also Banana-bunch finishes highlighted the second seasonal meet of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club here Saturday night.

Featuring the meet was the eighth straight heat win of "Johnny Dale" in the "B" Classified race. The horse set the fastest pace of the night finishing in 2:14 and three fifths in the second heat.

Finishing a close second in both heats of the race was stablemate "Bud Phonograph". Both horses were pushed to the wire by "Betty Renown" owned and driven by Don Gallucher of Kingston.

"Johnny Dale" and "Bud Phonograph" are owned by John Ball of Baltimore Ont.

"Atomic Selka" owned by Quinte News of Trenton and driven by Irvin Ness paced the field in the first heat but "Dalemite" owned and driven by Ken Weeks flashed from the pack to nose "Selka" by a neck.

The Ness horse was not to be denied in the second heat. It raced to the lead at the quarter and was never headed.

Dalemite challenged on the back stretch but Miss Retia Herrington driving "Billy Sunday II" took over second place coming home. "Atomic Selka" won the heat by two lengths in the slow time of 2.19 and three fifths.

In the "C Classified" two heats, "Linda MacDuff" "Jimmy Belwin" and "Blacklock's Pride" had the grandstand at its feet with thrilling last-length finishes.

The Art MacDonald - owned "Linda" nosed M. Wempe's "Jimmy Belwin" by a half-length in the first heat with Larry Zebedee's "Pride" at the withers in third place.

It was another cluster finish in the second heat with "Blacklock's Pride" leading "Linda MacDuff" by a half length, while the same distance back was "Jimmy Belwin."

An off-the-beat thrill for the big grandstand crowd fan furnished by a trotter who "broke" early and galloped half-way around the track in a Queen's Picte frolic.

TVs meet was capably handled by an outof-town panel of officials with the heats sent on their way by the R. Mitchell, Brighton, starting apparatus.

The next Quinte Driving and Riding Club meet is scheduled for Saturday, July 8th.

Cobourg Nips Flyers

COBOURG (Special) — Cobourg Merchants shoved across three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning here Saturday night to edge the RCAF Flyers 3-2 in an exciting B. and D. softball league fixture.

The win hoisted the Merchants into second place and left the Flyers deep in the cellar.

The teams battled through seven scoreless innings before RCAF took a 2-0 lead in the eighth on an error, a fielder's choice and Roger Drake's triple.

RCAF pitcher Bob Butterfield ran into control trouble in the ninth. With one away Dawe doubled and Campbell was safe on an error. Mitts filled on but Thompson and Lingard walked, Will Kennedy skupled and Butterfield walked Turpin to force in the winning run.

Jim "Sleepy" Dawe pitched a four-hitter to get the win, striking out 11 and walking two. Loser Butterfield gave up seven hits, fanned four and walked three, all in the ninth.

Dick Turpin starred for Cobourg, collecting two singles, handling nine fielding chances without error and forcing in Silly was replaced by Bob Miller in the ninth inning while winning his third, a 10-hitter. The losers were Curt Simmons in the first and Joe Gibbon in the second.

Score Was 14-12

Kenmors Shade Orono

By PETER CARVER

The Belleville Kenmore extended their winning streak to three straight games by edging the league's leading Orono nine 14-12 in a free-hitting sloppily played Lakeshore Baseball League tilt yesterday afternoon at the Fairgrounds.

The Kenmore' bats boomed out sixteen hits while the losers connected for nine base knocks. Orono's errors surely aided the Kenmor cause as they booted the ball around eight times.

Don Masters was the winning pitcher relieving Billy Moxon in the sixth inning. Larry Soden started for the Kenmore but gave way to Moxon in the second stanza. The Belleville pitchers struck out twelve and walked sixteen.

Keith West started for Orono. He was relieved by Hare in sixth who took the loser; Jones came on in the seventh inning. They whiffed three and passed five.

Back-to-back home runs by Goyer and Clarke, two singles, and three errors produced five runs in the seventh inning which won the game for the Kenmors.

Orono opened the scoring In the second, two singles, Dean West's double, four walks and Jim Armstrong's choice accounting for four runs. Bill Moxon's three-bagger and a throwing error got one back for Belleville in the third inning. Two walks, Orono's seven bases and a long single gave Orono a 6-1 lead in the top of the sixth. The winners bounced back in their half of the inning as four runs hits and an error produced three runs. Three walks and Hare's single gave Orono a singleton in the fifth but two errors and two hits got the Kenmors three more in same inning.

Orono scored one in the top of the sixth and Belleville collected two in their portion of the sixth.

Orono plated three in the seventh but Belleville's five-run outburst climaxed the game. Belleville added one more in the eighth.

Gary Goyer had three hits for the winners including his circuit blast. Glenn Clarke smashed a home run and a single while Moxon had a triple and a single. The entire Kenmore lineup with the exception of one player hit safely.

Keith West, Dean West and Armstrong each collected two hits for Orono.

Jankowski Packs Gear

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) Forward Lou Jankowski of Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League announced his retirement Saturday night.

Jankowski, 30, was a member of last season's Ron Leopold - Norm Johnson - Jankowski line for the Stamps. This was the highest scoring line in WHL history, netting 131 goals and 147 assists. Jankowski potted 57 goals himself for another league mark.

Jankowski's career has ranged from stints with Detroit Red Wings of the NHL to American and Western league clubs. His hockey started with Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in 1948, scoring 45 goals and 59 assists in one year during his four - year stint with Oshawa.

Local Bottling Plant Observes 90th Anniversary

When the Foy brothers set up their bottling plant on Station Street, in Belleville, Ontario, 90 years go, they hired glass blowers to hand-make their bottles and made their own carbon dioxide for carbonation out of whiting and sulphuric acid.

The firm has been in business ever since and is now known as Carms' Beverages.

In the old days the Foy brothers made up their flavors as they went along and had water piped into their plant from a spring, which occasionally ran dry. When that happened, a driver took a horse and stone-boat loaded with oak casks to the town pump for a new supply.

The present owner, Carmen Allen Caverly, marks the 90th anniversary by becoming the authorized bottler for Royal Crown Cola Limited, one of North America's largest manufacturers of soft drinks, to bottle and distribute Royal Crown beverages in the Belleville-Kingston area.

In contrast to Mr. Caverly's fleet of modern trucks, the Foy brothers delivered their drinks by horse and wagon — a three-horse team with a double-decker wagon for bottling points, and a smaller two-horse hitch for local deliveries. The trip from Belleville to Madoc took two days.

The bottle blowers of earlier days puffed out a bewildering variety of shapes, and sizes of containers. With the acquisition of the Royal Crown franchise, the present firm will use not only precision - made regular shaped eight and sixteen-ounce bottles but to make the contrast complete—ten ounce metal cans.

The Foys went into business before the days of bottle caps. A marble inside the bottle provided a seal when the bottle was quickly turned upside-down, generating enough pressure to hold the marble in position. When you wanted to drink you just poked the marble into the bottle.

The name of the firm was changed in the 1870's from Foy Brothers to Foy and Irwin. The firm was later acquired and operated under the same name for many years by the family of Bruce Bottum, who is still alive and in good health. Mr. Bottum recalls many of the stories of the firm's early days.

The company was acquired by its present owner in 1945 but the Foy and Irwin name remained unchanged until 1958 when it became known as Carm's Beverages.

AT THE PARK — Robert Mitchum co-starring with Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr and Jean Simmons in "The Grass is Greener", Universal-International comedy, which produced and directed by Stanley Donen, opens tonight at the Park Theatre. On the same program "Midnight Lace", in Technicolor and Cinemascope, starring Doris Day, Rex Harrison and John Gavin. One complete show starts at 7.30.

Liberace Laughs All Way to Bank

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Report on Liberace: He's still laughing all the way to the bank, perhaps even more heartily than before.

"I'm earning as much money as ever," he says. "But the difference now is that it comes from a variety of sources — apartments, real estate, oil, as well as entertaining."

He didn't mention his current earnings, but illustrated with an incident from the past: "Once I became ill and had to go to bed for three months. During that time, I had to pass up $380,000 in dates. That was when my advisers decided we should invest and diversify, in case anything should happen that I couldn't play the piano any more."

POOL NOW SQUARE

Liberace was resting between trips at his new house, which is even grander than the much-publicized home in Sherman Oaks with the piano - shaped swimming pool. The new one, above the Sunset Strip overlooking Los Angeles, has a square pool.

Outwardly, the house looks like one of the circa-1820 Spanish castles that dot the Hollywood hills. But it has the Liberace touch inside.

"I decorated it myself," the pianist said. While the other house was in the piano-key motif of black and white, this one is done in gold.

The place was built by Ann Harding, later owned by Rudy Vallee. By actual count there are nine bathrooms and 26 other rooms, slightly less than before because walls have been knocked out.

Gold is everywhere — on the period sofas, the antique French piano, the pipe organ, which can be played either by Liberace or automatic roll. There is gold leaf in the basin of the powder room, gold on the Chandeliers, and—match—the candelabra.

AT THE PARK — Alone in her apartment, Doris Day is frightened by the shadow of a stranger outside her bedroom window after a mysterious telephone call had threatened her with death before the night was over. Scene is from "Midnight Lace", suspense drama in color starring Miss Day, Rex Harrison and John Gavin. Also starring in the Ross Hunter- Arwin production, released by Universal-International are Myrna Loy and Roddy McDowall, opening tonight at the air conditioned Park Theatre.

Gobel's Sketch Fails to Please TV Critic

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ed Sullivan Show celebrated its 13th birthday on TV Sunday night. George Gobel, filling on one of Jinnah Shore's nights off, celebrated Father's Day.

A galaxy of stars assembled to sing a birthday message to The Great Stone Face, as Sullivan is called, but it turned out to be neither witty nor amusing.

Gobel did a rather ill-tempered sketch about Father's Day. Maybe next year TV variety shows will get on a new kick that pulls them away from insult as a weak substitute for humor.

Astrological Forecast

Tuesday, June 20

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: So long as you are careful of your temptation to get involved in some behind the scenes maneuvrings that could take from your well being, you otherwise are under fine aspects for making the long-range plans that can bring you success and prosperity. Be sure to talk things over with specialists of a practical background of experience.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —You can work very efficiently today, so be sure to get busy early. Make a good impression on co-workers by being very co-oprative, too. P.M. Get home in fine, clean order and take the health treatments you need. Work.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Think in terms of recreational activities now and make your plans for the future wisely. Consider time and expense, the people you want to be with you, etc. Pick up the telephone and begin taking dates. Be friendly, positive.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Think in terms of serving and helping family ties today before everything else. Be sure you bring home little gifts that will be appreciated. You can then reach greater harmony and report-gold they will be apt to criticize less.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — If you are more co-operative and friendly, you will be able to get regular members to work along with you wholeheartedly instead of spasmodically and then you will be able to get greater benefits and returns from your investments. Work.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Important you earn more now if you want to carry on in the rather extravagant way in which you live. Get advice from practical persons in business and from bankers so that you have greater success. Look into matters of real estate seriously.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23)— This is one of those wonderful days when you can accomplish almost anything you set your mind to and have a good time, to boot. So be sure you see the right people and then go out tonight socially and make big-ger contacts. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct 22)— Put all those small ideas and nice angles to work now that have been working in your mind and they soon pay off in big dividends. P.M. Have a pleasant time in a quiet and happy fashion.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —You can go about contacting the right people today in a very positive fashion and get results you want, particularly in matters that will be of long duration. Others will appreciate your talents and efforts. Correspond, too.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — This is the right day to contact those influential persons who can help you in any business or creative efforts that are close to your heart. Be sure you put your best foot forward and impress them with your talents.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you accompany a friend to some enlightening and inspiring place, you will get the ideas you need to have a more abundant and secure life. Also, bring greater happiness into your personal life. P.M. Become popular socially.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb 19) Contact private sources quietly now and get such confidential affairs in far better condition. Don't permit anyone to keep you from your obligations during the day, either. P.M. Fine for romantic happiness and joy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You can accomplish whatever you set out to do now, provided you get the co-operation of associates early. Also turn potential enemies into friends. P.M. Drive out to some relaxing spot with the one you admire a great deal.

If your child is born today, he or she will be one of those people who will get so bogged down with the minutae of any project or situation that the over-all picture will be lost in the interim, provided you don't early teach to keep the eye on the ball at all times, and to make positive, concrete plans ahead of time. Then the chart becomes very successful since the perfectionist is here.

TURNING POINT

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement a Gravel Road on Fahey Street from Harriett Street a distance of 330' northerly and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the land abutting directly on the work.

2. The estimated cost of the work is $1,480.80 of which $740.40 is to be paid by the Corporation. The Special Assessment is to be paid in five annual instalments and the estimated annual rate per foot frontage is $0.44.

3. Application will be made by the Corporation of the City of Belleville to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the work and any owner may within 21 days after the first publication of this notice file with the Board his objection to the work being undertaken.

4. The Board may approve of the work being undertaken, but before doing so it may appoint a time for the hearing of any objection to the work will be considered.

DATED at Belleville this 19th day of June, 1961.

ADAM S. STALKER,
CITY CLERK

LAOTIAN PARLEY

plications for peace would be a reaching. Therefore, ers are concerned not only th Laos, but with the hopes mankind for an orderly settlement of disputes and the future of the world.

In his major statement of policy Green reiterated the that the India-Canada-Poland international control commission in Laos should be given necessary air equipment and freedom of movement to do an effective job.

CANADA CONCERNED

Conference observers say the key to Canadian thinking is concern about the control commission because its unwilling wiliness to a Communist takeover in Laos simply because it has no planes in which to move to trouble spots in the Southeast Asian states.

Canada and Burma were the speakers at today's morning session of the conference. Green noted Canada's responsibility at this time as appointed to the international control commission under the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the Indochinese war, giving the area independence from France.

"Canadian views on what a Laotian settlement should contain are based on experience, over many years, on the international commissions in Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam," Green said, "... with this experience in mind, the Canadian delegation wants to see the terms of reference of the International commission so worded as to enable it to do a useful job."

The 1954 agreement provides a useful starting point, the Canadian said, the terms of reference being "like a well-thumbed book of rules which have gained a certain authority and meaning by virtue of constant use."

NEEDS SETTING FORTH

While upholding provisions were necessary to meet present difficulties "I think it would be wise if the conference were to frame the relevant provisions of the new settlement as a protocol to the 1954 agreement on the cessation of hostilities in Laos."

Green touched frankly on issues plaguing the conference, including Soviet requests for a commission veto, the need for the three-nation body to carry out independent investigations and the question of subversion within Laos.

"Canada approaches the problems of this conference from the point of view of trying to help a country which has been torn by internal strife and subjected to external pressures to achieve neutrality, stability and genuine independence," Green said.

"All that we ask of this conference is support for the commission in Laos and more rapid progress towards an agreement."

FOURTH DEFICIT — The White Paper tabled in the Commons June 16 showed a record $345,500,000 deficit for the 1960-61 fiscal year, the fourth in a row.

The White Paper accounts — still preliminary since the books aren't yet closed — showed the fourth-highest peacetime deficit on record.

Graph shows major items of revenue and expenditure. Old age pension payments are not included as they are considered a normal budgetary accounts. (CP Newsmap).

COYNE UNVEILS

not involve government controls but rather providing proposals, especially current spending items, "should be accompanied by corresponding tax revenues."

Some of the main points in Mr. Coyne's proposals:

1. A temporary tariff surcharge of 10 per cent on all imports to reduce import buying and stimulate Canadian production. The surcharge is to be for two years and then decline to 5 per cent in the third year, four years and two months. It should not apply to "a limited list" of products of most interest to Canada.

2. A reduction in the sales tax from 11 per cent on selected consumer goods to a uniform 8 per cent, higher tariff on living costs.

3. Augment incomes of unemployed by a 13-week boost in unemployment insurance benefits until the unemployment rate falls below four per cent and the labor force for three successive months.

4. A three-year temporary increase in personal and corporation income tax rates "of the order of three per cent" to bring in an estimated extra $400,000,000 a year.

5. Higher taxes on luxuries, including liquor and tobacco.

6. A national highways system to take responsibility for all international and interprovincial highways, financed by a federal sales tax on gasoline and diesel fuel oil and by toll charges on the highways where limited - access highways and bridges. Highway construction should be undertaken as an antirecession measure.

7. Income tax relief-free treatment now given on imported automobile parts up to 40 per cent of the value of passenger-made cars, to increase Canadian production of parts.

CUT CAR TAX

8. Remove the present 7½-per-cent automobile sales tax on lower-priced "standard" models made in Canada and on imported cars which sell for less than $3,000;

9. Levy sales tax on foreign goods bought by Canadian tourists and remove for two years the $100 exemption now allowed on such goods.

10. Set up a national development corporation to channel capital funds for large-scale projects and replace the inflow of foreign capital.

11. Expand the lending power of the Industrial Development Bank to provide capital for smaller businesses.

12. Establish a local government finance corporation as a lender of last resort to municipalities and provinces unable to get adequate financing in Canada.

13. Set up a special government department or agency to promote industrial development in slow-moving regions of Canada.

14. Encourage more savings by Canadians, including encouragement by formation of such kinds of small savings institutions.

15. Establish a federal resource development and conservation planning agency and its operations to help offset recession.

OPPOSES BIGGER DEFICIT

The economic program, set out by Mr. Coyne, would increase any major increase in the federal government deficit. Deficits in the last four years have totalled: $1,406,500,000, and last year's deficit was $500,000,000.

He said that in any case the current fiscal year will have a "very large deficit" because of economic conditions. Any large further increase in the deficit through a general reduction in personal or corporation income taxes "would not under present circumstances make a worthwhile contribution to increased production and employment in Canada."

Stalin Wanted to Dismember Germany, Documents Show

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union under Joseph Stalin in 1943 wanted to "dismember" Germany after the execution of thousands of Nazi military leaders, keep Japan weak, and punish France as a "rotten" nation, according to U.S. official wartime documents published during the weekend.

The documents record the American version of the fateful 1943 Allied conferences in Cairo and Tehran to chart military strategy and the post - war world.

Stalin thought Germany would become a major military power in 15 to 20 years unless she was "dismembered" permanently.

On November 29, 1943, he gave the total shipping at least 50,000 and perhaps 100,000 Nazi warships which would have to be "physically liquidated."

Roosevelt rejoined jokingly, one of his advisers noted, that he would agree to a figure of 49,000 on condition Churchill

Churchill retorted that he was against the cold-blooded execution of soldiers who had fought for their country. War criminals, he said, must be tried, but objected to executions for political purposes.

U.K. BRITISH DIFFERED

On France, Roosevelt told Stalin that "Mr. Churchill was of the opinion that France would be very quickly reconstructed as a strong nation but he did not personally share this view since he felt that many years of honest labor would be necessary before France would be re-established. ... the French must pay for their criminal collaboration."

Stalin gave his view that France was "rotten" and deserved to be punished and to lose her empire.

Charles Gaulle, a Russian affairs expert, took many of the notes of the allied talks. He contended at times that Stalin highlighted in making digs at Churchill and that his remarks to the British prime minister contained a sharp edge at times.

He implied Stalin's several times that Churchill "nursed a grudge against the Russians and a desire to see a soft peace," Bohlen wrote. He said in a later memorandum for the Washington policy makers that the Soviet Union seemed to be trying to make itself the only strong and influential power in Europe for the post-war years.

WANTED BASES

At another meeting, Bohlen, now a high official handling Soviet affairs in the Kennedy administration, reported that Stalin and Roosevelt agreed the Allies should control bases and strong points near Germany and Japan to prevent future aggression.

But Churchill said Britain did not want to see any more territorial bases. Bohlen then reported:

"In reply to the prime minister's inquiry as to what territorials he wanted, the Soviet Union had, Marshal Stalin replied, there is no need to speak at the present time about any Soviet desires, but when the time comes we will speak."

Maritime Strike Negotiators Further Apart After Charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators in the maritime strike which has paralyzed segments of the United States merchant fleet were further apart today, following heated charges of attempted bribery and division tactics.

There were predictions on both sides that the strike, which began last Thursday midnight, would be long.

More than 100 ships already have been immobilized.

"The attempted bribery charge is a new low," said Jesse M. Calhoon, chairman of the national committee for maritime bargaining, in announcing several unions.

Calhoon charged that the American Merchant Marine Institute had attempted to "bribe us by offering a substantial economic package if we will drop the runaway-flag issue from our demands." He said he had asked a congressional committee to investigate.

CLAIMS LYING

"The accusation was denied by Clarence Lacey, president of the Merchant Marine Institute, representing the shipowners in his teeth" and said he would welcome a congressional investigation.

The "runaway-flag" issue is a main obstacle in the path of a settlement. It involves U.S.-owned ships which sail under foreign flags.

The unions want the right to organize the crews on these ships. They contend that American seamen are being deprived of jobs by the practice of hiring foreign crews on the vessels.

Jeff Chandler, Noted Movie Star, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jeff Chandler, who made his boyhood dream of movie stardom come true, died today of a thrombocytopenia — blood poisoning — complication from spinal surgery performed five weeks ago. He was 42.

Ed Faulkner, Chandler's business manager, said the actor appeared to be recovering as planned.

Then husky, 6 - foot - 4 leading man was taken to hospital May 13 for correction of a slipped disc suffered earlier, but he experienced severe abdominal bleeding.

Chandler had always known, since his boyhood in Brooklyn, N.Y., that his goal in life was to be a movie star. He once said he knew it would happen. "I was surprised that it took so long—three years."

The role of Cochise in Broken Arrow was the making of him, but he also is a drawback. Though he played a variety of parts, producers and the public alike seemed to think of him largely in terms of the stolid Indian chief.

His Cochise drew him an Oscar nomination, and a string of Indian and cowboy pictures followed. Recent pictures included The Jayhawkers, Ten Seconds to Hell and Thunder in the East.

Chandler's wife, the former Marjorie Hoshelle, divorced him in 1955, alleging cruelty. They had two daughters, Jamie, 14, and Dana, 11.

Problem of City Traffic Congestion Point Raised

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP)—The federal government should study the problem of city traffic congestion to provide local governments with a uniform and unified course of action, about 150 delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Transit Association were told today.

CTA President C. K. Morningstar told the delegates, representing owners and operators of 35 Canadian urban transit services, Canada should follow the example of the United States, which opened congressional hearings in March to consider the congestion problem.

He said local governments would welcome such a move, especially in view of problems the transit industry will face in the next decade.

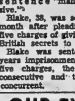
Mr. Morningstar said he did not think the NBA Act, which defines the responsibilities of federal and provincial governments, would pose a stumbling block for united action in the urban transit field.

R. C. Houghton, president of the American Transit Association, called for local, provincial and federal subsidies and grants to the transit industry.

He said governments had spent billions of dollars pampering the automobile through the construction and maintenance of streets, highways and parking facilities.

"But the daily traffic jams that choke our cities prove that the automobile can never do the whole job."

If a small fraction of public funds were earmarked instead for the improvement and extension of transit facilities, "the congestion problem would be greatly alleviated, and the business districts would regain much of their lost vitality as area property values would rise, municipal tax revenues would be enhanced — every person would share in the benefits."



Espionage Case Appeal Begins

LONDON (Reuters)—The appeal case of George Blake, convicted of spying for Russia, began here today with the former MI 6 Canadian turncoat British foreign office official's lawyer calling the 42-year prison sentence "manifestly excessive."

Blake, 38, was sentenced last month after pleading guilty to five charges of giving important British secrets to Russia.

Blake was sentenced to 14 years imprisonment on each of five charges, the first three consecutive and the last two concurrent.

Firemen's M.A. Views Lands, Forests Film

TWEED—On the evening of June 7th, the regular monthly meeting of the Firemen's Mutual Aid Society met at the Tweed Fire Hall Municipal Building with 50 members present from Bancroft, Batawa, Belleville, Deseronto, Maemora, Madoc, Point Anne, Stirling, Frankford, Trenton, Tweed and Wellington. Picton and Bloomfield were not represented.

Fire Chief Clarence "Mike" Moore, and his committee of Tweed, were in charge of the arrants.

Fire Chief Vance of Belleville welcomed the visitors. A film from the Department of Lands and Forests was shown and enjoyed by all.

Refreshments were served and a social hour was spent.

Lea Petrin's First Attempt At Writing Humor Proves Big Success in Quebec

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — Lea Petrin, a vivacious, hazel - eyed little bundle of energy who turns out promotion copy for a Quebec newspaper, has started French-Canada giggling over its campaign to purify its speech and writing.

Tuez le Traducteur—Kill the Translator—tickled the funny-bone of a seven-man book-contest jury. Now the titters are spreading as the 2,500 copies of the first edition are being snapped up by book dealers. Warmly received by critics, the book appears headed for success.

Montreal Le Devoir placed it third on its list of the five best now on sale in the province.

Miss Petrin's novel injected its humor at a time when Quebec was preoccupied with the solemn, serious, governmental-blessed campaign to get Quebecers to polish their French and avoid anglicisms—English expressions translated literally into French.

WON PRIZE

The youthful native of Temiscamingue says she was so tired of hearing people attack each other for their spoken and written French that she decided to write a book about it.

"I had to laugh about it if I wasn't going to cry. I made up my mind on New Year's Eve last and 75 days later the book was finished."

She had read about the establishment of a "Grand Prize of Canadian Humor" with a $2,000 award, launched by Cornelius Deom publishing house in Montreal.

The jury was made up of a formidable battery of Quebec literary experts headed by Wilfrid Lemoyne.

"When I received news I had won I was stunned," said Miss Petrin, who spent only 15 days revising the original draft.

The book tells of a Quebec manufacturer of blackboards caught up in the campaign to purify the French language. He quietly retires a trusted, elderly translator in order to get a real "expert."

To soften the blow he decides to arrange with the Society for the Promotion of True French for a medal to be awarded to the retiring translator, named Claquot.

HECTIC HUNT

This sets the stage for hectic preparation for the medal ceremony and the manufacturer's disastrous attempts to hire a new translator.

Each applicant is more of a cracked-pot than the one before. One wants to do away with translations altogether. Another wants to reform the language habits of the entire plant. Then there is Roufiaucet, with a mania for using all the English words approved by the French Academy.

Roufiaucet believes in backing up his convictions with his fists. In the presence of all the firm's heads of departments, the manufacturer and Roufiaucet have it out in a fracas only hours before the medal ceremony.

The manufacturer shows up with a black eye. French government representatives and officials of the society are present. The only man not there is Claquot. His son, caught in a

The manufacturer, without the help of an expert, is forced to deliver a speech he prepared himself as his audience goes through agony to keep from exploding with laughter.

When it's all over, Claquot's son remembers he has a telegram for the manufacturer from his father. It says:

"Regret cannot attend ceremonies. Am receiving congratulations from all sides. Have been made translator of the year. Ten Thousand dollars salary."

Focus on Health

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week — Picnic snacks, spoken coughs and first aid for stings.

THE HOT DOG SEASON

For summer picnics one of the safest foods you can take along is hot dogs. In fact, with hot dogs, here is an ideal hot weather picnic lunch:

Soft drinks, iced tea or lemonade; fresh fruit; relishes such as carrots, radishes, celery suggest University of Michigan dieticians.

Stay away from deviled eggs, mayonnaise, cream pies and even hamburger or other chopped meats. These foods can foster population explosions of bacteria — and they might still look good and smell good, but be dangerously contaminated.

If you do take foods that have to be refrigerated or kept warm, keep temperatures either below 45 degrees or above 150 to discourage bacterial growth.

WHAT'S IN A COUGH?

The useful cough is essential to life, guarding the lungs against the intrusion of an external or internal enemy. But there are also useless coughs that only exhaust the patient and interfere with his normal blood circulation and breathing functions, says Dr. Esther M. Greisheimer of Temple University, Philadelphia.

That tickle in the upper breathing tract that causes coughing has many causes, such as smoking, drinking, infected teeth and postnasal drip. But such a tickle may become a habit too—and since that kind of coughing is useless and harmful, it should be stopped.

THE STINGER LINGERS

When the honey bee stings, the stinger and the venom sack from the bee often remain imbedded after the bee has been brushed away.

Since it would take the bee two or three minutes to inject all its venom, much of the poison is left in the venom sack. First thing to do: Remove the venom sack and the stinger.

Of course this isn't so with hornets, wasps, yellow jackets and bumble bees which don't have barbs on their stingers. If they get caught in your clothing, they may sting you once, and still live to sting you again.

Castro Is Given Friday Deadline In Tractor Deal

500 Farm-Type Tractors Is Limit of Ransom

DETROIT (AP)—Cuba's Fidel Castro has until 1 p.m. EDT Friday to decide whether he'll release 1,214 Americans for a full ransom for 1,214 invasion-captured prisoners. Otherwise any deal is off.

That was the Tractors-for-Freedom Committee's answer Monday night to the Cuban premier's demand for 500 new 200,000 worth of tractors, if he scores to get the 500 heavy-duty types he says he had in mind originally when he made the offer April 19 to trade the Cuban farmers.

The committee cabled Castro that it is prepared to ship only agricultural tractors and only 100 of them "for the two-fold humanitarian purpose" of freeing prisoners and helping Cubans farming higher living standards.

The cable told four American technicians the committee sent to negotiate with Castro that he had in mind heavy-duty, bull-dozer type tractors when he mentioned 500 in his May 17 speech.

ASKS INDEMNIFY

Castro said Cuba wants $28,000,000 indemnification for damages incurred in the April 17 invasion—but not another life.

The committee told him Monday night that it rejected that original proposal and also that his list of prisoners had fewer names than "the total 1,214 indicated by you in your original offer." Last week Castro added 1,173 prisoners as eligible for the exchange.

"Fifteen" have received from you clear, positive acceptance of our offer by noon EST on Friday, June 2," the cable said, "and we therefore consider the purposes for which it was established are not possible of realization." It urged Castro's failure to comply with terms of your new official proposal."

A committee spokesman said the estimated cost of machines offered by the committee was between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000 at current prices. The committee rejected Castro's bid for heavier tractors on grounds they would be unsuitable for the purposes.

If Castro refuses the light-tractor offer, the citizens' group said it will "feel obligated to dissolve the committee and return the voluntary contributions of the people who made the many thousands of individuals and business firms in America who have contributed to our fund."

At least 60,000 letters have poured into Tractors-for-Freedom headquarters in Detroit in appeal for funds was issued. The letters have remained unopened, the committee announced Monday. They will be returned unopened if the deal is called off.

Gordon Charges Fisher Uses Stolen Figures

Rowe Called Biased In President's Favor

OTTAWA (CP) — An apparently uneasy truce reigned today between CNR President Donald Gordon and members of the famous railway committee who Monday night tangled with him and sang themselves on the use of some short, hard-hitting words.

The fight centred on a page apparently drawn from a CNR financial statement which Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur) produced during the committee's the wartime program rumbled in roaring and economic fashion. The man said he preferred not to swear on the Bible but rather by the Almighty God."

Richmann's first testimony was that he left Israel for Switzerland in Argentina. He refused to give a positive statement that he came to Israel voluntarily was false.

The prosecutor said while Israel agents held him on the outskirts of Buenos Aires, "I was chained to my bed."

"It was demanded of me to sign a statement to the effect that I wanted to stand trial in Israel," he continued, pausing for German. "I said I preferred to be turned over to Argentine police. They said no. Later the two letters were taken off and I was told to sign a document. I wanted to come to Israel to stand trial. Then the letters were produced and I had to sign my bed. This cannot be called voluntary declaration."

As Eichmann started to outline his Nazi career, the court said he could sit while testifying "if you are tired," and Eichmann accepted.

Too Late When He Realized Plans for Jews -- Eichmann

JERUSALEM (AP) — Adolf Eichmann swore under oath today he never realized what the Nazi party intended to do to the Jews when he joined it in 1932. But by then the determination plot unfolded, Eichmann said, he was powerless to "influence" it.

The former Gestapo officer, accused of a key role in the Nazi extermination of 6,000,000 Jews during the Second World War took the stand in his own defence this morning after hearing 36 weeks of prosecution evidence against him.

Eichmann, now 55 and wearing horn-rimmed glasses, mapped to rammed attention when presiding Judge Moshe Landau announced the start of the defence.

As he swore "by God" to tell the truth, the ruthless mass murderer of Jewish victims of the wartime pogrom rumbled in roaring and economic fashion. The man said he preferred not to swear on the Bible but rather by the Almighty God."

45 Amendments Criminal Code Pass In House

Sexual Offenders Sternly Dealt With

OTTAWA (CP)—A bagful of amendments to the Criminal Code, including measures for road and water traffic-enforcement the House of Commons is dealing with dangerous sexual offenders, passed detailed Commons scrutiny Monday.

Members covered a variety of other subjects as well. A similar variety in debate was scheduled to resume today pending the key event tonight—when Justice Minister Fleming dis closes his budget.

Forty - five Criminal Code amendments were put to and with only minor technical alteration. The embodying bill was expected to get third and final reading today before being sent to the Senate.

Justice Minister Fulton said the dangerous sexual offenders of the new term are those with sexual psychopaths—may be sentenced to indeterminate terms on the basis of only one offence.

At present, it is necessary to prove a pattern of abnormal sexual impulses before a person can be sentenced to preventive detention. Psychiatric clinics for sex offenders—primarily a treatment rather than penal—are vassed with the provisions.

REINSTATE CHARGE

Dangerous driving also is being put back into the Criminal Code to meet requests, the minister said. The charge was removed in 1955 but juries tended to convict on charges of criminal negligence in the operation of a vehicle and too many people were getting away with light sentences.

Dangerous driving convictions would carry a maximum sentence of two years. The code also would add provisions for careless operation of small boats and aircraft. Members who suggested how ever, that it may be difficult to prove "care" in some cases, also suggested special summer-time deputies.

Eddy LaMarsh (L — Niagara Falls), who has practised law with juveniles, said the measure set will not greet the dangerous driving problem in the same please as Crown attorneys.

Mr. Fulton said driving while a licence is under suspension as a more serious offence than careless driving. He said he had been informed by police authorities that there are 10 persons driving without licences for every person under suspension for every one with proper authorization.

CODE COVERS BOATS

Mr. Fulton said the new amendments would bring the Criminal Code from the Small Vessels Act offences for careless operation of boats.

Miss LaMarsh said this is a good provision if enforceable.

Big Drop Leaves Jobless Still Above Last Year

Seven Per Cent of Labor Force Still Unemployed

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment fell sharply by 437,000 at mid-May from 622,000 a month earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. There total, 38,000 higher than a year earlier, represented seven per cent of the labor force, compared with 9.7 per cent a month earlier.

The decline in unemployment, third monthly drop in a row, was contrasted with a 267,000 increase in employment a greater-than-seasonal jump for the time of year.

	May April May
	1961 1961 1960

The labor force report noted that "seasonal factors" account for much of the increase in employment, but that the number of men with jobs was slightly higher than a year earlier. The increase in employment was concentrated in construction, trade and service industries.

The big jump in the farm work force—rising to 736,000 at mid-May from 632,000 at mid-April—also was higher than a year ago, a significant part of the gain in employment.

Increases also occurred during the month in the service, transportation, finance and communication industries. But employment in mining and transportation at mid-May was still down from a year earlier.

The picture in Ontario: Employment in Ontario increased substantially from a month earlier and May, 1960, with almost all of the 19,000 increase occurring in non-farm industries.

There were 125,000 unemployed, compared with 160,000 at mid-April. The unemployment rate was 5.2 per cent in a 2,391,000 labor force, compared with 6.7 per cent a month earlier and 4.9 per cent a year earlier.

Stratford's Festival Opens 1961 Season

By WILLIAM MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

STRATFORD (CP) — The Stratford Festival opened its 1961 season Monday night with another hit.

The seldom - played Shakespearean tragedy Coriolanus drew loud applause from the audience and, for the most part, plaudits from the critics.

It was a big night for British actor Paul Scofield. His North American debut — in the title role as the tragic hero — was applauded by all.

He played a powerful part in a role which in lesser hands could look dreadful on the play. He was well supported by Eleanor Stuart of Montreal, as Coriolanus's mother Volumnia, in another part that could have spelled monotony or failure.

Director Michael Langham chose to play up the play on the personality of Coriolanus, a proud but sincere Roman soldier molded by his mother into an epitome of staunch military-mindedness.

POLITICAL SECONDARY

The political elements of the play—it is one of Shakespeare's few that have such—were still present, but in a secondary surface.

Mr. Langham also chose Napoleonic costumes for the distress of some critics who felt musketry and French uniforms were out of place in the Roman setting.

John Colicos, of Montreal came in for acclaim in his role as Aufidius. It was his first performance here, although he has had two seasons' experience at Shakespeare at Stratford, Conn.

Mr. Scofield is well known in Britain from his many performances at Stratford-on-Avon and at London, both Shakespearean and non-Shakespearean.

Will Not Change Testimony

MONTREAL (CP)—Romuald Balhumeur, former administrator of Jean Talon Hospital, said Monday he does not intend to modify testimony he made Monday before a commission inquiring into the hospital's affairs.

The commission, appointed by the Quebec government, heard Mr. Belhumeur say Friday that Senator Henri Courtemanche at one time asked for and received 10 per cent of the money given to the hospital in government grants.

In an interview Saturday, Senator Courtemanche, former secretary of state in the Diefenbaker cabinet, denied that he had ever taken a kickback. He said he was paid $17,000 in legal fees by the hospital president.

Senator Courtemanche said he talked to Mr. Belhumeur after he learned of his testimony and Mr. Belhumeur told him he would "ask for a chance to rectify his testimony" when the commission meets today.

Today's Chuckle

THE WEATHER

Synopsis:—Cool air arrived in southern Ontario Monday evening preceded by showers of over an inch in many areas. The leading edge of the cool air is just east of the lower lakes, leaving considerable cloudiness over Southern Ontario.

Farther north skies are partly cloudy. A storm centre in the western gulf states moves some threat to Southern Ontario for Wednesday. But present indications are that this storm will miss south of the Great Lakes on Wednesday, producing little change in the current weather pattern.

For First Time in 'Many Years' British Unit to Train in Canada

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)— Brilliant sunshine and hundreds of spectators greeted the arrival here Monday of a 70-man advance party of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada, Royal Regiment when they stepped off their British Britannia aircraft to the strains of their regimental march.

By June 28 the entire battalion of 700 officers and men will have been airlifted from Canada from its home base of Lynchaven, England to join 3,000 troops of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade Group at nearby Sussex, Gagetown for annual manoeuvres.

The British troops will return to England early in August.

The advance party included Lieut.-Col. Peter Dwyer of Port Denis Irving Ballantine and key officers needed to set up administration of the unit.

After a brief welcoming ceremony, Col. Ballantine went directly to the Camp Gagetown training area to meet with unit commanders of the 3rd Brigade Group. His men were shown to their barracks.

Brig. E. C. Brown, New Brunswick area commander who welcomed the party on behalf of Maj.-Gen. M. P. Bogert, officer commanding Eastern Command said the event "is a historic occasion" because it marked the first time in "many years" a British unit will be fully trained on Canadian soil.

In an interview, Col. Ballantine said he is looking forward to training on Canada's Camp Gagetown, 427 square miles in area. He said his battalion's battle training in training areas is 80 to 100 square miles.

The Queen's own Cameron Highlanders, whose patron is Prince Phillip, was formed in 1859 by a merger of the Berkshire and Williams Regiments. Its associations with Canada go back to the 18th century when the 42nd of Foot served under Gen. Johnny Burgoyne.

The 42nd Foot, which later became a battalion of the Williams Regiment, was raised in Canada 1837-44. Allied Canadian regiments are the Lincoln and Welland and the Algonquin.

Most of the advance party members will go to Cryder's Farm near Morrisburg, Ont., to attend June 24 ceremonies commemorating the end of the War of 1812. A memorial park will be opened by Premier Frost.

Kasavubu, Gizenga Agree To Call Congo Parliament

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The rival Congo regimes of President Joseph Kasavubu and Antoine Gizenga announced agreement today that the parliament of the Congo republic convenes June 25 at Lovanium University, on the heights outside Leopoldville, in an effort to form a unified government.

The delegates from the rival Leopoldville and Stanleyville governments, holding planning sessions here, agreed that all members of parliament would be housed at Lovanium during the session and allowed to contact with the outside world.

They also must communicate the two delegations asked the United Nations to use its good offices in persuading secessionist regime in Katanga province to participate in the parliament, whose aim is to unify The Congo, end strife and put the country back on the road to becoming a real nation.

The delegations also asked the United Nations to ensure the free movement of members of parliament throughout The Congo.

In a radio broadcast Vice-Premier Jean Bolikongo of Kasavubu's government in Leopoldville said: "Within a few days the crisis "we are on the eve of national reconciliation."

Gen. Sir Richard Turner, First World War Hero, Dies

QUEBEC (CP)—Lt. Gen. Sir Richard Henry Dyneley Turner, the Victoria Cross and the last of Canada's First World War generals, died here Monday. He was taken to hospital May 31.

During the First World War, he was in charge of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade which became famous when it held firm under the first gas poison gas attack at Ypres, April 22nd, 1915.

While commanding the 2nd Canadian Division in France in 1917, Sir Richard was made a member of the Order of St. Michael and St. George and knighted later, when he was commanding general of all Canadian troops in England and Commander of the Bath.

In 1919 Field Marshal Earl Haig, he founded the Canadian Legion —now the Royal Canadian Legion—and was its first president.

He was a lieutenant in the South Saskatchewan Regiment when he won the Victoria Cross Nov. 1, 1900, for saving a two guns from falling into the hands of the enemy during a fierce artillery duel.

"... When the Boers again seriously threatened to capture the guns, Lieut. Turner, though twice previously wounded, dismounted and deployed his men at close quarters and drove off the Boers, thus saving the guns," his citation read.

He also won the Distinguished Service Order, for a reconnaissance mission which involved swimming the Vet River under fire.

Richard Ernest William Turner was born in Quebec City July 25, 1871, and was educated at Quebec High School. He was the eldest son of Hon. Richard Turner, member of the legislative council and Quebec's upper house.

He entered his father's firm of Whitehead and Turner, wholesale grocers, as a young man and retired as president in 1928. Between the Boer and First World Wars he was Lieut.-Colonel after while running the family business.

As a lieutenant - colonel he commanded the colonial escort at the Coronation of Edward VII in 1902.

Upon his retirement from his father's firm he became a member of the department of militia, with pension, honorary colonel and served 10 years.

During the Second World War he was active in Red Cross and veterans' associations.

Sir Richard's awards for his military exploits. He was mentioned in dispatches twice in both wars and was awarded the First World War was made a companion of the Distinguished Legion of Honor and the Russian Order of the White Eagle. He also received the Croix de Guerre with Palm.

He married Harriet Goodday Jan. 8, 1900. She died in 1958. Survivors include a son, two daughters, nine grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Youngest Holder of Library Card, Aged Two, Has Read Sixty Books

WEST NEW YORK, N.J. (AP) Florence Douglas is the proud owner of public library card No. 4,696.

The card will enable her to pursue such favorite subjects as "Mother Goose" and "Alice in Space, And it will bring her an endless supply of long, tongue-twisting words that she likes to spell.

Florence is just 2½ years old.

The brown-eyed, 30-pound bundle of energy received her first card Monday, but it took a little doing to get it. Library regulations declare that card holders must be at least seven years old.

But after a meeting with Florence, Mayor John J. Armstrong decided to make an exception to the rule. "She's probably the youngest person in the country," the mayor said, "except for her age, she qualifies for a card."

Her mother, Mrs. Marie Jacobs, said Florence has already read some 60 books through the seventh grade level. She learned the alphabet when she was a year old and now spells more than 300 difficult words. Florence's father, Jerome, is a business consultant.

"I tell her that words are beautiful," said Mrs. Jacobs. "I pronounce new words with great excitement. And Florence uses the dictionary to learn new ones."

After the little girl had read passages from a book selected by Mrs. Armstrong, the mayor started questioning Florence. It went something like this:

"What is your name?" "May 5, 1961!" she was asked.

"Alan Shepard Jr. was the first American to ride in outer space, and that was a magnificent achievement," Florence replied.

"What are the hazards in outer space for a spaceman?" asked another reporter.

"Cosmic rays and ultraviolet radiation," chirped Florence, adding, "and you call a spaceman an astronaut."

She volunteered that rockets have several stages and are propelled by "liquid, solid, exotic and metal" fuels.

Then to cap her performance, she named the planets and their satellites and ticked off, in alphabetical order, all of the 50 states in the United States.

There were 108,000 workers who had been out of work for more than six months. This was 25 per cent of the 439,000 without work and seeking work, the formal definition of unemployment.

The majority, however, had been unemployed for six months or less.

In addition, there were 18,000 on temporary layoff.

The number of unemployed men, 397,000, was down 153,000 from April, a month earlier. There was a decline of 12,000 unemployed women, leaving a total of 60,000.

The labor force report noted that "seasonal factors" account for much of the increase in employment, but that the number of men with jobs was slightly higher than a year earlier. The increase in employment was concentrated in construction, trade and service industries.

The big jump in the farm work force—rising to 736,000 at mid-May from 632,000 at mid-April—also was higher than a year ago, a significant part of the gain in employment.

Increases also occurred during the month in the service, transportation, finance and communication industries. But employment in mining and transportation at mid-May was still down from a year earlier.

The picture in Ontario: Employment in Ontario increased substantially from a month earlier and May, 1960, with almost all of the 19,000 increase occurring in non-farm industries.

There were 125,000 unemployed, compared with 160,000 at mid-April. The unemployment rate was 5.2 per cent in a 2,391,000 labor force, compared with 6.7 per cent a month earlier and 4.9 per cent a year earlier.

Water Safety Programs to Be Staged Here

Commencing tomorrow evening the Quinte District Water Safety Council will be putting on a three-night water safety program, to stress the importance of the water safety slogan "Learn to Swim" for both adults and children. The opening event will be held at the Kinsmen Swimming Pool on East Dundas Street.

Featured there will be a display of equipment by the Ontario Provincial Police, a demonstration of water safety skills and swimming strokes by the Red Cross, and an exhibition of swimming and life saving under the direction of pool manager, Doug Paton. Demonstrations will also be put on by both the Quinte Aqua Divers and the Belleville Fire Department. Water safety films will be shown at dusk.

Additional to the above program will be the launching of a sailboat in the pool by members of the junior sailing course of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club under the direction of Mr. Fred Yealland. They will also demonstrate the proper handling of small sailing boats.

Trampoline gymnastics by a team from the Belleville YMCA will provide entertainment for those in attendance and swimming races for both boys and girls will commence at 7.30 p.m. although the actual opening program is slated for 7.00 p.m.

On Thursday evening the ever popular Royal Canadian Air Force Search and Rescue display will be held at Victoria Park from 7.00 p.m. on. Keith Allen's band concert by the RCAF Band. Trenton harbor area will be patrolled by both Ontario Provincial Police and Royal Canadian Mounted Police boats and both a skilful diving display at the foot of the river, and an exhibition by the Quinte Aqua Divers will be held.

The RCMP patrol boat "Shaunavon IV" will be on display alongside the Yacht Club jetty, where interested people may view it. There will also be a transport line and judo exhibition for the entertainment of those present.

On Friday evening the Council's Water Safety Week program will conclude with a talk on boating safety precautions at the yacht club for members, members and all small boat owners. The talk will be given by a member of the RCAF Rescue Co-Ordination Centre. This program will start at 8.00 p.m.

Peony and Iris Show Held By Society

The Belleville Horticultural Society at the Memorial Centre Monday night held its quality tying meeting in order to receive the government grant of 30% of its membership. The peony and iris show was small owing to the iris just about finished and the peony too early. However Mrs. C. Hodgson of the O.S.D. had quite a nice display of iris and Mr. Sam Munnings had a lovely basket of peonies, Mr. Jack Laundry of Picton showed slides on gladiolus and roses, the roses of Jackson Perkins rose show Newark, will be in Picton on Prince Edward County and Belleville Society has trip this coming Saturday, June 24th. The gladiolus talk was very enlightening to the members. The next meeting July 24th, of this Society will see quite an exchange of plants amongst its membership and many of the members will be in Stirling to see their flower show this Wednesday evening.

RAILWAY INDUSTRY

A plant at Trenton, near New Glasgow, N.S., has manufactured steel railway cars since 1912.

Number of Asphalt Streets Will Be Smoothed Out

Belleville motorists are having the way smoothed for them this week.

Starting Monday street planing operations will commence in the city and with the completion of the program the bumps on the upper end of the asphalt streets will have been soothed out.

City Engineer Malcolm Turnbull said street planing operations were started yesterday on Bleecker Street between the Loblaw store and Dundas Street, while today operations are expected on Bridge Street a far east as William St. Intersection. On Bridge Street at William, Ann and Charles will also be smoothed out, it was stated.

Also scheduled for planing are both sides of Front Street south from the four corners where commencing early in July the centre section will be removed. Pinnacle Street, north from Bridge, and Station Street between Church and Starling St. will also come in for treatment.

Again on Victoria Ave., the intersections of John, George and Church will be planed.

North Front Street intersections at Moira and Seventh Street Extension will be the intersection of Dundas and Parker on the West Hill, and Bridge, Church, Pinnacle and Ann Ave. to Yeomans St.

Approximately 20,000 cubic yds. of "bumps" materials will be removed, this material will be hauled to the walk construction or repairs.

The planing will be done by the city last year for the first time and on the recommendation of the city engineering department was again this year approved by council.

Pending approval by city council later this week, the asphalt-to-Mac-Steel, a new type in surface seal, will be laid on Bridge St. City street in the next week. The new type street sealing treatment which is expected to last five years suits in many other Ontario cities and a life expectancy of five years.

Board Winds Up Business Before Recessing for Summer

Members of the Belleville Public School Board wound up their regular business until after the summer recess.

Board members held their June meeting at the Bridge Street board room Monday evening and heard reports from the schools superintendent L. A. Kells on generally climbing school enrolments with the enrolment per teacher in Belleville continue to be slightly larger than for many Ontario cities.

At May 31st this year the public schools enrolment stood at 6,478 as compared to 6,238 at the same time in 1961. Also, Mr. Kells advised the public that was for a similar increase for the school opening in September.

Belleville's public schools will have a new enrolment of over 35 per teacher for the school opening in September, as compared with 31 in Trenton, Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie, Sarnia, Oshawa and Ottawa.

GIVEN AUTHORITY

The Board authorized the Superintendent to take whatever emergency measures are necessary during the summer to provide for staff and accommodation for the school opening in September.

It was noted that the kindergarten class at Bayview School would probably be discontinued with all Kindergarten children east of Herchimer to attend the class at the new Harry J. Clarke School.

Inspector J. M. Cousins reported on the visit of Superintendent D. G. Lockyer of Queen's University to the Belleville public schools earlier this month. Purpose of the visit was to study the teaching materials distributed by Science Research Associates and Principal Lockyer proposes to use in the intermediate grades of the incoming school year.

The quotation of Arthur A. Sills and Son was accepted for replacement of the roof of both the Queen Alexandra, Queen Mary and Queen Victoria Schools at $1,136.40. Bids will be asked on approximately 5,000 square yards of bituminous paving for repair of walks and approaches to various city schools.

INSTRUCTION GIVEN

Instruction was given to cease work on the rising and planing improvement work at the Sir Winston Churchill School site until the city works department has either completed installation of a storm sewer in the area, or there is some definite indication this work will not be proceeded with in a reasonable time.

The superintendent presented to each board member information concerning the re-writing of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1960, together with copies of those sections pertaining to duties of the trustees of Public School Boards, including legislation at the 1960-61 session. Reference was made, especially to Section 198 (a) of the Municipal Act referring to the direct or indirect interest of Board members in contracts with the Board, and to the benefits that may accrue to them. In 1961, from revision of the Power Commission Act and the Residential Tenancies Act, the Assistance Grants.

Chairman Fred Jones, secretary of the Belleville Minor Sports Association relative to providing boys' effort stations for children registering for participate in soccer, baseball and softball received.

The special committees were set up. Trustees James Ritchie, J. Russell Scott, M.D., and Mac Smith to report to the Board on revision of the Regulations rules for the use of school buildings and facilities, Trustees J. Russell Scott, M.D., Gordon Trill and Bruce Bishop to draw up suggestions for a policy on public relations.

Legion Band Concert Will Be Postponed

The band concert committee of Branch 99 Canadian Legion met at the Canadian Legion Hall at Pinnacle St. on Saturday evening.

A motion from Bob White band convener revealed that the professional military bands within reasonable distance from Belleville were according to Mr. Minden of the National Defence, engaged in prior arrangements for July band. So the date set for the Band Concert and fireworks display at Victoria Park has been postponed being on holidays only the bands in the Belleville district had been able to secure the Canadian Legion's offer for participation. One of these No.8 Repair Depot has since had its concert due to some members of their band being away on vacation at that time, the Trenton Air Force Band and there were insufficient bands to put on a varied program of entertainment and that the band concert should be postponed to a more convenient time.

Rose Atcheson, draw convener, reported that tickets were going well. As the draw was not to be held part of the band concert program, the committee decided that the draw should take place as scheduled on July 7th, but should be made in the Legion hall at 9.30 p.m.

Norm Bean, prize convener, was to arrange to have all the prizes at the hall before the time of the draw. The draw would be open to any member of the public who might wish to attend.

Comrade Atcheson reminded the meeting that all proceeds from the draw were to be divided, one-half to the Belleville Minor Sports Association and one-half to Legion Community Youth Work. He requested that all ticket sellers try to get their sold tickets in at least a week before the draw to eliminate a lot of follow up by his committee.

Walter Pitman Will Speak at New Party Rally

The first New Party rally for South Hastings Riding will be held in the Riverside Centre here on Friday of this week commencing at 8 p.m.

The speaker for this rally will be Mr. Walter G. Pitman M.P. who was elected in the recent byelection for Peterborough Riding. Mr. Pitman is the first New Party representative to be elected to the House of Commons.

This is the first New Party meeting here which has been open to the public.

At a meeting held a few days ago in the Legion Hall, Belleville, a Co-ordinating Committee was set up to organize the New Party in South Hastings Riding. This meeting was not open to the public as the public was attended by delegates from local unions in South Hastings Riding, by representatives of the Belleville and District Labour Council, Councils and by members of the South Hastings Riding C.C.F. Association.

It was decided to form a New Party Club, to which persons who might be interested in the New Party but who were not C.C.F. members or members of affiliated local unions could belong.

The Co-ordinating Committee was set up consisting of Chairman, Les Digby, Belleville, secretary, Ken Reilly, Frankford, and Vice Chairmen Herb Pointer and Don Burrow, both of Belleville.

The new Party will formally come into existence at the founding convention to be held in Ottawa July 31st to August 4th.

The New Party Co-ordinating Committee proposes to have other meetings in different centres throughout the riding, following the summer months.

Trust Company Head Speaks To Rotarians

Rotarians at last Thursday's meeting talk on the place which trust companies currently occupy in Canadian life, as well as a brief account of the history of the firm which currently opened its new office building in this community.

The Victoria and Grey firm was created in 1889 although its component firms have a history dating back to 1860, when they operated as building societies.

The Osgoode Hall graduate noted that a trust company's services were something quite different in most instances, than those which a bank offered. Although a trust company offered savings accounts it did not provide checking accounts, Mr. Thomas noted. It did, however, provide time withdrawal accounts offering interest rates of between four and a half to five percent, as well as retirement plans, mortgages, and security brokerage.

Acting within the laws and legislation governing them, trust companies administer the estates and properties of persons dying intestate and can act for companies. A trust company can also handle specialized trust funds and pension plans. The speaker noted that trust companies handle some $6,804,000,000 currently in estates management in Canada and have some $1,138,000,000 in savings accounts.

Mr. Thomas also made some observations on the problems in the handling of money and property in order to avoid successful claims. He noted the importance of a person examining his will periodically every three years or so, to ensure that it was compatible with his requirements and necessary. Both husbands and wives should have individual wills in order to prevent confusion in the event of a tragedy in which both might be involved in a common disaster.

The latter part of Mr. Thomas' address was handled in the form of answers to various questions frequently asked of trust companies, involving the handling of estates and properties and proved most interesting to his audience.

The speaker was introduced by Alderman Ben Corke and thanked by Harvey Bristol, Club president Bill Hurst presided over the meeting.

IN MEMORIAM

GALLINGER.—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Ernest, who passed away two years ago today, June 30th, 1959.

Two years have happened since that day,
Two years of heartache and pain,
Two years we've had to live with you,
Had you been left to stay,
Memories of you come to us each day,
Memories of you seem our way,
Memories of you are always near,
Still missed, loved, always dear.
Sadly missed by his wife Margaret, sons Stanley, Harry and Ernest.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Annie Rush would like to take this opportunity to extend their sincere appreciation to all their friends, neighbors, and relatives for the many kindnesses shown them during their sorrow and expressions of sympathy in the loss of a loving wife and mother. Also thanks to the doctors and nurses and the Weaver Funeral Home.

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for the many cards of kindness, beautiful floral tributes and expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement of a loving husband and father.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market recovered smartly from Monday's slump as almost all industrial groups rose in light morning trading.

Papers and food stocks made a good recovery. Most other groups had at least one or two leaders on the downside. Consolidated, Price Brothers and Abitibi all advanced fractionally. In the 50s, Salada Shirriff, Horner Frames and Dominion Bakeries were all up, the latter adding 3/4.

Bank of Nova Scotia, Bank of Montreal, Royal Bank, Traders Finance A and B and Investors Syndicate A were all down fractionally.

On the exchange index, industrials rose 2.18 to 583.81, golds .78 to 81.82, end base metals .08 to 190.58. Western oils fell .70 to 85.09, and the 11 am. volume was 811,000 shares compared with 834,000 at the same time yesterday.

Among golds, Kerr Addison and McIntyre Porcupine were up.

The market was led down all day Monday by most of the major industrial groups.

Steels, utilities, foods, refining oils and financial institutions all contributed heavily to the general decline.

Council Briefs

O. W. Larry, who has served the Town as clerk-treasurer for a number of years, will shortly assume the position of "clerk-computer". Council passed a resolution to the effect last night. A by-law will be passed in the near future, verifying the appointment.

• • •

Council voted to employ Douglas Jaggs as an accountant at $1.50 an hour, effective. Mr. Jaggs becomes a chartered accountant, he will receive an annual salary of $6,000. Inserted in his contract will be a clause allowing for his dismissal if council gives him 30 days written notice. Mr. Jaggs may also terminate the agreement in the same manner.

• • •

Carr's Electric was awarded the contract for sidewalk reconstruction. Cost to the town will be $3,500.

• • •

Council voted to appoint Miss Hazel Farley to represent council on the museum committee of the Hastings County Historical Society, providing that Miss Farley will accept the appointment.

• • •

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis will be asked to carry out recommendations that the staff of Panda's Village Rest Home be instructed in fire prevention procedures, how to evacuate patients in case of fire, and that the staff participate in periodical fire drills.

• • •

Council agreed to sell two lots in the vicinity of Hanna and Leopold Sts. to Jim Tuppenen, with a provision that Mr. Tuppenen build on one them until the area is serviced.

• • •

Council will contact the K. D. Radley Company with a view to having two signs, "Trenton, The Gateway to the Trent Canal System" published and placed at two of the entrances to the town. Councillor Lange said that he thought the company might do the work free. The Board of Commerce has secured a site for one sign at the east entrance to the town and Councillor Graham suggested that in all probability location could not be found, the remaining sign be placed either on town land ujpear Highway 401.

• • •

Council voted to disagree with the request of a Children's Aid Society preventive worker, in lieu of paying $1.-700 in taxes, that a $3,000 annual fee paid to the society by the town be partly remitted the town that "for financial reasons" the service would be cut off by July 1st if the additional sum was not forthcoming. Councillor Burtt suggested that the welfare authorities be contacted and "to secure the services of [illegible] or a woman for this [illegible]

• • •

Permission was granted for the RCAF to drop leaflets over the town, prior to Air Force Day, July 4th, advertising the event. "They'll probably all drop in the bay," observed Councillor Burtt.

• • •

Mayor Jessie MacDonald presented gifts to members of the Wilson's Concrete basketball team, on behalf of council and the people of the town, for winning the "C" class amateur basketball champion-ship for the province.

• • •

Councillor Vagn Lange, chairman of public works reported that the work on the widening and reconstruction of Division Street was well ahead of schedule. The street, from Bridge St. to Front St., is now open to traffic and council will make arrangements with the contractor to have signs placed warning motorists of hazards. The councillor said he expected on the macadam surfacing of Elizabeth Street should start next week.

Eric Aldersey Signs Contract With Council

TRENTON — Eric Aldersey was officially appointed as town engineer at last night's council meeting. Mr. Aldersey signed a contract with council, one of the provisions of which was that he could at any time terminate it by giving 30 days' written notice of his intention, and that council could terminate the contract in the same manner.

A lengthy discussion regarding the length of the engineer's annual holiday was held. Councillor Vagn Lange felt that the engineer should have a three-week holiday, taking into consideration that he must still do night council meetings twice a month. Other councillors felt that he should be given two weeks' vacation for five years, and after that, one month's holiday was given for each year of employment until a 21-day limit was reached. The latter suggestion was adopted with Councillor Burtt dissenting. He said that the "engineers' association smelled the same as a unicn" to him, and that he wondered if they might not demand special treatment for the chief surveyor in the years to come. However, Councillor Burtt decided that the matter should be treated with discretion.

"We don't want to lose our engineer before we get him," he said.

Councillor Worrall said that he was confused by the phrase "bi-weekly" in the terms of the contract, in reference to the engineer's salary.

"If he's paid twice a week, it's sure going to muck up the accounting," he said.

"It might do the same to the finances," replied town clerk O. W. Larry.

It was agreed that the phrase should be changed to read that the engineer would be paid every two weeks.

Mr. Aldersey will be in charge of the public works, sanitation and sewage departments and will also serve as zoning administrator.

Board Asks Metro Lawyer For Opinion

TRENTON—Members of official boards, as well as the man in the street in Trenton are becoming more and more concerned about the phrase "conflict of interests."

The Board of Education has asked lawyer Malcolm Robb of Toronto for his opinion regarding a proposed member's company tendering for the sale of school supplies to the board. Paul Thrasher, chairman of maintenance with the board, is also a shareholder in Mark Tripp Ltd. of Trenton.

Mr. Tripp said he has had no less than three separate legal opinions on this matter and claims that as a shareholder in a "limited" company, it is excepted from the clauses in the School Administration Act.

Mr. Tripp said that in the past, the company with which he is associated has submitted a number of tenders for the supply of school material, but that the company has only been awarded one contract in the past year. Mr. Tripp said that he has retired from the board of room each time the board voted to award a tender when his association was included among the bidders.

New Types Of Aircraft On Display

TRENTON—Saturday, July 1st., will be Air Force Day. RCAF officials say that they are looking forward to the greatest attendance on "the biggest and best Air Force Day yet."

There will be a considerable change in the line-up of the aircraft on the ground and in the air this year, featuring the latest additions to Air Transport Command's strength. Aircraft in the make-up this year will include the CC-108 "Yukon", recently introduced into service, the C130-B "Hercules", the CC-109 "Cosmopolitan", the Albatross and the Caribou, as a "farewell" gesture, 36 CF-100's will take part in a mass fly-past.

The grounds will open at 12:30 p.m. and the fly-past will start at 2:00 p.m.

Visitors are urged to bring along their cameras, as the day is "Open House" to camera enthusiasts.

Baby-sitting facilities will be provided and parking room will be found on the lot of Hangar 9.

Of particular interest to visitors will be a 1904 Silver Dart perched atop the wing of a CF-100 which has a wing-span of 134 feet.

The Golden Hawks will arrive in Trenton on June 30th and will be one of the star attractions at the show.

Town Council Votes Support Of Resolution

TRENTON— Town council last night voted to support a resolution forwarded by the Windsor Chamber of Commerce, the provincial government be asked to amend the Municipal Act so that municipalities have more control over such things as Sabbath observance, etc.

The resolution suggests that all persons holding such licenses be qualified in bankruptcy sales, employed misleading advertising and supplemented the goods to be sold by inferior goods.

"Some merchants hold things sales 52 weeks a year," said Councillor Lange.

Town Citizen Queries Rights Of Councillors

TRENTON — A letter from Ralph Graham, Bedford's barrister, "written at the instruction of a ratepayer of the town of Trenton", brought provisions of the municipal act to the attention of council last night.

The letter said that, "if a councillor were to so much as speak a leaf of bread to the company," he would be considered disqualified to sit and vote on council".

The letter stated that the ratepayer must take action within six weeks after he had been made aware of conditions which might warrant such disqualification of any member of council.

The letter, addressed "to the mayor and council", added that the matters involved were sure complex. There was also a reference made to the question of members of "limited" companies coming under the provisions of the act.

Roderick Campbell town solicitor, when asked for an opinion, said that he would be forced to "agree with him (Mr. Graham) in any large".

Councillor Lloyd Worrall said that if the law was set out, he would have to live it to a member's of council to deal with their own personal interests. Councillor Vagn Lange said that he hoped future legislation would be made a little clearer on the subject.

Councillor D. R. Fraser said that if the decision referred to in the letter had some evidence of wrong-doing and there is a specific point it could be dealt with at that time.

Councillor Ross Burtt asked if there was any possibility of a charge being brought against the town. Mr. Campbell replied that any charge would be brought against individual councillors.

Mayor MacDonald said that it seemed to be the intent of the law to see that the public interest was not jeopardized.

Batawa Girls' Sokol Club U.S. Bound

TRENTON — The Batawa Girls' Sokol Club will send teams to the U.S.S.R. Youth Fest in Chicago this weekend. The Trenton club is under the direction of Mrs. Frank Yanak, who is the chief instructor for a number of Sokol organizations in Canada. Mrs. Yanak came to Batawa in 1951 from Czechoslovakia, where she was in charge of all U.S. groups.

Sokol is regarded by its enthusiasts as a pastime, rather than a competition.

The Batawa club has been practising precision drills in the gym at Trenton High School and in church basements in Batawa since the gym was destroyed by fire six months ago.

Minister, Wife Honored Before Their Departure

The congregation of Bridge Street United Church honored Rev. and Mrs. Robt. Sherwin last evening at a farewell party in the Sunday School rooms. Mr. Sherwin who has been assistant Minister at Bridge Street for four years is leaving to assume his own pastorate at Durham, Ontario.

Mr. Don Williams, Clerk of Session was chairman for the evening. After a well planned and enjoyable program, Mr. A. D. Basting was asked to speak and on behalf of the Sunday School Mr. G. Shaver presented Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin with two lawn chairs. Mr. T. K. Franklin spoke on behalf of the congregation and Mrs. Sherwin and Mrs. N. O'Neil and Mr. Bryson Leslie made presentations. Earlier in the evening the Hi-C group of the church presented Mr. Sherwin with a lawn chair and Mrs. Sherwin with a bouquet of flowers, tribute to Mrs. Sherwin and his work here.

Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies and a social hour much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwin leave Bridge Street with many good wishes for their future success and happiness.

Lively Week

What a difference a week makes!

On Monday of last week, we were in the political doldrums, with no real prospects of an impending Federal election and no truly live issues lit one should suddenly develop.

Today, altogether aside from the budget, due tonight and from all indications likely to contain several items of more than routine interest, we have a plethora of potential election issues.

Top drawer, of course, is the case of James M. Coyne and the Bank of Canada, a beautiful issue for any politician, since it involves monetary policy and since money is such a complex subject that it is possible to guarantee that very few electors will understand it completely and can therefore be told almost anything about it without much danger of them being able to sift fact from fantasy.

Secondly, and a dilly of an issue; too, we have the Senate amending a bill passed by the House of Commons. Just to make things even more interesting, there is a possibility that the Senate will stage a rerun of this unusual performance by amending the bill dealing with murder, already fraught with possibilities for emotional appeals, but hitherto burdened with the handicap of having been approved by a non-partisan vote.

Add to this the spectacle of a Conservative-appointed royal commission proposing to impose an outright ban on some magazines from abroad, and to subject other printed-in-Canada editions of foreign magazines with a tax law interpretation which would in effect double the cost of advertising in them—all this when the Conservatives had repealed a mere tax on foreign magazines imposed by the former Liberal regime . . . .

Well, ain't we got fun!

Revitalized Senate

Though Senators themselves would probably deny it, the general public might be pardoned for concluding that there has been a sudden resurgence of vim, vigor and vitality amongst the members of the upper chamber.

Wednesday the Senate's liberal majority amended a tariff bill in such a manner as to wipe out the bill's key point, which would have granted arbitrary powers to the Minister of National Revenue in some tariff-setting decisions. The same day a Liberal Senator, Salter Hayden, criticised the new legislation regarding murder, new definition of "capital murder," (for which the death penalty would be retained), as being planned and deliberate could make it more difficult to establish a defence of provocation in trying to prove a crime was one of manslaughter rather than murder, he argued. This is constructive criticism.

Both instances of Senate independence seem to spring from the fact that majorities in the House and Senate are not of the same political faith. But it would seem impossible to guarantee a continuance of this situation. As an alternative, might it improve the Senate if it were required that members have no political experience, that they should have acquired, before appointment, a reputation for being men or women of independent minds?

Missing Fish

About 20,000 year-old trout have been stolen from the Deer Lake fish hatchery, 40 miles north of Peterborough.

Lindsay District Forester Don Wilson says he does not know what type of person would do a thing like this, then makes a shrewd guess, "possibly someone wanting to stock a private lake or some special lake they have an interest in." If Mr. Wilson doubts there are people like this, he might be helped by an explanation given by a Plainfield resident as to why, some years ago, young muskies were so plentiful in the O'Brien's Bridge section of the Mohr.

It seems that a shipment of muskies, left at Foxboro, looked much larger than usual, but our informant asked no questions and loaded them onto a truck. Reaching home, he was told by his wife that the game and fisheries people had been telephoning him, to tell him that muskies intended for planting elsewhere had been included by mistake with those left for him. "I told my wife, 'If they call again, say I'm not home yet,' and I hurried right down to the river and emptied those cans," said the old rascal.

Bless him!

Columbia River Impasse

Ottawa Journal

Nearly six months have passed since Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower signed the treaty for co-operative development of the Columbia River. Apart from its long-range benefits in providing cheap power, the project, involving an outlay of $440,000,000 on the Canadian side, would provide much employment and assist the Canadian economy generally.

Delay is caused by the Social Credit government of British Columbia which wants the Dominion Government to allow the wholesale export of power, contrary to a Dominion policy in effect for nearly half a century.

External Affairs Minister Green, a BC Liberal, reiterated Federal policy, the other day when he said he continued to oppose exports of power. So the impasse continues. The BC government proposes that power should be sold not only from the Columbia but from a large project on the Peace River, developed by the Swedish industrialist, Axel Gronlund.

Unless its terms are met, BC threatens to leave the Dominion to develop the Columbia alone. Ottawa believes the provinces as the chief beneficiary from the development should pay about half the capital contributed by the Federal treasury—and be repaid from the sale of power. If Ottawa proceeded alone it would have to attempt to sell the power to the BC Power Commission, owned by the provincial government, and to the privately-owned BC Electric Co. Ltd., which naturally prefers to remain on good terms with the provincial administration.

In this frustrating situation Ottawa has to refrain its determination by recalling the past. It was in 1944 that an order-in-council laid down that each licence for export of power should be valid only for one year and the use of power by an outside industry should not involve Canada in an obligation to permit a permanent diversion of this natural resource. That remains the basic Canadian policy to this day. It is a wise policy.

While the advantages of power contracts with U.S. interests extending over a period of years are unsettled in BC, there is no mention of the situation which developed in a year of danger, 1917, when Canada seeking to step up munitions production, found all a leading source(s) of supply, Niagara Falls, under treaty commitments plus home demand had imported almost all the capacity. Expert companies had to be warned that their licences might be curtailed, or allowed to lapse and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission arranged a limitation of exports in negotiations which allowed all to survive. The U.S. willingness to ensure the best use of power in the joint war effort.

But if there had been no joint effort there would be no concern to both countries what would have been the result?

Today the demand increases and, in the United States particularly, the sources of water power become ever more limited. If the treaty to guard power resources was urgent in 1944, when the controls were imposed, it is even greater today.

Name Seems Misnomer

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The delightful name of Lake Erie's Lake Erie, England, is the name of Lake Erie, but he does not appear to live up to the principles of English justice.

There cannot be much joy in a young laborer who was charged with driving his motorcycle at 4,000 revolutions per yards while under the influence of drink. He did not drink or do anything and did not hit anybody. Mr. English fined him over $100 and suspended his licence for nearly 20 feet before bringing his vehicle to a stop.

Penalty should fit the crime, Mr. English! Accused to pay costs amounting to $30. No disqualification from driving.

Magistrate English should have his head examined.

Could Revive Penny Bank

Sherbrooke Record

While many Canadian chartered banks today take steps to encourage development of saving habits in the young people, nothing has really taken the place of the old Penny Bank. And more's the pity.

An answer to this situation, however, may be just around the corner.

It began in Amsterdam, The Netherlands, is currently experimenting with a new banking machine for the young and is touted in the school building system and could make penny banking again feasible.

Each child gets a card that is placed in the machine that counts in the manner of a time card in a punch clock. When a coin is inserted in the slot and a handle is turned the amount is recorded on the card.

Later the filled card is taken to the bank where the amounts can be transferred to proper bankbook.

It sounds like a practical idea which should be studied by Canadian schools and Canadian banks.

Old Nostrums Are Studied

Brantford Expositor.

"Folk medicine", as researchers and pharmaceutical chemists and specialists alike will tell you, often has merit. It should not be dismissed out of hand as a mere collection of old wives' tales. Because the effects should be separated from the quack, and there is wheat.

Medical science is frequently discovering or rather re-discovering, things the old wives, or even the earlier witches and medicine men, knew, and used long ago.

A classic case is the use of the fox-glove plant in certain heart cases. Foxglove contains digitalis, a recognized and useful drug.

The great Dr. Jenner found his preventive for smallpox through paying some attention to local practices and observing that those who worked with cows, and so got cowpox, became immune to smallpox.

More than a century ago the Hungarian Dr. Semmelweis discovered that childbed fever, or was a form of blood-poisoning by bacteria and could be prevented by washing the hands, a fact known to generations of housewives and "wetches" — or many of them.

However, many other medical discoveries have been neglected as mere curiosities having no practical value, among them nutmeg, vitamin B, penicillin.

Fortunately for us, modern researchers appear to have learned a lesson from their study of medical and associated history: They are busily looking into folk remedies and also into more recent by-products or scientific advance.

A section of the bark of the tree known to a rare phenomenon in which some colonies, when advanced to what is called the terminal stage, have developed immunity to the doctors say "regressed".

The cause of this regression is still a pretty much a mystery, but Professor Warren H. Cole, head of the Department of Surgery at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, for one, calls it "a challenge to medical knowledge explored? No matter, it is a challenge even now. If the specialists can find out what causes "regression in cancer, perhaps they will be able to induce it. In that case medicine will advance along the tedious, painful, often unsuccessful road to cancer cure may be made.

And this is no time only avenue of approach. Not only in the fields of surgery, radiology, etc., but in those of chemistry and biology diligent studies are being made continuously. This is the vital reason for keeping up the supply of money, through the Cancer Society and similar agencies, for research, research and ever more research.

To Your Good Health

Heart Attack Victims Shouldn't Smoke Too Much

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Several of us belong to the Heart Attack Club. There seems to be a wide difference of opinion among doctors relative to smoking by people who have suffered a heart attack.

"Some say that one package of cigarets or less a day is permissible, others say no, no smoking at all. We would like your comments. — E.E.H."

Yes, there's a divergence of opinion on tobacco and heart attacks, and I'll give you mine, and the reasons I hold it.

Smoking can cause an increase in blood pressure, a quickening of the heart rate and extra beats, all of which add up to some added strain on the organ.

Hence I think that smoking should not be indulged in after a heart attack. A little leak may not sink a ship, and a little extra strain may not cause another attack, but that is good sense to play the percentages? I think so.

At the same time, remember this: Non-smokers have coronary attacks. The causes are deeper than simply smoking or not smoking. Let's not think that smoking is the cause and ignore all the other important factors.

I'd go this far: A casual cigaret after meals, perhaps, or midway between, may be relaxing and cause no ill effects. Indeed, if it really is relaxing, it thus becomes helpful.

But a package a day, 2 0 cigarets, regardless of opinion, be heavy smoking for a heart patient, and my answer is a definite no. If you can enjoy an occasional cigaret and keep it down to that, as a physician I say quit entirely.

"Dear Dr. Molner: A friend of mine with ulcers was told not to drink coffee because it upset his stomach. I enjoy coffee and should be separated from the meat, and there is wheat.

Plastic Age Shows Staged

Waterlown Times

Some idea of the impact which plastics are making on the Australian economy is suggested from the ninth National Plastic Exposition which opened in the New York Coliseum. The show while not open to the public, is expected to attract more than 35,000 executives from the industries of the plastics and allied industries.

The exhibit contains plastic products ranging from the wrap from substitutes for shredded paper to a 1,000 gallon, 17,000 pound sloop. In addition to the substitutes for shredded paper there are automobile parts of excelsior, sawdust and other packaging materials, and a wide variety of products for the home includes baby bathinettes, dishpans, garbage pails and a blanket made from 100 per cent polypropylene. And the examples of uses of plastics in industry are tremendous

There is a "little store" tucked away in a corner of the building. There are 260 exhibitors displaying their plastics materials and end products made from them over the entire three floors of the huge coliseum.

Thus to impress further the gigantic size of the plastic industry, the fact that today more than 10,000 products are made from this material. The use of Plastics in the Sales line place in a cycle which gave us the ages of wood, metal and rubber.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At the next table to us at lunch sat a very grumpy and disagreeable man. He glowered at the waitress.

"When do I get a little service?" he demanded sourly.

When his turn came, he studied the menu and then asked the waitress to substitute part of one item for part of another. She regretted that she could not do that. When he finally made his choice, he said curtly:

"See that it's hot when it gets here."

When it came, he stared at it balefully, poking with his fork. He wanted brown bread, not white. Then brown. And another pat of butter!

The waitress, a quiet woman in her forties, never batted an eye through all this bullying. She attended to him with sincerity and perfect good nature. When he got up and left, we could see that he was pleased with the waitress.

"What a jerk!" she said. "That's a common experience with waitresses. We're accustomed to it. It is, you might say, part of the function of waitresses to let customers feel big. That poor man probably got a bawling out by his boss this morning. Possibly, he is just some disappointed fellow with a measly job, and he comes to lunch and acts big to the waitress. I let them feel big. It makes no bother to me, and amuses me."

What waitresses are philosophers.

Pupils Going to High School Get Preview of New Home

Grade 8 students in public schools going on to high school in September will get a preview of their new schools on Thursday of this week, when they will have an opportunity to check grade 9 courses and options which they selected several weeks ago.

Thursday grade 8 students will register for enrolment in Belleville's secondary schools.

Thursday afternoon at 1:30 all pupils planning to attend Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, Quinte Secondary School, or Moira Secondary School, will report to these schools for an orientation program.

At this time they will be given a preview of their new school, its courses of study, its rules and regulations, and its staff, so that in September they will not feel completely strange. They will be assigned tentatively to classes in accordance with their choice of course or options and then will be taken on a tour of their new school.

THREE COURSES

All students entering secondary schools are assigned to Course I, Course II or Course III. Course I is designed for students who find it difficult to learn in school but who, in the opinion of the elementary school authorities, could benefit from a year or two in secondary school. For such students to go into the regular secondary school course would mean certain failure. Students in this group are given a balanced program of academic and vocational subjects geared to their ability.

Course II terminates at the end of Grade X and a certificate is given to successful students. Subjects include English, History, Geography, Mathematics, Science, Physical Education, Library Science, Occupations, Typewriting, and Shop Work or Home Economics.

Course II is designed for students who, while perhaps able to earn promotion from Grade 8, have not at present the ability or the desire to cope successfully with the regular four-year secondary school program.

BASIC SUBJECTS

This course contains subjects similar to those given in Course III, with the exception of a second language, but they are taught at a more moderate rate. While due emphasis is given to such basic subjects as English and Mathematics, sufficient vocational training is included in the program to enhance the student's job opportunities should he seek employment at the end of the program.

Course II will terminate at the end of Grade 10 and a certificate will be given to successful students. Any such successful student who desires to continue school beyond this point will be permitted to enter Grade 10 of Course III.

Subjects in this course are English, History, Geography, Mathematics, Science, Physical Education, Library Science, Occupations, Typewriting or Agriculture and Shop Work or Home Economics.

Course III is designed for those students who have the ability, the industry and the desire to complete a four-year course for a Secondary School Graduation Diploma or a five-year course for an Honour Secondary School Graduation Diploma. Such students will be offered a wide opportunity to explore subject fields in Grades 9 and 10. On entrance to Grade 11, however, these students must select a specialized course of study — Industrial, Commercial, or General — depending on the pattern to be followed after graduation.

Compulsory subjects in this course are English, History, Geography, Mathematics, Science, Physical Education, Library Science and Occupations. In addition, students must select one of French, Typewriting or Agriculture; one of Art, Music or Shop Work; and one of Business Practice, Shop Work or Home Economics.

Pupils transferred to secondary school because of age are required to take Course I. Students promoted to Grade 9 may take either Course II or Course III. But in making this decision they should be guided by the advice of their parents and their Grade 8 teachers.

Youth Killed As Car Plows Into Group

OTTAWA (CP)—A car plowed into three youngsters as they walked along the east end Cyrville Road Monday, fatally injuring one.

Peter Dennis, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dennis, died in hospital.

George Golberg, 16, was released after treatment for head and arm injuries and Jack Morin, also 16, escaped injury.

Police said the car was driven by George Lancaster, 24, of Cyrville.

Ald. McDougall New President Alumni Assoc.

Dr. David W. Slater, associate professor of economics at Queen's University, was the guest speaker last Wednesday evening when members and guests of the Belleville and District Branch of the Queen's University Alumni Association gathered at the Club Canada. The dinner meeting was conducted by the president, Dr. W. A. L. McDonald of Trenton.

Dr. Slater presented a most timely address on the origin and purpose of the Bank of Canada and also some background of the current controversy between the governor of the Bank of Canada and the government.

In the early portion of his address, Dr. Slater described the university as being in a state of transition. Research and graduate study at Queen's are gradually adding another phase of learning to the university, thus broadening the whole curriculum. Dr. Slater stressed that while this is a desirable trend, the university must not lose sight of its primary responsibility to teach and stimulate the undergraduate.

Dr. Slater was introduced by T. W. Spear and thanked by O. C. Larry.

Herb Hamilton of Kingston, who is also a past president of the Alumni gathering up to date on recent activities at the university.

Mrs. J. H. Bateman gave a report of the Alumni fund and announced that the annual canvass will take place in the fall.

A lively sing-song was led by A. S. Robb, accompanied at the piano by Ed Rickards.

Past president, Dr. W. A. L. McDougall; president, Lorne McDougall; 1st vice-president, Dr. J. H. Walmsley; 2nd vice-president, T. W. Spear; secretary, Miss Nell Merry; treasurer, John F. Webster; athletic representative, Jack R. Sisson.

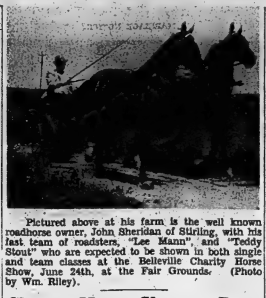
Otherwise, it would weaken the criminal code.

She said the RCMP has had difficulty enforcing the small vessels regulations. It was highly unlikely provincial police forces would do better unless they had sufficient personnel.



Gordon Allen (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) said authorities in his riding, a tourist area, have been seriously concerned for years with proper enforcement of regulations covering the operation of pleasure boats and the like.

R. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said yacht clubs and the like might swear in special summertime deputies to help enforce water safety. Wallace Nesbitt, parliamentary secretary for external affairs, and perhaps senior university students could be signed up as well.

Mr. Nesbitt supported a suggestion that a minimum age be set for powerboat operators. He said this might be 18 years, the same as for car drivers in most provinces.

He also suggested that a licence be required to operate a boat with an engine of more than three horsepower. Licensing would be a means of controlling careless and inexperienced drivers on the water.

Mr. Fulton said Health Minister Monteith will approach provincial governments to determine what they can do to provide clinics for sex offenders outside the penitentiary service.

Pictured above at his farm is the well known roadhorse owner, John Sheridan of Stirling, with his last team of roadsters, "Lee Mann", and "Teddy Stout" who are expected to be shown in both single and team classes at the Belleville Charity Horse Show, June 24th, at the Fair Grounds. Charity Horse Show to Be Biggest Ever Held in District

A record number of entries have been received by the secretary, Mr. L. Jamrok, and post entries will be accepted. All 30 events are expected to be well filled for the forthcoming Charity Horse Show.

For the children there will be pony harness and saddle classes and musical chairs. Also for the children not participating in this show will be quiet ponies to ride.

In the saddle horse field there will be outstanding hunter and jumper classes, and pleasure horses shown under Western and English tack.

Bringing the past into the present will be the single and team roadhorse classes at this year's Belleville Horse Show that always thrill the crowd. The daring and dash of speed today is just as exciting as in days gone by, only the speed will be shown on the track and not the concession road.

Adding majestic action will be the well groomed hackney horses and hackney ponies showing in single team and tandem dsive. In the Quinte District alone there are many owners of fine hackney horses and ponies, and many are expected to be seen at this year's Charity Show.

The people of the Quinte district will have an opportunity to see a Horse Show that would require attendance for two or three days at the Toronto Royal or Exhibition.

Father Baker Shaken Up In Collision

TWEED (Special)—Father C. E. Baker, of St. Carthage Church Tweed, suffered a shaking up Monday evening at Tweed when his car was struck by another vehicle at the intersection of Victoria and Jamieson streets.

Father Baker was driving on Jamieson Street and had started across Victoria Street when his car was struck broadside by a vehicle driven by Laverne Monaghan of Victoria Street, Tweed.

The force of the impact showered glass over Father Baker and shoved his car across the intersection and almost up against the township hall.

In the absence of Police Chief Walter Higgns, who was out of the village, the accident was investigated by Ontario Provincial Police.

The fair grounds is a wonderful setting and a splendid place for a family outing, and an opportunity for the public to support a worthwhile charity. The 1961 Charity Horse Show is sponsored by the Lions Club of Belleville, and the proceeds will be used for the Retarded Children's Building Fund.

On trucking, he assured the committee the CNR did not intend to employ unfair practices in competition with privately-owned firms. The CNR had to be above reproach in observing all laws, and might enhance the ethics of the trucking industry.

Mr. Browne, a trucking executive before entering Parliament, said his fear was that the CNR's trucking operations would be subsidized by taxpayers through covering any railway deficit, and this was unfair to the privately-owned trucking firms.

H. Carter, Napanee, Ontario. The bride is a recent graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. Joseph Jordan, R.R. 6, Belleville, is a patient at Belleville General Hospital, in room 238.

Miss Karen Hickman, of St. John's, Newfoundland, and Miss Bonnie Rapley, of Trafalgar, Ontario, are visiting Miss Jane Scott.

Miss Emily Peabody, of this city, received word on Sunday of the death of her father, Mr. Peter Peabody, of Wakaw, Sask. She left Sunday via air to attend the funeral.

Col. P. Wills Legion Branch Presents Gift

On Thursday evening the regular monthly meeting of the Col. Phay Wills Branch Canadian Legion was held in the Legion hall, on Pinnacle St.

A letter from "Dude" Hills, District Commander, was read by secretary Olive Schmidt, which contained an invitation for the branch to participate in the annual memorial service to be held in Port Hope, Sunday, June 25. It was decided a bugler party and as many as possible would parade.

As there is no regular meeting scheduled for July, President "Billy" Kirby suggested that after the picnic committee finalize the plans the members could be contacted by phone in August.

Guest of the evening, Dr. D. McVicker, Zone Commander, was asked to conduct the meeting.

After hearing the by-laws the branch had set up, he approved of them, as being ready to send to the Dominion Command.

The ladies were thanked for their donation to the Deseronto building fund and commended on their progress.

The zone commander gave a brief report on the activities of other branches in the district during a question period during which each member was an opportunity to get a better understanding of the Canadian Legion.

A farewell party had been held for Sandy McBride, soon at sea, at the home of Billy Kirby, on June 5th. She was presented with a leather wallet, inscribed with her name and the branch number.

Following a lively bingo, with kitchen utensils as prizes, everyone enjoyed a delicious lunch.

WA Views Colored Films Of Europe

ROSLIN — On Wednesday evening the Women's Association of the United Church entertained a number of local Guild and W.A. members at an open meeting in the Roslin United Church with about 50 present.

Before the meeting Mrs. F. Howes played several selections on the piano.

The president, Mrs. Harold Meeks, welcomed the guests and read a poem, which was followed by two Scripture readings.

The commentary on this was given by Mrs. S. Colden and the Rev. R. Nichols led in prayer.

Mrs. E. Green gave a reading and Mrs. Wannamaker favored with a solo "Sing Because I'm Happy."

GUEST SPEAKERS

Mr. Nichols introduced the guest speakers, Mr. and Mrs. George Hughes, of Campbellford, his parents, who had taken a trip last summer to the British Isles and Europe.

Mr. Nichols showed the slides and Mrs. Nichols gave the commentary. They sailed from Canada on the Empress of Britain and the first stop was at Greenock, Scotland, where several passengers left the ship by tug-boat to Glasgow. Next stop was Blackpool, England, and they showed a picture of Leighton Hall, a home open for inspection and then up through the Cheviot Hills into Scotland and Edinburgh Castle, which was built like a fort. They also saw the highest points and one can see for miles over the countryside. Here they showed pictures of Princess Street, one of the widest streets in the world. And other place of interest was the Westminster Chapel cemetery, where officers' pets are buried. From there they visited Windsor Castle, residence of the Queen and Duke when in England. They walked on the ramparts of the castle and the tombs in the abbey; also St. Paul's Cathedral with the Lutheran heart built in the brick work in memory of Luther. Beautiful slides were shown of the Botanical Gardens in Edinburgh, where there are large shrubs and plants from every part of the world; the Firth of Forth bridge, Brearley Castle, a ruins now, was built in the 12th century. They passed many more ruins of famous castles, Holyrood Palace, the home of the famous monster; more pictures of the beautiful mountains in Scotland and the monument where the Commander-in-Chief died at last battle St. Augustine Seminary, Ancaster, built from stones taken from the Hall. Clarence Rock, where the stones were taken from which the Parliament buildings were built in Ottawa. England, where the stores are built in two rows, upper and lower. On to Holland, the Dutch International Music Festival took part of 40 countries took part.

Several pictures of thatched cottages and of pretty pastoral scene, near Strand Bath were shown which is famous for the bath with their medicinal waters are located. A divining stone 200 B.C. is still there. Then the cathedral in the British Isles is in Wales.

Other scenes shown were: in Cheddar Gorge and caves which will have names; a thatched inn; Windsor Castle, London; Buckingham Palace; the geranium bed near the Mall; Clarence House; Hyde Park, where all the orators are; Westminster Abbey; National War Memorial St. James Park; Trafalgar Square; Hampton Park with its beautiful gardens; the long water; Queen Victoria Memorial; the Coldstream Guards and the Tower of London.

From England they flew to Holland and later took a trip on the canal. They showed pictures of the miniature villages which is an exact replica of all things in Holland, trains, streetcars, planes, windmills, bandstand and musicians. They showed a statue located in the Hague, Netherlands.

In Germany they saw the Passion play at Oberammergau which lasted a whole day; the stage is open to the sky and the rest of the theatre is covered and seats 4,000 people.

They visited Zurich, Switzerland where they saw the traffic policeman in his little box on wheels which he stands in and wheels around. They went by train up the mountains and walked the last part of the way to the top. The zoo in Zurich was also visited and a number of the animals were photographed.

In Paris, France they visited the Arch of Triumph; Champs Elysees, Eiffel Tower in which 2 million rivets were used in the construction. It gets its name from the builder, Mr. Eiffel.

They returned home to Canada by plane after a most enlightening trip.

A vote was given by Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Kincaid and Mrs. Goodfellow gave a reading.

Thanks to the speakers were expressed for their delightful color travelogue.

Later all were invited to the tea room where a delicious lunch was served.

On behalf of the guests, Mrs. Geen expressed a vote of thanks to the hostess for a most enjoyable evening.

Surprise Party Marks 40th Wedding Anniversary

A surprise party was held last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Clapp, of Plainfield, in honor of their 40th wedding anniversary, with 12 relatives present.

The evening was spent in a social get-together, reminiscing about times past and conjecturing about the future.

Forty years ago on June 15, at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bowmanville, Mr. and Mrs. Clapp were married by the Reverend J. Davies with Miss Bernice Carney, as bridesmaid, sister of the bride, and Mr. John Cocking, also of Roslin, now deceased, as groomsman.

Following the marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Clapp left to honeymoon in Toronto. Upon their return, they settled on the bridegroom's farm, in Plainfield, where they resided with farming as their occupation until recently when Mr. Clapp decided to rent the farm acres and to devote his time to gardening and raising of flowers, a hobby which both intensely love.

They are regular attendants of St. Paul's Anglican Church, when weather and health permit.

Among those present were Mrs. Clapp's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grills, of Thomasburg; her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Carney, of Roslin; their nieces and nephews, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Grills, of Thomasburg; Mr. and Mrs. William Dack, and Mr. and Mrs. William Bowler, of Belleville; Miss Olive Carney, and Mr. Harry Carney, of Roslin; two great nieces, the Misses Heather and Carol Grills, of Thomasburg, a great-grand niece, Miss Susan Dack, ten months, and Master Dale Dack, 2½ years, did not attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Clapp were the recipients of several fine gifts as well as lovely cards bearing best wishes and congratulations.

Refreshments, consisting of a lovely anniversary cake, bearing the legend, "Happy 40th anniversary, Helen and Wilfred," sandwiches and coffee, were served.

Auto Heiress, Anne Ford, Makes Debut

DETROIT (AP)—A garden in the exclusive suburb of Grosse Pointe held the spotlight — and most of the families — of Detroit's social world Monday night as auto heiress Anne Ford made her debut.

The 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford II was presented to society in the spacious garden of the Lord Lakeshore mansion, which was done over for the occasion by Jacques Fraub of Paris.

The 1,100 invited guests, besides the Detroit-based automotive families, included such industrially-famous names as the Firestones, the Lloyd Smiths of Houston, Texas, and the Virgil Sherrills of New York.

Anne's pot-de-ish sister, Charlotte, who made her debut in December of 1959 at a lavish ball reputed to have cost the Fords some $250,000, arrived from Paris for the affair.

Journey Was Sentimental One for Two

MONTREAL (CP)—The journey to Montreal was a sentimental one for at least two of the couples who attended the World Congress of Psychiatry here.

Doctors Renato and Maria Castro of Lima, Peru, said it was "a bit like a pilgrimage."

Married the day they left Lima for Montreal in 1955 to study psychiatry at McGill University, they both graduated in 1958 and returned home with a Canadian - born two-year-old daughter.

Dr. Renato Castro now is doing research in family psychiatry under McGill auspices in Lima while his wife works with children in the ophthalmology department of Lima's General Hospital for Women.

Doctors Maurice and Suzanne Dongier of Marseille, France, were married at Montreal's Mary Queen of the World Basilica in 1952, shortly after they came here to study and work at Allan Memorial, Montreal Neurological and Mental Hygiene Institutes.

Their eldest son, six, is proud of his Canadian citizenship.

"The whole school knows about it," they said.

The couple, who now have two other children, practise psychiatry at the Saint-Jean-Paul for epileptic children in Marseille, a clinic and research centre under sponsorship of the World Health Organization.

President's Physician Gives Some Advice to Housewives

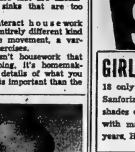
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Janet Travell, the White House physician who has been treating President Kennedy's ailing back, offered these rules for housewives in a YWCA luncheon address:

1. Scrub your back. Don't spend all of one day cleaning house, another doing laundry, and a third ironing. That's no way you use some muscles for hours, others not enough.

2. Cultivate a rhythmic pattern. Don't hurry, don't jerk the movements. Just do your housework as if you were doing a modern dance. Hurrying wears out the muscles.

3. Take short rests at frequent intervals.

4. Don't tolerate bad physical and mechanical arrangements in your home. Don't tolerate chairs that are uncomfortable, sinks that are too low.



5. Counteract house work with an entirely different kind of muscle movement, a variety of exercises.

Mt. Pleasant-Rawdon WMS Observes 60th Anniversary

By MRS. PEARCE MACMULLEN

Rawdon — On Wednesday, June 14th, approximately 100 women gathered at Mount Pleasant - Rawdon United Church on the occasion of the 60th anniversary of the Women's Missionary Society.

The church was decorated with white spirea, red peonies, blue iglobes and lovely ferns.

Former members were present from Richmond, Cranbrook, West Huntingdon, Stirling and other points.

The president, Mrs. John Mulcheron, and Mrs. Frank Jeffs, welcomed the guests at the door as they arrived and 134 visitors were represented: St. John's, Stirling; Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church; St. Andrew's W.M.S., Stirling; the Presbyterian Church; Bethel and Paul's United W.M.S., Stirling; Mrs. Percy Wood — 1933-34; Mrs. Arthur Phillips — 1935. In this period it was decided to entertain the Mission Band each July.

LEAVE THE COFFEES FUND

The 30th anniversary was held and Mrs. James Williams gave the message. A golden thimble and pincushion were secured for Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey and a quilting party in honor of Mrs. Joblin before her departure from the circuit.

In January, 1943, Mrs. Percy MacMullen was president and a series of birthday parties were held for the elderly. Mrs. Reuben Hoard was hostess. December 30 was decided on as "At Home" was held in the home of Mrs. Percy Hubble and the 40th anniversary at the church, in 1941.

In January of 1942 a Baby Band was organized with Miss Ellen MacMullen as leader and Mrs. Cyrus Summers, assistant. This group has carried on ever since and has made travelling baskets and other articles which have given large amounts toward the allocation.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend was president from 1943 to June 1946, during which time Red Cross work was begun; a 50th anniversary party was held and mite boxes were again in circulation. The last half of 1946 was in charge of Mrs. Percy MacMullen and the 45th anniversary was held at the church hall with a large attendance.

In 1947 Mrs. Bert Jeffs was president and from 1948-1949, Mrs. John Holmes. In these years bales were shipped overseas and several organizations were visited.

During 1950 Mrs. Roy Thrasher was president and the silver jubilee was held in commemoration of 25 years of church union. Mrs. A. E. Baker dedicated a solo to the future 25 years and little did one realize that 11 years later, the members would be saving for a new wool to this missionary organization.

Mrs. Rose Hoard and Mrs. John Holmes were co-presidents 1951-1953 and during this year the 50th anniversary was held at the church. In April 1952 Mrs. Charles Bonsteel passed away. During her stay in Rawdon parsonage she was a wonderful influence for the cause of missions.

Mrs. Burton Sharpe was president for 1953 and the pastor's wife gave a message on her experience in a work camp in Africa. From 1954 to 1955, Mrs. Frank Jeffs was president and a resume was given of all the mission stations across Canada and the supply work was predominant. Mrs. Milford Wrightman was president from 1956-57 and the trans-Canada tour of home mission work was most informative. Items from the Missionary Monthly were used at all meetings.

Mrs. Herbert Smith was president in 1958-59 and up to this time 287 books had been read the year previous and were second in the Presbyterial reading class. Three members donated a special book as a gift.

For the present time, 1960-61, Mrs. John Mulheron is president. During this time, the study book has been completed — Africa Disturbed — a scrap book was completed and donated to the Hastings County Home. Mr. H. Putman gave his travelogue last November.

Throughout the years the sectional rally was entertained four times since church union. A few of the 1961 members have belonged to this organization for at least 40 years. There are six life members who are: Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. George Weaver, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. W. G. Fletcher and Mrs. Will Potts. It was regretted that Mrs. Potts was unable to be in attendance. At the end of December, 1961, the W.M.S. will close as an organization and in 1962 the new United Church Women will function.

The presidents from elsewhere in attendance were: Mrs. Thomas McKeown, Springbrook; Mrs. T. F. Townsend, Belleville; Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Stirling; and Mrs. Bert Jeffs, Prince Albert. The first Baby Band leader also leader. The work has been carried on throughout the years and they have generously contributed to the allocation and to the Mission Band outlet work.

From 1926-27-28 Mrs. George Weaver was president of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Bay of Quinte Conference and Mrs. Rose Hoard — 1933-34; Mrs. Arthur Phillips — 1935. In this period it was decided to entertain the Mission Band each July.

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — Will you kindly settle a heated Table Talk discussion? Is it necessary and proper to send a note when attending a luncheon at a nice restaurant. If it is necessary, is a veiled note enough, or should it be of a large variety? Many today prefer to go gateless, but we are interested in what is really correct.— Mrs. S. Passaic, N.J.

Answer — My opinion is that the veiled is worn. Not only does it complete the well-dressed woman's ensemble, but it keeps her from having a messed up hairdo. A veil-type hat, or a small one, is perfectly proper. I would advise staying away from a large, floppy-brimmed hat when attending a luncheon. These are more for afternoon dress-up parties. For anything warm, the more-or-less tailored hat is ideal. Remember that you not only attain that well-groomed look by wearing a hat, you also may have a conversation piece perched on your head

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Marvin B. — I don't want to go to camp. I want to work this summer.

Mr. G. B. — With the recession, everybody wants to hire a teenager.

* * *

Marvin B. — I'm 15. I can't bear the thought of another summer at camp, making raffia baskets, canes and lanyards all those college boy councillors "uncle."

* * *

It was bad enough last year when I was 14. Next year, at 16, I can go back as a "junior" something on the staff. I won't have to be a plain kid-camper. But this in-between summer is my problem.

I'd counted on a job picking string beans on a New Jersey farm. But the owner decided not to use our teenage squad. He hired migrant adult workers. I want to try elsewhere.

* * *

Mr. G. B. — What else is there for a 15-year-old other than camp, besides just hanging around? I want Marvin occupied. Here he has a chance to improve his skill at swimming and dramatics, and to get out of the city. But he insists on looking for work.

* * *

He's too young for a real job. And there are too few part-time jobs around — with too many unemployed adults after them — for any boss to hire a kid like Marvin.

He has no "pull" anywhere, no connections. I'm a salaried employee myself, so I can't take him into my business. With no special job experience, he's better off waiting before bothering employers.

* * *

The Council — Mr. B. is right up to a point. About seven million teen-agers would like summer jobs. Due to a plethora of out-of-work adults, few of the millions find employment. And those who do won't be the 15-year-olds. They'll more likely be the 18-and-19-year-olds.

But a boy with Marvin's eagerness can set off on a different tack — one that won't be any easier to get a steady grown-up, but one that can bring him the two things he wants most from the vacation period — something useful to do and money of his own. I refer to "an original business-for-kids-by-kids."

Many's the kid who has looked around his own ballwick and found real lacks which he can fill. We don't know Marvin's forte — whether it's animal, vegetable or mineral. If it's the first, for instance, he might organize a care-for-your-pet service during people's vacation. Or a backyard-play-program for the neighborhood tots.

In other categories, we've heard of these "unemployables" earning a modest but proud penny by such enterprises as:

Painting a hobby teacher de research on onion breeding;

Painting mailboxes, storm windows, screens;

Tutoring in geography, spelling or grammar (better use your report card as reference!),

Washing windshields at drive-in movies;

"Catering" children's parties.

Certainly there are adults who don't realize how how valuable Marvin can be to them. It's up to him to think of ways to save them footsteps, legwork and misery (Oh, my thirsty philodendron!). There's hardly a limit to the "biz" Marvin and that bean-picking spoof would be granted.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S DISTRICT W.A.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Jeremy Palmer was hostess to the ladies of White's Woman's Association on Thursday when a good attendance of members and visitors.

The president, Mrs. William Yateman, presided, opening with the theme song, "Let the Beauty of Jesus be Seen In Me," and prayer.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. Walter Jones. All joined in singing "From Greenland's Icy Mountain." Mrs. George Bilham read "Victory," and Mrs. Jones led in prayer.

A social time was enjoyed in lieu of the usual program. The hostess served lunch.

If Some Is Good Is More Better?

By Mary Moore

There's a contrary streak in me that urges me to think it isn't good if it doesn't better! When it comes to fertilizer this can be rash. I "burned" the bottom leaves of the pansy plants but the flowers are fine, in fact it may have been worth it for some of them have fifteen and twenty blossoms each.

I forced my luck again and again it worked without disaster and produced the results I desired. I had a Lemon Chiffon Cake Mix and wanted it to taste really lemon-y. The directions for beating the egg whites in box No. 1 say to pour 1 1-4 cups of water into large bowl and add contents of small carton and beat to a very stiff meringue. The change I made was to add 1 cup water and 1-4 cup unsweetened canned lemon juice making 1 1-4 cups liquid in all. I was afraid the lemon juice might arrest the whipping process but it did not. The egg whites beat up as stiffly as possible and the resultant Lemon Chiffon Cake is luscious and lemon-y alike I and my family like it! Further on, the batter mix box says to add 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind. I left this out because it was a bother and I had a strong lemon flavor I wanted for I made a Lemon Frosting: Cream 3 or 4 tablespoons butter with 1-2 pound icing sugar, adding enough lemon juice to make of thin spreading consistency. Meanwhile melt 1 1-3 squares unsweetened chocolate (my best was Weight Watchers Recipe Book) Tapioca (eg: Rhubarb) Tapioca average of 32° tall from soil to tips of petals. They are pure white and the petals are cloven-pied and cleft to a rounded point. In front of them I planted the famous "black" (actually deep purple) tulips which are only slightly shorter. The white triumphators behind them made a lovely background for their dark richness. May I modestly announce that this past spring my tulips were the talk of the block?

Successful Living

How Much for Wife?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Could you please give me an idea of what is a reasonable personal allowance for me to have, as wife of a $6,000 a year man? We have no debts and no children, and are saving to own our own home. I am eager to co-operate but find that this means I have to ask my husband every time I need a pair of stockings!

Neither of us wants this but we are unable to decide on a reasonable allowance, either.—ONE YEAR MARRIED.

DEAR ONE—There is no rule-of-thumb way of deciding on a specific amount which would be right for you and everybody else. Too many factors are involved, such as monthly payments on house, cost of food in your part of Canada, clothing husband needs on job, car maintenance (if any), vacation needs and wants, and so on. You speak of buying stockings out of it. Would you buy other clothes too?

I have had a number of enquiries about budgeting and will deal with this in a later column. Meanwhile, about personal allowances, the principle is this: both you and your husband should have a personal allowance to spend for such items as cigarets, car fare, stamps and other personal needs. Neither should have to account for it.

Arrive at an amount you can spare from your fixed expenses and savings, and try it out for a month. Then adjust it accordingly.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—I am a young mother with five children. This should keep me busy enough to stay slim but in spite of it all I am exceedingly overweight and am ashamed to say I've lost all my will power to diet.

My husband doesn't say anything but I know he would be as delighted as I if I were 50 pounds lighter. I am five feet four inches tall and weigh 213 pounds.

Now what I would like to know is whether there is one of those TOPS clubs near where I live. I hear they are a wonderful boost to people like myself who are about to give dieting up for a bad job.—MRS. D. E. M.

DEAR MRS. D. E. M.—There are 30 TOPS clubs in Canada. (For the benefit of other readers, the letters stand for Take Off Pounds Sensibly). I am sorry to say none of these is in your town. Seven are in the Niagara Peninsula. There is one starting in Brockville.

Enquiries about how to start such a group have come to the Area Supervisor from Montreal, Ottawa, Niagara Falls and other locations. How about starting one yourself?

People like you, who are sincerely interested in losing weight and need moral support and practical information about how to manage it, can have help in getting such a group started. I am sending you the name of the area supervisor for Ontario.

If any others who suffer from unwanted pounds want to be put in touch with headquarters of TOPS, write me a note about it.

South Hastings Baseball

Foxboro took a 5-3 decision over Shannonville in a South Hastings baseball league game played at Foxboro Sunday afternoon.

A neat three-hit pitching job by Jerry Mann sparked the winners. Mann struck out 13 and walked a pair.

Billy Hill started for Shannonville with Lewis and Barberstock both coming in in the eighth inning. They gave up nine hits between them, whiffing six and walking three.

Keith Dickey led the Foxboro club at the plate with a home run and a single. Ron Dulmage and Glen Reynolds each had two singles while R. Bellinger, J. Mann and Charlton had the others.

Lewis, Dafoe and B. Hill collected the losers base hits.

Carling Cup Golf Tilts Under Way

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The annual Carling Cup golf matches between the United States and Canada, squared at two victories apiece, were to start at Old Warson Country Club today for the benefit of the St. Louis Children's Hospital.

Four professionals and four amateurs from each country in the best - ball matches: One pro and one amateur are paired, with three points at stake in each foursome, one for each nine and one for 18 holes.

The Canadian team includes pros Al Balding of Toronto, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Bill Kerr of Montreal and Alan Johnston of Montreal and amateurs Dick Wesbock of Windsor, Keith Alexander of Calgary, Phil Brownlee of Toronto and Gary Cowan of Kitchener.

The U.S. will be represented by pros Dow Finsterwald, Julius Boros, Paul Harvey and Ernie Vossler and amateurs Bob Cochran, Bill Campbell, Ed Meister and Charles Kocsis.

They'll be shooting for $5,000 in prize money.

The matches were started in 1957. Canada won in 1957 and 1958 and the U.S. the next two years.

MOTHBALL FLEET

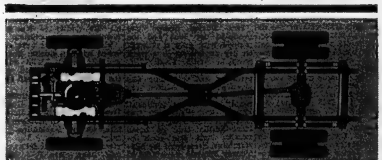
HOW MANY MILES SHOULD A TRUCK LAST?

It depends on the driver—on the care that a truck is given—and on the manner in which the truck was built. Let's assume the first two factors are average... the driver is reasonably considerate of his truck—the maintenance it receives is sensible and regular. Now, the mileage we can expect depends on how the truck is built.



WHY IS THE ENGINE YOU CHOOSE SO IMPORTANT?

Let's talk engines. For this is the heart of truck performance. And it's here that Chevrolet V-8's and 6's have proven their dependable worth. Naturally, Chevrolet gives you a choice of power plants . . . but they all have something in common. Namely, overhead valves, Moraine bearings and full pressure lubrication, all specially designed for long engine life. And, as a bonus while you enjoy this extended engine life, Chevrolet has married economy to power in the performance of its various engines — so that with a Chevrolet Truck you have the pulling-power when you need it, and gas economy full-time!

WHY DO SOME SUSPENSIONS LAST AND LAST?

Let's talk suspension. Here's another way in which Chevrolet extends truck life . . . truck-tailored rear suspension in combination with Chevy's famous Independent Front Suspension with torsion springs. Before Chevrolet pioneered this suspension system, road bumps used to be transmitted directly to the chassis — and to the sheet metal and load. But now with Independent Front Suspension and vari-rate rear springs Chevrolet Trucks dissipate the bumps, reduce chassis strain, minimize tire abuse, load damage and driver fatigue. Another way of adding more and more miles to the life of a Chevrolet Truck.

NOW CONSIDER TRUCK FRAMES FOR A MOMENT

Chevrolet Heavy-Duty Trucks are built with a variety of frames tailor-made for a variety of trucking jobs. For example, if you spend all of your driving time off the highway, Chevy recommends one of their flexible frames that supports and gives when giving is the wisest course. If your chore calls for extra heavy highway loads, Chevy has a frame that fills that bill, too. In fact, Chevrolet Trucks come to you with the "just-right" frame for your job. And because of that, months and months of life are added to your Chevrolet Truck — miles and miles of profitable hauling.

Then there are the myriad of "small" features that help extend the life of Chevrolet Trucks. Extra-big capacity brakes . . . precision ball-gear steering to minimize friction and steering effort . . . torque-tailored clutches and super-tough transmissions!

So how many miles should your Chevrolet Truck last? Frankly — we can't pin it down to a figure. Certainly, there are thousands of Chevrolet Trucks across Canada with thousands of profit miles behind them. Who knows, perhaps you'll retire before your truck does. But one thing we can say with surety: your Chevrolet Truck has been built to give you the best performance throughout the longest possible lifetime. And with a Chevrolet Truck, every mile you drive will be a profitable one. Choose your Work-Proved Chevrolet Truck at your dealer's today.

Will Work Out With Argonauts

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonaut's rookie camp workouts started Monday night and among some 50 hopefuls was Tom Chaszewski, a former junior hockey player who was blinded in one eye by a puck.

Chaszewski, a 210 - pound fullback on last year's Oshawa junior football club, was injured four months ago playing with the Whitby Hillcrests junior hockey team.

"I always figured my hopes were better in football," he said, "and after the accident I wasn't too anxious to go back into hockey even if they would let me. The doctors gave me an okay to try out here and in fact, encouraged me."

It's too early to know his chances of being invited to the Big Four team's main camp which opens July 3, but Argo coach Lou Agase praised Chaszewski's courage in bidding for a sports career.

Kucks Loves To Shoot Down Jets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The fact that Columbus Jets lead the International League doesn't phase pitcher Johnny Kucks of Rochester Red Wings. Four of his six victories have been at the Jets' expense this season.

He got No. 4 Monday night, scattering 10 hits as the Wings beat southpaw Bob Veale (3-3) for their sixth straight victory. Kucks struck out six men and walked only three.

Columbus' loss trimmed its first-place lead to a half game over Charleston Marlins. In other games, Babe Birrer pitched a four-hitter as Buffalo Bisons beat Jersey City Jerseys 4-1 and Richmond Virginians defeated Syracuse Chiefs, 5-3.

Kucks received robust hitting support from Fred Valentine, Barry Shetrone and Bobby Johnson, each of whom had three hits and accounted for seven runs batted in. Valentine and Shetrone also hit homers as the Wings beat Veale for the third straight time.

Rhiend snapped a five-game losing streak in taking the opener of a five-game series, surviving a ninth-inning Syracuse uprising.

Birrer's triumph was his fourth against four defeats and his third complete game. A three-run homer by Bobby Wine, his first of the year, gave the Bisons their margin of victory. Dave Stenhouse was the loser.

until B.F.Goodrich took the bounce out of tires

BFG took the bounce out of tires with "soft rubber."

Why "soft-rubber" tires?

Car makers have done wonders with new suspensions, but to make the most of them, tires had to have less bounce. So BFG worked with car engineers to develop "soft rubber" tires. They proved so successful that BFG Silvertowns are original equipment on '61 cars!

"Soft rubber" smooths bumps beautifully. It's tough yet bounce-free. So give your car a new car ride with BFG Silvertowns.

They offer every driver more savings and safety.

Added rubber at points of added wear means up to 25% more tire life. Big, new, broad-shouldered tread delivers safer stops—cuts corner squeal.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The anti-Yankee of the news-room dugout say it won't and cannot last. Tigers' defender Tommy Macaro merely shrugs his shoulders. City editor Claude Tice who Sitting Bull's the Indians' rooters' in a corner wigwam says it's a flash in the pan. But that Bronx Bomber bridegroom, our man G. A., shoves out his chest and yippees "Watch him go!"

The subject matter is one Roger Maris, that unpredictable Yankee who has confounded everyone with the way he has hit and the way he has acted this season.

Both have been as unusual as a butterfly making love to an elephant.

Maris has had 54 hits this season, collecting almost as many home runs as singles. Entering last Saturday night's game with the Detroit Tigers the Yankee outfielder had 32 homers, two doubles and 26 singles. Since then he has upped his home run total to 34.

Maris, though leading the majors in homers, has a batting average of around .248. He has grey-thatched baseball managers and coaches scratching their pates. "Never heard anything like it," says Bob Scheffing, Tiger manager.

But reaching the heights of something or another is the possibility that if he continues to hit this way for the rest of the season, he can break Babe Ruth's record with a .330 average.

Maris says he likes to "take the big fellow with men on base." And don't argue with him. Look at his record. His long-range blasting has driven in fifty-plus runs, another top mark for the Yankee or any other sluggers to shoot at.

And just as odd as his batting method of operation is his temperament. Most, in fact practically all of the big time's big-time sluggers wrap in their suits if they strike into a slump. Not Roger. He's friendly and affable and easy to talk to when he's making strikes. When he's rapping out a home run, don't go near him. He's liable to snap a chunk out of your ear.

The popularity of the former hitless like that also nicely binds him to his employers. Not known as "a ball," he says, "that half my homers have come on pitches well below the belt. Somehow I seem to be able to handle low balls."

And it could be that every ball that breaks over the outside fences carries a thousand-dollar tag on it. Maris is in his second season with the Bombers. Last year he blasted off 39 homers and was given almost a thousand bucks for each round-tripper. He got a $39,000 contract last spring.

Now he has visions of a $50,000 parchment to sign come early 1962—and the rate he is going the figure could very well exceed that amount.

A New York sportswriter coined "Double M for Murder" when writing a story of a game in which both Mantle and Mickey Mantle blasted baseballs into orbit. Naturally there is a rivalry between the two pole horses. It is inevitable.

In the dugout, in the clubhouse and on the field the two Yankee stars are friendly enough. But behind it ends. Both go their different ways when out of uniform.

Even the doughty anti-Yankees in the neighborhood of the sports desk admit, as should a lot of others who have other clubs, that the two M's represent the most-feared one-two punch in the game today. They are the big stickers on the Yankee team that is Bombers fans' eyes make the New Yorkers favorites to take it all.

And beyond the figure that envelopes the two M's when the Yankees take the field is another outfielder who has had his share of the spotlight, and still rates quite a chunk of it.

Remember a guy named Yogi Berra?

The Yankee brass have straightened Yogi up from that crouch position he held for so many years behind the plate and given him a chance to stretch his legs. And the backstop turned flycatcher still rates among the best of the flyswatters. He's hitting a solid .310 at this writing with 11 homers and 28 RBI's.

Says Yogi, "Outfielders have a soft touch. They should pay their way into the ballpark."

Then Kansas Beats Yankees

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York Yankees are back in the playing pastime again in the American League pennant race, but the pastime won't play ball.

After splitting six games against Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians in their three-day fight for first place, the Yankees were no worse than third, a game behind the leaders. Ahead lay nine road games, all against the lowly Kansas City Athletics, Minnesota Twins and Los Angeles Angels, while the Tigers and Indians each played seven, squaring off against each other in four engagements.

It figured to be a quick ride to the front for the Yankees, but they ran into a detour. The Athletics belted New York Monday night, coming from behind on ninth-inning home runs by Norm Siebern and pinch - hitter Wes Covington for a 4-3 decision that made former Yankee Hank Bauer a winner in his debut as Kansas City manager.

WAS ONLY GAME

It was the only game played in the American League and dropped New York 1½ games behind first-place Detroit. The only other game scheduled, Cleveland at Chicago, was rained out, leaving the second-place Indians a half-game behind the Tigers. No games were scheduled in the National League.

Bauer, 38, taking over after Joe Gordon was fired in a surprise move by Athletics owner Charles Finley, was backed by a couple of former Yanks and picked the right man at the right time for Kansas City's third victory in nine games with New York this season.

Siebern, like Bauer a one-time Yankee outfielder, collected half the Athletics' six hits. He drove in their first run with a fourth-inning single, then singled and scored their second run in the seventh on a triple by former Yank Deron Johnson before flisally chasing starter Roland Sheldon with his ninth home run of the season in the inning.

The homer squared things 3-3 and Yankee manager Ralph Houk brought in relief ace Luis Arroyo, a lefthander. Bauer met the challenge by picking Covington, a left-handed hitter, and Covington made his fifth homer of the year. It was Arroyo's third defeat, third save, the second by the Athletics.

MARIS COUNTS 25TH

Southpaw Jim Archer won his third start in 5 games with a seven-hitter. He gave up a pair of solo homers, Bill Skowron's 14th in the fourth and Roger Maris' 25th in the ninth, while beating New York a second time.

Archer, 3-1, is the only lefty to pitch a complete game against the Yankees this season, and he has done it twice.

Maris, the major league home run leader, is given nine-game ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927, But he's even with his own pace of a year ago, with 25 in 63 games. He finished with 39 last season.

Has Six Candidates

Moss Needs Quarterback

MONTREAL (CP) — Perry Moss is grappling with a problem.

He needs a quarterback badly.

If Moss can come up with a good man to step in for Sam Etcheverry, don't write off his Montreal Alouettes. The red-haired young coach is going to give at least six candidates the once-over.

The Als pitch camp July 1 in Winooski, Vt., 90 miles south of Montreal. But the coaching staff and the six quarterback applicants are camp - bound a week early.

So far the Als have signed 35 players, including 13 holdovers from last year's third - place club, the rookie year for Moss.

Out to get Etcheverry's former job are Wes Gideon, Tom Dimitroff, Pierre Villa - Incaya, Harvey White, Nelson Yarbrough and John Conroy.

GIDEON FAVORED

Texan Gideon, 24, obviously has the inside track. Moss already has said the youngster considered a fine runner but aso passer—is "the man to beat out."

For the last two seasons Gideon was Etcheverry's sidekick used understudy, working mainly as a defensive halfback.

The others are newcomers to Montreal although Dimitroff and Villanova were Canadian football scholarship.

In 1957 and 1958 Dimitroff, 26, steered Ottawa Rough Riders. Last year he was with Boston Patriots of the American League but saw limited duty.

Villanova, at 28 the oldest of the six, has five years with British Columbia Lions of the Western League behind him. He qualifies as Canadian this year under the import regulations.

Conroy, 22, had the knack of being a Canadian, coming from Vancouver. His brother, Jim, was an outstanding halfback and punter with Ottawa last season. During the last two seasons, John played with Mount San Antonio Junior College in Pomona, Calif.

JEROME ENTERS RACE

LONDON (CP) — Harry Jerome of Vancouver is scheduled to compete in the 100 - yard dash at the British open track and field championships at London next month. Jerome, 21, co-holder of the world 100-metre record, will face West Indian Dennis Johnson, who recently equalled the world record for 100 yards.

Tiger Fans Back Team

NEW YORK (AP)—By drawing 147,712 for their three-game weekend series against New York Yankees, Detroit Tigers joined Cincinnati and Washington as the only big league baseball teams showing attendance increases over last season.

The Tigers have played before 602,781 in 29 dates at home, compared to 600,466 in as many dates in 1960. Cincinnati is 29,000 ahead of last year, Washington a mere 236.

Through Sunday's games the total major league attendance was 6,853,032, down 11 per cent from 1960's 7,681,668.

The National League, which has attracted 3,343,286 customers, has a 21 per cent decrease. The 10-team American League, with 3,510,675 paid, is up 1.6 per cent. However, the junior circuit's figure includes 374,377 pulled through the turnstiles by Minnesota Twins and 208,647 by Los Angeles Angels. Both are new to the league which had only eight clubs a year ago.

OUTFIELDER RELEASED

TORONTO (CP) — Outfielder Dave Pope, 36, was given an outright release by Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League Monday night. The left - handed hitter, used mainly as a pinch - hitter this season, was hitting .240 in 50 at bats.

Not for the Present

Ex-Yank Hank Plans No Change

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Bauer as manager of Kansas City Athletics, says he's going to let the "fellows kind of play their own game for a while", at least until he gets his feet on the ground.

The Athletics greeted Bauer as replacement for fired Joe Gordon by beating Hanks' old New York Yankee teammates 4-3 on home runs by Norm Siebern and pitch-hitter Wes Covington in the ninth inning Monday night.

"A game like that (Jim) Archer threw and a successive clutch homers can make a manager look pretty smart," Bauer said.

"I don't plan to change anything, at least for the present. I just expect every player to keep hustling like they did against those Yanks."

Bauer, 38, was with the Yankees 13 seasons before coming to Kansas City in 1958 in a seven-player deal. His first official act as manager, directed by general manager Frank Lane, was to name rookie shortstop Dick Howser team captain.

"Lane said names Howser captain and I did just that," Bauer said. "Howser is a great little battler."

Club owner Charles O. Finley took Lane off the hook in Grind Gordon.

"I was the man behind that move and I think the heat should be taken off our general manager," Finley said. He said Lane and Gordon like each other but "seemed to have trouble working together" and that one or both had to go.

Lane did most of the talking in announcing Gordon's dismissal at a press conference Monday and newspaper men suspected it was the continuation of an old feud.

As general manager of Cleveland Indians Lane hired Gordon as manager, fired him, then rehired him and finally traded him to Detroit Tigers for manager Jimmy Dykes last season.

Reds Sign Bonus Boys

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds announced Monday the signing of two West Coast prospects, including the catcher on the University of Southern California's National Collegiate Athletic Association champion skip team.

Farm director Phil Seghi said catcher Lawrence Heims was signed to a contract with Indianapolis of the American Association. Outfielder Steve Reeves, who played with Riverside, Calif., High School, was signed to an organizational contract and will be assigned to a Cincinnati farm club later this week.

Both were signed to bonus contracts and Seghi said the Reds had to go "very high" to get Heims, 20.

No Decision On National Expansion

CHICAGO (AP) — A National League expansion committee met Monday to discuss plans on stocking New York Mets and Houston Colts with player talent but reached no conclusion.

It was learned the committee of five general managers plans to get together again some time this week to adopt a blueprint to present to club owners at a league meeting here Monday.

Attending the meeting were Buzzy Bavasi of Los Angeles Dodgers, Bing Devine of St. Louis Cardinals, John Mollala of Milwaukee Braves, Club Feeney of San Francisco Giants, John Quinn of Philadelphia Phillies and league president Warren Giles. Giles said there would be no announcements.

However, The Associated Press learned the plans studied in detail the American League plan through which Washington and Los Angeles teams were supplied with players.

Under the American League plan, each team put 15 names on its draft list and the newcomers picked a total of seven players from each team at the cost of $75,000 a player.

Huge Bonus Payments Says Majors Committing Suicide

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—General Manager John Quinn of Philadelphia Phillies says major league baseball is committing "suicide" with payments of huge bonuses to youngsters fresh out of high school. As a solution, he suggests a free agent draft.

Quinn indicated the National League Phillies might sponsor legislation for such a draft when the major leagues hold their annual meetings late this month.

"The whole situation has got out of hand," Quinn said Monday in an interview. "The quicker we get around to adopting a draft such as pro football uses, the better it will be for baseball."

Under the draft system, names of all the outstanding major league prospects graduating from high school would be placed in a hopper and clubs would take turns selecting with the last place club in each league getting first pick. The other clubs would follow in reverse order according to their finish the season before. Individual negotiations or a set figure would determine the bonus each prospect would get.

MAY COST $15,000,000

Some observers believe the rash of bidding this year may result in the outlay of as much as $10,000,000 in bonuses.

Eight high school graduates recently received bonuses believes to be $100,000 or more. They include Bob Bailey, Long Beach, Calif., shortstop, $150,000 by Pittsburgh; Lew Krausse, Chester, Pa., pitcher $125,000 by Kansas City; Roy Gleason, Garden Grove, Calif., pitcher, $105,000 by Los Angeles Dodgers; Bill Freehan, University of Michigan catcher, $100,000 by Detroit Tigers, Bob Chlodenko, Huston first baseman, $100,000 by Boston Red Sox; Jake Gibbs, University of Mississippi third baseman, $100,000 by New York Yankees; Wade Blasingame, Fresno, Calif., pitcher, and Arnold Umbach, Birmingham, Ala., pitcher, $100,000 each by Milwaukee Braves.

And more than 30 others have been signed this spring for amounts ranging from $30,000 to $100,000.

One of the latest signings came Monday when the new Houston club in the National League shelled out a $100,000 bonus to get Wally Wolf, 19, a right-hand pitcher from the University of Southern California. He turned down a $75,000 bonus offered by Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League.

Houston will pay Wolf $7,000 a season in addition to his bonus.

Moss Car Arrives For Race

TORONTO (CP)—A powerful Lotus Mark 19, $15,000 worth of thoroughbred racing machine, arrived Monday night after an airlift over the Atlantic from England and a trailer trip from Montreal.

The Lotus and its driver, Stirling Moss of England, will be two of the main attractions Saturday at a 200-mile sports car race organized by the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association.

Moss, one of the best sports car drivers in the world, is to arrive Wednesday. A mechanic now is working on the Lotus to have it ready for Friday's time trials at the Mosport track, 60 miles northeast of Toronto.

Also entered is Oliver Clubine of Brantford, who will drive a Devin-Triumph.

'Cost Per Thousand' May Be Reason for Bad Films

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—American TV's critics are complaining about the over - abundance of action-adventure programs and the paucity of educational, cultural and high-level dramatic shows.

But so far during the current Senate hearings on television programming there has been silence about the reason such programs illuminate — if that's the word—the home screens so much of the time.

The reason is usually contained in three letters: CPM, which is broadcasting shorthand for "cost per thousand" (the M, of course, is the Roman numeral for thousand.)

Let us presume that the manufacturer of an inexpensive product used by consumers in all brackets (soap, headache remedy or a brand of cigarette) decides to spend $100,000 on a single program. If that program reaches an audience of 20,000,000 people, it will cost the advertiser $5 to reach every 1,000 people. If, on the other hand, the program is tuned in by only half that number, the CPM jumps to $10.

The high incidence of action-fights, fun - play, mayhem and murder—on television is largely the result of action's proven ability to attract large audiences.

AT THE PARK — In their first feature film appearance, we-stars Doris Day and Rex Harrison play straight dramatic roles in "Midnight Lace", powerful suspense drama in color. The Ross Hunter-Arwin production, released by Universal-International, also stars John Gavin, Myrna Loy and Roddy McDowall, showing today and Wednesday at the all condi-tioned Park Theatre. Based on the novel by Janet Trobridge, "The Grass is Greener", stars Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons.

ITALY OUSTS GERMANY

MUNICH, Germany (AP)—Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy defeated West Germany's Wilhelm Bungert Monday in a final set showdown that gave Italy a 3-2 victory in the quarter - finals of the European zone Davis Cup tournament. Italy will meet France in the semi - finals. Britain will play Sweden in the other semi - final.

Pinch-Hitter Midget Dies at 36

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward Gaedel, 36, the only midget ever to play in a major league baseball game, died Sunday.

An inquest was ordered after a coroner discovered bruises on both knees and discoloration on the left side of Gaedel's face.

The three - foot - seven Gaedel made baseball history when he marched to the plate in St. Louis' Sportsman's Park Aug. 19, 1951, to face a baffled Detroit pitcher, Bob Cain.

Cain missed the strike zone four times and Gaedel walked. He left the game immediately.

Veeck threatened to use Gaedel as a pinch hitter every time his punchline Browns loaded the bases. But the threat never materialized. Will Harridge, then president of the American League disapproved Gaedel's contract and that was the end of the midget's "playing" career.

Top Bowlers Are Honored With Plaques

City individual bowling champions were honored at a presentation party at the Bowl-O-Drome last night.

Handsome plaques donated by various sponsors were presented to men and women leaders who finished top in the different classifications.

The winners were the first entries into the city's new bowling Hall of Fame.

Leo LaBelle won the men's high average 245.8 and the Joyce Realty plaque presented by the donor.

Ladies high average 222.3 went to Gwynne Bellis who was awarded Style Fabrics plaque presented by Mrs. Dorothy Wickett.

Bowl-O-Drome manager, Bill Bateman presented the remainder of the plaques in the absence of the donors.

Jim Begley won the men's high triple (990) and the O'Hara's Esso Station plaque.

Ladies high triple (913) went to Vi Christopher who took the Parsons Cleaners award.

Bob Bunton won the men's high single (416) and the Carl Jones Motors plaque.

Ladies high single was won by Lil Summers (403) who was awarded the Quinte Beauty Salon plaque.

Social amenities followed the presentations.

Vada Pinson Standout For Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — There's no doubt that everyone on the Cincinnati roster has been doing his bit during the Reds' rush to the front in the National League pennant race.

But the real standout has been Vada Pinson.

The Reds were fourth May 20. Pinson was hitting a mere .236. Since then, the fleet outfielder has been the league's most productive batsman while the Reds have put together a 20-10 mark to take over first place.

Pinson has collected 36 hits in 126 times at bat for a .400 average. He's lifted his season's slate to .336, only three points lower than leader Don Hoak of Pittsburgh, Wally Moon of Los Angeles, the leader a week ago, slipped to third place at .333.

In the American League Norm Cash of Detroit moved into first place despite a 10-point loss to .360. Cleveland's Jimmy Piersall, who led last week, slumped 22 points to third place at .349. Jackie Brandt of Baltimore took over second place with a .334 average.

Roger Maris of the Yankees walloped four homers to maintain his American League lead. He has 25, five more than teammate Mickey Mantle. Maris drove in six runs and is three behind Cash, who leads with 57 RBI.

Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco is the National League home-run setter with 16 homers and 53 RBI.

AT THE PARK — Doris Day and her husband, Rex Harrison, accompanied by her aunt, Myrna Loy, and Herbert Marshall (left), a business associate of Harrison, relax in a night club after continuous calls from a mysterious stranger have threatened Miss Day's life. Scene is from "Midnight Lace" powerful suspence drama in color heading Miss Day Harrison and John Gavin, showing today and Wednesday at the air conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program "The Grass is Greener", starring Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons. One complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

AT THE BELLE — Bradford Dillman and Lee Remick cut up with the joyous abandon of youth in the 1920's, in "Sanctuary", 20th Century-Fox CinemaScope, vivid reflection of William Faulkner's Nobel Prize winning novel, also starring Yves Montand, and showing tonight and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre, matinee daily.

Astrological Forecast

BY CARROLL RIGHTER

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning brings a very decided tendency for you to argue or to be too emotional about gaining your hopes and wishes. However, the latter part of the day is splendid for finding out the ways and means by which you can be more co-operative and can get some most beneficial results from those you regard as partners.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)—Any new ventures with associates should be started after the noon hour, since the morning could bring unnecessary arguments or bad temper. Then get out to dinner at some charming restaurant. P.M. Be most devoted with loved one.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)—Morning is fine for improving your appearance and then being most affectionate with close ties. P.M. Get busy putting abode in finer order, adding those touches of art or beauty that will make it a warm and comfortable retreat.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)—Be careful during A.M. that you act circumspectly or you can get into an argument with kin that could limit your present security. Latter part of day or evening is then ideal for dressing nicely and going about socially, having a good time.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21.—Morning could bring altercation with some partner or one could get into an accident while out driving, if you are not careful. Evening, however, is fine for a little gathering with the clan and making plans for the future wisely.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21)—Impress those with whom you do business with your logic and practical approach today. Later, be sure to bring home supplies and shop for other essentials. P.M. Invite your friends in for chit-chat that is worthwhile and helpful.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23)—Most desirable from nagging or criticizing this morning. Gentility works far more effectively. Later, be sure you handle all affairs connected with property and holdings in a very intelligent way. Set up a better budget for yourself.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Get busy on any work that is awaiting you without allowing that secret worry to throw you off the track. Evening is best for contacting those who can help you to attain your business or personal aims.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Don't expect a great deal from your associates, or one of them could disillusion you quite badly during A.M. However, later is a good time to know what your true position is with others, to do research work. P.M. That's easy.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Strive for greater success and a higher credit rating during the morning. The latter part of the day and evening are then ideal for going out with good friends who want to enjoy the same amusements that you do. Be charming, now.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Important you gather the information you need at this time, though it may take quite a little effort to do so. Have dinner out in the evening and then hit on some idea that will help you get your credit in better shape.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Fine morning for making out written reports, getting bills paid, etc., but take care you do not lose any goodwill already built up. Later, you get fine news for advancement that you should work on immediately.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Imperative you come through on any promises made to others and in a most ethical fashion. Do not procrastinate any longer. P.M. Go over all of your problems and see how to improve and add to same. Talk things over with loved one.

If Your Child Is Born Today—he, or she, will be one of those rare individuals who at early part of life is all business and quiet reflective nature, hard-studying, etc., and will early start a fine career. However, at maturity the personality changes and there will be more interest in New Age ideas, fellow man, becoming a part of some organization or other. So, be sure you give as fine an education as possible to insure a successful life.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this incredible substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is a wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H® is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back.

POLAR SHELF AREA — Canadian scientists are in the third year of an extensive study of the Arctic Islands and water in the Polar Continental Shelf Project.

Base camp in the project is at Isachsen on Ellef Ringnes Island. Decca radio stations, setting the navigation limits of this year's study of the ocean, are located in a triangle on Ellef Ringnes, Meighen and Amund Ringnes islands.

Next year the Meighen Island Decca station is to be re-positioned, leap-frogging the other two to transmit from Brock Island, some 250 miles west of its present location.

Enormous quantities of supplies and equipment for the project's operation are airlifted to and from Isachsen each spring and fall by RCAF Transport Command aircraft. Much of it is routed to Resolute on Cornwallis Island by ship during summer and the rest is airlifted from farther north.

Chartered for the project, four helicopters and four fixed-wing aircraft operate from a ground landing strip near the base, burning gasoline which costs eight dollars a gallon by the time it reaches Isachsen.

Two Otter aircraft, workhorses of the team, deposit barrels of gasoline along the routes of various field parties on use by the helicopters with their more limited range.

DEPEND ON AIRCRAFT

Crews of mechanics work around the clock at Isachsen doing routine checks and tests, winter and major repairs to keep the aircraft flying.

The aircraft, guided by the Decca radio system, are essential in the moving and maintenance of field parties employed in 12 separate projects under the co-ordinator, Dr. Frederick Roots of Ottawa.

Dr. Roots says that as the parties gain experience, work on the project will be speeded up and the base camp will be moved every second year.

He also says that various surveys in the future may break off from the main group and conduct their own work in their chosen location. At present, he says, such a method would be too expensive.

To date, the opposite trend is noticeable as groups from the defence department's Pacific Naval Laboratory, the Geological Survey of Canada and others plan their projects so as to be able to make use of the guidance and protection of the Decca radio pattern in the Sverdrup Islands area.

The naval lab group is studying under-the-ice acoustics related to submarine detection and is located on the sea ice about 30 miles from Isachsen. It was attracted to the area by the Decca system but has so far been unable to use it because of a temporary shortage of receiving equipment.

A federal geological survey crew is working in a fiord on the east side of the island with Decca receiving equipment manned on the shoreline.

McGILL HAS PROJECT

A McGill University expedition is operating within the Decca framework on Ellef Ringnes' eastern neighboring island—Amund Ringnes.

Although all operate independently of the polar shelf project, helicopters from Isachsen visit the naval laboratory station to provide it with Decca fixes of its position on the ice and there is full liaison and generous co-operation between each party and the base camp.

Work of the main project involves so many fields of science and research and in producing such quantities of information that it is unlikely it ever will be included between the covers of any one book.

Most of the scientists involved, from a desire to communicate their knowledge, as a way of earning money or out of respect for the scientific world's professional maxim "publish or perish," likely will produce many articles and lectures on the fruit of their work.

Each project's activities and their results, in the form of charts, graphs, samples and pictures are funneled back to the department of mines and technical surveys in Ottawa, which also will publish papers, pamphlets and books on much of the work.

But so far most of the youthful scientists on the project have produced for the public press little more than jottings which still sit in their brief cases. They are far too busy at the thrilling job of pushing back man's scientific horizons to sit quietly behind a typewriter and just 'tell about it.

VISITED GRAVES

PARIS (Reuters)—President de Gaulle Sunday visited graves of Second World War resistance fighters to mark his London appeal 21 years ago for Frenchmen to fight the Nazis. De Gaulle visited a crypt at Mont Valerian in the Parisian suburbs where 15 resistance fighters are buried. He lit a flame of remembrance at the foot of a massive Cross of Lorraine from a torch lit at the tomb of France's unknown soldier.

Third Year of Canada's Intensive Study of Arctic Archipelago Is Under Way

Canadian scientists are trying to make up for lost time in Arctic research. In this story, a Canadian Press reporter tells of plans for the third year of the Polar Continental Shelf Project.

BY JIM WHELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ISACHSEN, N.W.T. (CP)—Hundreds of miles beyond Canada's most northerly bands of Eskimos, 70 Canadians are pushing into high gear the third year of the Canadian Polar Continental Shelf Project.

They live and work in open-set-shaped nylon huts clustered in the snow and from March to September, operate round-the-clock shifts in an eerie world where it never gets dark beneath the circling Arctic sun.

Most important of all Canadian Arctic enterprises, the project is intended to establish firmly Canada's sovereignty in her Arctic islands while its members — professional scientists and technicians—study for the first time in detail, the islands and the sea ice, the ocean and its bottom and the earth's magnetic field in the area.

But not only has Canada leaped into many fields of Arctic research in her Arctic archipelago by means of the project, she also is unabashedly using it to develop and explore the techniques of high Arctic defence.

SECRET INFORMATION

Such things as the depth of the sea and the limit of the continental shelf at any exact geographical location are classified as security information—obviously related to the possibilities of submarine operation. Other information with military applications is being kept under wraps.

The submerged continental shelf is that land which sloped off gently from the exposed areas to a depth of 100 fathoms, or about 600 feet, below the surface of the water, where the much steeper continental slopes begin their descent into the depths of the ocean.

A triangle of three Decca radio transmitting stations is the project's field area—one of them on the northern tip of Ellef Ringnes Island, one on Meighen Island and one on the north end of Amund Ringnes Island — broadcast the navigational framework within which the project operates.

Geographical positions of the three transmitters have been precisely fixed and they transmit a constant pattern of signals which, when charted, look like a great spider web.

Whether a field party is travelling by aircraft, tractor, dogsled or on snowshoes, with receiving equipment it can fix its exact geographical position within the radio web regardless of fog, storms, lack of landmarks or drifting ice, providing radio reception is possible.

BEGAN IN 1959

The project is intended to operate indefinitely, eventually bringing under intensive study the entire polar continental shelf area between Greenland and Alaska.

Preliminary survey work for the project was completed in the summer of 1959 and operations got into full swing between March and September last year.

First general change of locale of the project is scheduled for next year, when the Meighen Island Decca station is to be re-positioned, leap-frogging the other two to transmit from Brock Island, some 250 miles west of its present location.

Enormous quantities of supplies and equipment for the project's operation are airlifted to and from Isachsen each spring and fall by RCAF Transport Command aircraft. Much of it is routed to Resolute on Cornwallis Island by ship during summer and the rest is airlifted from farther north.

FEW TAX CHANGES; DEFICIT A RECORD

Most Of Coyne's Ideas Rejected By Fleming

Budget Means Nearly Billion in Borrowing

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Never has the unseen presence of one man weighed so heavily on a federal budget.

Threaded through Finance Minister Fleming's entire budget were the ideas of James E. Coyne—some of them incorporated in government policy, but most of them rejected.

Seldom did Mr. Fleming miss an opportunity in his 24,000-word speech to dispute the Coyne theories. The speech's main summation: "This budget and Mr. Coyne were simply not compatible."

The central bank governor had warned against heavy deficit financing, against large federal cash borrowing, and against any tax cuts. In fact, he sought a temporary increase in personal and corporation income tax rates.

Mr. Fleming chose a peacetime record deficit of $650,000,000 for 1961-62. The deficit which, with no budgetary surplus, will mean nearly $1,000,000,000 in federal borrowing. He held the line on general tax rates, and even reduced a few.

DISAGREE AGAIN

Mr. Coyne had said federal borrowing would drive up interest rates. Mr. Fleming said the government is trying to encourage a reduction.

There was on major common ground. Use of the exchange fund to purchase United States dollars and thus bring the Canadian dollar to a discount.

But Mr. Fleming saw Mr. Coyne's statement as being in "fundamental conflict" with government policy. The Bank of Canada governor replied in a move with some points in the budget, but "it is in the broad segments that the differences lie," the minister said.

Mr. Fleming repeated the government's intention to legislate Mr. Coyne's removal, noting the "almost incredible" refusal of Mr. Coyne to resign the post at the government's behest.

The governor himself was not in the Commons to hear the budget speech. He was about 400 miles away in Stratford, Ont.

REJECTS SPEECH

A reporter offered to show him Mr. Fleming's budget address.

"No, I don't want to read it," Mr. Coyne answered. "I don't want to have anything to do with it."

Mr. Fleming hinted at a press conference that he would like the possibility of a return to an arbitrarily-set back of Canada interest rates, with the banks and investors of the central bank's monetary policies. At present the central bank rate is "floating," Mr. Fleming said.

Mr. Coyne is to present his report, opposed any return to the former practice of setting the rate—fixed by the bank before the floating rate was adopted in November, 1956.

In his speech, Mr. Fleming

Canadian Dollar Drops in London To 95 Cents

LONDON (Reuters)—The Canadian dollar today dropped to its lowest level in terms of the United States dollar in 10 years in dealings on the London foreign exchange.

The decline of the Canadian dollar to 95 U.S. cents U.S. came in the wake of Finance Minister Fleming's budget announcement Tuesday night that Canada would depress its dollar.

Dealers on the London market were cautious about quoting a rate for the Canadian currency which opened nominally at 95 to 99 American cents and later improved to 97 to 98 U.S. American cents.

In Johannesburg today fixing of South African-Canadian exchange rates was suspended until further notice following Fleming's announcement.

NEW YORK (AP)—The Canadian dollar fell to its lowest mark in 10 years on the New York foreign exchange market today when it opened at 97 cents in relation to the U.S. dollar.

This was three cents lower than Tuesday when the Canadian dollar closed at par.

Hammarskjold Caught Amid Spy Quarrel

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold was caught today in a cross-fire from the United States and Communist Czechoslovakia over U.S. spy charges against Czech diplomat Miroslav Nacvalac.

The United States sent Hammarskjold a note charging that Nacvalac, a Russian-Navy-trained counsellor to the Czech UN mission, is Prague's chief intelligence agent in New York.

Nacvalac denied all the U.S. charges. His delegation in New York indicated it would press Hammarskjold to rule that U.S. action against the counsellor violated both the UN charter and the U.S.-United Nations agreement.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: — Cool temperatures and variable amounts of cloud are generally reported across Ontario this morning. Nevertheless overcast skies and showers are reported at various points along the north shore of Lake Ontario and in the Ottawa Valley. Showers or thunderstorms moving into Tennessee this morning will move into Virginia Thursday morning. While the storm centre will stay well south of the Great Lakes, cloud along its northern edge will dominate the weather at many points in Southern Ontario today and Thursday. Accompanying showers will persist in the Niagara Peninsula and at many points near the vicinity of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.

Canada Action Against Two Union Leaders

Charge 41 Workers In Demonstration

TORONTO (CP)—Contractors on Toronto's strikebound east-west subway project took legal action Tuesday against two union leaders for alleged wrongful interference with their business operations.

At the same time police charged 41 immigrant construction workers with unlawful assembly after demonstrations at a suburban Etobicoke housing development.

It was the largest group of arrests since a strike crippled residential construction here 22 months ago spread to the city's $200,000,000 subway extension.

The subway contractors issued writs against Charles Ironside, international vice - president of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association (CLC) and Gerald G a l l a g h e r, secretary-treasurer of Local 183 of the Laborers Union (CLC).

The firms are seeking damages and injunctions to prevent the unions from encouraging illegal picketing.

Mr. Irvine is a main figure in the drive by the international building trades unions to enforce agreements in the housing field and to impose union conditions on the entire industry.

OFFERS OFF AID

The arrest of the union pickets came after Attorney-General Roberts offered the services of the provincial police, if necessary, to restrain the roving groups of pickets.

Police said about 300 workers had moved into the development area by the weekend and started swearing in front of homes. Police were given safety checks which union l e a d e r s carried. Mr. Irvine told a meeting of workers Tuesday night that the arrests of the two pickets followed complaints of a woman that her children and husband were being harassed.

"If that woman worried, how much would she worry if her children had no clothing?" he asked.

North York police also arrested Mr. Gallagher from a group gathered in front of an apartment building under construction worker was hit in the forehead by a tossed brick and another was kicked in the kidneys over his shoulder.

Norman Scharizta, 29), was taken to hospital in nearby G o o k s v i l l e suffering from a fractured skull and a severe head cut.

In other developments, strikers agreed to halt construction on the $20,000,000 Malton Airport terminal project after getting the way, a nurses' residence at Toronto's Sunnybrook and a factory building. Safety crews were withdrawn from twin tunnels under the Parliament Buildings.

Expert Finds Inescapable Link Between Cigarets, Lung Cancer

TORONTO (CP) — The relationship between lung cancer and cigaret smoking appears inescapable, says a Toronto medical expert.

Dr. Norman C. Delarue draws this conclusion in a review of studies of the link between cancer and smoking for the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

His article summarizing studies made in Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom, says at the present time there is no doubt.

Dr. Delarue, a member of the faculty of medicine at the University of Toronto, is senior consultant in chest surgery at the Toronto Hospital for Tuberculosis and senior consultant in surgery for breast and lung cancer at the Ontario Cancer Institute.

He cites a Research Council of Great Britain report that lung cancer is responsible in Great Britain for one in every 10 deaths in men and one in every 103 deaths in women.

As well as the National Cancer Institute of Canada concluded that, although it was not established that cigaret "causes" lung cancer, cigaret smokers have a greater risk of dying from it than non-smokers.

Dr. Delarue's report includes a list of 70 papers. To stop. A paper by Dr. Alton Ochsner in 1958 noted that when the pack-a-day man's death rate was 80.5 out of 100,000, comparable rate in 1911 was 0.6 and continued at the same level.

From experiments of Dr. E. Wynder, E. A. Graham and Dr. A. B. Croninger in 1957, Dr. Delarue said, cancer irritants, present in smoke tar, are retained on inhaling and form "dust cells" in the lower throat area. Here the "dust cells" disintegrate and the irritants are moved along in mucus to the lung area where they gather, stagnate and irritate to begin lung cancer.

However, he said, the actual agent in the tar which causes cancer has not been isolated, so methods of reducing tar are being studied. These include use of low-tar tobacco, air-porous cigaret paper and use of filters. They also emphasized that because we will pay a higher price in terms of our own dollar for the things we continue to import, some living - cost rises may be expected.

Some, while generally welcoming a lower-valued dollar, hoped the government wouldn't go too far.

Dr. R. V. Yohe, president, B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd., Kitchener, Ont., hoped the dollar wouldn't be forced down more than one or two per cent if it went too low the benefit of the removal of the automobile excise tax might be lost. However, if it were not "overdone"

Warn Lower-Valued Dollar Will Boost Cost of Imports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Removal of the excise tax on automobiles and appliances to reduce the value of the Canadian dollar in terms of other currencies, were the eye-catchers in initial budget reaction.

Repeal of the 7½-per-cent excise tax, and the immediate lowering of car prices that so-go too far. companies it, won practically unanimous approval. The dollar policy was generally welcomed, but some expressions of foreboding were also heard.

A number of commentators cautioned that with a lower-valued dollar the tax saving on cars may be partially offset by higher costs of imported parts. They also emphasized that be-

Big News Decision To Use Exchange Fund To Depress Value Of Canadian Dollar

Hope Result Will Be Sale Abroad Of Canadian Goods Worth Millions

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming has pinned his hopes for strong economic growth on a series of intricate financial moves.

The keystone will be a bold move to push the Canadian dollar to a "substantial" discount on the exchange market.

The recovery program set out in his budget speech Tuesday night virtually ignored any big moves, except to wipe out the 7½-per-cent excise tax on automobiles and give corporations new incentives to modernize their plants and step up scientific research.

Mr. Fleming, leaving all tax rates unchanged, forecast a $650,000,000 deficit, Canada's fifth in a row and a peacetime record total.

The big new was the revolutionary decision to use the exchange fund administered by the Bank of Canada to buy United States dollars and thus depress the Canadian dollar's exchange value to a lower — unspecified level.

The hoped - for goal is to give Canadian producers a price advantage against foreign competition at home and abroad and help them sell "many hundreds of millions of dollars worth of additional Canadian goods and services."

BALANCE MAY DROP

If it achieves its aim of increasing exports and diminishing imports with Canadian goods, there would be a substantial drop in Canada's big international balance of payments deficit — $1,700,000,000 last year.

He also announced policies intended to reduce interest rates in order to promote Canadian expansion and discourage some of the heavy inflow of foreign capital that has helped cause the payments deficit.

Lending power of the Crown-owned Industrial Development Bank will be boosted to $400,000,000 from $100,000,000 and its operations broadened to all types of industry.

There will be a new royal commission to study Canada's financial structure and institutions — including the Bank of Canada — and seek new means of generating Canadian capital for capital investment.

Liberal Leader Lester Pearson Mike Pearson, Fleming's predecessor as minister of finance, said it was to have been "Fleming's flip - flop budget, reversing government policies, but it wasn't even that.

WILL ATTACK AGAIN

Mr. Pearson said he will attack when the budget debate resumes Monday.

Opposition Leader Pearson issued a statement saying the Commons "got expansion all right — in wind, words and rhetoric. But there is no recognition of the government's failure after five years."

Observers saw chances of an early election fade when Mr. Fleming announced no big personal tax cuts.

Removal of the auto excise tax, effective today, is estimated to cut around $140 from the price of a $2,000 car if the saving is passed on to buyers.

The excise tax cut will account for $65,000,000 of the $100,000,000 in tax reductions provided by the budget in a full year.

Mr. Fleming read his 24,000-

Longshoremen Quit Jobs in Protest At Confusion of Seamen's Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Hundreds of longshoremen staged a protest work stoppage today, causing a virtual paralysis in harbor operations and adding a new twist to the seamen's strike.

The reason for the action of the International Longshoremen's Association was not immediately made clear. But it apparently was in an effort to force the striking maritime unions to clarify their demands in a situation which has led to great confusion.

ILA members were called upon to meet with the striking sea unions later today.

The Maritime Port Council of Greater New York then called for a work stoppage by workers in its 27 unions as they could attend a rally after the ILA meeting.

ILA officials said they were confused by the inter-union bickering and lack of clear-cut issues in the six-day-long walkout involving 85,000 maritime workers and close to 1,000 ships.

Federal mediators say they have never faced such a confused and complicated strike.

TRADING STAMPS GET AIRING IN COMMONS

Mixed Views Given on Value

OTTAWA (CP)—The controversial issue of trading stamps got another airing in the Commons Tuesday with Progressive Conservative members expressing mixed views about whether they should be banned.

The MPs spent an hour debating a bill proposed by Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) which would insert a section in the Criminal Code prohibiting use of trading stamps in Canada. The measure still was being discussed at the supper adjournment and will not likely come up again this session.

Mr. Howard said the Criminal Code contains a number of loopholes which allow stamps in provinces where they are not banned by provincial legislation. He said the Retail Merchants Association of Canada, the C a n a d a A s s o c i a t i o n of Consumers and other groups feel trading stamps are an "insidious blight on the economy."

They tended to promote monopoly and a concentration of power over the economy in which a small business could not survive. There was an air of dishonesty attached to them and many felt they resulted in higher prices.

HAS FAITH IN PEOPLE

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) said there is a tendency among some to wish to legislate the morality of people. If trading stamps were insidious, he said enough faith in Canadians to believe they would be rejected.

Mr. Woolliams said that if trading stamps are wrong so are the items contained in packages distributed by manufacturers.

"I believe that the consuming public has come to the realization that trading stamps are distributed by the devil," Walter Whalen (PC—Grey-Bruce), adding that the devil has allowed it because there is a "degree of deception" in the use of trading stamps.

"I agree they should not be eliminated," Mr. Winkler said. "As far as I am concerned, the economy of the country and the consuming public would be better served without this type of invitation to the public to spend their money at a given place."

Roderick Irvine (PC—Hastings Frontenac) said that allowing large companies to issue trading stamps defeats the purposes of federal legislation for loans to owners of small businesses for improvement of equipment and premises.

Grant Campbell (PC — Stormont) described trading stamps as a racket which will die of its own accord.

KINGSTON YOUTH DIES IN HOSPITAL AFTER CAR CRASH

A 17-year-old Kingston youth, Carman Loyst, 17 Arch St., died in Kingston General Hospital early today following injuries suffered June 16th in an auto accident a mile southwest of the village of Tamworth.

Provincial police at Belleville headquarters said that the Kingston youth was riding in a car driven by Ivan B. Wagner, 18, Cherry Street, of Kingston, when control was lost on a curve, the vehicle struck a tree and rolled over.

GIRL SUFFERS DOUBLE FRACTURE, STRUCK BY CAR

Six-year-old Janet Dail, 214 Pine Street, was struck down by a car police said was driven by 39-year-old Charles Lambert, 40 Stanley Boulevard Drive, at the corner of Bridge Street and Bertram Boulevard on Tuesday evening.

The Dail girl riding south on Bertram Boulevard, rode into the path of the Lambert car travelling west on Bridge St.

Hospital officials said Janet suffered a double fracture of her left leg and concussion with head injuries. Surgery was performed last night on the little girl at the Belleville General Hospital. Her condition was reported as being fairly good today.

Fur Revenue Should Exceed $180,000

A total of 13,185 seals were used to tag raw fur for district trappers. This is a substantial yield over the previous season, says the Department of Lands and Forests.

Beaver are by far the most important species of fur-bearing animals and the catch this year was recorded at 11,711, in addition 1,280 muskrat and 194 other fur bearers were taken.

Muskrat appeared to be on the increase but as the pelts are not sealed, the exact number caught is not recorded at this time. It is necessary for trappers to report all furs taken and sold on a special form which will be later compiled to determine the total of raw fur produced in the district.

The revenue for the 700 trappers should exceed $180,000.

District Achievement Award Won by Kiwanis First Time

Local Kiwanians participated in a round table discussion involving an appraisal of the club's activities as befits a responsible unit within the community during their weekly dinner meeting yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre. The discussion, which was headed by Abe Mazer, Everett Fairman and Gerry Wishart, was in a sense anti-climactic following president Bob Brain's announcement that the club had just been awarded the Kiwanis International's District Achievement Award, the first time this honor has been conferred on the local organization which has been a runner-up for three times in the past.

The award was made on the basis of the club's activity in 1960. Past president George Tripp, who served as president in 1960, was presented with a past president's ring in recognition of the service he had rendered the club during that year.

During the panel discussion Abe Mazer recounted the past activities of the club over a decade or more ago. He noted that many of the club's activities were considered to be a success at that time if the club broke even or showed a few dollars. There was not much working capital at this time and the club undertook a number of small projects rather than attempt a large one which members could really get their teeth into, he suggested, adding that Kiwanis has should not forget this high when they consider undertaking a project. He proposed that the club might do something regarding Zwick's Island as a project.

BUILD CITIZENSHIP

Appraising the current activities of the club was Everett Fairman, who used as his yardstick the degree to which club projects have built citizenship. He cited the "Elmer" safety program in the schools to make competent, safety conscious, the travelogues as a cultural contribution to the community's life and the guidance committee which assisted the youth of the community to better determine which walk of life they would like to associate themselves for as being significant contributions towards building responsible citizens. He also noted that a great number of Kiwanians were personally active in many of the projects designed to produce a better community.

Past president Gerry Wishart suggested that what lay ahead for the club in the future would be determined by the various standing and special committees examining the local scene and, together with conferring with local officials, deciding upon projects which fill the needs of the community. He suggested that the current government trend towards the "welfare state" would remove the opportunity to engage in any "big" projects but that there would be numerous occasions when Kiwanians would be able to assist in many projects of a diverse nature rather than to concentrate on one particular "pet" project. It was, he suggested, the viewpoint of Kiwanis that it was able to diversify its welfare activity rather than to concentrate on just a few projects as was the custom in many other service clubs.

President Bob Brain announced that next week's speaker would be Sir Stanley Matthews, universally known as "Mr. Soccer."

Head of RCMP Here Will Move To Peterborough

Head of the Belleville Detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Cpl. Richard Mole is being transferred to the RCMP detachment office at Peterborough, it has been announced by a spokesman for the force.

Cpl. Mole has been a member of the RCMP for the past 12 years. "I am sorry to leave Belleville," he said this morning.

The new officer in charge at Belleville will be Cpl. Ross Grainge, who is being transferred from Niagara Falls detachment.

Another transfer to effect the Belleville detachment will be Constable Kenneth Booker, who is being moved from Toronto in the near future.

Liberal Assoc. Members Start Election Drive

The Belleville Liberal Association slipped into gear last night as President Alex C. Lundberg, Deputy Mayor Robert Temple and former South Hastings M.P. Frank Folwell urged upwards of 100 party members to get out in force July 5 at the Liberal nominating convention at BCIVS.

The Liberals were the first political party to show any outward signs of preparing for an expected early federal election. The New Party will hold its first big meeting Thursday night.

Deputy Mayor Temple is the only Liberal party member who has declared himself a candidate for the July 5 nominating convention. Two more — Mr. Folwell and Dr. Ross Thurston, Prince Edward are said to be the only other likely contenders, although they have not yet declared themselves in the running for the nomination.

Mr. Lundberg, Liberal candidate in Hastings West in 1958, last provincial election, urged all party supporters to get out and start campaigning now so that when the Conservative government calls an election as it does this fall or next spring — the Liberal party will be well organized and in the position already fielded.

Both Mr. Folwell and Mr. presented Hastings South in Ottawa for eight consecutive years, and Mr. Temple, who is the age of 24 was nominated to head the Liberal party in Ontario. Mr. Lundberg's son, Barry's remarks. They urged were chairmen and polling station captains to co-operate by throwing every ounce of their energy into pre-election and election day work. Dr. McVicker was not present.

Mr. Folwell said that although Finance Minister Fleming did not appear to be an election budget, it was better for prospects of a progressive party should Prime Minister Diefenbaker try to catch his opponents off guard by calling an early election.

Youth Group Will Conduct Services Here

"Youth In One Accord," a team of five young people from Houghton College, Houghton, New York, accompanied by Dr. George "Coach" Wells, director, will visit the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist Church this weekend.

Nearly one year ago the local congregation approved the visit of the Youth Team to the Belleville and district established the dates June 23 — 26.

Included in the team is song leader, Gary Noyes. Gary is no stranger to Belleville since he has a number of relatives living in the city and Belleville area.

"Youth In One Accord" covers thousands of miles each year and has ministered in thirty different denominations. Whether it is through a quintet, quartet, trio, duet, solo, testimony or message, the purpose of the Team is most inspirational.

The Belleville Rally will open this Friday night at 8: p.m. with a "get acquainted" time. Rally classes will be held on Saturday and Sunday. They will complement both the morning and evening services on Sunday.

$600 Missing In Safe-Cracking Job at Plant

Close to $600 is missing following a safe-cracking job at Carm's Beverages at the corner of Wellington and Parker streets, police reported today.

Inspector J. B. McLauchlan of the city detective department said entry to the building was gained by forcing the boiler room door, followed which the office was entered and the safe attacked.

"It was a professional job," the inspector commented.

The combination on the safe was drilled in the base of the safe, following which the combination of the safe door was removed, the door opened and the safe contents removed.

Foremen Visit AEC Plant At Chalk River

Thirty-two members of the Quinte District Foremen's Club their wives and friends, last weekend toured the Chalk River atomic energy project. They were accompanied by 48 members of the Kingston club.

Bruce and Renfrew Foremen's clubs.

The visitors were divided into groups of 12 and each group was taken to the reactor auditorium where two films were shown concerning the principles of nuclear fission and the methods of harnessing atomic energy. After the groups were guided by student scientists through the control rooms and buildings. NRX, oldest of the two reactors, has a power output of 40,000 kilowatts, while NRU, the newest reactor, has a power output five times greater and has the added feature of re-fueling while in operation.

The tour was arranged by James Garvin of the Ottawa Hull club, with the dinner arrangements in Pembroke were made by J. Nugent. Frank Grandame, Bill Gardner and Wally Kennedy of the Quinte Club were responsible for participation by the Belleville group.

IN MEMORIAM

BALDWIN — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Major George Edward, who passed away June 21st, 1960.
Sadly missed but always remembered
By his mother, sister and brothers
Lillian, Ethel and Harold.

BALDWIN — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ethel Gertrude Edward, who passed away July 20th, 1960.
Sadly missed but always remembered
By her husband, Percy Edward.
So He closed her weary eyelids,
So He folded her tired hands,
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
Far from all earthly lands.
Some day, we know not when,
We'll meet our loved ones again.

HEAL — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Walter Heal, who passed away June 21st, 1959.
Remember me miss,
Remember me kiss,
Remember me sweetheart,
Forget me never.
Loving and remembered by his wife Hattie, sons Bruce, Ralph and their families.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all my friends, neighbours and those who remembered me with cards, flowers and gifts during my stay in the hospital.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—The after-Tuesday slice in March quill, 1960, math of Tuesday night's budget by rising 3.58 to 585.18, was an all-time high on the industrial index and a powerful surge by all issues on the board.

On index, industrials rose 5.48 to 590.63, Golds were up 1.16 to 25.81, as were base metals and western oils, up 2.27 to 194.15 and .43 to 96.67. The 11 a.m. volume was 580,000 shares compared with 511,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Papers moved ahead spectacularly on news of the Canadian dollar's depreciation. Consolidated, Price Brothers, Great Lakes and Abitibi all added a point or more.

Motors were higher with the dropping of the excise tax. Ford of Canada was up $4 to $159.

Golds were active, Kerr Addison, Hollinger and Giant Yellowknife were all up.

In base metals, Geco, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay and International Nickel made gains.

The market took its biggest jump on the industrial index

Moments in History

In 1[illegible] Walden [illegible] built the first all-brick house in Upper Canada, at Mercer's Creek (now Belleville). It stood on Mount Pleasant Road, on the hill east of the Moira River. Its two big chimneys indicate how it was heated. Today, home heating is more efficient and effective with modern units and fuel oil delivered automatically. At the turn of this century the predecessors of the Schuster company first began; it has grown up with Belleville! Difference in U. S. Fringe Political Groups Is Matter Of Ideology, Not Degree

One distinguishing mark of the right-wing militant in the U.S. seems to be an implacable attitude toward those who politically disagree with him. Questions of basic attitudes, methods of operation and influence of conservative activists are discussed in this third of four articles on American fringe groups.

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—It takes one distinct step, according to students of America's right wing, to cross the chasm which separates such rock-ribbed conservatives as Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona from such blood - redemption militants as Robert Welch of the Birch Society.

Yale sociologist L. M. Lipset says he sees the difference is not so much one of degree as of ideology.

"The extremist," says Lipset, "questions the patriotism of anyone whose actions fall within the scope of what he considers the road toward collectivism.

"The more moderate conservative, on the other hand, may feel just as strongly that certain act would be a step along the same road, but he takes a view the man who did it simply is in error, or perhaps even foolish or misled as to motive."

In his book, The Politician, Welch described former president Eisenhower and Roosevelt plus Gen. George C. Marshall and others as Communists or traitors. Conservative Republican Right calls upon its readers to "fearlessly proclaim to the world that liberalism is treason."

SMOOT LESS EXTREME

Other militants, such as Dan Smoot, a Dallas lecturer and former FBI agent, often take the less extreme position of labeling persons as "Communist dupes" rather than out-and-out traitors.

"Practically all influential liberals are dupes," says Smoot, "want the same kind of society that Communists are after." And he says practically all influential liberals would reject.

Welch laments:

"Although our danger remains clear, entirely internal from Communist influences right in our government, the American people are being persuaded that our danger is from the outside, from Russian military superiority."

Right wing activists frequently feel U.S. programs to fight communism abroad—foreign aid, NATO-type treaties and the like—are the result of time, effort and tax money.

Should the national effort to thwart communism abroad, or attempts to negotiate with the Soviets, seem rightists regard the moves as downright insane.

SHOWS A FAILURE

Lipset goes to support the U.S. could negotiate with the Reds, says Dr. Frederick Charles Schwarz, director of the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade, shows "a failure to understand communism so completely that it approaches mental illness."

Schwarz suggests organizing cells, one of several well-tested Communist methods right-wing militants have borrowed, to turn against their foes.

Others, as outlined in the Birch Society's blue book, include front groups, pressure tactics, heckling speakers with "mean and dirty" questions, bulging their letterbox with letter-writing campaigns, infiltrating PTA and other groups, creating a demand for approved authors, commentators, books and speakers.

Except for top leaders, membership in the right wing and the Birch Society clest Birchers "be subject to persecution and attack."

Anything that isn't fundamentally American is suppressed by the right-wing groups of being of Communist origin.

Students' Councils of Two Schools Thanked for Work

Letters of appreciation from the Bay of Quinte District High School Board have been sent to members of Students' Councils at Moira Secondary and Quinte Secondary schools for projects carried out at the schools during the past year.

At Quinte Secondary the Students' Council paid for the installation of fluorescent lighting equipment in the school auditorium, while at Moira Secondary the Council at that school installed an electrically operated basketball scoreboard. Installations took place cost in the neighborhood of $500.

The expression of appreciation from High school board members was one of the items of business on the agenda at the regular monthly meeting of the board, held Tuesday evening. The meeting was the last longest of the year as tag ends of business were caught up prior to the summer recess.

The board voted to pay $75 out of air cadet funds for a flying scholarship for Edward Karkheck, picked by the Air Cadet League from the air cadet squadron at Quinte to take flying instruction, for five weeks at Kingston. The Belleville boy is the only one picked in the Belleville district.

The meeting saw several contract awards made for renovations or repairs at local schools. The master clock system at B.C.I. will be replaced by new IBM equipment, while local contractor Bert Hiles was engaged to install a partition in the former electrical shop at B.C.I. to make two regular classrooms. Tenders will be called for renovations to both boys' and girls' washrooms at B.C.I., with the board to decide at a later date whether to proceed with the first section of the work.

Three hundred frames and doors on lockers in the old wing at the Quinte Secondary School will be replaced by Dennis Steel Company.

Local decorator Walter McCormick was given the contract for painting at schools during the summer holidays, and The Tatham Company was engaged to prepare specifications for repairs to glass window block at Quinte Secondary School.

The board transportation committee will let contracts for the transportation of city high school students to the Kingston summer school. Between 180 and 80 local high school students are expected to be taking the summer courses to brush up on subjects in which they are weak.

The maximum salary for general caretakers at the three Belleville high schools next year was increased $200 to $3,400 per annum. Senior caretakers' salaries were increased to $3,200.

David R. Bell was named acting head of the physical education department at Moira Secondary School, replacing John Perry, who is leaving the school.

The board approved the hiring of Mrs. Marian Chetland as office assistant at Quinte Secondary School.

Local Students To Participate In UN Seminar

Six students from three Belleville Collegiates have accepted temporary status as international "delegates" of the nonexisting state in the world presenting at the ninth annual United Nations seminar being held at Queen's University at Kingston from June 20 to 23.

"The Chair recognizes the representative of Canada". As the "representatives" of Canada, Alan Barkley of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School will present the position he has prepared on behalf of Canada. Also attending the seminar from Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School are Mrs. Taylor who will be "representing" Nicaragua and Mrs. Bowerman. School students attending the seminar are Helen Hawkins, "representing" Madagascar and John Durbin "representing" Egypt and Miss Queen in Secondary School, Helen Voccolo will be "represent" ing Slovakia and David Hesler, Portugal.

They are six of 83 delegates from Eastern Ontario High Schools attending the three-day UN seminar. It is sponsored by the Department of External Affairs in co-operation with the Kingston Branch of the United Nations Association.

Delegates are selected (two from each participating high school) by the students' principal and history teacher on the basis of their academic standing and interest in UN activities.

Twenty Eighth Delights Crowd At Stratford

STRATFORD (CP) — The courtly beauty of Renaissance England lived Tuesday night on the stage of the Stratford Festival. It dazzled audience and critics.

The lavish costumes and a few scenes of high emotional intensity brought the opening season production through Henry VIII until the final curtain—the christening of Princess Elizabeth, which overflowed the Elizabethan style stage in a magnificent spectacle of yellow and gold.

Many critics were as impressed as the audience, which broke into long applause. It was a triumph that, in the opinion of most, far exceeded that of the opening-night production of Coriolanus.

Douglas Campbell, British actor who has been pleasing festival patrons on and off since its inaugural season in 1953, played Henry and scored another success. Also praised was Frances Hyland as Katharine of Aragon, Henry's rejected queen.

Globe and Mail Says Premier May Retire

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says Premier Leslie M. Frost will resign this year's after 12 years as head of the Ontario government.

The newspaper mentions three developments — remarks by the premier in a budget speech; his purchase of an interest in his hometown radio station in Lindsay, and the widening of behind-the-scenes jockeying for leadership by some possible successors."

The newspaper also said Mr. Frost, who is 64 years old, has found the burdens of office increasingly heavy in the past few months and that Mrs. Frost favors an easier life for her husband.

The report recalls a speech delivered by Mr. Frost almost to the dollar 6 marking the 70th anniversary of the death of Sir John A. Macdonald. In that speech he noted that Macdonald's death left a void at the top of the Conservative party and added:

"I think we can say it is a mistake to recognize the physical frailties and limitations of the human being and not to recognize that the building of leadership is a constant process."

The newspaper claims "quiet overtures" were made at "functions" started this month among Mr. Frost's political successors. It names five contenders as Provincial Treasurer Allan Grossman, Attorney-General Kelso Roberts, Highways Minister Cass, Energy Resources Minister Dana Porter, Health Minister Dymond, Treasury Minister Rownтree and Education Minister Robarts.

Cigaret Smoking Causes Cancer

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Medical Association for the first time has gone on record as saying that cigaret smoking causes lung cancer.

Until now the association had avoided a direct statement on smoking and cancer, but at its annual meeting Monday, the general council of the CMA approved a report linking the two and called on doctors to point out the dangers of smoking to their patients.

Hidden Weapon Sends Youth To Jail

TRENTON — Robert Lee, 17, of Toronto, who let west was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon. He was sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The youth was on suspended sentence on theft charges and will be returned to Toronto when his present term expires.

Three Trenton youths who pleaded guilty to the theft of a car jack and tire iron from a service station, were placed on suspended sentence for one year. Two of the youths were ordered not to drive cars unless in the pursuit of their employment for a two-months period. The youngest of the trio does not drive. All three were told to be home by 11 each night for two months, unless accompanied by their parents.

"There is a serious matter," said Magistrate Wills. "Some personal inconvenience will bring it home to them."

Trenton Legion Notes

At Monday night's meeting of Trenton-Legion branch 110, president Ken Craddock announced that the branch band, Rev. F. T. Irwin, had resigned. Due to the pressure of his pastoral duties, A defection as entertainment for Mr. Irwin will be made at a later date.

New members George A. Armstrong, A. C. Shelleter, Robert K. Wilson, Lorne E. Hazelwood, Gerald H. Finkle and Joseph Hudon were introduced by membership chairman Zell Donaldson.

Sports director, a long-time friend of the Legion branch, was presented with an associate membership and he and Jim Williamson were given small gifts in recognition of their services to the branch.

Sports chairman O. C. Smith reported that baseball activity is underway under the direction of Bob Bateman. He said that the horseshoe pits are in working order now. The branch will also hold needs during around the Legion Hall.

The members adopted a new insurance coverage outlined by finance chairman, Art Collette, which will result in a saving

A Hot Potato For Baby

The New Party, not yet formally born, had a really hot potato dumped into its lap by a gathering of Quebec adherents.

A two-day meeting at Montreal voted to request that the following preamble be included in the New Party's constitution: "The New Party formally proclaims its faith in federalism, as being the only system able to ensure the development, in a bi-national state, of the two nations of which Canada is composed and to ensure their full equality in law."

This is political dynamite, at a time when there is such an emergence of nationalism in French-speaking Canada that there is even talk of Quebec's "right" to secede from Canada. Moreover, this "right of self-determination" was frankly mentioned at the Montreal meeting, attended by some 200 labor leaders, university teachers and other party members. The federalism mentioned in the proposed preamble to the constitution, printed above, was, it is true, advocated as the only way to avoid a growth in the number of French-Canadian separatists. That, however, does little to lessen the potential damage of the presentation of such a proposal to the New Party's founding convention, to be held in Ottawa from July 31 to August 4. Some of those present at the Montreal gathering clearly grasped this fact. Gabriel Glazier, a lawyer, for instance, said that the proposed preamble would "misread and miseducate the rest of the country about the New Party."

The Montreal gathering was dominated by the theme that nationalism is sweeping the French-Canadian working class—"the most oppressed proletariat in North America with the exception of the southern Negro."

The existence of the exception should be warning enough.

Canada's treatment of the Negro's plight is the direct result of federalism, of states rights which hamper the Federal Government in Washington in its efforts to protect him and provide him with that equality to which he is entitled. Similarly, in Quebec, if the French-Canadian working class is oppressed it is not the Federal Government but the politicians of Quebec itself who are to blame.

Audacious British

There is something bordering on braggadocio in the spectacle of British officials probing the possibility of a federation of British territories in East Africa, before even one of these territories has acquired its independence. Here is an area of Africa unlike the West Coast where a long-standing intercourse with Western nations has already resulted in the birth of several independent nations. Here is a regular powder box, a sort of African Balkans, where the common or garden variety of color problem is complicated by a variety of other tensions—proximity of the Moslem world, racial memory of the Mau Mau and old and bitter tribal rivalries. Yet here are the British colonial officials, summoning African leaders to London, preparing to talk about a federation of people of diverse backgrounds, at varying stages of development.

One is tempted, at first, to scoff at such audacity. But on second thoughts suggest that the British may be right, that federation would be most easily achieved before, and not after, states achieve completely separate identities. After all, the British have acquired quite a bit of practical experience in this sort of thing, over the past couple of decades. Pretty soon they may become as expert at dissolving an empire as they once were at building it. Audacity is sometimes, paradoxically enough, the most prudent course.

Hard To Live With

Michael Audain, a 23-year-old Canadian university student from British Columbia, is in jail in Jackson, Mississippi, after joining the "Freedom Riders" testing segregation laws in the southern states. However, he plans to abandon his integration efforts after his jail term expires and to return to university. "College is more important than another sentence," he says.

"I didn't hope to accomplish anything except myself. It was my own idea. One has to live with one's self, you know."

Most of us find ourselves considerably easier to live with than does Michael Audain. If we did not, no Canadian who believed in racial equality would be able to visit the southern states without landing in jail.

It is not certain, though, that being easy to live with is a virtue in this case.

Seeks Reform Of Commons

Montreal Star

When John Wilkes was expelled from the House of Commons in the 18th century he fought his way back in. He fought a duel, printed seditious libels, forged documents, evaded the lurisdiction of the courts, aroused the populace to riot and put down the disturbance his own actions had caused. Not so Wedgwood Benn. He has simply presented himself properly elected, applied politely for admission to the House and courteously accepted Mr. Speaker's ruling that he can't cross the threshold.

The matter does not end there. Benn (Lord Stansgate) is going to carry his case to the floor of the House and force reform of procedure that would secure his admission notwithstanding his succession to a peerage. This automatically cancels his membership in the Commons, but it does not force him to sit in the House of Lords. That is why the Union Act was passed in England is not reform of the Lords, as so many assume, but reform of the Commons.

It is fure that if Wedgwood Benn succeeds in getting himself into the Commons, the hereditary principle which forced him out of the Lords by way of peerage will be shattered. Further reform may then be found to be made necessary. But that is a prospect from which the English people will no longer shrink. The Lords have already been reformed out of existence by Life Peers. The passage of the Parliament Act of 1911 under threat to create a number of peers sufficient to pass it over the objections of the Conservatives proved that a determined government could reform the Lords anytime it chose to do so.

Reform of the Commons is more difficult. The Lords can vote out create Commons members. So the Commons, if Englishmen are to be free, must remain free and secure seats, must reform itself. Mr. Benn has raised only the issue to be one of personal freedom and there are many who agree with him.

Certainly Parliament will not be allowed to move, for the decent and tradition. The Home Secretary, without defending the anachronistic ways of Parliament, has suggested that while reform should come it should not be made now. His stand has brought much joyful confirmation of Mort Sahl's quip during the American elections: "An old Grand Republican Conservative that nothing should be done for the first time, when a conservative Republican believes that it should but not now".

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
SHOW YOUR "OFF SIDE"

It is surprising how many people are blind to success as a merchant does his good — by putting just the select things in the show window.

When you meet a man under all circumstances, and he rings the bell true every time, then you have something upon which to build.

I like the man who shows his "off side" as well as his front; his humanity appeals to me and I instinctively trust him. But I now just where to find him.

It doesn't pay to keep anything under cover, for sooner or later what you are will stand out.

If you are "in a hole," put all your cards on the table, state your position and then see how quickly confidence is restored in you.

Show your "off side." It will surprise you to see how through-

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS
YES — FOR ALL YOU KNOW

Someone commenting on a person whose life had been pretty much of a failure said, "He had many gifts, but he was always too lazy to unwrap them."

What would a friend think if you thanked him for a birthday or Christmas present and then never took the trouble to unwrap the present but laid it away in a cupboard? The courteous thing to do when given a present is to unwrap it immediately and thank the Giver. The right thing to do with reference to God's gifts is to unwrap them, thank the Giver, and then use these gifts to some good end.

The dismal thing about people who fail is that for the most part they are people had all the gifts designed to make them successful. The stupid and indolent do not fail nearly so often as do the lazy, proud, and selfish people who have fine gifts. Benedict Arnold and Aaron Burr, in the early history of the United States had fine gifts, but they made a wrong use of their gifts.

"Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations" has become an adage not because sons did not inherit their father's abilities but usually because they were too lazy to unwrap the gifts which were theirs, which they inherited from their careful fathers.

You may be a genius for all you know. Start unwrapping your gifts.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 21st, 1941

The Ontario Division of the Navy League of Canada is holding its tag day in the city on Saturday under the auspices of St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E. Since the very first day of War the Navy League, which incidentally was able to supply several thousand three-quarter trained men for the Army, the Navy and the Air Force immediately through its ex cadet movement, maintained in peace as well as war, has been serving the men of the Royal Canadian Navy, the Canadian Merchant Services and the Royal Navy through its "comforts station" or hostels at all Canadian ports. According to the recent announcement of the Minister of Naval Affairs, the personnel of our services has grown to ten times its original size since the beginning of war.

At the home of Mrs. W. B. Deacon yesterday a most successful afternoon tea was held by Girl Guide Council. The spacious rooms were bright with summer flowers and the tea table was a lovely picture with green and white as the theme. The guests visited the garden which is one of the city's beauty spots. At the tea table Mrs. Leo Riggs, the district commissioner, Mrs. T. W. Ackerman, the deputy commissioner, received with Mrs. Deacon. Mrs. F. H. Wilson and Mrs. E. Bassing, the guests invited the guests to the tea room. The tea hostesses were Mrs. C. A. Cambell, Mrs. G. S. Cronk, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. R. A. Flynn and Mrs. J. W. Kincear, Mrs. R. D. Arnott, Mrs. Bruce Lattimer, Mrs. H. O. Ireadale, Mrs. H. H. Fluke and Miss Harriett Crook assisted in the serving.

Nationalists Not All Reds

Toronto Star

Remember when the West regarded Gamal Nasser as a tool of Moscow because he accepted Communist arms?

Events have proved this suspicion to be ridiculous. Travels now afoot in the United Arab Republic — the anti-Soviet tone of its government-controlled press. In the recent weeks, both Moscow and Peking have attacked Nasser with growing vigor for jailing his own Communists and for "selling out" to the "imperialists."

All this should carry a lesson for the West. Somehow we have come to equate nationalist revolution — or any independent policy for that matter — with communism.

The UAR has not been alone among the damned. At one time or another, it has also denounced Iraq, Cuba, Mali, Guinea and a flock of other small countries either going through a nationalist upheaval or just striking out on their own.

The prime sin of such countries has been their insistence on a policy designed to meet their own needs and goals. Sometimes this had to be done at the expense of the West, Western interests. Sometimes, it almost meant accepting Soviet aid and thus encouraging local Communist movements. But as both Nasser and Nkrumah have now demonstrated, this does not necessarily entail surrender to world communism.

In his inaugural address, President Kennedy called for a re-use of a fresh, approach to such states ("We shall not always expect to find them supporting our every view. But we shall always hope that they will strongly supporting their own freedom."). But if there is any approach, there are few signs of it — in Cuba or elsewhere.

Yet, the West's policy will be self-defeating unless it recognizes that much of the world is in revolutionary ferment, and that the West is not the devil lie lies in Muscovite conspiracy have been the injustices of present hungers. It is time for the West to change its yardstick. It should offer a helping hand to the young countries whose needs are so great.

He Read Stars For Winnie

By H.L. MacPherson in the Windsor Star

Word of the death of Louis de Wohl came out of Switzerland the other day. And it's probable that a chapter in the history of war ended with it. It will be remembered on this continent as a writer of novels, with a religious bent to them, but in World War II he was Winston Churchill's private astrologer. At least what he was he had been claiming since the war, and no denials have come from Churchill or others in a position to know it's assumed he wasn't fibbing.

If you've jumped to the conclusion Churchill's faith in de Wohl's findings, the record doesn't say. Churchill while the most significant part of that record himself, yet it's understandable that he might have left some interesting but closely personal things out. Perhaps in another half century closed Churchill files will be opened for research and all that will be revealed, if interested, stick around.

Cash Tramps Not Popular

Windsor Star

The "cash tramp" is never considered as valuable a customer as a credit buyer in some stores. There are firms that put out around $5 to acquire a new credit account. Then, more money is spent to keep the account happy with the store.

The store operators figure a cash customer will make a purchase, pay for it, then go to some other shop for the next item.

But a credit customer will keep on patronizing the store where the credit account lets the buyer charge it.

Also, if things are bought on instalment, the interest charges can run on a pretty fancy scale. The customer does not always realize how much of the cost goes to meet interest and carrying charges.

Stores that sell for cash only complete each transaction at the cash register.

The stores that keep a long string of credit customers never really complete a deal. Each purchase dovetails into the next one.

Sun Tan Lotion With Cream Base Best for Dry Skins

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 33 years old. Some are more sensitive than others. Some men have this trouble — and it's no one. The most likely solution is for you to use one of the good brands of depilatory cream that you need, of course, be sensitive, to one or more of these) or to use an electric razor.

* * *

"Dear Dr. Molner: My son, five, has had constant constipation since birth. At present he passes bright red blood with the first section of stool, which is much too large for his size and age. He also suffers much pain. — Mrs. F. J."

This child should be checked promptly. The tissues are probably being torn by the large stool. The cause might be a congenital rectal defect, or some disorder of the colon. In any event, measures to soften the stool can be advised by your doctor to lessen the little boy's discomfort, and other remedies, if required, can be decided on the basis of further study.

* * *

Count your calories the easy way! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Caloric Chart," write Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover handling and postage.

Packaging Deceptive

Windsor Star

False packaging practices are under criticism again. Latest to add his voice of protest is Mr. Alfred Hales, M.P. for Wellington South.

Mr. Hales says that those in the meat industry are the worst offenders because of the latest innovation, called Even though now forced to wrap bacon in transparent covers are wrapping the meat in flat cartons with only a small window to display the colour of the fat on meat.

Chocolate bar wrappings are also deceptive. The wrappers are much larger than the actual bar. Buyers are also fooled in buying soap powder. The "giant economy package" contains more than a good share of air.

Fruit packaging is also tricky. Large, fully developed luscious looking fruits stake up the first few layers of the fruit, but below is the scrawny, rotten or unripe fruit. That often happens.

Mr. Hales feels that housewives will revolt against this practice. Housewives should not only be the only ones to revolt. A few M.P.'s should join the fight. They are in much better position to wage the battle against false packaging.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

What this modern art — painting, sculpture, music — may be trying to assert is that the unbalanced have their rights.

This is all right with the propounded humanitarianism. We are allowing teenagers to believe they are people. We are mollifying the death penalty for murder. We see nothing wrong in it most impossible for anybody to starve to death.

Aside from time immemorial we have had daffy people among us. Many of course, were the artists. There was one in every village, two or three in every town, and noticeably numbers of them in cities. Some thought they were painters, or sculptors: poets wrote verses on the into departed; they played pianos terribly; some were operatic sopranos in village church choirs. They were awful. But they were looked upon with tolerance and forebearance. They were just daffy, unbalanced, except of course, they occasionally a nuisance.

But to suggest that they had rights, that daffiness had a place in the human scheme, never occurred to anyone.

Do you mean to say there weren't people who had rights? Sure there are substantiosists fifty, a hundred, two hundred years ago? Of course there were. Do you mean there were no carvers, like this Henry Moore, who could construct kings and queens with six foot necks, back in Shakespeare's time? Certainly there were.

But they were just supposed to be there.

Would Alter Phone Ring

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Our British cousins, supposedly more conservative than Americans, are tinkering with the time honored way of replacing the staid ring of the telephone with "a pleasant birdlike whistle".

It sounds like a jolly good idea — one that should well be exported. Many birds have calls which should be acceptable as summonses to the telephone.

Just to name a few possibilities: The cardinal's "what, cheer"; the mockingbird's clear high-pitched whistle; the towhee's "che-wink", the Carolina wren's tea-kettle song; the red-winged blackbird's "conk-ker-ee!" and even the screech owl's plaintive tremolo.

With the exception of bird store proprietors, who could object to substituting something in the sweet and soft line for the harsh, demanding notes of today's telephone?

Shannonville Area Couple Happily Wed For 50 Years

Congratulatory messages from friends all across the province as well as from acquaintances in the immediate Belleville area poured in at the home during the evening marked the golden anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fitzgerald, well known Shannonville district couple who yesterday celebrated a half-century of marriage.

During the afternoon and evening they were "at home" to their wide circle of friends at the nearby home of their daughter at Millbrook, east of Shannonville.

Messages were received from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, from Premier Leslie M. Frost, Lee H. Grills, federal member for South Hastings, and from Clarke C. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East.

Mrs. Fitzgerald is the former Annie Helena Reid of the Shannonville area. The groom of 50 years is a son of Ireland, coming to Canada from County Cork, 61 years ago. He has since lived in the Shannonville area where, for 46 years, he has been engaged in the painting and decorating business.

HOME MOVED AWAY

Anniversary time has been a period of reminiscence for Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald who in recent weeks have seen their home of many years moved to make way for highway improvements at Millbrook.

The Fitzgerald house has been moved back from the highway to allow for widening of the roadway while he paint shop will also be moved or torn down.

But at 70 years, Mr. Fitzgerald admits that he is slowing down a bit at the painting. Mrs. Fitzgerald is 67.

The couple were married at Napanee by Canon Kidd. They made the trip from Shannonville to Napanee by train. On the trip to Napanee and back by train was their honeymoon.

An active life in community affairs has been followed by both Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

Mr. Fitzgerald has been a director on the Shannonville "Workie Fair" for the past 38 years and served as president of the fair society for a three-year term.

MEMBER OF COUNCIL

He has also acted as district director and president of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies, and in this capacity has visited a big percentage of the fall fairs across Ontario. He is now a member of the Tyendinaga township council.

Mrs. Fitzgerald has also taken an active interest in fair work, both at Shannonville and also on an area basis. She is now serving as ladies' representative for district No. 3 of the Ontario Fairs Association.

Both have taken an active interest in the work of Trinity Anglican Church where Mrs. Fitzgerald has been president of the Women's Guild for the past 14 years, having missed only one meeting in that time. She is also a member of the Quinte Women's Institute.

GUESTS OF HONOR

Yesterday the Fitzgeralds were guests of honor at a turkey dinner prepared by members of their family.

They have three sons, John and George of Toronto and Manson of London, Ont., and one daughter, Mrs. Fitzgerald Williams. A second daughter, Mrs. Sadie Marie Vesterfelt, died four years ago. There are nine grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

M. Hamelink Retains Chess Club Title

Martin Hamelink of Amelias-burg has retained the T. R. Meeus Trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Belleville Chess Club.

Last night at the Recreation Centre, Hamelink defeated Willi Hinderie in his final game, to complete his schedule undefeated. Despite his brilliant record, he just nosed out August Doersheln of Picton, a newcomer to the club this year. Hamelink finished with an 8½-½ record, while Doersheln's score was 8-1. Doersheln won all his games except that with Hamelink. Hamelink won all his games except that with Dick Payne, which he drew. Had Hinderie defeated Hamelink last night, Doersheln would have won the title; a draw between Hinderie and Hamelink would have left Hamelink and Doersheln tied and would have necessitated a play-off.

Altogether ten players were entered in the club championships. The standings of other players are as follows: Dick Payne 6½-3½; Bruce May 5-4; Dave Batchelor 4-5; Tim Meeus 3-6; Willi Hinderie 2½-4½; John Ward 2½-5½; Frank Gardiner 2-7; R. Sloot 1-7. Two games, Hinderie vs. Ward and Hinderie vs. Sloot, remain to be played.

Tweedsmuir Planned to Ask Nuns to Make New Regt. Color

The mystery of the disappearance of the regimental color of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is still unsolved.

The identity of the self-admitted thief remains unknown.

Nothing further has been heard from him since his last communication received a few days prior to the regiment's official inspection some weeks ago.

The second "object of his affection" remains locked in its glass case in the sergeants' mess, jealously guarded by the members.

This is the near-sacred battle-flag of the regiment, combat-scarred and bullet - pierced, made by the loving hands of nuns in a convent in Campobasso, Italy.

Standing sentinel over it in the same case is the regiment's Queen's color, placed there immediately following the presentation of the regimental color from the officers' mess some months ago.

A proud but near heart-broken consulting officer has not given up hope that the color will be returned.

Lieut.-Col. Angus B. Duffy, DSO, removed the regimental badge from his cap on learning of the disappearance of the color.

He said he would not replace it until the color was returned. He has kept his word.

The stolen color was shortly to have been retired to its final resting place of honor high above the chancel of a church. Another color bearing the same battle honors that adorn the original is in the making.

The battle honors include those won in World War Two by the first battalion of the regiment and those of World War One awarded the regiment by virtue of service of members of the 19th Regiment and the Hastings Rifles.

TWEEDSMUIR'S PLAN

Word of the theft of the color reached a former commanding officer, Lord Tweedsmuir, of Scotland, who has visited the regiment here on more than one occasion, with Lady Tweedsmuir.

The Scottish peer learned of the incident through the pages of "The Plowboy," the regimental publication.

He immediately wired Col. Duffy to the effect he would take steps to have the nuns of Campobasso make another color.

Mrs. Drew, wife of the Hon. George Drew, Canadian high commissioner in London, is going to Italy." Lord Tweedsmuir said. "I will have her make the necessary arrangements with the Campobasso nuns."

Col. Duffy replied immediately asking Lord Tweedsmuir to take no action in the matter since another color was being furnished by the Canadian government.

Many of the veterans of the first battalion of the regiment who served with it overseas feel the loss of the color keenly.

They, like Col. Duffy, still cherish the hope that whoever is guilty of the blot on the regiment's honor will reconsider his or their action and return the symbol of a gallant regiment's pride and achievements.

"It is not only a color," said Col. Duffy. "It is a memorial to those who fought gallantly for it and civilization, and to the memory of the White Battalion who never came back."

Mrs. Albert Bowerman, Bedford Rd., is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Nelson, 248 North Front, and daughter, Susan, are visiting at the latter's home, 356 Herchimer Avenue, for an extended period.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Muncer, 198 West Bridge St., are taking a two weeks' motor trip through the Midway and the Thousand Islands in their new cabin cruiser, "Loralin-M".

Among those attending the nurses' reunion at Bon Mecours Hospital, Lindsay, Ontario, were Miss Gladys Lehigh, Reg. N. of Picton, Mrs. E. Scriven, Reg. N. and Mrs. S. Laithangue, of Belleville.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their first meeting in June in the Moose Hall, under Regent Bernice Prindle presiding, and had thank-you cards from Bill Seymour's Army Pattie for gifts and cards received.

A 50-cent card and gift were sent to Mike Hunter Sr., who is quite ill in bed.

The co-workers who were picked for the gifts were:

Officers, Belle Shandrow, Gladys Lehigh; members, Ruby Stapley, Vivian Kellar, chairman, Dorothy Foster, Jean Lisk, Shelly Watters, Isabella Philpott, Nellie Burke.

Decoration night is to be held in Moose hall on 8.30 next meeting night. Co-workers are asked wear attractive gowns that night.

The flower, donated by E. Rollins was won by Alice Livingston.

After the meeting refreshments were served by the officers.

Surprise Party Marks 19th Anniversary

On the evening of June 19, Gordon and Donald Fudge, with the aid of their grandmother, Mrs. Stubbings, held a surprise party for their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fudge, in honor of their 19th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fudge were the recipients of several fine gifts, as well as lovely cards bedding their wishes and congratulations.

The evening was spent in a social get-together, after which refreshments including a lovely anniversary cake, were served.

Piano, Voice Students Give Fine Recital at Albert College

By GLADYS WARD

Mr. Marcus Scott, R.M.T., presented pupils of piano and voice in a recital held in Memorial chapel, Albert College on Monday evening (Civic Holiday), Despite the inclement weather the pupils assembled took their places at the grand piano and played the music suited to their ability and talent. This was the night when the hours of illness, suffering and distress of winter cancelled in their appearance to the public before an appreciative audience of parents and friends.

Baskets of peonies and iris decorated the platform and made an attractive background for the girls in their pretty dresses and the boys looking their polished best.

The Rev. Dr. A. E. MacKenzie greeted the guests, saying that he was pleased the facilities of the school were available to Mr. Scott and the Albert College Conservatory of Music. As the Principal remarked there was a certain amount of trepidation at the recital with the parents present; but he knew the young people would have a sympathetic audience.

Some promising young talents were heard in the vocal numbers. Barry Fraser; a boy soprano, sang with clarity and fine tonal quality; and Ditty Mendelssohn, accompanist for The Wings of A Dove', by Mendelssohn, was most enjoyable. Singing out these songs did not detract from the merits of the other vocalists, but their renditions were perhaps the most pleasing.

Two very versatiles in the recent competition in Stirling, Corinne Fewings and Barry Fraser were on the program.

The next recital will be held on Thursday evening, June 22. The program as it was presented follows:

Piano trio—March of the Lead Soldiers (Grein), Douglas Miller, Kerry Hill and John MacKillean; piano solos—Lavender's Blue (old English folk song), Barry Hill; Mazurka Slav (Tschaikowsky), Bill Simpson; (a) solo—Summer Suns Are Glowing (Smith) and Canada the Beautiful (Ward), Barry Fraser.

Piano solos—Mary had a Little Lamb (Orb), Anne Aitcheson; Early One Midsummer (Hastedt), Dorothy Maddocks; Yellow Butterfly (MacLachlan), Betty Fraser; piano duet — Tripping Lightly (Kirby), Linda and Bill Simpson; piano solo—Sonatina in G (Beethoven), Carolyn Daniel.

Vocal solos — Merry Roolm (West), Mary Lynne Mills; piano solos — Allegro (Bach), Sherrill Taylor; Minuet in G (Bach), Norma Cooper; piano duet — Rory Cheeks (Stevenson), Charlotte Kerr and Carolyn Davies; piano solo — Cat-

Mary Roy (Moss), John Millichamp; vocal solo — Lady That Cheats Here (Slade), Linda Simpson; piano duet — Hungarian Dance (Kullak), Douglas Miller, piano duet — Merry Minuet (Jones), Douglas Hay and Ray Maddocks; piano solo — Bourree (Mozart), Anita Crank; vocal solo — O Ye Wings of A Dove (Mendelssohn), Ditty Mendelssohn; piano solo — Allegro Vivo (Bolck), Mary Lynne Miles; vocal solo — The Bedbug (Bantock), Lillian Vincent; piano solos — Minuet in G Minor (Shaler), Rondo (Clementi), Roy Maddocks; piano solo — Waltz in A Flat (Beethoven), Corinne Fewings; piano duet — Parade of the Toy Soldiers (Hopson), Anne Crank and Mary Lynne Miles.

God Save the Queen was played by Roy Maddocks.

W.A. Holds Guest Day, Enjoys Scenes

ROSEBANK—June 8th was "Guest Day" for members of the W.A. many guests, including Dora Rylance, and Gladwood were present. Mem-Cook and friends met in the church basement which was decorated with mauve and white blaze.

Vice-president, Mrs. R. Wellington welcomed everyone.

Mrs. Dalbert Fleming was in charge of the devotional period, her theme was "The Light of the World". The Scripture was read by Mrs. Murray Mason. Mrs. Fleming closed with prayer.

The members reported making 65 calls and sending 95 cards to sick and shut-ins. Mrs. Kenneth Thompson and Mrs. Carman Bine, visiting volunteers reported making 19 calls. Mrs. Lorne Bailey is this month's visiting volunteer.

Mrs. Gordon Webb thanked everyone for kindnesses shown her while ill. The sick and visiting committee reported sending three cards and one plant to sick members.

Mrs. H. Seymour expressed good wishes to all as this was her last meeting before moving from this community.

Mrs. Murney Mason introduced the guest speaker, Miss Elsie Martin, of Stirling, who showed pictures of her trip to United Nations and New York. The pictures were pretty and interesting and were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Ellis Jones, Rylstone, played a medley of old favorite hymns on the piano. Mrs. Brunton Stanwood gave a reading, "The Bather the Deed".

Mr. Harry Seymour closed the meeting.

Lunch was served and a social time was enjoyed.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Of travel, Francis Bacon said: "Travel, in the younger sort, is a part of education; in the elder, part of experience. He that travelleth into a country before he has some entrance into the language, goeth to school, and not to travel."

In these days, lack of knowledge of a language does not stop people from going all over the world. They seem to feel the world is got by in various ways but with ample opportunity all over the face of the globe in greater and greater numbers, it would be impossible to communicate everywhere.

But the amazing thing is that lack of money is not much of a deterrent any more. Young people take off on a shoe-string and cover as much of the earth as they wish. The travel bug is biting more and more people so all ages; travel is becoming a family thing and everybody wants to see the world.

It seems that there has been a change in the literature put out about travelling. A few years ago, we were a bit startled by the "Travel now — Pay later" slogan. This has changed to "Travel now — Go later" and we believe that most folk would feel more comfortable with this one. Here are some of the sentences that go with this promise to every one's heart there's a secret place he would like to go. Keep dreaming . . . start going places with the X Travel Club. If you save a little each week, your money earns you travel bonuses besides regular interest.

We were startled a couple of weeks ago when having a visit with Dorothy Potts who is now stationed in Alexandria, Egypt, to hear her say quite seriously, "I took an oyster for a visit. Watch for bargain rates in air travel and you are there so quickly that the cost is very little."

Now, there are do-it-yourself instructions as well; as a matter of fact, the recipe for soup given in last Wednesday's column was part of such a saving plan of a family in California. On a small fixed income they have travelled many places many times to the amazement of their neighbors. While they are saving, the family never eats out. They do all their car and house repair work themselves. Money makes most of the clothes, curtains and even rugs; their transportation for home living is an economical way — haphazard people say — saving many trips, instead of one, runs away with a lot of money. While saving for a trip, the recreation of the family consists of visiting art galleries, museums and libraries which prepare them for the journey in mind. They say: "Good music is still available on the radio. . . . Smaller communities have their own special brand of soul-less entertainment."

It is for all to what one wants most. The person who is truly not interested in seeing far places cannot understand why anyone would want to go traipsing off; the traveller feels sorry for the stay-at-home.

Here are some stanzas from a poem by James Larkin Pearson.

I've never been to London,
I've never been to Rome;
But on my Fifty Acres
I travel here at home.

A little land of Egypt
My meadow plot shall be,
With pyramids of hay stacks
Along its sheltered lee.

Here on my Fifty Acres
I rule at home supreme,
And have my own Bermuda,
My Sicily, my Spain.

Right at home, if you are travelling pole vault be, With gymnasts of the CNR bridge on North Front Street, glance to the right and you will see the steep bank of the railway cut covered with wild roses. They are quite beautiful.

VON Nets $1,343.94 at Spring Tea

On June 19 the regular meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses Board of Belleville was held at the Y.M.C.A. Mrs. J. Lennox presided and Mrs. R. H. Brain, served as acting secretary. The treasurer, Mr. A. Gilpin read the financial statement which included a report of the "Spring Tea" in May netted $1,343.94. A letter from the City Manager revealed that the 1961 municipal grant to the local V.O.N. branch would be $3,000, a reduction of $600 from previous years.

Miss Connor, the nurse in charge of the Belleville branch reported that in May 311 home visits were made and that 12 patients received care. There was a great increase in medical and surgical patients in May.

The V.O.N. assisted at Child Health Conferences, immunization clinics at two schools and at clinics preparatory to school enrolment.

The V.O.N. is a member of the Belleville United Appeal.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ross English are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Rose Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross English, of Shannonville, Ontario. (Photo by Ted Carter, Belleville.)

ENGLISH — PHILLIPS

Baskets of pink and white chrysanthemums and pink snapdragons adorned the chancel rail in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 27th, at 3.00 p.m. for a lovely wedding when Margaret Rose Phillips, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, became the bride of Donald Ross English, of Shannonville, R.R. No. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross English. The Reverend Gordon R. Woodcock, pastor of the church, officiated. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The church organist, Mr. William Conroy, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Terence Hinchey, who sang, "The Wedding Prayer," before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely bridal gown of chantilly lace over satin in floor-length, with moulded bodice having long sheer, bell-like sleeves ending in "V" points over the wrists. Her waist-length veil of illusion tulle was caught to a seed pearl headdress, and she carried a white Bible crested with red roses and white satin streamers finished with rose-buds.

She was attended by Miss Doris Phillips, as matron of honor, wearing a street-length gown of white lace over green taffeta, and by Miss Beverly Wannamaker, and Miss Connie Wright, as bridesmaids. Both were gowned in street-length white lace over taffeta, with matching headdresses and carrying white 'mums tied with pink tulle.

The little flower girl, Miss Beverly Phillips, was frocked in white lace over white nylon, with floral headdress, and carrying a basket of white 'mums with pink tulle.

The ring-bearer, Master Billy Phillips was spic and span in his charcoal black suit and white boutonniere, as he carried the white satin cushion with the rings.

Mr. Cyril English, of Deseronto, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Russell Phillips, of Belleville, and Barry Woodcock, of Napanee, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Moose Hall, Belleville, where the bridal table was appointed with the traditional wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bridal bouquets added a charming nuptial accent.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a floral brocade in shades of cinnamon with corsage of deep rose-toned roses.

The bridegroom's mother, wore light-blue figured crepe with navy blue duster and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip around Lake Ontario, stopping at Niagara Falls, the bride chose a beige Irish linen, with white accessories, and pink rose corsage.

Guests were present from Belleville; Campbellford; Napanee; Kingston; Peterborough and Toronto.

The bride, prior to marriage, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Douglas Phillips, and at a community shower held at Melrose Mall.

Mr. and Mrs. English will reside at R. R. No. 2 Shannonville, Ontario.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Pighead Dominates

DEAR DORIS:—I am married to a man who has very pronounced ideas of his own about nearly everything. He belongs to a religious sect which I now consider fanatical, although it seemed all right at first.

DORIS CLARK

When we were married we each agreed to go to our own church but he soon stopped that. He later (a year later) told me that I could choose between my church and being his wife. I gave up church.

I belonged to a bridge club of girls which met every two weeks. He hated finding himself home alone so I gave that up. He was always unhappy when my mother came for dinner, so now I go to see her.

I guess I have let myself be walked on. It has taken ten years—and a frank talk with a good friend—to make me see what has happened. Do you think there is any way of changing things without breaking up our marriage? He is just as pigheaded as ever.—KAY.

DEAR KAY:—Marriage does not mean the complete subjugation of one partner to the wishes and whims of the other. Marriage is a partnership.

All of us are individuals before God; women just as much as men. You need your church and you need your friends. Seeing things in their true light is at least a start in the right direction. You have spoiled him by giving in. Practise standing up to him in small things and be firm. Have the girls in for bridge—then go out the next time, and come home early enough that he can't complain. When he questions you, tell him you are a person, too, and need your own fun.

To do this your personality will undergo something of a revolution in the right direction. After his first shock, he will begin to respect you. It's either that or being stifled for the rest of your life.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—For many years my mother has lived with a man who is not my father but who also took me and my sister in. Now he tells me he is in love with me.

I am engaged to marry but this man objects to the marriage and says he will break up the home if I leave. This would be terrible, as it means my mother, who is 47, would have no means of support. My sister is still at school.

My mother says go ahead. She will not agree to come and live with us. I don't know what to do for the best. The man has an awful temper.—WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED:—Hope and set up housekeeping as far from that malevolent, selfish individual as possible.

To judge from your long letter (only a fraction of which is reproduced here) you have some spirit and can stand up to him.

You can help your mother better when you are independent of that whole setup. If necessary, she can get work again. It's my opinion that he will turn back to her if you are gone as he is only using this threat to keep a hold on you.

You and that fine young man have your own lives to live. Don't waste any more time getting started.

Friends Honor Mother-to-Be With Shower

WELLINGTON — The home of Mrs. Helen Gassins, East Main Street, was the happy meeting place on Saturday evening when a number of old school chums friends and neighbors gathered there to honor Mrs. Harvey Jenkins, (Marilyn Callow) with a stork shower.

Two former school mates, Mrs. D. Reynolds (Beatrice Gassins) and Mrs. Ostrander (Shirley Cunningham) were the sponsors of this lovely event.

The evening passed pleasantly with four contests played, with prizes going to the winners; Mrs. Jean Jackson; Miss Joyce Dick; Mrs. Joan Thoupson and Mrs. H. Gassins.

After the contests Mrs. Jenkins was seated at a table under a huge stork which had pretty colored streamers fastened to the table, which was laden with many lovely parcels.

Mrs. Ostrander read a short but appropriate address, after which, Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Cunningham presented the gifts to Marilyn, which she opened and passed around the room for all to see.

Marilyn voiced her sincere thanks to her friends for their kindness to her.

A lovely social hour was had in reminiscing over old times.

A delicious lunch was served by hostesses assisted by Miss Jeanette McDonald, Mrs. Joan Thompson and Mrs. William Baverstock. The highlight of the lunch was the lovely cake in the centre of the table, shaped like a baby's bootee with the lettering resembling crochet work.

Out of town school friends present were: Mrs. Shirley (Reed) Galvin, Toronto; Miss Carley Cleave, Kingston; Miss Joyce Dick, Toronto; Miss Colleen Yandt, Toronto; Mrs. Neida (Wasmund) Holland, Frankford; Mrs. Phylis (Moulding) Palmer, Collingwood and Mrs. Arnold (Joan Moore) Thompson Bloomfield.

Mrs. Jim Callow and Mrs. William Callow, mother and grandmother of Mrs. Jenkins were honored guests.

HUGE PIECES

Among exhibits in the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago are colossal statues, such as a 40-ton human-headed winged bull from an Assyrian palace.

+ DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES +

MARMORA (W.I.)

MARMORA — The June meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Manchester with Miss A. M. Richards as hostess and Mrs. F. Sweet and Mrs. Wm. Tinsell as co-hostesses. There were 12 present. Mrs. R. E. Neal, vice-president, chaired the meeting.

The roll call "Facts about Canada" brought varied and interesting data. Thank you notes were read.

Mrs. Don Bailey, secretary, gave the report of the North Hastings District Annual held at Bancroft when seven of Marmora branch attended.

Correspondence was read and dealt with. The secretary reported she had applied for the above making entries with Institute procedure as second choice.

As no meetings are held in July and August, the executive will meet in August to make further arrangements for a tea and bake sale and for the booth at Marmora Fair.

The motto, "The strength of a nation lies in the home of its people," was given by Mrs. W. Tinsell who also gave a paper on "citizenship".

Mr. F. Sweet conducted a contest on trees which proved amusing, and was won by Miss Grace Warren.

Mrs. E. Manchester displayed several items of hand craft which she had learned to do in Arizona where she spent the winter.

The hostesses served lunch.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Euchre

3rd TYENDINAGA — The Neighbors' Aid held their strawberry party recently at the Aid Hall with ten tables in play. Mrs. Archie Greatrix, Mrs. William Lazarink were hostesses for the evening.

Prizes were won by the following: ladies 1st—Mrs. Harry Murphy; 2nd — Mrs. O. Stratton; consolation — Mrs. E. Vetter; Men's 1st — C. Yorke; 2nd —O. Stratton; consolation Leigh Greatrix and lone hand, Mrs. J. Thomson.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

SUNBEAM M.B.

FRANKFORD — The Sunbeam Mission Band of Frankford United Church held its last meeting for the season on June 13th in Rose Lowery hall.

The meeting opened with the Mission Band Purpose. Miss Leisha Judd read the Scripture reading. The offering was received by treasurer, Miss Linda Defoe. Miss Ann Beach read the story, "God, the Creator." Miss Leisha Judd led in prayer.

Games were enjoyed by the children, led by Miss Debbie Hamilton.

Refreshments were enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. H. Gilmour and Mrs. P. Chase distributed treats to the children.

The Mission Band children formed a circle and World Friends were distributed to each one. There were 42 in attendance and all report a good time.

SOUTHERN LAKE...

Largest inland lake in South America, Lake Titicaca in Bolivia covers 3,500 square miles.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Wilma N. — After 30 years of marriage I'd like some happiness.

Douglas N. — With a pout, she'd be worse off than ever.

* * *

Wilma N. — Doug and I don't love each other. If we did we wouldn't fight so much. We're middle-aged now and have been married 30 years. I'm convinced that the only way I'll ever get any peace out of the remainder of my life is to leave him. But I can't get up the courage.

He seems to enjoy riling me. If I ask for quiet so I can take a nap, that's when he'll hammer. If we start out for a walk, all I have to say is let's head uptown, and he'll turn downtown. I either go downtown or walk alone.

The trouble is I don't hate him. In a real pinch, he can be very nice.

* * *

Douglas N. — I agree with Wilma that when we're not at war with each other, it's just an armed truce until the next battle. It's not sweetness and light for either of us. If that's what she wants, she'd better look for it somewhere else than from me.

I'm not satisfied either, but I'll make the best of it. I don't ask for much from her. But I do insist on a few things — family and friends, a well-kept home and such.

I guess I'm used to her gripes by now. I let her yap, and go about my business. If she walks out, whom will she have to yell at?

* * *

The Council — Believe it or not, this too — say two investigators from the Menninger Foundation — is love!

The N.'s have settled into a fairly common type of middle-age marriage where each is backstop for the other's curves. They actually need each other desperately for, by now, they're quite a team. Nobody else, Wilma, will know how to give you the good battle that keeps you limber and always "in training." That ol' villain, habit, has you in its spell to the point where you can't stand having Douglas around, now can you stand not having him around.

At bottom, say the psychologists, lies middle-age discontent and restlessness. There's a now-or-never feeling that says to Wilma, "Look, there must be more to life than this. Better find out while the finding is good." She's frustrated and angry. So what happens? Instead of directing her anger against her own do-nothing-ness she lashes out at the handiest butt, her husband. And he, though he'd deny it, gives vent to his own disappointment through snapping at, picking on and "diminishing" Wilma.

Separating would be tragic in this case. Why? Because I think N.'s are really more bitter toward life than toward each other. But not knowing how to (or being too timid to) spar with the "thrusts" — financial, occupational, social, emotional — that come their way, they take jabs and pot-shots at each other, as outlets.

Either by dint of their own resolve, or the aid of a marriage counsellor (first hies view to be Wilma's), these two should be able to dredge up some of that submerged feeling and compassion they once had. The middle years bring their own panic and fear. That's what Wilma and Douglas are really yelling at — not each other.

Sunday School Picnic

BRIDGE ST. UNITED

Bridge Street United Church annual family picnic was held at Sulphide Beach, Consecon Lake, on Saturday afternoon. Many members and friends availed themselves of the opportunity to attend the picnic in truly beautiful surroundings, on a perfect June day.

Swimming under the supervision of Misses Lynn Brouwers and Jane Latimer, was the first item on the list, and was much enjoyed. Mr. McQuaid and his men got the fine display of cakes in the Trade Shop, and during the supper hour Chocolate Milk and ice cream, as well as special favors, were distributed to the boys and girls.

At the conclusion of the afternoon's activities, an inspirational "Camp Fire Sunset Service" was held by Mr. Shaver for the senior young people.

The winners of the afternoon races were as follows:

St. Andrew's U.C. Circle 1 Visits City

MARMORA — Circle 1 of St. Andrew's United Church W.A. motored to Belleville for their June meeting at the home of Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

Mrs. James Walker opened the meeting and gave two readings, one on "Friendship and one on "Fathers Day".

Mrs. G. Madgett and Mrs. Stanley Kerr took charge of the devotionals. The Scripture was read responsively. Mrs. Madgett gave a reading on "Fathers Day", which was followed by prayer by Mrs S. Kerr.

As Mrs. Prentice expects to remain permanently in Belleville, she was presented with a parting gift by Mrs. Thomas Betteridge.

Mrs. Walker closed the meeting after which Mrs. E. A. Manchester gave a most interesting talk with slides on her winter in Arizona.

The conveners assisted Mrs. Prentice with lunch at which Mrs. J. Walker held the lucky cup and saucer.

RARE OLD HOUSE

MONTREAL (CP) — Another link with Montreal's historic past has fallen under the wrecker's hammers. Demolition of a old building on east - east St. Gabriel Street which dates back to 1687 — one of the few 17th century structures left in the city —will be completed today.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Wagner Shaw

SHORT PATIENCE WITH SHORTS!

Last year I wrote about the department that should govern the wearing of shorts and slacks by members of the fair sex. The repercussions came thick and fast. Letters descending on me for my opinions came from the gentlemen; letter condemning me poured in from the ladies. Several requests have come in recently asking me to repeat this column — that is, if my sentiments are the same. They are! Ever more so!

What brought it to my mind is that just the other day I again saw my little friend, Mrs. Inexperienced, strutting down one of our main streets clad in too-short shorts, and, to make matters worse, a halter on top. To add to the unpleasant picture, she had her head tied up in a scarf, and underneath were obvious hair curlers.

What in the world in wrong with us ladies? We dress up in clothes, hairdo and over-all effect — most attractively when we go to a party, and yet too many of us think nothing of going to market, or shopping generally, not only looking like freaks but also showing horrible taste!

There is a time and place for everything. The main street of our town or city is definitely not the place to wear slacks and particularly shorts.

This applies not only to young adults, the middle-aged and the portly, but also to teen-agers. Bearing me out on this was a special notice from the police of my city, last summer. They asked that the parents of these young people refused to allow them to appear on the streets in shorts.

It was a proven fact that criminal attacks have taken definite upward swing since these young people had been appearing in public with practically nothing on. We have already had the warning again this year. What about it, parents? If your teen-agers haven't matured enough to know what is right and what isn't, shouldn't you put your foot down and do something about it now? Don't wait until something you will never forgive yourself for happens to your child — not somebody else's.

At the same time, you oldsters should set the example. Slacks and shorts are wonderful for working around the house, puttering in the garden and for general relaxing. Of course they are perfect for the beach, or at any summer resort. But not on the main streets — or on any street, for that matter — of our cities and towns.

How does all this come under the heading of "manners"? The basic rule behind all manners is consideration for others. How we dress in public is how showing consideration for others isn't it? What do you thing.

Strawberries—Still They Come

By Mary Moore

Strawberries are appearing every day on our table, often for breakfast. So far this week we have had two Strawberry Shortcakes. Most of you know how to make strawberry shortcake, but the one I am giving today suggests two top, piping variations you may use if you feel whipped cream coats too much. I know I do.

FRESH STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE:

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 cup lard, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-4 cup milk, 1 quart strawberries, washed and hulled, sugar, whipped cream, sour cream or cream cheese (see below).

1-dmi-nt-.it

Sift together dry ingredients. Cut in lard and butter with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture resembles corn meal. Make a well in centre of dry ingredients Pour in milk, using a knife to stir the mixture gently and quickly, to form a soft sticky dough Spread half of dough, in bottom of oiled 8" layer pan; brush with melted butter and spread rest of dough on top evenly. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes, until delicately browned on top. To serve, carefully split layers, place half bottom layer, and sugared, between biscuit layers. Spread remaining berries, whole and sugared, on top. Wreathe with slighily sweetened whipped cream or sour cream to which you have added 1-4 cup sugar or 2 packages (3-oz. each) cream cheese whipped with 2 tablespoons sugar.

STRAWBERRY MOULD:

1 package strawberry-flavored jelly powder, 1 cup hot water, 1 cup cold water, 2 cups halved fresh strawberries, 1-3 cup sugar, 6 marshmallows, finely cut, 1 cup cream, whipped.

Dissolve strawberry-flavored jelly powder in hot water. Add cold water. Chill until slightly thickened. Combine strawberries and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Place slightly thickened gelatin in bowl of ice and water and whip with egg beater until fluffy and thick. Fold in strawberries, marshmallows, and whipped cream. Spoon into loaf pan or a round mould. Chill until firm. Unmould. Serve in slices. To garnish: Whip 1-2 cup cream. Spoon over top of loaf or mould, making two rows of small puffs. Top each puff with a strawberry slice.

DIP FOR STRAWBERRIES:

Cream 1 package (8-oz.) cream cheese. Blend in 4 tablespoons of cream. Add 2 tablespoons salad dressing, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and few grains of salt. Whip until light and fluffy. Makes about 1 1-4 cups into which whole strawberries with stems may be dipped for dessert or cocktail party.

THAWING POULTRY

For thawing out frozen poultry the best place is the refrigerator, allowing five hours per pound before preparing for the oven.

Will Cut Payments Balance Deficit by Lower Exchange Rate on Canadian Dollar

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming announced Tuesday night the government's intention to lower Canada's balance of payments deficit through a lower exchange rate on the Canadian dollar.

He also announced in his budget speech a wide-ranging plan to promote Canadian investments at home by government and institutional moves to lower interest rates, now so high they are attracting foreign capital and boosting the exchange rate.

Mr. Fleming said both goals have been set by the government without any attempt to place restrictive controls on imports of capital, goods and services.

He said Canada's adverse balance of payments—the deficit on international transactions in goods and services which now exceeds $1,000,000,000* a year—will have to be corrected partly by increased exports and partly by reducing imports.

The aim was to put Canadian producers in a position where they "will soon be selling, at home and abroad, many hundreds of millions of dollars worth of additional Canadian goods, and services."

Mr. Fleming said the Canadian Exchange Fund will be prepared, "as and when necessary," to add substantial amounts to its holdings of U.S. dollars through purchases in the exchange market.

WILL USE FUND

"Once an exchange rate more closely in line with Canada's economic position is achieved, the government will use the resources of the fund to ensure that the rate is kept within a range appropriate to Canada's changing economic situation.

Mr. Fleming noted that no one can say where the exchange rate will level.

"But the rate certainly will be lower than it has been of late, and it may well be appropriate for it to move to a significant extent. It will be government policy to facilitate such a movement."

Dealing with interest rates, Mr. Fleming said that when Canada was in need of large supplies of foreign capital it was natural that the interest rates should be higher here than those in the capital markets from which this country was attracting funds.

"But today the situation is far different. We have no reason, in present circumstances, to be offering high interest rates in order to attract capital from abroad. On the contrary, the capital that is thus attracted simply pushes up our exchange rate and pushes up our trade deficit."

He rejected suggestions to correct the situation by "irresponsible increases" in the money supply — that would be folly. Chosen instead was "a judicious and well co-ordinated combination of fiscal, monetary and general economic measures, the elements of which vary in accordance with the needs of the times."

WARN LOWER

the long-range benefits to Canada could be tremendous.

PREFERS PAR DOLLAR

John McDerby, general manager of the Canadian Exporters' Association, Montreal, said the association would like to have seen the dollar stabilized at par with the American dollar. "Fluctuations," he added, "have an adverse effect on exports."

Dr. John Young, head of the University of British Columbia economics department, said the dollar move will probably mean more jobs now but may be a sacrifice for a short-term advantage and is likely to be regretted in the future. He explained:

"We are the only major trading country in the world with a flexible exchange rate and this has been accepted by our trading partners largely because we have allowed our rate to be determined by market forces. If we now intervene in the market to improve our competitive position, other countries will argue that we are following practices which the International Monetary Fund was set up to prevent. . .

"Pressure may be brought on us to fix an exchange rate and it may then be clear we have sacrificed a very valuable element of flexibility for a short-term objective which could have been achieved by alternative means, such as tax reductions, expenditure expansion or greater monetary ease."

Professor Clarence Barber of the University of Manitoba said, however, that "if the exchange rate is brought low enough it can solve the worst of our unemployment problem by diverting spending from imports and encouraging exports." He said the change in federal monetary policy is "a logical action."

HAIL DOLLAR MOVE

Most other early reaction also welcomed the new dollar policy.

Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba was "enthusiastic" about it and about federal financing proposals aimed at giving support to provincial and municipal bond markets.

S. E. Ransom, president of the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture, welcomed prospects of a lower-valued Canadian dollar, though regretting that the budget "took no special recognition of agriculture as an industry."

V. C. Wansbrough, managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, Toronto, said the dollar proposals "are certainly good news to us."

J. W. Kerr, president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association, thought the effect would be helpful in discouraging imports and could encourage development of export markets by the electrical industry.

Provinces and municipalities which have borrowed in the United States will find the cost of payments higher.

G. A. Lascelles, finance commissioner of Metropolitan Toronto, said each drop of one cent in the value of the Canadian dollar would add $500,000 a year to Toronto's costs on its American indebtedness.

Premier Roblin of Manitoba said $25,000,000 worth of Manitoba debentures sold in the United States are safeguarded by investment of sinking fund monies in Canadian issues which are also payable in U.S. funds.

A few voices expressed apprehension about the possibility that inflation may arise from the budget's deficit financing and its presumed increase of the money supply.

Dr. Yohe termed the budget "inflationary" but with competing factors "that will tend to soften the impact of increases in the cost of living."

F. D. Mathers, president of Royal City Yachts Ltd., New Westminster, B.C., and recently elected president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, also expressed some concern on this point.

Speaking for the association he said the budget has much to commend it and "in the main, we are rather pleased with it," and added:

"Mr. Fleming indicated last week that he would be bringing down an expansionist budget and he has delivered precisely that.

"Of course, in the months ahead, it may well be that the country will have to concern itself once again with combatting the inflationary pressures that always attendant on an expanding economy. Accordingly the budget's ultimate success will rest on the degree to which it encourages a significant rise in productivity."

A number of labor spokesmen were critical.

William Dodge, executive vice-president, Canadian Labor Congress, said the budget proposals in a whole are unlikely in 1961." This was no better than in 1958—"a year of recession."

"Neither is it the kind of economic growth that will come to grips with our chronic unemployment."

MOSTLY NITROGEN

Nitrogen makes up 80 per cent of the air. Ships an estimated 22,000 tons of it floating over every square mile.

Expense-Account Living To Be Thoroughly Checked

OTTAWA (CP)—The tax collector is going to crack down on high, wide and handsome expense-account living.

Finance Minister Fleming said in his budget speech Tuesday night he hoped more stringent legislation would not be necessary, but tax inspectors are being instructed to subject expense accounts to "more intensive scrutiny."

"The government has become increasingly concerned over the evidence of abuse by some taxpayers of the provisions for the deduction of amounts expended for the purpose of gaining income from a business."

He said the trouble was to determine just how much a firm should spend in its normal business to entertain customers and send its executives on business trips.

"Since ours is a free enterprise economy, our income tax law assumes that the business man is the best judge of the extent to which he should incur expenses of this nature, and naturally the government has been reluctant to recommend and Parliament to impose, rules which would restrict him unduly.

"However, the government has no intention of allowing so-called expense - account living to thrive and I am consequently serving notice that in future, the allowance of expenses of this nature will be subject to more intensive scrutiny."

Provinces Get Some Revenues For Five Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming announced Tuesday night that the federal government is willing to give the provinces half of its tax revenues on steam, gas and electric power for the next five years.

It was the only modification of previously announced federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements. The government has been making the payment to the provinces on a year-to-year basis.

To carry out the proposal made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker at February's Dominion-provincial fiscal conference, Mr. Fleming said he would cut federal income and corporation taxes by $300,000,000 next Jan. 1. This would leave room for the provinces to move into these fields.

Mr. Fleming said the provinces asked for a long - term tax-sharing agreement, but the federal government is prepared to go along. He added that the provinces now would be in a position to adopt policies that would benefit the industry and consumers.

Aim to Open Money Market To Provinces, Municipalities

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming announced Tuesday night new government moves aimed at opening up the Canadian capital market for long - term borrowings by provinces, municipalities and private business.

In his budget speech, he disclosed three specific measures dealing with federal debt management—each designed to help the smooth functioning of the market.

In effect, the measures mean the government is moving out of the so-called "long end" of the market on which the provinces, municipalities and businesses depend for much of their capital needs.

The new policy announcements:

1. New government capital issues will be confined to short-term borrowings for at least the next several months.

2. Some $245,000,000 worth of mid-term and long-term securities held by the unemployment insurance fund will be taken over at book values by the treasury.

3. A new purchase fund—with $10,000,000 in it at the start—is to be set up to buy government mid-term and long - term securities from the market, a move aimed at orderly debt management.

WILL ALIGN RATES

Mr. Fleming said the new measures represent a determined government effort to exert strong pressure on the level of interest rates and the exchange rate to bring them more in line with Canadian requirements and with conditions prevailing in the world.

By keeping government issues to the short end of the market, congestion will be avoided at the long end, the minister said.

By taking over the mid-term and long-term securities held by the unemployment insurance fund, the government would remove what some quarters regard as a threat to market stability.

The new purchase fund is aimed at providing a regular flow of money for steady replacement of government bond debt, which stands at about $18,000,000,000. Such a fund would have a steadying effect on the market and should, over a period of time, contribute to a reduction of interest costs.

Fleming Didn't Drink Water During Speech

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming delivered his marathon budget speech Tuesday night without taking a drink of water.

He spoke for two hours and 38 minutes and at no time was there a glass of water on his desk. His voice was strong throughout and he departed from his text on only a few occasions to reply to jibes from opposition members.

Law Governing Corporations To Be Revised

OTTAWA (CP)—Tax law governing personal corporations will be revised, Finance Minister Fleming announced in his budget speech Tuesday night.

A personal corporation is one which is used by an individual and his relatives to hold their investments jointly, paying out the profits from them each year as though they were dividends.

Mr. Fleming said the legislation is complicated and needs to be overhauled.

At present, if the personal corporation has a loss, the loss cannot be offset against a profit in the following years. The new law will permit the losses to be carried forward for taxation purposes.

The new law will also provide that if a large sum comes into the corporation one year, perhaps from the sale of a building or other asset, the effect can be spread for taxation purposes over a number of years.

Mr. Fleming said other changes will prevent a taxpayer from selling an a personal corporation just to spread the income over several members of his family in hope of avoiding high taxes.

Canada Willing To Make Bargain On Universities

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is willing to strike a bargain with the United States to make charitable donations across the border tax-free by treaty, Finance Minister Fleming said in his budget speech Tuesday night.

He said Canadian universities have been worried about a current review of American tax law which might result in the U.S. taxing contributions to Canadian institutions by their graduates now living in the U.S.

Canada has never provided tax relief for Canadian contributions going to American universities. Gifts to charitable organizations in Canada are deductible from taxable income.

Mr. Fleming said Canada has advised the U.S. it is willing to negotiate the income tax convention between the two countries so that the border will just about disappear for gifts to universities and charitable foundations.

Law Clarified For Small Number of Firms

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal tax law is being clarified for a small number of firms which do not pay taxes on their new truly Canadian firms or not.

The law will state that a company incorporated in Canada and carrying on business in this country will be deemed to be a resident corporation. Finance Minister Fleming said in his budget speech Tuesday night. Some firms incorporated and controlled in Canada have their head offices abroad and hold all directors' meetings abroad. There has been doubt as to whether they should be regarded as Canadian companies or non-resident firms, for which there is an extra 15-per-cent tax on their dividends.

The new law is designed to make it clear that they will be treated as resident Canadian companies.

Liberal Chief Says Canadians Further in Debt

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition leader Pearson said Tuesday night the federal budget is a "reversal of the government's failure after four years."

He said in a statement: "We were right, and the whipped-up excitement, a great deficit, policy of expansion, we got expansion all right — in wind, words and debt."

The Liberal chief said Mr. Fleming has given Canadians a tax reduction of $4 a head while at the same time putting them $99 further in debt.

"It makes one wonder what all the shouting was about," he said, noting that the forecast is a peacetime record $650,000,000.

Mr. Fleming "anticipates" a three-per-cent increase in the gross national product in 1961." This was no better than in 1958—"a year of recession."

"Neither is it the kind of economic growth that will come to grips with our chronic unemployment."

Budget Eliminates 7½ Per Cent Excise Tax On Cars

Speculation of Early Federal Election Receives Setback With Presentation of Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Speculation on an early federal general election received a setback in Finance Minister Fleming's budget Tuesday night.

In immediate attraction for the voter rests on repeal of the 7½-per-cent excise tax on automobiles and the promise of reduction when the value of the Canadian dollar in the United States money market.

Politically, however, Conservative campaigners agreed that the main vote-getting value of the new budget will require some time to take effect.

Since the Canadian dollar was by free exchange control after the Second World War and rose to a premium, Canadians generally have been proud of the strength of their money.

Most voters don't recognize that a dollar below par benefits wheat farmers, the big pulp and paper industry and the non-material producers in mining and similar industries.

Thus, say Conservative strategists, it will take time for voters generally to feel the full impact of a reduction in the dollar's value.

Informed government sources said the budget should really be regarded as the third stage of a long-term buildup, started 15 months ago by the Conservative party policy title effect and set the stage for the next general election.

In the so-called baby budget last December, Fleming moved to encourage more Canadians to invest their money in Canada by the discouraging the big borrowers, such as municipalities, from going to the U.S. to obtain funds.

Most government projects announced in last November's throne speech at the opening of the current parliamentary session and contained in the baby budget were of a long-range nature.

Tuesday night's budget proposals completed the third instalment of these measures, qualified sources said.

Election fever has been running high since the Conservatives won three of four byelections May 29. Prime Minister Diefenbaker has been careful in his public speeches and Conservative remarks to give no great support to this fever—but not to quash it, either.

The situation, as summed up by one party strategist, is "a general election this year if necessary, but not necessarily a general election this year."

Asked why the new budget wasn't presented last March, when federal budgets are normally brought down, Mr. Fleming told reporters Tuesday night that he was still engaged then in getting the baby budget through Parliament, and the two one came just six months later.

There are grounds for believing that Mr. Fleming and the government may be thinking of another election, perhaps even now. Mr. Diefenbaker is known to favor the idea of opening parliamentary sessions in the fall autumn, which would make an election budget a possibility for December.

Mr. Fleming told reporters he has "maximized the stimulatory impulses in the economy" as the government's fourth budget, with a "minimal effect" on the cost of living.

If the results are as he anticipates, Conservative campaigners are getting a strong boost in 1962 are confident Mr. Fleming will be able to produce more encouraging results in time for catching — budget proposals in December.

Industrial Development Bank Expanded

OTTAWA (CP) — Lending resources of the Industrial Development Bank will be expanded to about $400,000,000 from $100,000,000 and all Canadian business will be eligible for its services, Finance Minister Fleming announced Tuesday night.

The necessary legislation will be introduced shortly, he said in his budget speech, adding that the bank can help small firms resist foreign acquisition.

The bank's business would continue to be mainly fixed-period loans to small- and medium-size businesses. However, it would increasingly exercise power to enter interlocking agreements or to purchase portions of the equity of business for eventual resale to the owner or others.

Mr. Fleming said the Industrial Development Bank business "has been growing with the times in its last fiscal year, totalling $38,000,000, compared with 22½ loans totalling $20,000,000 five years ago.

It now assists specified classes of industry: Manufacturing and processing, logging, construction, transport and some service industries.

Its powers would be extended but the bank "would not expect to make loans where funds are available on reasonable terms from other sources."

Legal Loop-Hole In Tax Laws To Be Plugged

OTTAWA (CP)—Another legal loop-hole is to be plugged in federal tax laws affecting payments of lump-sum amounts to Canadians living abroad.

Finance Minister Fleming announced in his budget speech Tuesday night that in future lump-sum payments will be regarded as income garnered in Canada, even if made to Canadians living abroad.

It will affect regular pension payments to Canadians outside the country.

The lump-sum payments affected are those such as to an employee's retirement allowance for long service or proceeds of a superannuation fund.

Mr. Fleming said it now is possible for an employee leaving employment on retirement to take up residence abroad for a short period while he receives the lump-sum payment. He would avoid Canadian tax.

"I am proposing that lump-sum payments which represent deferred remuneration earned in Canada be regarded as income earned in Canada," Mr. Fleming said.

Both Regional Trade Blocs And High Tariff Proposals Are Rejected by Fleming

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming rejected categorically Tuesday night any Canadian membership in regional trading blocs, while expressing concern about possibility of Britain joining the European Common Market.

Opposition Leader Pearson has been urging for several years a Canadian initiative in forming an Atlantic free-trade union. CCF Leader Argue has proposed that Canada join the Commonwealth.

In his budget speech to the Commons, Mr. Fleming also rejected any move towards economic self-sufficiency behind a high Canadian tariff wall.

His reference to the latter appeared to relate to speeches by James E. Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, who has said Canada must learn to live within their own means with less dependence on imports.

"In some quarters it has been advocated that we should move towards economic self - sufficiency supported by a highly restrictive tariff," Mr. Fleming said.

"Others would have us alter our course sharply in the opposite direction by merging Canadian industry in a continental or some regional economic groupings.

"Let me say at the outset that I reject categorically these extreme positions which are being urged upon us. These are prescriptions for fear and even despair."

Mr. Fleming said current economic problems do not require any drastic redirection of Canada's trading relationships. They could be overcome by a vigorous pursuit of present trading policies, "judiciously adjusted to meet changing world conditions."

"It is self-evident that a country which depends on foreign trade for one-quarter of its national income must seek to maintain the widest possible system of world trade and payments, a code of international practice to govern that system, and a reasonably diverse balance of interest among external markets."

On the possibility of Britain joining the Common Market, Mr. Fleming said that whatever the outcome the government will try to preserve the most favorable terms of access for Canadian goods in both these markets. Canada's interests will require policies that may be required to achieve this end.

A very high proportion of Canadian exports to Britain enters that market free and many others of importance for the volume and development of trade receive a range of free choice in seeking markets.

HAD LITTLE TROUBLE

Mr. Fleming said that there has been little trouble with the solvency of pension funds. Many pension plans are based on insurance contracts and are managed by insurance companies.

There are, however, a large number of plans administered by trustees. The laws and the general government supervision of pension plans provides a measure of protection but there is no supervision beyond stipulating the qualifications of trustees.

"What is projected is a degree of supervision of private pension plans in the public interest in comparable in some respect with the supervision traditionally exercised over insurance companies."

Tax Relief Designed to Aid Modernization of Factories; Research to Be Encouraged

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming gave tax relief to Canadian industry Tuesday night to encourage research and the modernization of factories.

For the individual Canadian, he ordered repeal of the 15-per-cent excise tax on automobiles, put out a floor under the excise tax on cigaret lighters, radio receiving sets, radio and TV, and record-changer electronic tubes.

He also gave relief from excise sales tax on a variety of items, principally equipment, materials and equipment used in home, office and factory heating plants.

All these tax changes are effective immediately.

He also paved the way, starting next Jan. 1, for production and manufacturing in Canada with no increase in taxes per package, for cigaret tobacco growers and the use of more tobacco per cigaret.

Mr. Fleming made no change in the present tax on corporation income, corporation profits or estate taxes.

RESEARCH RELIEF

But he gave some immediate relief to encourage research by both from employer contributions to profit - sharing plans, and removed the sales tax from new medical expenses that can be deducted for income tax purposes.

The boost for scientific research was three-way:

Corporations can charge the full capital cost of scientific research each year instead of spreading it over three years.

A five-per-cent limit on the amount of research that could be spent on scientific research is removed.

In addition, non - profit corporations that are exclusively devoted to scientific research in Canada will be tax-free and the conditions under which corporations will not be taxed.

Encouragement for the modernization of factories was the object of a new allowance for depreciation. It will increase the rate of capital cost allowance by 50 per cent on all depreciable assets acquired between now and March 31, 1963, at a rate in excess of 20 per cent and under last year or the average of the last three years.

Import duty limits on medical expenses have been $2,500 for eligible taxpayers and $1,250 for married taxpayers plus $750 for each dependent up to a maximum of $3,000 for the dependents.

Mr. Fleming said the maximum limits were being cancelled because they were unfair to some individuals and families who might face more medical expenses in one year—such as through a serious automobile accident—than other taxpayers would in a lifetime.

Sales tax exemptions are effective immediately on scientific research and the modernization of factories.

Fleming said he would count on merchants passing the benefits along to buyers. Automobile dealers with cars on hand will be asked to give a rebate through their suppliers.

Mr. Fleming applied a new sales tax of 11 per cent to the following: Men's and women's garment lighters, radios, and electronic tubes.

The tax on these items has been 15 per cent of the wholesale price. The floor will apply when the tax on individual lighters, radios or tubes drops to 10 cents, or to $2 in the case of radio receivers. Television sets are not affected by the change.

Production of king-size cigarettes will be given relief with "increasing" the weight limit. At present, the tax is $4 per 1,000 cigarettes if they weigh not more than 2½ pounds. On Jan. 1, the limit will be reduced to three pounds. The effective date is put off to next Jan. 1 to allow all manufacturers to change their equipment.

Other measures of tax relief included in the budget:

1. Vocational training will be able to claim $300 a year as an expense allowance paid by a municipality. This was made retroactive to Jan. 1, 1958.

2. Mutual insurance firms will be able to charge the expenses of looking for minerals in Canada in the same way as mining and petroleum firms can deduct the costs of exploring and drilling.

Pension Plans On Portable Basis Seen

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming announced Tuesday night the government will consult provincial authorities on plans to work towards private pension plans on a portable basis.

He said one of the factors that may prevent workers from seeking better jobs and confining initiative to the general economy of the country is that they cannot take their pension rights with them to their new jobs.

Mr. Fleming also said the federal government is considering a measure of supervision over private pension plans to ensure that money in them is properly invested.

One of the difficulties was that the field is split between continuing provincial constitutional authority, with a large part of it resting with the provinces. However, the federal government is willing to take a share in it if a co - operative plan can be worked out with the provinces.

"The portability of pensions," he said, "may serve in a very important way to use more fully the productivity of the whole economy, by providing the individual worker with a wider range of free choice in seeking employment."

Mr. Fleming said that there has been little trouble with the solvency of pension funds. Many pension plans are based on insurance contracts and are managed by insurance companies.

Foreign Firms in Insurance Hit by Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—The government moved to impose higher taxes or other legislative curbs on Canadians who buy life insurance with foreign firms not authorized to operate in Canada by provincial or federal governments, Finance Minister Fleming said Tuesday night.

A 10-per-cent tax on premiums paid to such companies for insurance on persons, property or risks in Canada will be extended to some other kinds of insurance, he announced.

He said that if the "undesirable practice" of taking out policies with foreign companies continues, the law may have to be strengthened.

There was a tendency, Mr. Fleming said, for foreign-controlled companies, especially those with operations in all parts of the country, to place their insurance business with one firm.

He said he would prefer the business to go to Canadian companies.

HEADED HEART CLINIC

Born in Seaforth, Dr. Little graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto in 1914.

Act Upon Recommendation Of Bladen Royal Commission Tabled With Budget Tuesday

OTTAWA (CP)—Removal of the 7½-per-cent excise tax on passenger cars, first recommendation in a royal commission's plan to pep up the Canadian auto industry, was announced Tuesday night. It is estimated it will knock about $140 off the price of a $3,000 car if the tax cut is passed on to buyers.

Result—costing $66,000,000 in tax revenue over a full year—took effect today.

Finance Minister Fleming, announcing the decision in the budget, said government consideration is being given to three other points in the commission report, tabled in the Commons with the budget. He praised its objectives and recommendations.

The "unitary plan" submitted by Dr. Vincent Bladen, University of Toronto economist and one-man commission, is aimed at increasing Canada's car-parts output and lowering consumer costs through encouraging foreign auto firms to use more Canadian parts.

Dr. Bladen proposed:

1. A 10-per-cent tariff on all British vehicles and parts, now enjoying preferential rates, and against the 17½-per-cent duty imposed on most-favored-nation countries like the United States, Germany and France, ranging up to 25 per cent. Cars are now taxed on imports as on the basis of their value. Automobile parts are taxed on their home and value plus any duty and tax it has proved to be discriminatory, Dr. Bladen said. The excise tax had worked the same way, making the Canadian much more beneficial to Canadian producers.

3. An "integration" system giving foreign manufacturers duty-free entry if a Canadian market if they use enough Canadian-made parts.

APPROVES GOALS

Mr. Fleming said the government "warmly approves" the Bladen objectives and described the recommendations as constructive and imaginative. He emphasized, however, that the tariff recommendations are so complex that the government will canvass all sections of the industry and the U.S. before making a decision.

Dr. Bladen, a Canada agreed in 1858 at the Commonwealth trade and economic conference in London, England, to use Canadian-made parts and was appointed by Commonwealth to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. No negotiations so far in the Kennedy round would take place until the government decision had been announced in the national interest.

Removal of the excise-tax would welcomed by the Canadian Automobile Association, claiming 600,000 private motorists as members.

General Motors of Canada, largest car producer of the reduction will be passed on to consumers, said Fred Mosher, Company of Canada.

Dr. Bladen said it is economic to ask the auto today as a luxury.

Mr. Bladen's report emphasized that removal of the excise tax is just part of a "program for the development and reorganization of the automotive industry in Canada."

INTEGRATION URGED

His recipe points at integration of the industry with that of abroad, specifically the faltering Canadian parts manufacturer hard hit recently by imports.

Many of these under Canada duty-free or at reduced rate if they go into Canadian cars bearing a certain level of Canadian content, Dr. Bladen sketched a new schedule of "Canadian content" with autos duty - free entry could be claimed for foreign carmakers.

Mr. Fleming summed up the Bladen suggestions on tariffs this way:

"A manufacturer could . . . earn" free entry not only of parts but also of vehicles by achieving or arranging a sufficiently high volume of production in Canada; this production, which could consist of completed vehicles or of parts, might be sold in Canada or abroad. . . .

Some observers saw the proposed tariffs on British cars and parts as one weapon, the government may use to oppose any United Kingdom plan to join the European Common Market.

Auto makers have faced a rising tide of imports in cars with British subsidiaries of General Motors of Germany and Volkswagen of Germany the main competitors.

IMPORTS DOUBLE

Last year, 180,000 units — 3 per cent of Canadian sales — were imported. Dr. Bladen, who visited Canadian, U.S., British and European plants, set out his own views firmly on various subjects. He's a non-driver but his wife operates a French - made car.

He is a middle-road man between high protection and free trade, he said.

"I believe there is a point beyond which the cost of having an automobile industry in Canada would be so high as to be economically intolerable to the country."

He attacked the British view, prevailing for decades and even here last October, that the small foreign car met a special Canadian demand and was not cut into Canadian auto sales.

In fact, imports tended to depress used-car prices and the "consequent lower trade - in value has a direct effect on the sales of new Canadian cars as incentive to their prices."

He noted that any move toward freer trade as covered in the proposals of the Bladen report some Canadian sections of the industry. It was hoped that these his proposals were "sufficiently expansionist that the pain of adjustment in certain sectors will be borne largely by the community."

FOOD-FOOTS CRITICS

He dismissed critics of, his integrated-industry plan, which suggested a national independence might suffer.

"The growth of trade which increases our wealth and industrial strength can contribute to the development of our cultural and political independence," he said. "Consumer protection was important to the auto industry and to consumers.

For that reason he scoffed at suggestions made to him for an all-Canada car, such as those of the Beaver—to meet Canadian needs and conditions.

In fact, he defended the industry, assailed by Premier Frost of Ontario, among a number of commission witnesses, for its annual model changes, fins and flashy model changes.

Consumer competition determined what the manufacturers made, he said.

He been impressed by the growing strength of foreign car makers. Strengthening the Canadian industry was "imperative" to help it meet even stronger competition.

The Canadian industry was not "overmanned," he added, to help. -

He said he regrets that the American parent companies of the Canadian auto producers don't farm out more research here.

REJECT APPEAL

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto hotel owner Ben Smith, 46, and three other men—all convicted last October of stealing $960,000 from Brinks Express Limited—lost their appeals Tuesday against six - year penitentiary sentences. The others were Charles Stuart, a North Bay mining promoter, and New York brokers Stanley Shkonbrun and Sol Rouch.

Broad Tariff Revisions On Textiles, Poultry, Foods Announced in New Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Broad tariff revisions in textiles, poultry, foods and industrial goods, items —some up and some down — were announced in the budget Tuesday night.

The changes are effective immediately.

More duty will apply to record players, some autos, some knitting machines, to move long sought by Canadian producers—tariffs on bicycles, motorcycles, rakes and lawn rollers.

Reduced sales-tax tariff for levels on pineapple juice, parts and engines for power lawn mowers, motorcycles and bicycles, motorcycles and bicycles and ret-making machines.

Tariff-reduction negotiations permit implementation of tariff board reports last year on hosiery and industrial goods, parts fabrics and lace and wool cloth-ing and many manufactured items, Mr. Fleming said.

The government rejected a tariff board proposal to put up a main item in hosiery and knitting goods to 22½ per cent from 35 for most-favored-nation imports.

In many cases, the general rate — that other than British preferential or most favored nation — was raised to 40 per cent from 35. Many items remained unchanged after being assembled in different classifications.

There were most-favored-nation increases in some classes of women's and girls' fabric garments to 35 per cent from trout farms, from Britain or

Royal Commission to Study Canada's Financial Set-Up

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will appoint a royal commission to study the financial organization of Canada's financial institutions, Finance Minister Fleming announced Tuesday night.

He said in his budget speech the government hopes to receive the commission's report well before 1964, when the Bank Act is to undergo its regular 10-year review.

It will be the first such major study since 1933.

The commission's terms of reference and its make-up will be announced later.

Mr. Fleming said the commission will delve into all aspects of money, banking, credit and finance.

He outlined its terms of reference this way:

"The financing of the Canadian economy will be one of the major subjects of study.

"Such broad topics as the behavior of business and consumers, consumer credit and instalment financing, and the relationship of the money and debt will be included in the terms of reference.

"The commission will be asked to study existing financial institutions, such as the chartered banks, the Bank of Canada, and other institutions that perform banking and credit functions, and the various acts of Parliament which govern their activities.

"The commission will also be asked to consider ways and means of encouraging the development of savings institutions."

Polar Shelf Probe Head Has Time for Anything, Despite Responsible Job

Canada's Polar Continental Shelf project is probing the secrets of the Arctic. In this story a Canadian Press reporter who visited the project headquarters tells about its youthful co-ordinator.

By JIM WHELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ISACHSEN, N.W.T. (CP)—There's a bare-headed, tousle-haired "greeter" at Isachsen base camp of the Canadian Polar Continental Shelf project 600 miles from the north pole, who warmly welcomes newcomers to the 70-man station and sees everyone off at the runway at their leave.

A slight, energetic man, he sometimes hand-pumps barrels of gasoline into departing aircraft, loads and unloads baggage and freight and can often be seen rolling a 40-gallon drum of gasoline across the runway or hoisting it aboard an Otter aircraft.

He is 38-year-old Dr. Ernest Frederick Roots of Ottawa, co-ordinator of the entire project and a man who has time for anything.

Working with scientific projects in the Antarctic and Arctic since 1939, he apparently has become immune to the cold and he is usually hatless, with a grey wool shirt in place of a parka, as he travels around the base in below-zero temperatures in an open bombardier tractor.

DIRECTS 12 TEAMS

His job is to co-ordinate the activities of 12 scientific teams which make up the Continental Shelf Project of the department of mines and technical surveys.

This means he must schedule the use of the project's eight chartered aircraft, its tractors, bombardiers, autoboggans and other machines, arrange the transport and supply of field parties and radio sites on land and ice within a 200-mile radius and act as a personnel officer to some 70 men.

He also maintains liaison with Ottawa, arranges material and personnel movement to and from the mainland and other islands and ensures that the work of the various field parties meshes without overlapping.

But a list of his activities would read like an encyclopedia.

During May, for example, he successfully co-ordinated one of the most northerly air searches in Canadian history and just as successfully pulled an aching tooth of a grateful Eskimo dog driver.

"I'm a bit annoyed with not being able to get a hand in at the actual work myself," Dr. Roots says, "but I get a great deal of enjoyment out of seeing the co-operation which is going on here among the various scientific fields."

The work he means is geology—the field in which he received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of British Columbia and a doctorate from Princeton. He also studied and taught at Cambridge University in England.

He spent 15 seasons in the north—in British Columbia, the Yukon and the Arctic.

He held a post similar to this one with the Norwegian-British-Swedish Antarctic expedition of 1949-1952.

"Our deepest task—of vital significance," he says, "is to establish Canadian sovereignty in the Arctic islands. I'd like to make it possible to obtain more effective information on this part of the country through discussion among various scientific fields.

"Such discussion could turn up relationships between the fields which might otherwise easily be missed."

An example of the co-operation effort which could prompt such discussion, he said, is the current study of the ice-cap on Meighen Island. These studies are aimed at finding out what is happening to the ice cap and from that determining what has happened to the climate and environment in the 10,000 recent geologic years.

DIGGING PIT

A pit is being dug in the ice cap to observe and take samples of the layers of ice for analysis, to determine the periods of snowfall, wear and melting. Topographical surveyors will measure the ice cap accurately with a telurometer. Seismic and gravity crews will measure the depth of the ice and the slope beneath it. Botanical collections will be made and samples of minerals contained in the ice cap will be studied. Submarine geologists will check minerals on the off-shore ocean bottom and former shorelines.

"In the end," says Dr. Roots, "we will have a complete picture."

But by the end, he means only the end of one of 12 projects under way this year. After a winter at his home in Ottawa with his wife and three children, Dr. Roots plans to return next year.

"And with all this new knowledge under our belts," he says, "we'll get more done and do it faster."

Tomorrow: Miles of Water but Little to Drink.

IAPA Holds Annual Meet In Oshawa

BATAWA — The Central Ontario Division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association held its annual meeting recently in Oshawa.

Members of the executive were luncheon guests of General Motors at the Genosha Hotel, at which Mr. Art Duncan was guest speaker.

During the afternoon there was an organized tour of the assembly plant. Two hundred delegates, including five Batawa men, took this tour.

The following officers were elected: chairman of the Central Ontario Division, Mr. S. R. Newman of John A. Lang Company, Cobourg; vice-chairman, Mr. G. A. Barns, Canada Packers, Peterborough; Mr. Ron Durward and Mr. Art Duncan, both representatives for the Bata Shoe Company, members of the executive committe for the Division for 1961-62.

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's wrestling team for the Maccabiah Games in Israel this summer may include a father and his son.

At 49, Fred Oberlander says it's time he called it quits as an amateur wrestler. But his friends are urging him to compete and he does not discount the possibility.

"There all after me to wrestle," said the Montreal executive of a paperboard company. "It's hard to decide what to do. I just don't know."

Oberlander is—Israel - bound anyway, as captain of the Canadian representatives. Selections for the wrestling squad include his son Phil, 22, and Phil Slobotsky, also of Montreal.

The team's final makeup is to be decided Aug. 1, and Fred said he'll make up his mind about competing before then. In the meantime he's keeping in shape with regular workouts three times a week—just in case.

FORMER CHAMPION

Fred Oberlander, a 215-pounder, was one of the world's leading amateur heavyweights in former years. A native of Vienna, he settled in Canada 18 years ago after living in Britain and France.

He held the Canadian title in 1953, and in previous years was champion of the British Empire and titleholder in France.

At the Maccabiah Games in 1953 he was named the world's outstanding Jewish athlete. He won a gold medal that year in the heavyweight wrestling division at age 41. That was a repeat on two earlier medals—the heavyweight in 1950 and the light-heavyweight in 1937.

Phil Oberlander is a middleweight, Canadian champion in 1960, and is thought to be a cinch for a medal in Israel this summer. While defending his title in Vancouver last April he was forced out by a shoulder separation, but the injury now has healed.

Phil graduated recently from Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y., in a course in hotel management.

"He really enjoys that type of work and plans to spend two years in Switzerland picking up experience," said Phil's father.

MUST BE TOUGH

Fred came by his interest in wrestling in his native Austria, where his father was a friend of the world - famous Russian grappler George Hackenschmidt.

What makes a topflight wrestler?

"A man willing to punish himself to achieve his objectives," says Fred Oberlander. "He must have no pity for himself and no pity for his opponent."

Fred and Phil occasionally work out together. "I try to polish him up where I can," said the father. "But I don't think I can beat him."

Fred's French-born wife and youngest son, Danny, 16, are also to take the trip to Israel for a holiday. They have a third son, Ronnie, 19.

ALS SIGN TACKLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Ed Meadows, a rugged performer in the National Football League between 1954 and 1959, signed Tuesday a contract of undisclosed terms with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four. The 28-year-old offensive tackle and defensive end sat out last season. Before that he saw service with the NFL's Chicago Bears, Pittsburgh Steelers and Washington Redskins.

FAMILY WRESTLING TEAM — Fred Oberlander, 49, congratulates his son Phil, 22, after a Montreal wrestling match. The two may compete as a father-and-son team in the Maccabiah games in Israel this summer. Fred, Montreal paper company executive and a former top amateur heavyweight, will be captain of the Canadian wrestling squad going to Israel. Phil, a lightweight, is on the team. (CP Photo).

1964 Olympics In Tokyo

ATHENS (AP)—The International Olympic Committee decided Tuesday to hold the 1964 summer games in Tokyo from Oct. 11 to Oct. 25.

The IOC also approved the dates for the winter games at Innsbruck, Austria. These will be held Jan. 29 to Feb. 9.

The IOC said the Japanese organizers agreed to take photo finish cameras to track and swimming finals at the suggestion of the Canadian delegation in order to avoid discussions "such as there were in Rome."

In the main controversy, Australia's John Dewitt was awarded first place over Southern California's Lance Larson in the 100-metre free-style swimming final although timing machines gave the American a faster clocking.

IOC also rejected a proposal to eliminate the raising of national flags and the playing of national anthems at ceremonies when Olympic winners are honored.

The IOC today went into its last day of meetings still faced with the thorny problem of deciding the sports for the 1964 Olympics. It is being asked to choose among judo, canoeing and rowing and the modern pentathlon.

If it decides to have 20 sports in the Olympic program, the decision will be easy. There will be room for all four. But if the IOC sticks to 18 sports, as there were at Rome last year, then two of the four disputed sports must be eliminated.

The Japanese organizers of the games want to drop canoeing and the modern pentathlon. European countries and some South Americans are fighting to retain these two sports. IOC members want to hold the program to 18 sports.

The IOC also was expected to discuss proposed changes in amateur rules.

Flyers Nip Walts 5-4 In Overtime

TRENTON (Special)—RCAF Flyers nudged the Picton Walts 5-4 in the Intermediate last night for their second win in the season in the Belleville and District softball league.

The Flyer victory tightened the five-team league standing considerably, with only six points separating the first and last place clubs.

Picton led 2-0 after five and a half innings last night but the Walts had to score a run in the ninth to send the game into extra innings tied at 4-4.

A base-on-balls and two errors sent home the deciding run in the last of the tenth. The loss was a tough one for Picton's Roger Chapman. He pitched a three-hitter and struck out 10 batters. Chapman walked four.

Southpaw Ken Kibblewhite, the RCAF ace, went the distance to chalk up his second win against. He gave up eight hits, struck out ten, walked eight and left 14 Picton runners stranded.

Picton scored one in the fifth on a walk, Mulholland's double and an error. Hayden homered for a 2-0 score in the sixth but the Flyers took the lead 3-2 on two walks, Alexander's triple and Hughes' single.

A two-base error, wild pitch and a fielder's choice tied it for Picton in the eighth and Girard's homer put the Flyers in front again 4-3. Mulholland singled in a second later on Weese's infield hit to make it 4-4.

Gil Girard's homer, Doug Alexander's triple and a single by John Hughes were all the RCAF hits.

Sam Mulholland had three Picton hits, including a double, while Denny Hayden homered. Keith MacDonald tripled and Ron Weese had two singles. Bob Heffernan added a single.

PICTON: MacDonald ib, Stacey ss, Mulholland rf, ss, M. Stacey cf, Hayden 2b, Weese 3b, Heffernan lf, Cole c, Chapman p, Kennedy rf.

Mr. Cleroux To Use Short Cuts

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Cleroux will be rigging his punches for the arm around the eyes when he meets Argentinian Jose Miteff in a 10-rounder Thursday night.

His manager, Al Bachman, and trainer, Whitey Simstead, figure the best way to stop the solid, hard-hitting Miteff is by cuts.

"Miteff can take a lot of punishment but the skin around his eyes has a tendency to break easily," said Bachman,) "Bob will work on that."

Miteff, 26, shapes up as a slight underdog but is expected to provide Cleroux with a rough evening. His 33 pro fights cover battles with some of the best in the division and he's won 23, lost nine and drawn once.

Cleroux needs a win over Miteff to assure a third shot at Canadian champ George Chuvalo. The Canadian title changed hands between them when they traded a pair of 12-round decisions last year.

The Montrealer has 26 wins in 29 fights with two losses and a draw.

Quinte Tennis

The Point Anne tennis club had an inter-club meet on the Point Anne courts last night with a god number of juniors and intermediates competing.

Stephen Sweet and Gerald Marker won the tournament, defeating Bill Judy and Andy Sword in the finals 6-4, 6-2.

Mike Cook and Don Browning won the consolation event by defeating Perry Ellis and Tom MacDonald in the finals 6-2.

The Point Anne club will play an exhibition match with Campbellford on the latter's court this Sunday afternoon.

Jets Split With Wings, Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hochester Red Wings have been stopped in their drive toward the top of the International League—at least temporarily.

Tuesday night, Bob Leopold hitter and Frank Lela rapped a two-run homer for Syracuse in the opener while George Haney hurled a seven-hitter for the Virginians in winning the nightcap. Sam Miley's three runs batted in backed up Haney's pitching.

Bobby Wine drove in three runs for Buffalo, including the tie-breaker in the ninth as Hum-berto Robinson recovered from a shaky start to get the victory.

MAY DROP CRUTCHES

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy's physician and two specialists examined him Thursday and said he would be able to discard his crutches in two days. Kennedy strained his back while planting a ceremonial tree during his state visit to Ottawa May 18.

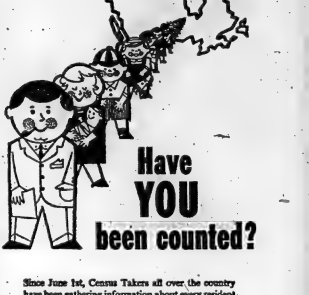
Marlins still are a half-game out of first place.

BELTS SIXTH HOMER

Bob Johnson and Ron Kabbes each drove in two runs for the Red Wings in the first game off Dave Thomas, who hurled a one - hitter the last time out. Powers's blast in the nightcap was his sixth round-tripper of the year.

The split moved Rochester into fourth spot, a half - game ahead of Jersey City and 3½ out of first place.

Joe Bonikowski pitched a six-hitter and Frank Lela rapped a two-run homer for Syracuse in the opener while George Haney hurled a seven-hitter for the Virginians in winning the nightcap. Sam Miley's three runs batted in backed up Haney's pitching.



Bobby Wine drove in three runs for Buffalo, including the tie-breaker in the ninth as Humberto Robinson recovered from a shaky start to get the victory.

Ancient Olympia Restored

ATHENS (AP)—Four of the world's fastest humans will kick at a long stone slab, then push off down the straightaway Thursday in ceremonies marking the excavation and renovation of the ancient Olympics Stadium at Olympia.

The arena where ancient Greek athletes competed before the gods and yelling throngs—buried for more than a thousand years—has been restored by the German Archaeological Institute of Athens with funds provided by the West German Olympic Committee.

Finally unearthed, the stadium revealed more about the ancient Games than anticipated and the four modern Olympians will run under the same conditions that prevailed at the ancient Greek Olympiads.

The runners will be Mal Spence of South Africa, Milkha Singh of India and Germany's Carl Kaufmann and Manfred Kinder, all among the top six in the Olympic 400-metre run at Rome last year.

The stadium will set themselves in the excavated starting block, a long stone slab with niches carved in them the runners could plant their feet firmly. Then they will race down a 630-foot stretch—and turn around to come back.

In ancient days that was the closest thing to a 400-metre dash.

Besides uncovering the stadium ground and some stands built against a hillside, the excavators found training areas, dressing rooms and even signs of hotels—all the components of a modern Olympic village.

Ancient discus equipment also was taken from the ruins by the excavators, who explained that the ancient discus throwers like to heave it while standing motionless on a podium instead of wheeling about a circuit of throwing area.

After That He Can Watch TV

CHICAGO (AP) — A rabid baseball fan can root around the clock in Chicago's two major league parks today.

On tap are a pair of double-headers—a Wrigley Field afternoon set between Los Angeles' Dodgers and Cubs, and a twi - night Comiskey Park one between Cleveland Indians and White Sox.

Theoretically, a red-hot fan might leave Wrigley Field as early as 11 a.m. to watch the Dodgers and Cubs work out before the 1 p.m. start of their twin bill.

A few hours later he could buzz some eight miles across town to Comiskey Park in time to catch the start of the Tribe-Sox activity at 6 p.m. If he sticks it all out to the bitter end, he'd dazedly wander homeward around midnight.

New Pleasant Way to Take Gelatine

Many people who take gelatine in powder form mixed with fruit, vegetable juice or bouillon, will be pleased with a new product now in the supermarkets and drug stores. Its Linn Gelatine Capsules, capsules of pure gelatine filled with the highest quality gelatine powder, instead of the convenient, does away with messy mixtures because you take them as you would any other capsule.

Store keepers report more people are asking for Linn Capsules every day. Look for the red capsules in the see-thru plofilm package. 60 Capsules, 98c.

Maris Belts No. 26 As Yankees Win

Tigers Tops Indians Slip

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York Yankees are still 1½ games behind the first-place Detroit Tigers in the American League pennant chase, but Roger Maris, the bombshell who batted off the moment, has edged closer to a couple of home run records.

Maris hit his 26th home run of the year as the Yankees beat Kansas City Athletics 6-2 Tuesday night and moved back into second place. It was the 14th homer Maris has rifled this month — leaving him four short of the one - month record set in 1957 when Rudy York hit 18 in August for Detroit.

Maris, four behind the major league record for total home runs hit through June 30, has nine games left in which to crack both marks. The item on the most home runs through June 30 may seem pointless, except that the record 30 was set by a fellow named Babe Ruth, who did it in 1928 and 1930.

Maris is nine games ahead of Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927. Ruth finished with 54 in 1928 and 49 in 1930. And York hit only 35 all season when he set the one - month high in 1937.

RETAINS LEAD

Detroit retained its 1½-game lead with a 5-4 victory over Washington Senators, but Cleveland Indians skidded to third spot, .004 per centage points behind the Yanks, when Chicago White Sox beat them 5-3. Boston Red Sox picked up their sixth straight victory by defeating Los Angeles Angels 11-0 and Minnesota Twins beat Baltimore Orioles 5-4.

The Yankees beat the Athletics with three - run bursts in the third and fifth innings. Mickey Mantle's single drove in the clincher in the third.

Maris' homer, off loser Joe Nuxhall, and Bill Skowron's two - run double took care of the scoring in the fifth inning. Nuxhall (4-6) drove in both runs off winner Bill Stafford (5-3).

Al Kaline, an outfield star playing his first game at third base, drove in two runs for the Tigers, bringing in the winner with a fifth - inning single. Kaline, filling in at third while Steve Boros and Chico Fernandez are out with leg injuries, handled two chances perfectly in the field.

RUNNING WILD

Jim Bunning (6-6) was the winning pitcher, but gave way to reliever Hank Aguirre after Willie Tasby homered in a four-run eighth inning for the Senators. Dick Donovan (7-6) was the loser — with all six defeats by one run.

The White Sox, climbing into sixth place with their 11th victory in 13 games, beat the Indians with a five - run first inning. J. C. Martin's three - run homer topped the outburst that handed seven - game winner Mudcat Grant his first defeat. Turk Lown (5-2) won his fifth game in a row with 5 1-3 innings of two - hit, shutout relief.

Rookie Carl Yastrzemski drove in five runs for the Red Sox with a home run and three singles in his first four trips to the plate.

Bill Monbouquette (7-6) was the winner, but needed relief help after giving up home runs by Leon Wagner, Earl Averill and Steve Bilko. Eli Grba (5-7) lost.

A ninth - inning homer by Frank Malzone off Dan Pfeffer won for the Twins and beat reliever Jack Fisher (2-8) after the Orioles had tied the game 4-4 in their ninth on Earl Robinson's three - run homer. Chuck Stobbs (1-3) won in relief.

MAY END CAREER

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals confirmed Tuesday that catcher Hal Smith has a heart condition and said, "obviously, his return to baseball play is uncertain at this time." Smith, reached at Jewish Hospital, said he has been told by one doctor his playing days are over. The club announcement said the pepper, 30-year - old receiver, in hospital since May 10, had a coronary artery condition.

'Providing' - Windsor Still In

Eastern Pros Accept North Bay

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Eastern Professional Hockey League decided at a special meeting Tuesday to accept North Bay's bid for the vacant EPHL Prescott franchise.

EPHL president Ed Houston confirmed the acceptance of following the six - hour meeting, but subject to certain conditions to be met by the EPHL and the North Bay company to be formed."

At the same time, Houston did not rule out the possibility of Windsor, another applicant for the vacant franchise, being added to the league.

"Windsor is still being considered and if certain arena commissioners aren't realistic there could be a switch," Houston said.

The EPHL franchise became vacant this spring when Montreal Royals withdrew from the league. Remaining teams are Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Hull-Ottawa, Kingston and Kitchener-Waterloo.

SEES NO TROUBLE

Houston said he foresees no likelihood of North Bay's not being able to meet EPHL requirements.

Morris Snider was spokesman for 13 North Bay men who have already raised $15,000 capital on one of the conditions laid down.

There will be a meeting in Toronto June 28 at which North Bay delegates and NHL owners will discuss personnel for a North Bay team.

Gamble scored 40 goals last season while Creighton, a Port Arthur product, scored 20 goals.

MAY BACK BANFF

CALGARY (CP) — International Ski Federation support for Banff as site of the 1968 Winter Olympics seems assured, a delegate to the ISF's Madrid meeting said Tuesday. Hans Maier, vice-president of the Calgary Olympic Development Association, said skiing's ruling body looks favorably on Canada to play host. Mr. Maier attended the ISF's congress in Madrid May 29-June 4.

WANTS TO RETIRE

BUFFALO (AP)—Richard F. Canning, president of the American Hockey League, told the league's board of governors Tuesday he would retire his post as soon as a successor could be elected. Canning, a Providence, R.I., lawyer, said his duties as league president were becoming increasingly heavy and were interfering with his law practice.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Take a second look at the picture of the "face" just below.

It is not the face of a man who has just been informed his mother-in-law is moving in indefinitely, nor that of a guy faced with his second tax.

It is the fighting mug of one of the roughest, toughest, mayhemic members of the wrestling fraternity ever to tear down girders in an era.

DICK BROWER

He is Dick "Bulldog" Brower, 275 pounds of mangling muscle who makes his debut in a Belleville ring here Friday night. Pre-bout reports say he is a throwback to primitive man with the fighting instincts of an animal.

Brower who meets Farmer Boy Townsend in the main bout is an iron-worker. He borrows some of his ring tactics from wrestling with steel girders.

He has a specialised form of backbreaker which some call the "Stedman's Breath". It was developed through bumping heavy girders into place.

They call him the "Mad Steelworker from Delaware," who "wears them down quick and gets it over fast."

There's a topflight tag-team battle on, too. Man Mountain Campbell and Stan Stasiak team with these handsome gentlemen, Tony Marino and Timmy Geohagen. Now there's a pair that should pack the house. And big Gino Marelli is back again with bad man Prince Nero.

* * *

Ole Archie Moore has hit the headlines again. The irrepressible world light heavyweight champion is known as Archibald Lee Moore, publisher. The other day he beat his way into the magazine-publishing business.

Heretofore, Archie was merely known as a philosopher, poet, humorist, actor and boxing champion. Now he has entered the literary world as the publisher of a new monthly jazz magazine, "Jazz Day."

Archie released the big news to the beat of his own brave drums at a press conference. In the background a jazz combo batted out the beat. Archie finished the act with a couple of fast rounds with a bull fiddle.

It was revealed that the ageless one, 44 going on 47, has trained to the rhythmic beats of jazz combos. He has skipped rope and punched the bags to the in-person tunes of top jazz-men. They give him what he calls "music to train by."

"This is a tired old man marching to war and he needs something to revive him," quipped Archie. "Jazz keeps me alive, happy and alert. It soothes the savage heart and arouses it, too."

He was asked if he ever tried training to ballads.

"I have," he replied, "but it's not the same. Ballads build hope and determination, but they're not good for alertness. They force you to dream and that's not a good way to feel when you're going in the ring."

This Old Man River of the boxing beat will keep rolling along. He said he would write a monthly article called "Publisher's Diary." He actually seemed annoyed that most people were not aware of his literary talents.

"To be truthful," he said, "I can't talk one-third as good as I can write. I've written some weird stories (one was Three in One Corpse with Bela Lugosi-Ball) and the lyrics for three songs, (It's Spring Again, You Found Me But I Lost You, and Stay in There.)

"My writings are timeless," said Archie. "Like evergreen you just brush them off and they keep growing." Just, it would seem, like one Archibald Lee Moore.

GET BIG PAYOFFS

TORONTO (CP) — A dark, damp day was brightened somewhat for some of the 6,252 fans at New Woodbine Tuesday when the daily double paid $206.40 and the quinella returned $154.-10.

Brenilyn, a three-year - old filly, won the second race at 6-5-to, $14.80 and $6.50 and resulted in the large double. Seamless, second choice in the first race, combined with Brenilyn for the double.

Spills Giants 2-1, Bucs Win

Spahn Nears 300, Koufax Wins 10

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Joey Jay's magic finally ran out, but Cincinnati Redlegs still have a 1½-game lead in the three-way battle for first place in the National League pennant race.

Joey, a right-hander who had won eight straight games for the Reds, was beaten 6-3 by St. Louis Cardinals in the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday night. It was his first defeat since April 26 and it came on the heels of a 4-3, 11-inning Cincinnati victory in the opener that gave the Reds a six-game winning streak.

Despite the split, the Reds retained their first-place margin as Los Angeles Dodgers replaced San Francisco Giants in second place.

Milwaukee Braves spilled the Giants 3-1 behind the four-hit pitching of Warren Spahn, four days of his 300th career victory. The Dodgers beat Chicago Cubs 5-4 as Sandy Koufax won his 10th game of the season with a two - hitter. Pittsburgh Pirates whitewashed the last - place Philadelphia Phillies 6-0.

The Cardinals, hanging on to fifth place by mere percentage points over Milwaukee, tagged Jay (8-4) for eight of their 12 hits in the nightcap. Charlie James drove in two runs, bringing in the clincher with a double in a two-run sixth inning. Right-hander Bob Gibson (5-3) won his third in a row for the Cards, blanking the Reds on two hits until the ninth and finishing with a five-hitter.

Cincinnati blew a 3-0 lead in the opener when Carl Sawatski hit a three-run pinch homer off Jay Hook in the seventh inning. But the Reds bounced back and tied it in the ninth on a pinch single by Jerry Lynch, then needed relief help from Ed Roebuck in the ninth.

Three singles, by John Roseboro, Maury Wills and Charlie Neal, and an error gave the Dodgers all three runs in the seventh inning and a victory over Glen Hobbie (4-6).

Koufax (10-3), first National League pitcher to record 10 victories this season, didn't allow a hit until Ernie Banks singled with two men out in the seventh. He walked two men and struck out 14, giving up the other hit when Don Zimmer singled in the ninth.

Commercial Softball

Trudeau Motors scored a single run in the bottom of the ninth inning last night to edge Rollins Construction 8-4 in Commercial softball league action.

A walk, Brooks' double and a wild pitch scored the winning run after Trudeau had overcome a 4-0 deficit to prolong the seven-inning tilt.

Harry Powers pitched the victory while Holowsty and McCurdy toiled for Rollins.

In an exhibition game, Lightfoot Construction, of the Belleville league scored a 7-5 win over Frankford Aaxin Sun Lifers.

Tied for Top

Cobourg Clips Cats 4-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Untimely errors and a two-run homer helped the Cobourg Merchants overcome a 3-0 deficit here last night to defeat the slumping Belleville Bobcats 4-3 in 8 and D. softball action.

The win hoisted the Merchants into a first-place tie with Foyes Real Estate and left the Bobcats in a third-place tie. The Cats have lost three straight.

Cobourg had stranded 12 runners in the first six innings and trailed 2-0 with two out in the eighth. Mitts singled to centre. Robert first baseman Jason Field handed Cobourg their tying runs when he dropped the ball twice at first and then threw it wide of the plate as Mitts and Turpin scored to make it 2-2.

The Merchants went ahead 4-2 in the top of the ninth, Thompson walking with one out and Stu Lingard slamming a home run into right-centre field with two down.

The Bobcats got one back in their half of the inning when McSporran dropped Ted Batchelor's long hoist for a threebase error. Batchelor scored on Brown's ground out to third but that was it.

Belleville took a 1-0 lead in the fourth on a walk, Doug Hull's bunt single and Johnny Batchelor's two-bagger. They added another run in the sixth on a walk, a hit batter and Ted Batchelor's single.

Rolly Campbell pitched the victory, touched for five hits while striking out three and walking two.

Bobby Green was the loser, allowing seven hits, fanning three and passing seven. A double play on each side helped the pitchers out of tight spots.

Gary Sharpe had a double and single for Cobourg while Stu Lingard hit his game-winning homer. Dick Turpin, Al Church, Rolly Campbell and Billy Mitts added one single apiece.

A double by Johnny Batchelor and singles by Floyd Crawford, Jason Field, Doug Hull and Ted Batchelor accounted for the Belleville safeties.

Cobourg: Turpin ss, Church c, O'Brien 3b, Campbell p, Thompson 2b, McPherson cf, rf, Lingard lb, Sharpe lf, Culshaw rf, Mets cf.

Stock Car Racing to Start Here

Stock car racing once very popular in this area, will undergo a revival this summer.

Richard Burrowes is making an effort to bring the sport back to the Quinte district at the Shannonville Speedway Parkland.

The original half-mile clay track is being restored and treating with binder and layer dust.

The type of stock cars will be the hobby class, that is, car just as they run on the street straight stock — with safety modifications such as roll bars, glass, interior cloth and limit caps removed and safety belts installed.

In the main the cars will be left easily recognized as the make and model they are.

In place of regulations to control and keep expensively souped up cars from competing, there will be a claiming price of $150 placed on any car competing.

The owner of any car beaten by any other car can exercise said claim the same.

To start hobby stock car racing Mr. Burrowes is purchasing cars up to 1954 models and to help finance this is offering certain considerations for a very nominal cost.

The tangible interest of any garage, service station or business will be mentioned. He says Carl Jones of Jones Movers and the Central Taxi have donated cars.

He hopes to have a field of strictly stock cars ready by the July 1 weekend.

Sunday the track will be open to individuals to test their cars.

For further information contact Mr. Burrowes at the Shannonville Speedway track daily noon to nine or phone WOodland 5-9481.

Coaches Wanted For Girls Minor Softball

Allan Sills, softball representative of the Belleville Minor Sports Association reports that all is in readiness for a girls' softball loop with exception that coaches for this group are needed now.

Sills says he has 286 girls registered from 11 of 15 years of age. Plans are for at least 10 teams and the leagues will get under way as soon as volunteers step forth for coaching roles. Anyone wishing to coach a girls' softball team (man or woman) is asked to call Mr. Sills after 5 at WO 8-7651 or the Recreation Centre, WO 3-1403.

Pro Soccer

TORONTO (CP) — Polish White Eagles lifted themselves out of last place into fifth position in the National Soccer League Tuesday night with their second victory of the season, defeating Hungaria 1-0. White Eagles play Montreal Concordia here Sunday for the right to represent the York in the Canadian association championship.

SHOCKED BY SITE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Thursday it was "greatly shocked to learn" that the 1962 Professional Golfers Association tourney would be held at Philadelphia's Aronomink Golf Club. The PGA championship for next year originally was scheduled for Los Angeles. It was withdrawn when California's attorney general asked that a Negro pro, Charles Sifford, be permitted to play. The NAACP said, "we are extremely unhappy that Aronomink has decided to make itself a party to the continuing un - American practices of the Professional Golfers Association."

Randolph Scott is featured in "Decision at Sundown". In Technicolor the second feature attraction.

TV—Radio Column

Much of Television Humor Is Not Getting the Laughs

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Abe Burrows, a theatrical jack - of - all-trades whose specialty is comedy, recently delivered a rather pessimistic statement: "I think humor is what makes you laugh, no matter what the situation is."

And it seems pretty apparent that the trouble with television humor — and the discontented manufacturers of comedy — is not that much of it isn't getting laughs.

The most recent noisy defector from the ranks of TV comedians is Mort Sahl who has decided that the medium just isn't right for his type of humor and that the Ed Sullivan Show, his primary showcase the last couple of seasons, just doesn't give him enough time to work his magic on the audience.

Well, I've watched Sahl a number of times on the Sullivan Show, and one of the interesting things about his performance has been the curious silence which fell over the studio audience while he was on. Last time, a few weeks ago, the lack of response was downright embarrassing and even Sahl seemed disconcerted. He was dropping in bitter little asides about the contents of certain of his topical sallies; fell with dull thuds.

Jack Benny goes on with his comedy show year after year, and you don't hear him assailing TV. Red Skelton will be back again and makes no secret of his affection for TV. Steve Allen, who will be back next season, is tired of on television when the going got sticky for him.

When a situation comedy blossoms for a year and disappears, the reason frequently is that the show is a pale carbon copy of another year's success or that the situations and denouements are so threadbare that they have lost their humor and, more important, the surprise element.

Recommended tonight

Mystery Theatre, NBC, 9-10—Dearly Beloved, a British whodunit.

Circle Theatre, CBS, 10-11 — The Dedicated American, a televised documentary on the current work of Dr. Gordon Seagrave, the Burma surgeon.

Knockout Playdowns

District Lawn Bowling

The attention of lawn cowlings enthusiasts will be directed this Sunday afternoon and evening to the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club when the various clubs in the district will be sending their rink entries for the knock-out playdowns for the District Championship.

This year for the first time in District 15, the playdowns in the various series will be held on different days. This means that losing entries in the rinks event will be eligible to compete in the doubles competition which will be held in Belleville on July 9th and losers in both events will be eligible for the singles event to be played on July 16th.

The eventual winer in each series will compete in the Zone 4 playdowns which are the second step in the ladder leading to the Ontario and Canadian Championships play.

The Colt Triples series (defined as rinks having not more than 5 years playing experience) will also be held this coming Sunday on the Belleville greens.

In previous years it was necessary for each club in the district to decide on a rink, colt triple, double and singles winner within the club and to send these entries to the District playdowns which were all conducted in one day.

This year each club can send as many rink entries as they can muster to the rink event and depending on the number of entries, play will be cancelled after a knock-out basis in 15, 18 or 21 end games at the discretion of the district chairman.

It is expected that the 1965 District Rink Champion from Trenton will be returning to defend their laurels and a second entry may also come from this club. Kingston will undoubtedly be sending two or three entries. Campbellford always has an entry and the Belleville club will be having at least two rinks in the competition.

Other clubs in the district, eligible to send competing rinks, include Bideau, Madoc, Brighton, Stirling and Colborne.

The entire district championship competition will be in the hands of the district chairman, Harry Hyde of Belleville, who also acts as a member of the Ontario Championships Committee.

Bowlers from this district are reminded this year inasmuch as successful entries will have a minimum of travel to contend with in the playdowns. The District Championships will be conducted in Belleville. The Zone playdowns will also be held in Belleville on Saturday, July 29th commencing at 2 p.m. and continuing all day.

The Ontario Finals will be held at Hamilton Roselawn greens on Saturday, August 5th and the Canadian Championships in Mount Royal, Quebec, August 28, 29 and 30.

The two Belleville entries already named are C. D. Ashley, W. G. Wright, J. B. Miller and Gord Watkin skip, and O. G. Smith, C. S. Hyde, W. V. Graham and G. B. Hyde, skip. The colt triples will have at least one Belleville entry in the persons of Bill Hunter, Ralph Tuck and Wally Lavergne, skip.

The public is cordially invited to attend and watch this championship play.

Minor Softball

The Cubs scored in every inning as they romped to a 24-3 victory over the Pepsi-Cola Sox in a Peewee, group "B" minor softball league game.

Beatty slammed two home runs while one each went to Hann and Dunn, all of the Cubs.

Movie Stars Give Advice About European Travelling

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Going to Europe this summer?

If you are among the 700,000 fortunate Americans doing so, you'll want some advice by then, along with your clothes. Few travellers are more experienced than movie stars. And though you may not be travelling in movie - star style, you might want to listen to their advice.

Anne Baxter: "Be sure to take a trip to the Left Bank in Paris to Chartres. And pick a day when you can see the sun shining through the cathedral windows."

Cyd Charisse: "Above all, don't just take the airplane through Europe. Rent a car and drive through the countries, especially from Paris to Rome and on down to Sorrento. And don't hang out in the big hotels and frequent the restaurants. Eat where the people eat; you'll find the food is just as good."

Debbie Reynolds: "Just remember you're a guest in their land. European hosts act accordingly. I've seen too many Americans who go to Europe and then act each other down the streets and get mad because the shop people don't speak English. They make me cringe."

Bob Preston: "The greatest favor you can do yourself is to walk. You don't need to take a tour or anything—just get out and walk. . . . You will find out more about those cities than you ever would with the guide books."

Bob Hope: "Travel light. Leave plenty of space in your bags for souvenirs. The junk you're going to bring back with you. I would have saved money my first-time over. I had so much overweight coming back that I could have saved money by chartering the Queen Mary."

The Tracks

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Sampson Direct was established today as the favorite for Friday night's $50,000 final of the Harness Tracks of America pacing series for four-year-olds at Roosevelt Raceway.

Adios Butler, generally conceded to be the top trotting and pacing horse of the year, was installed a 3-to - 5 choice for the free-for-all mile test Saturday night.

Sampson Direct drew lane No. 8 in the post position selection and was made a 3-to-1 pick. He will oppose nine other horses.

Adios Butler will face a top field of six horses.

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Abbey Jim, a 12 - year - old bay horse from the B and F stable in St. Hubert, Que., upset the dopesters Tuesday night to win the $2,400 purse in the featured ninth race at Richelieu Park. Abbey Jim paid $75.90, $18.40 and $9.20.

Ron Turcotte trotted the bay over the mile course in a fast 2:04 2-5.

Music Man placed second, paying $4.40 and Colton Maid was third, returning $4.80.

VETERAN ACTOR

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER
GENERAL TENDENCIES—

The daytime is an unusually good time for you to go directly to anyone with whom you wish to be allied in the future to get the benefit of his, or her, co-operation. But by evening complete conversations for delays and obstacles can then be in effect that could cause some harsh opposition to arise if you force anything. Be cagey.

Aries (March 21 to April 19)

Sly conversing at length with associates and others who do not think as you do, you come to a fine understanding ultimately and cement friendships as well. P.M. Endeavor to quietly straighten out any unpleasant situations at home.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)

Waste not a second of this precious day and you will be able to clear the decks for more prosperous days ahead. P.M. Remain steadfast to people and systems that have proved themselves in the past. Don't try to make radical changes.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)

Any changes you wish to put in effect now should be done during morning hours, but surely before 3 P.M. Then be sure you do not go out for temporary pleasure and spend a great deal of money. Be sensible - seek the wholesome and inexpensive.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21)

Be sure you do something for the welfare and happiness of family today, despite the fact that you may have to be out in transit. Strive for greater security. P.M. See that peace is maintained in the home at all cost. Prayer helps.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)

Keep busily occupied getting shopping done, coming through with promises made, buying, selling, getting talents before the right people, etc., and you will meet with great success, add to prestige. P.M. Take care while driving. Don't criticize.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21)

A wonderful day to make necessary repairs to your house, or add to present holdings. During the evening you will be tempted to spend a good deal of money on something that is not worthwhile - exercise will prove easy and logical resistance.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)

Analyze your ideas and know what you truly desire - then take the right steps to attain your aims, act positively, with out fear. P.M. Be diplomatic at home where you can meet with opposition.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21)

A day for investigating those things that you do not comprehend. Also, seek advice from authorities. Be certain tonight that you learn to control your temper and do not show your feelingsso much. Be objective in all that you do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

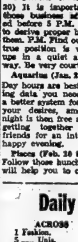
Morning is ideal time to get in touch with that influential person and express your views and ideas. Plan for some social excitement later. P.M. Be with trusted, loyal friends instead of going off with unreliable strangers.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

It is important you get those business affairs finalized before 5 P.M. if you want to derive proper benefits from them. P.M. Find out what your true position is with higher-ups in a quiet and balanced way. Be very courteous.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Day hours are best for garnering data you need and using a better system for going after your desires, ambitions. Tonight is time free and ideal for getting together with good friends for an interesting and happy evening.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)

Follow those hunches now that will help you to conduct your business or office affairs better, as well as make your romantic and personal life more happy. P.M. Try not to be extravagant if you go out socially. Retire early.

If your child is born today he, or she, will be one of those delightful little children who will have all sorts of favors showered upon him, or her, because of the love and charming quality in this nature. However, you must early teach to work with hands and mind if the life is to be a successful and happy one, otherwise there will certainly be a tendency toward indolence. Excellent chart for the artist or any profession where minute detail is important.

DESERONTO

Tyendinaga May Set Up Muskrat Reserve

DESERONTO — If present plans are brought to completion an area of the Tyendinaga Reserve will be at aside for the propagation of muskrats and wild fowl, in the near future.

Chief R. M. Hill, John R. Brant, and Albert A. Marcie of the Mohawk Band Council were hosts on Saturday to a luncheon at Dawson's Motel where the matter was discussed.

Guests included, Mr. Hugh Conn, of the Wild Life and Inland Fisheries Branch Indian Affairs, Ottawa; Mr. Murray Gavin, General Manager, Ducks Unlimited, of Winnipeg; Corporal Mair of the R.C.M.P. Belleville, Officers Dorman and Bill Lands and Forests, Napanee; Mr. McCracken, of Tyendinaga Indian Reserve.

The proposed site of the conservation area is Mudud Creek. It is suggested that a dam be erected at the mouth of the creek to provide a pool in the form of two thousand acres for the feed of wild fowl and muskrats. While hunting and fishing rights for the Indians will not be prohibited there will be provision to insure a sufficient comparable to the present rate exercised for pickerel, during spawning season.

Mr. Gavin, of Ducks Unlimited, is whole-heartedly in favor of the idea and will present the plan to his organization for their approval and support.

This move by Band officials is a far sighted idea and the fruits will benefit the coming of generations more than the people of today. An idea such as this emanating from a people whose heritage has been free hunting and fishing shows clearly the sagacity and advancement of those elected members of the Mohawk tribe.

MOST OF COYNE'S

reiterated that Mr. Coyne had lost the confidence of the government and the bank's board. Tuesday night he added that the governor also has lost the confidence of the financial community.

And the government believed that a substantial deficit could promote economic expansion. Mr. Coyne had been preaching "a far more austere and rigid doctrine."

FILLED 1000 WORDS

Mr. Fleming's direct reference to Mr. Coyne's day filled 1,000 words in a special section in his speech—were balanced by his indirect references, in which he referred to suggestions in "some quarters" but left no doubt that many of them came originally from the governor.

At one point he said that "in some quarters" it was believed a major structural maladjustments in the economy were to blame for disappointing production levels, unemployment and the balance-of-payments deficit.

"It was a highly unfair reference to Mr. Coyne, who never has referred to these "structural" faults."

The analysis which supports these proposals is in my judgment basically wrong," said Mr. Fleming. Consequently the conclusions are also erroneous."

Mr. Coyne's proposals were contained in a Feb. 15 memorandum to the government, which he released Monday. He said that "

BIG NEWS

word speech in two hours and 26 minutes.

It was twice the length of normal budgets, but not a record. He forecast record highs in budgetary spending and revenues for the current fiscal year which began April 1.

He predicted budgetary expenditures rising to $6,413,000,000 from $5,961,000,000. He figured economic growth would offset the tax reductions and increase revenues to $6,785,000,000 from $5,218,000,000.

"Addition of $907,000,000 in old age pension payments was included from budgetary accounts —would boost total spending over the $7,000,000,000 mark. The pension fund would get $640,000,000 in non - budget revenues from its special earmarked taxes.

The $650,000,000 budget deficit forecast would bring to $2,056,-500,000 the total in five annual deficits in a row.

Mr. Fleming said the budgyt's economic impetus would bring "significant improvements" in the country's prospects.

FEW TARIFF CUTS

The finance minister, concentrating on his planned moves in the financial field, provided only a smattering of tax and tariff changes.

He didn't touch consumer taxes on liquor and tobacco except for a change effective next Jan. 1 to permit economic Canadian production of "king-size" cigarets containing more tobacco.

A few items were exempted today from the 11 - per - cent sales tax. Tariffs were increased on some textile items, poultry, record players and power lawn mowers and reduced on other textile products, motorcycles, pinapple juice and parts and engines for power lawn mowers.

The personal income tax change that will probably affect the most people is a provision that volunteer firemen may receive up to $200 in tax - free allowances from municipalities, retroactive to 1959.

REMOVES CEILINGS

Another change, effective in the 1961 tax year, wipes out the ceilings on medical expenses that may be deducted in computing taxable incomes. Still another added to the tax - exempt list is electricity, speaking aside for persons who have lost their vocal chords due to cancer.

The big change in corporation tax will give a temporary 30-per - cent increase in the rate of tax - free depreciation allowances on new capital plant and equipment expenditures exceeding a company's normal capital outlays. This will embrace assets purchased from now until March 31, 1963, and apply only in the first tax year in which the asset is acquired.

Mr. Fleming said the price advantage to Canadian producers from the dollar's discount won't last forever. They had to keep competitive, and any unwarranted price or wage increases could cost them the opportunity to reap the full benefits of the discount move.

The budget gave no hint of how far the government intends to push down the dollar's value.

Mr. Fleming said this program will be geared to other policies aimed at reducing interest rates and thus slowing down the inflow of foreign capital that has put upward pressure on the exchange rate.

A major objective, he said, is to meet Canadian capital requirements as far as possible from Canadian savings rather than from abroad.

Other policies tailored to the same general goals:

1. Government encouragement to a further reduction in Canadian lending rates.

2. Continuation of federal bond borrowing in the short-term field "for at least the next several months."

3. Cancellation of $245,000,-000 in bond holdings of the unemployment insurance fund that have been overhanging and unsettling the bond market. They will be exchanged for non-market government bonds.

4. A purchase fund to buy medium- and long - term government bonds in the market, spending up to $100,000,000 in the next 12 months.

There was no suggestion in the budget as to how much money might have to be put into the exchange markets to depress the dollar's value. This depends on market conditions and on how far the government wants to push it, but it appears possible the amount could run to several hundred million dollars a year.

Mr. Fleming said he will need $900,000,000 in cash this fiscal year to cover the budget deficit and meet non - budgetary financial operations.

This will have to be raised by bond borrowings, and compared with last year's $222,800,000 increase in bond debt.

But it doesn't include the planned exchange market operations or the $100,000,000 bond purchase fund.

Informants said the latter would probably involve short-term financing to replace the longer - term bonds purchased, and thus mean no additional borrowings on balance.

However, the exchange market operations to depress the dollar's value would eventually mean new borrowings, though this might be stretched out by arrangements with the Bank of Canada.

Personal income tax will be applied to wives and families of Canadian servicemen and diplomats outside Canada as it already is to the husband.

Mr. Fleming also announced he will try to work out with provincial co-operation a program for "portable" industrial pensions which a worker can take from job to job, and for supervision of the many private pension plans to ensure their solvency.

The new federal - provincial tax arrangement proposed for next year would mean a $300,-000,000 cut in federal personal and corporation income tax rates starting next Jan. 1.

But this was being done to provide the provinces with elbow room to levy their own taxes in the revenue fields vacated by Ottawa. If the provinces did this, as expected, it would mean no tax saving for Canadians.

Varied World Reaction Shown To The Budget

Many Inclined to Take 'Wait, See' Attitude

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Businessmen, nations and markets reacted in varied ways Wednesday to Finance Minister Fleming's "economic budget."

The British government was startled. A United States reporter saw American tourists getting a break from plans to make the Canadian dollar worth more than the American. A South African opposition spokesman contrasted his nation's shortage of foreign capital with Canada's over-abundance.

The international money markets, the Canadian dollar fell to 99 cents in the wake of Mr. Fleming's announcement to decrease its value.

Canadians generally were happy with the abolition of the 10 per cent excise tax on cars. But many who tried to peer into the future to see the over-all effect of the budget found a galaxy of partial shells unrevealing.

There is a sampling of the reaction from various quarters:

CANADA

Members of the investment community were polled and described to take a "wait-and-see" attitude. Their comments — mostly off-record—ranged from optimism that the finance minister had done a good job in his objectives, to strong doubt.

The investment spoke-sman saw the possibility that if the Canadian dollar stays weak and interest rates remain at a historic pattern of higher rates in Canada than in the United States, then another surge of American buying may come into Canada.

Gerald McGeachy, vice-president of the Canadian Consumer Association, said: "We are apprehensive that Mr. Fleming's budget is not going to do the job he thinks it is going to do."

Montgomery said the association for several years has been promoting authorities construction to assist employment and had asked for higher depreciation on structures based on wintertime payrolls and for sales tax relief on extra equipment needed for winter construction.

Three Laotian Princes Agree To Form Govt.

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—The three princes of the warring factions in Laos agreed today to form a government of national unity to be assisted by the Southeast Asian nation's king.

The three princes—pro-Western Premier Boun Oum, neutralist Souvanna Phouma and pro-Communist Souphanouvong—said they will integrate the divided country's three armies into a single force.

At the end of their four-day summit meeting, they pledged their support to the future government. But its composition remained uncertain.

A joint communique of the princes, signed in a salon of Zurich's plush Dolder Hotel, said the new National Union government will include representatives of the three factions and "will be of a temporary nature."

"The government will be formed according to a special procedure, by direct designation and nomination of the king with-out going through the national assembly."

OUT OF POLITICS

King Savang Vatthana, by Laotian tradition, refrains from taking a hand in politics. But he has been trying to get the rival factions together.

The statement added that the three princes will continue their discussions on national unity in the future, "as was the case in the past."

The three princes pledged to support the neutrality of Laos and to support all efforts for an effective cease-fire.

The Zurich meeting of princes thus ended without an agreement on the thorniest issue of the Laotian problem — how power should be distributed among the pro - Communist, anti-Communist and neutralist factions.

WALKER LOTTERY FEUD FOUGHT IN COMMONS

Minister Refuses To Blow His Top

OTTAWA (CP)—The "Walker lottery" was fought in the Commons Wednesday but it was hard to tell who won.

It erupted late in what had been a routine debate on the spending estimates of the public works department.

Works Minister Walker interrupted a speech by Frank Howard (CCF — Skeena) and shattered the quiet of the chamber by saying:

"Mr. Speaker is a game going on among the CCF members. They are trying to get me to blow my top."

He said it was something like a merry-go-round but to whether he was going to explode over it or not was the theme of several questions delaying progress on his estimates.

Mr. Walker, a man with a hot temper and tart tongue, said he is determined not to take the bait "and it has given me a wonderful exercise in self-control."

He blamed the CCF for the fact that study of several department estimates was in its fourth day. In his opinion, it should have taken only a few hours.

Then he turned on Mr. Howard. "Howard, you are the ringleader."

"He should go home at night and look at himself. I am as big a — god I leave him to fill in the blank — as I propose to nearly all the Canadian public."

Mr. Walker said.

SCATHING ATTACK

Mr. Howard replied:

"Words come to my mind which I applied on another occasion to the prime minister and Lake Ontario veterans of the about certain accusations they made. I will not repeat those words but they are equally as well to the minister of public works."

(Last Feb. 10 Mr. Howard was temporarily suspended from the Commons for calling the prime minister and Veterans Affairs Minister Churchill had made "underhanded and scurrilous remarks.")

Then Mr. Walker is asking for a blank cheque "so that he can squander millions of dollars."

There were another half dozen sharp exchanges between the two before the feud simmered down temporarily.

An hour later Mr. Howard had the floor when the normal adjournment hour was reached. He suggested the House adjourn and continue the estimates at a later date.

Mr. Walker and Mr. Churchill, government House leader, tried to continue the sitting and finish the final part of the estimates. But Mr. Howard wouldn't hear of it, noting that the hour was reached the National Capital Commission.

"I have had more too big a subject to skip over."

Reds Prevent Truce Team Getting Equipment--Green

GENEVA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada, returning to Ottawa today, said Soviet "blocs" are preventing the supply of adequate inspection equipment for the international control commission in Laos.

Ending an eight-day visit—his second—to the 14-nation conference on Laos, Green said in an interview: "It looks as though the conference will get down to working out terms of reference for the commission next week," getting away from formal speechmaking that has occupied the time of the five-week meetings.

"It seems to be the generally held view the conference will get down to work on the terms of reference that will take God only knows."

He then referred to the problems of getting Canadian flights planes and other necessary equipment for the Indian-Canada-Poland commission trying to supervise a cease-fire in Laos.

Before leaving for Ottawa, Green told reporters he was "very hopeful" the ICC will soon get the equipment it needs to supervise the cease-fire. He said he was sure the report by British delegate Malcolm MacDonald, American deputy delegate John Steeves and the permanent Canadian delegate Chester Ronning, Green is due in Ottawa tonight.

Green opened up strongly—not for the first time—on this question in the conference Wednesday and received backing from the United States, France and Britain, which is co-chairman with the Soviet Union of the conference.

Green, fortified by a report from Canadian Commissioner Gabriel Lagace in Laos, demanded that "without further delay the two co-chairmen should meet with representatives of the three members of the international commission to work out the practical details consulting as necessary the government of Laos on the best offers of the equipment.

"There shouldn't be any difficulty of getting the equipment at once if it were not for the Russian blocking it," Green said in the interview.

Western Powers Considering State of Alert for NATO

LONDON (Reuters) — Informed sources here said today Western powers are considering a greater state of alert and preparation for NATO forces as an answer to the new Russian threat to Berlin.

The threat to the divided city was tied in with Soviet Premier Khrushchev's announcement to the Communist party congress he will sign a peace treaty with East Germany at the end of this year.

The Soviet premier also told the meeting, called to mark the 20th anniversary of Nazi Germany's attack on the Soviet Union, that "the moment the U.S. resumes nuclear tests, the Soviet Union will do so too."

The U.S. has declared warnings were weighed cooly by Western leaders.

A West German foreign office spokesman said in Bonn that the Russian leader's remarks were "no surprise, but rather the confirmation of known facts in the timing of a German peace treaty."

British observers viewed Khrushchev's speech as his latest attempt to keep the pressure on Berlin's nerves over Berlin.

In Communist East Germany, the cold war message was received with predictable delight by official sources.

Observers here said Wednesday's speech leaves no doubt that Russia will sign the treaty and as a consequence turn over control of the present routes over to Berlin to the East German regime.

They considered the tone of Khrushchev's message to be a clear indication that the pressure moves is in recent weeks.

Gordon Holds Firm to View MP Attacks on Him Malicious

OTTAWA (CP)—CNR President Donald Gordon holds firm to his view that members of Parliament attacking him have been unfair, irresponsible and malicious.

"I stand by it," he said as his parting shot at the commons railway committee Wednesday night with a consultative study of the publicly owned CNR's 1960 annual report and budget for 1961.

His chief critic, Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur), had told the committee in the minutes before that he continues in his belief that the CNR needs a president who can win the willingness of employees by winning their confidence.

Mr. Fisher said he would move himself—or support any other member's motion—that have the committee recommend Mr. Gordon's replacement as CNR head.

While CNR accounts and budget were not subject to formal vote, Mr. Gordon will continue to be a figure in further inquiry.

The committee was scheduled today to consider pension rights of CNR employees whose services are terminated by layoffs and benefits provided for CNR men in the armed forces on reserve at the end of a line.

Mr. Gordon said he will be present at the next railway committee studies the annual budget of Trans-Canada Air Lines. As a TCA director, he announced that Gerald Gundermann R. McGregor will not appear this year. He is on leave for medical check-up, Mr. Gordon said.

The budget, approved by the CNR board of directors in February, estimated a deficit of $64,000,000 for 1961 compared with $67,497,000 last year.

Mr. Gordon said that earlier in the committee hearings he had been challenged for using "strong" words, irresponsible and malicious to describe attacks on his Commons on him by critical MPs.

On checking the record, he said, he had not used the words.

They were, he said, probably inspired by editorials he had read.

LABOR DISPUTE THREATENS ALL METRO BUILDING

Suppliers May Close Down Industries

TORONTO (CP) — Employers and unions in Toronto building industry seemed set today to force the pace of their bitter dispute to a showdown that could halt all construction in the metropolitan area by Monday.

Union pickets posted at the international airport project in nearby Malton and along the Canadian National Railways Toronto's lakeshore for the second day running were confident they would stall work on those jobs.

An ultimatum from suppliers of ready-mix cement to their striking labor leaders Wednesday served notice that the industry would be forced to close down its operations unless the drivers agree to apply picketed construction sites.

The Toronto Building Trades Council also called all construction workers in the Toronto area to a meeting Monday at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in a one-day show of solidarity.

The strikers gained powerful allies Wednesday in the executive of financial support from the labor leaders' unions in Toronto and district.

GUARD BUILDING

Meanwhile, management Wednesday, transit officials warned the dispute threatens the safety of workers on the subway and University Avenue subway extension. Ontario legislature building. Plainclothes provincial police guard the site daily amid rumors of a possible rush on the building by strikers.

The dispute, climax of a union campaign to organize all construction workers, has run a course of violent skirmishes, mass picketing and sympathy moves since the first housing and apartment construction strike began May 15 with 2,000 men.

Police have arrested 53 union members and 70 face charges ranging through assault, unlawful assembly and obstructing police.

By Wednesday night, some 1,500 men had left the major housing, public works and commercial building jobs. The stoppage has put the brakes on dozens of apartment buildings, factories, schools and hospitals as well as insurance building. The cement firms suspended 15 men.

Trade Minister Against Policy Given by Coyne

METCALFE, Ont. (CP)—Trade Minister Hees questioned Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne's solution to Canada's economic problems Wednesday night.

He said "Mr. Coyne's suggested solution of applying high interest rates as the cure for our problems is an isolationist and protective economic policy.

"It has raised grave doubts in the minds of Canadians as to the wisdom of applying it to our vitally important matters."

Mr. Hees was the principal Progressive Conservative Association. Mr. Hees said he believes Canada's future is extremely negative.

"Instead of a rosy future for Canadian export trade, Mr. Hees said exports have increased substantially in the past year, and there is every indication the rise will continue.

Eichmann Says He Tried to Save Jews by Providing African Home

JERUSALEM (AP) Adolf Eichmann testified today he tried to save Europe's Jews by providing a homeland for them on the island of Madagascar.

The former Gestapo lieutenant-colonel said he conceived the "Madagascar plan" that was juggled around in high Nazi circles but never went got past the paper stage.

Eichmann identified specific portions of the plan as his own, particularly a study of climate and living conditions on the French island off the East African coast.

He studied all prior conditions which were sine qua non (indispensable) for anyone emigrating there," Eichmann said. "I went to Hamburg and talked to peo-

Monetary Fund Plans Study of Canadian Dollar

International Group Not Consulted on Policy

NEW YORK (CP)—"Pity the poor currency trader," said one harried foreign exchange dealer after Wednesday's heavy dealings in the Canadian dollar.

The Canadian dollar sold at its lowest price in the New York, Montreal and London exchanges since the Canadian government lifted controls completely 9½ years ago.

It sold at a discount, where for years it had been at a premium, closing at 97.37 cents.

There is no way of keeping an accurate running check volume in currency, but the New York foreign exchange market is known to have the world's largest turnover—in Canadian dollars. It was there that trading Wednesday was unprecedented.

DIDN'T SAY

It all started after Finance Minister Fleming disclosed in his budget message Tuesday night that the government plans to drive the Canadian dollar to a "fluctuating discount." But he didn't say how far down.

The price of the Canadian dollar changed almost from sale to sale Wednesday as the Bank of Canada advised its offices not to support the currency sales without first consulting head office in Montreal.

Most of the biggest traders went short on the Canadian dollar, selling it forward, borrowed and sold the currency at a higher price with the hope of buying it back at a lower price later on.

The New York Herald Tribune said there was "widespread conviction that the disorder in the market would continue until Mr. Fleming gave some indication of the point at which he wants the dollar to stabilize."

MOVES TO HALT

The New York Times said there were reliable reports the Canadian government already went a long way toward stabilizing its use of the Bank of Canada exchange fund.

"If the Canadian dollar threatened to slip out of control, the exchange fund would be used to increase the supply of United States currency," The Times said. "If the Canadian dollar grew too strong, the fund would suspend sales and add to the official flow of United States currency."

Canada's gold and United States dollar reserves now stand at slightly less than $2,000,000,000.

Longshoremen At New York Return to Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Longshoremen returned to the piers today after a two-day work stoppage that crippled the port of New York.

But the week-long national maritime strike grew worse. The immediate effect on American-flag ships rose to at least 150 in ports on the east, west and gulf coasts.

Negotiations were in a stalemate in both coast areas as the deadlock deepened. More industries—especially air lines—were hit.

A group of oil producers in Texas asked President Kennedy to invoke the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and obtain a court order for an 80-day cooling-off period.

One of the ships knocked out of service was the United States Lines passenger liner America which was to sail for Europe Saturday with 1,700 passengers, its largest list of the year. Friday's sailing of the liner Constitution and the cruise ship Santa Rosa also were cancelled.

Most of the 946 passenger ships, cargo ships and tankers flying the American flag are at sea and will not be affected until they reach a United States port.

Different versions of the main issues in the dispute have been given but one issue is unique: assistence on the right to organize crews of American-owned ships flying foreign flags. Shipowners refuse to bargain on this issue.

Suit Settled Before Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Carole Tregoff's ex-husband has settled a malpractice suit against Dr. Bernard Finch, the Long Beach osteopath whose trial in which he was charged with murder in the slayings of Mrs. Finch and Mrs. Tregoff's husband, Maj. Harry Tregoff, 34, and Finch, 43, were convicted last April, at which time Mrs. Tregoff married his wife, Barbara Jean, 36. Both were given life sentences.

Carole's ex - husband, James J. Papper, 37, sued Finch and Mrs. Finch for $100,000 damages. The $100,000 damages settlement was announced on his leg Oct. 24, 1958.

Papper alleged that Finch failed to perform up two areas in his leg after removing a cyst from behind his right knee.

Public Servants Are Not Masters Of MPs--Diefenbaker on Coyne

OTTAWA (CP)—"Public servants are not the masters of the elected representatives of the people," Prime Minister Diefenbaker asserted Wednesday night in his first public comment on the controversy between Finance Minister Fleming and James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada.

"I point this out because it is necessary to do so," the Conservative leader told a country-wide audience over the CBC program, the Nation's Business.

He said the publicized views of the governor on monetary policy had presented "blocks in the path of progress that can defy even the most patient and persistent efforts."

"The case of Mr. Coyne of the Bank of Canada now is thoroughly out in the open where it can be discussed and assessed as it should be," he said, "said Mr. Diefenbaker.

"You shouldn't forget this—that among the things that he (Mr. Coyne) recommends for the Canadian people is a 25 per-cent rise in tariffs for a few years and a 10 per-cent sales and diesel oil taxes and the like."

"Civil servants are entitled to give their views, however exalted, they are not above the elected representatives of the people.

"No one can be allowed, no matter how much he or she may disagree with government policy to impede the national policy for the development and expansion of the Canadian economy to realize opportunities for all Canadians," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Resumption of Nuclear Tests Threatened by Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev warned Wednesday night that the Soviet Union developed "quite a few" nuclear weapons that need testing and will resume nuclear tests immediately if the United States does.

In a long-awaited speech to the Communist party congress marking the 20th anniversary of the Nazi attack on Russia, the Soviet premier also vowed to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany "at the end of this year" if the Western Allies do not join Russia in a German settlement.

It was the closest Khrushchev has come publicly to setting a date for such a treaty, which he has repeatedly threatened to sign.

Khrushchevs speech in effect replied to a U.S. note last week and that blamed Russia for the deadlock in the Geneva nuclear test ban talks and hinted the U.S. might renounce the test moratorium it has observed since the talks started in October, 1958.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wednesday, June 21, 1961

The summer session of Parliament remained in doubt, with Prime Minister Diefenbaker saying the question of a July-August break will be determined by the progress made in the three parties.

Transport Minister Walker announced that Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has projected insurance of a record premium of 101.17 on its first year of government-guaranteed mortgages.

Erhart Regier (CCF — Burnaby - Coquitlam) called it "shocking" that Canadian companies had made profits of about $15,000,000 offer in the first CMHC auction.

Work on the Trans-Canada Highway is behind schedule, Public Works Minister Walker announced.

Mr. Walker said the government will undertake the inquiry—described as a "consultation"—to determine whether Canada is seeking any unfair competitive advantage in the export of her goods. These sources said the fund was given no advance inkling of the Canadian pool-policy.

Normally, the country which plans to revise its exchange rates consults with the fund before announcing its decision. However, Canada is in a slightly different category since she maintains what is known as a fluctuating rate rather than a pegged rate. Canada's Canadian dollar float free in world markets since 1950.

CRISIS SWITCH

What apparently seems to fund officers to be a switch from the statement by Finance Minister Fleming that he will "facilitate" the movement of the exchange rate to a "substantial discount" in relation to the American dollar.

In a sense, the Canadian government may therefore be attempting to devalue the Canadian dollar without pegging it at a fixed rate, Informants said of the fund consultations that in some instances a fluctuating rate may be necessary during times when it may be difficult to decide what is a satisfactory pegged rate would be.

The fund, composed of some 100 countries, has the responsibility to maintain an orderly pattern of exchange rates to prevent a recurrence of the disastrous competitive exchange "wars" some decades ago when countries deliberately cheapened their currencies to pry markets away from other exporting countries.

HEAVY DAMAGE IN COLLISION EAST OF CITY

A Don Mills salesman, Wm. John Gillespie, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital with minor facial injuries early today after his car struck a parked auto on No. 2 Highway east of the city and rolled over.

Damage to the car gas estimated at $1,500, and to the parked vehicle, owned by J. F. Maracle, Tyendinaga township, about $100.

Police said the accident took place about 1:30 this morning six miles east of the city.

Flying Saucer Airdrop Planned

Citizens in the local area, particularly youngsters and flying enthusiasts, will have an opportunity to participate on July 1 Air Force Day observations for RCAF Station Trenton. On that sunny afternoon during the week of June 30 an aircraft from RCAF Trenton will take off, circle the local area, and launch an airdrop of attractive "Flying Saucers". Saucers featuring the CC-106 Yukon and its appearance at Trenton Air Force Day ceremonies on July 1.

Consisting of a soft cardboard six inch pie plate wrapped in a colorful CC-106 motif, the first of the Flying Saucer display will form an attractive souvenir for boys and girls to take home as a memento from the Royal Canadian Air Force. As an added attraction several Flying Saucer specials will plummet from the sky as part of the airdrop, each containing a special marker with instructions to report to Station Trenton on Saturday, July 1 to receive a prize.

Visitors to RCAF Trenton are urged to make plans to report at the Airforce Week-end hour to avoid the traffic rush and also view the colorful station display prior to the fly past and the Golden Hawks aerobatic demonstration.

Cool Weather Stops Arrival Of Summer

"It's already summer and we haven't had Spring yet", one local lady has been heard exclaiming in the official arrival of summer, this combined with the fact there has been an evident lack of sunshine this year.

Temperatures-wise, however, June so far has been high for the average. Last year early June brought temperatures as low as 42 and 43 degrees some nights but bright sunny weather during the day evened things out.

This year the cool nights are with us still, and dull cloudy weather has kept Old Sol under cover, leaving with us the impression that summer really hasn't arrived.

Bell to Spend $1,500,000 in Bancroft Area

Telephone service throughout the Madawaska Valley will be improved by the spending of more than a $1,500,000 construction program now being carried out by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

The vast improvement program is taking place in the exchanges Bell acquired last year from The Madawaska Valley Telephone Company from the Ontario Government. These include the exchanges Barry's Bay, Bircott, Killaloe, Maynooth and Palmer Rapids exchanges.

Continuing over the next 12 months, the work will provide new facilities in each exchange that will enable Bell Telephone to:

1. Provide telephones to all persons waiting for them;

2. Reduce the number of persons sharing each multi-party line;

3. Extend service to reserve areas now without it, including the Port Flower, Hartsmere, Herman and McArthur Mills;

5. Make more circuits available for long distance service.

When the work is completed, the tiny exchanges at Bolsover and Monteagle Valley will be closed. Customers in Bolsover and the southern part of the Monteagle Valley exchange will then be served from Bancroft, while the northern half of the Monteagle exchange will be joined to the Maynooth system. 238 MILES OF LINE

To provide facilities for these service improvements, the Bell Company will install some 1,700,000 feet — or over 320 miles — of underground cable and wire throughout the valley during the next 12 months.

Bulk of the work is being carried out in the Bancroft, Bircott and Maynooth exchanges which are administered from Belleville. Bell will install some 1,000,000 feet of new cable and wire will be installed in these exchanges, about 75 per cent of it underground.

The company is burying as much wire and cable as terrain conditions will allow in order to reduce the chances of telephone service being disrupted by storms that bring down poles and aerial lines.

The entire telephone wire and cable network serving the valley will be overhauled and reorganized as a result of the improvement program.

In addition to providing for the immediate needs, the new facilities will be sufficient to look after future telephone growth throughout the valley including the conversion of all telephones to dial operation in a few years.

Christening of Elizabeth I Is Highlight of Henry VIII

By ROBERT TANNER

With the sun shining once more, the second night of the ninth Stratford Festival opened to a much more auspicious beginning than the first, as the Festival Company presented "Henry VIII," almost the last play that Shakespeare wrote, and in which, it is believed, he collaborated with John Fletcher. In attending or commenting on this play, one realizes how very much closer the events depicted were to the time the play was written, when the little Princess Elizabeth, whose christening forms the climax and finale scene, had been dead only nine years, inevitably this molds and colors the treatment.

Whether or not it is due to the dual authorship it is hard to say, but the Stratford production is decidedly uneven, ranging from periods of true greatness in quite long sections of considerable tedium. Why, one wonders, do the Elizabethan authorities regard judicious cutting as the unforgivable sin? The Prologue promises two hours of entertainment; we were given over three. But one can forgive much for the breathtaking spectacle of the Christening scene, surely one of the most brilliant ever to have adorned the Festival stage. Brian Jackson had already delighted us with his costumes throughout the play, but this climax leaves the audience gasping.

RAIN IMPRESSIVE

Acting honors go, as so often that years, to Douglas Rain for his penetrating portrayal of Cardinal Wolsey. Subtle, yet forceful throughout the point, he allows the words and not the actor to illuminate his own character, until for a few brief moments after his downfall we see the bitterness break through, to be replaced by resignation and relief. Altogether a performance which should go down in Stratford history as one of the "greats."

It need hardly be said that Douglas Campbell makes a very convincing Henry; with the figure and regal bearing he is almost an exact embodiment of the Holbein portrait. Kate Lynch as Katherine is perhaps not quite so successful, mainly as the result of her rather harsh voice and at times unqueenly diction. In spite of the she played a long time, the role with fire and sulhority, pouring scorn on Wolsey even at the height of her power.

"Henry VIII" provides more opportunities for the lesser roles than does "Coriolanus", opportunities which the company does not fail to exploit. Muriel Harris, Jack Creley as Buckingham (unfortunately beheaded soon after the play opens), Eric Christmas as a delightful Capucius, Norman and Robert Goodier as Lord Sands all make the most of well conceived portrayals. It was a pity that William Needles, Pat Galloway and Gerard Parkes (as Cardinal Campeius, Anne Boleyn and Cranmer respectively) have comparatively short parts, since they handle them with great competence.

PLAY UNEVEN

It is perhaps unfair to leave the Director, Jean Gascon, until last, to so late a mention, but for this he may perhaps blame the uneven nature of the play itself. There is still much that can be done, by lightening up, increasing the pace of some scenes, and (dare we suggest it again?) cutting to create a production in which the present-seen will predominate to such an extent that we will hardly come one of the most memorable of Stratford's presentations. From his past work, Mr. McCowan has shown himself capable of doing this.

Traffic Group Makes Several Suggestions

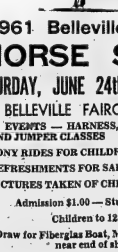
TRENTON — The Trenton Traffic Committee, at a recent meeting, came up with a slate of recommendations for town council's approval.

One suggestion was that the section of Fraser Park Drive between the egg grading station and Quinte Cleaners be closed to all east-bound traffic. Another recommendation is the use of a four-way amber flashing light be placed at the intersection of Byron Street with Dixon Drive. Two fatal accidents have occurred in this area in the past few weeks. The committee also suggested that yellow cross-walks be placed on Dundas St. West, one in front of the Church and Newton store and one in front of the Scotch store, for pedestrians and motorists are taking note of the new existing crosswalks on this street.

Another recommendation is that Murphy Street be designated a one-way (north) street entirely. Part of this street is now one-way.

W. J. Houston, principal of Trenton High School, has asked that the committee look into some action to do away with parking around the perimeter of the high school. Councillor Lloyd Worrall has suggested that some sort of stop sign arrangement be instigated on Henry Street. The absence of directional signs on Dundas St., says the councillor, makes for confusion on the part of the motorists ,who are at a loss as to which stream of traffic has the right of way, north-south bound or east-west bound.

Commence Road Surfacing Work



TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Aldersey said today that town workmen had commenced surfacing operations on Elizabeth Street. The town was rented a machine for this purpose.

Mr. Aldersey said that pavement operations in Dundas St. would be delayed until the end of August, in order that the prepared base could have time to settle.

The contract for sidewalk reconstruction has yet to be signed between the town and Carr's Electric Company. Areas affected will be decided upon. Originally, the town planned to renew 15,000 square feet of sidewalk, but only about one third of this area will be done this year, for economic reasons.

Tossed Brick Through Liquor Store Window

TRENTON — Reginald Chase, 45, of Brighton, is in jail at Trenton today, charged with committing wilful damage to property. Police say that Chase threw a brick through the liquor store window in Brighton shortly after midnight this morning.

Air Force Day Visitors Urged To Take Photos

TRENTON — Public Relations officials at RCAF Station Trenton announced today that "Bring Your Camera and Record Your Visit" will be the order of the day at Station Trenton on Saturday, July 1, when the annual RCAF Station Trenton and No. 6 Repair Depot Air Force Day program will be presented to the public.

Camera enthusiasts in the Bay of Quinte area will have numerous opportunities to photograph both on the ground and in the air all the recent additions to Canada's RCAF Air Transport Command fleet, from the Boeing Jet Yukon, the C130B Hercules, the Caribou, the CC-109 Cosmopolitan and other aircraft introduced into service since Air Force Day 1960.

Also available for public inspection will be the elaborate ground display demonstrating the vast network of trades and occupations at work in the RCAF Station Trenton, together with recreational and hobby facilities organized by RCAF personnel.

Seeking Leave To Kill Weeds In Trent River

TRENTON — On Friday Councillor Lloyd Worrall will attend a meeting at Ottawa, at which delegates from this area will discuss Trent waterway improvement with the minister of transport. For months, various municipal groups in Trenton have endeavored to find some way of getting official permission to try out a chemical method of removing weeds from the bay and the lower section of the river. Groups and individuals have sown patches of the bay with 2-4-D pellets, with good results, but to date the Ontario Water Resources Commission has not granted official permission for the use of these pellets. Town engineer Aldersey said today that he would be advised this week that the commission is still considering the matter. Meanwhile, the weeds are flourishing and, according to the boating public, have got to the stage where they seriously interfere with water traffic.

MRS. HAROLD FOOTE

Suffering a heart attack in her home, 97, Canniton Road, Tuesday morning, Mrs. Rose Evelyn Foote died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital shortly after admittance. She was born in this city, 69 years ago, being daughter of Mrs. Mary Lloyd and the late John W. Lloyd, and had been a resident of the community all of her life. She was well known and highly respected in her community.

Mrs. Foote was a member of Bethel Avenue Baptist Church and fraternally was identified with the Women's Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America. Surviving are her husband, Harold Foote; her mother, Mrs. Mary Lloyd of this city; two daughters, Mrs. George (Beverly) Marion, of Hamilton; Mrs. Harold (Shirley) Maracle of Shannonville; two brothers, John and Percy Lloyd, both of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Helen Smith, also of Belleville. A 13 year surviving are six grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 370 Bridge Ave. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. JOHN GEORGE SCROGGIE

In failing health for the past four years, Mrs. Grace Irene Scroggie, formerly of Thurlow, Belleville, died Wednesday at Kingston General Hospital. She was in her 82nd year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, she was born in Amelisburg township and had lived in Quebec before coming to Thurlow. She was married to John George Scroggie 53 years ago.

She was a 1909 graduate of the Kingston hospital two years after hours and practised hospital school of nursing and did active nursing for many years. She was a member of the United Church.

Pre-deceased by her husband, John George Scroggie, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Helen Yorke of Belleville.

Heavy Docket In County Court

Kenneth Keller, 19, and William Destano, 22, were arraigned in county magistrate's court this morning with breaking into and entering Cook's Motor Sales at Shannonville and stealing money, Crown Attorney demanded in custody for one week.

Selmont Legacy and Morley Cameron were charged with attempting to steal gas under the value of $50. The two were remanded for one week.

Raymond Madore, 18, was charged with indecent assault. He was remanded in custody for psychiatric examination.

Gary Parks, 18, Chesterfield; Keith Mathews; 19, and John Jones, 22,- faced charges of breaking and entering the Liquor Control Board Store at Shannonville, with intent to commit the indictable offence of theft. Bail was set at $5,000 property. The three were remanded until June 29.

Jim Hart, 17, of the Plainfield district, was charged with assaulting Douglas Wells, 14, causing bodily harm. The charge arose from an argument between the two boys. Park was found guilty and was bound over to keep the peace and pay court costs of $38.

William Albert Maracle was charged with the assault of George Maracle, therefore committing common assault. The case was adjourned until July 6th, to enable him to get counsel.

A charge of theft of $157 against George Baptiste of the Shannonville district was dismissed.

IN MEMORIAM

BROADHURST—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Ford A. Broadhurst, who passed away June 22nd, 1958.
Time heals but never erases
The memories we hold dear
In our hearts you will always be with us
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
Not a day, dear Ford,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by mother, father, sisters and brother.

BENNETT — In loving memory of Sandy Alexander Bennett, who passed away June 22nd, 1958.
Time passes, years go by,
But memories remain,
For always they will be.
Sadly missed by husband,
Always in our memory.
Inserted by wife, Eva, daughter Marion and family.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market moved into its second record-breaking day by establishing another high on the industrial index in light trading. Industrials gained 1.19 to 281.56, golds .40 to 83.57 and base metals .19 to 183.89. Western oils fell .43 to 86.64. The Industrials volume was 700,000 shares compared with 580,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Steels and papers led the advance, while some financial institutions also made sharp gains. Steel Company, Dominion Bridge, Dominion Foundries and Steel, Atlas and Algoma were all up. In papers Consolidated, Abitibi and Great Lakes advanced.

"Imperial Bank of Commerce reached a high for the year.

In base metals, many seniors moved up smartly. Geco, Falconbridge, Noranda, Ventures and International all advanced.

Golds were quiet with Kerr Addison and Hollinger up fractionally.

The market showed its confidence in Tuesday night's budget by rising more than five points on the industrial index Wednesday.

Finance Minister Fleming's measures to depress the Canadian dollar and stimulate the 7½ per cent excise tax on automobiles sent papers and motors skyward.

Abitibi, Great Lakes, Consolidated, Price Brothers and Anglo Newfoundland all rose in price.

The market set a new high during the first hour of trading and duplicated the feat at noon.

In motors, Chrysler jumped 4% to 46%, Ford of Canada five dollars to 180, and U.S. Ford 3% to 89%. General Motors began moving later in the day and wound up with a one-point gain to 46%.

On the exchange today, industrials rose 3.125 to 280.13, golds 1.26 to 83.17 and base metals 1.83 to 183.76. The final volume was 2,506,000 shares compared with 1,909,000 Tuesday.

The base metals market followed the lead set by industrials and also rose. Falconbridge, Geco, Hudson Bay, Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Noranda, Quemont and Ventures were all up appreciably while small koalz went to Gunnar and International Nickel.

Among golds, Dome, Giant Yellowknife, Kerr Addison and McIntyre Porcupine were all ahead substantially.

Pekingese Pup Settles for Any Kind of Tent

"Tiny" can't tell the difference between a pup tent and the family camping tent.

Tiny is a Pekingese puppie who calls ten-year old Ricky Alexander, of Goldale Road, "master".

She failed to come in from the evening romp in the yard Thursday night, setting off an extended search, and causing much concern for her welfare. Tiny failed to appear after several hours of calling and searching and was still among the missing early this morning.

Missing, that is, until someone decided to lift the flap on the family camping tent set up for an airing in the back yard.

Out popped Tiny, as bright and chipper as ever and apparently undisturbed by all the whistling and calling that had echoed through her "campsight" the previous evening.

Young Master Alexander can be found today giving his pet ten easy lessons on how to tell the difference between a "pup" and "camp" tent.

EICHMANN

there would eventually wipe out the Jews.

On the witness stand for the third day, Eichmann insisted he always approached the "solution" to the Jewish problem by "trying to put some ground, some soil, under their feet".

The Madagascar idea was the first action Eichmann claimed as his own. Everything else, he said, was done under orders from somebody else.

Defence counsel Robert Servatius led Eichmann through one document after another, once tried the defendant described as official records which gave out of orders from his superiors.

Every time he signed a paper, Eichmann said, he got it confirmed first by a superior.

"I was not even a man requiring confirmation," he said.

When deportations first started, Eichmann said, the real sparkplugs behind them were the local Nazi gaulelters, the district party leaders. He said Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and Hans Frank, the Nazi governor of Poland, once tried to halt shipments of Jews into Poland "but the gaulelter of the Reich intervened and Hitler and in 1942 and 1943 succeeded in having the way."

It was in Poland's Auschwitz, Birkenau and Maidanek camps that most of the 6,000,000 Jewish victims died in gas chambers, crematoria and before SS firing squads.

Cornwall TV Station Wants To Leave CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — Television station CJSS-TV Cornwall applied Wednesday to the Board of Broadcast Governors for disaffiliation as a supplementary station of the CBC television service.

The station, owned jointly by Bushnell T.V. Company Limited of Ottawa and Canadian Marconi Co. Company of Montreal, asked for disaffiliation because it has a serious financial difficulties.

E. L. Bushnell, president of Bushnell T.V., said in a brief to CJOH-TV Ottawa, said disaffiliation would mean practically no loss of national TV service in the Cornwall area, most of it served by CBC stations in Montreal and Ottawa.

He said the Cornwall station's programming schedule would be meshed with those of CJOH-TV and Canadian Marconi's CFCF-TV Montreal which would supply CJSS — TV with Canadian-produced programs.

Queen's Prof Dies in Crash

SHELBURNE, N.H. (AP) — Roy L. Dorrance, 67, professor of chemistry at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., was killed Wednesday when a car he was driving struck broadside with a tractor trailer truck on Route 2.

Dorrance's wife, Lilian, suffered a broken arm and a possible neck fracture. She was taken to a Berlin hospital.

The truck driver, identified by police as Edwin A. Dringenberg, 37, of Portland, Me., escaped injury.

TAX REPEALED

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state's 15-per-cent tax on cigars and pipe tobacco goes up, in smoke July 1. The 1961 legislature repealed the tax, which had brought the state $13,800,000 in two years. For cigarette smokers, however, the five-cent-a-pack levy continues.

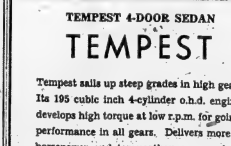
Outdoor Sketching Party At Madoc Centre Enjoyed

Prelude to painting for another summer season at the Madoc Art Centre is the June weekend outdoor sketching party. Artists from Belleville, Picton, Sutton West, Barrie, Hamilton, Toronto and local points, some 20 to 30 zealots of the brush and palette banded last weekend to record in line and color the freshness of familiar beauty spots and to catch new aspects of the Canadian landscape among the lakes and highlands of Hastings.

Early summer fragrance of woods, sunrise bird calls, rustle of pines and birches, chattering of rapids and the mood. Afterdark studio review of the day's canvases set the pace, as one by one each painting is given serious scrutiny with resident art director Mary Schneider and critic Don Fraser discuss its merits and make suggestions on color, composition and definition of the subject.

The Madoc painters' day begins when the bell sounds at the agreed time 15 minutes before each meal, to be collected at a nearby highway restaurant. From there they drive to the chosen location, unload, scatter, set up easels for the morning. The instructor makes rounds with comments and advice. The drive back for lunch is followed by afternoon hours at the same or a different spot. Paintings are finished at the Madoc Art Centre after dinner for the post-mortem evening review.

SPLENDID WEEKEND



Our lovely weekend is nearly over!" exclaimed sketchers, wryly, returning from sketching rocks and streams at Sicoe-ring's bridge and Queensboro. "A priceless weekend" they agreed, "Perfect summer weather, lovely friends, wholesome meals, accomodations with city comforts, swimming, boating, fishing, barbeques for outdoor appetites, breezy, scenic motoring everywhere."

Ceramic crafts are directed on the Centre grounds by Dr. Roman Schneider. Visiting instructors for the 10-week 1961 season opening July 1 will include Gustav Weizman, Ralph Allen and Jack Pepper in addition to Mr. Fraser, Dr. Roman and Mary Schneider.

Founded in 1954 and declared officially open by A. Y. Jackson, several hundreds from Montreal, Prince Edward Island, Ottawa to Fort William have visited Madoc Art Centre as an ideal environment for vacation painting. Also attracted group of them recently formed the Mary Schneider Art Club for winter reunion and review new paintings, visit galleries and continue the artistic and social companionship of the Madoc summer centre.

Trust Plan Will Ensure Education in University

Will your children want to attend university?

Will you have the money to send them anywhere up to 18 years from now?

The Canadian Scholarship Trust Plan, now about three months old, provides a way.

Representatives of the plan were in Belleville Wednesday and today explaining how it works. A team of counsellors will arrive in the city next week to explain the plan, and to give advice to interested parents.

The Canadian Scholarship Trust Plan was described as a non-profit plan administered by the C.S.T. Foundation and the C.S.T. committee, which are comprised of Canadian citizens active in education, finance and business, all of whom serve without remuneration.

Idea behind the plan is twofold: 1. It provides money for four years of university education for your child; 2. It seeks to raise the educational standards of the nation.

Here's how the plan works:

A child, boy or girl, must be enrolled in the plan before his eighth birthday. You, the parents or any other person interested in the child's future, open a savings account in your name with the Eastern Trust Company, Toronto. Between now and when your child is ready to attend university you save a small amount each month in your account. Depending on the age of your child when he is enrolled in the scholarship plan, you may save as little as $10, a month for 190 months, or a slightly larger sum month for a shorter period. Or, if you prefer, you may deposit a lump sum in your own name and leave it on deposit until your child is ready to go to university.

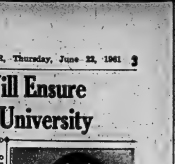
COST IS LOW

How is this different from setting aside money in a bank account or insurance plan?

When you start the plan today to enter university, you withdraw your savings from the Eastern Trust Company in four annual sums during the first year. Saving at the rate of $10 a month, for 190 months will produce $1,900. But you do not withdraw $1,900. You withdraw $1,850. Where did the $100 go? That is the only cost to you in the form of administrative expenses, etc.

Fine, but how does the plan differ from anything else now available?

Your own child's first year in university from the money you have forced yourself to save over a period of years by depositing regularly in your Eastern Trust Company account. The interest you have earned while it was in the account goes to the Canadian Scholarship Trust Fund. The small amount of interest your $1,900 has earned will finance your child through three more years of university — and, placed with the interest others have paid in, other parents has earned, it will pay the way for many other university - bound young people as well.



Must my child go to a university selected by the plan? No. No. Your child may choose any course at a prescribed standing for which a university awards a degree upon the completion of those four basic academic years. This means your child could enrol in the general arts course at Queen's, say, and sail through without any financial worries. The plan covers normal academic expenses such as tuition, registration, special laboratory or library fees.

MUST PASS YEAR

Does my child have to be brilliant in order to reap the benefits of the plan? No, all he has to do is pass his first year at university.

Supposing that when my child graduates from high school he doesn't know whether he wants to attend university? In that case, he has three years in which to decide before he is disqualified. If he decides not to attend university, you will get your money back and the gamble that he would attend university has just cost you $100. You do not collect the interest on your money, because it is said to help others go to university.

What if my child is sharp as a tack and wins another type of scholarship or some other type of financial assistance? Will this disqualify him from the benefits of the C.S.T. Plan?

Joey Schamerhorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Schamerhorn, a pet lover all his life and a member of the 14th Belleville Cub Pack, has received his 14th Cub badge. The 13th and 14th badges which he earned at the Cuboree, were presented to him recently by Mrs. Elsie Elliot at the Cub Pack's closing meeting of the season. It is the first year a pet badge has been awarded, being a new badge this year.

Joey's parents are also interested in Scout work. His mother is the ACM and his father the ASM of the 14th Belleville pack and will be going to Scouts early in the fall.

The Budget— A Prescription

Observers may have been struck by one point of similarity between the budget address of Hon. Donald Fleming, Minister of Finance, to the House of Commons on Tuesday evening and the proposals advanced by James E. Coyne, Governor of the Bank of Canada. Both were a melange, a mixture, though not necessarily a muddle, of many measures which, upon first glance, did not always appear to be consistent or else appeared to have little relation, one to the other. There similarity ended, speaking generally, though there were some points, the most noteworthy the alleviation of the 7½ per cent excise tax on automobiles, on which Mr. Fleming and Mr. Coyne were in agreement.

The apparently unrelated nature of many of Mr. Fleming's proposals, (together with the certainty that, in most cases at least, they are in fact closely related, either as counter-balances one to the other, or as separate forces working in the same direction), should make us slow to judge this budget.

It is one thing for some business leaders, as they have done, to comment immediately on the effect that some one budget proposal will have on their particular field of interest. It is quite another to weigh the long-term influence of all the many proposals in this budget and to arrive at a reasoned estimate of what the probable result will be on the Canadian economy as a whole. Only a fully-trained economist is qualified to pass this kind of judgment, and even he, we suspect, would hesitate to speak hastily.

For instance, what will be the effect of the decision to keep the exchange value of the Canadian dollar below par, in terms of the U.S. dollar? Surely this will depend, in part, on what this costs us, as well as how far below par the dollar is kept, a point regarding which Mr. Fleming did not indicate his intentions. It might be one thing to achieve this result by heavy purchases of U.S. dollars and quite another if this result can be achieved as it was on the day after the budget, by the mere proposal that such purchases be made if necessary.

Then, as Mr. Fleming himself intimated, the results which will flow from this policy regarding the value of the dollar will depend in large part, not upon the government and actions which it may take, but upon the manner in which Canadian businessmen take advantage of the opportunities which a cheaper Canadian dollar will open up to them. In circumstances like these, how can anyone, even the most expert of economists, do any more than guess at the net effect on the Canadian economy? How can one possibly estimate to what degree Canadian exports will be stimulated, and to what degree the benefits of this stimulation of exports will be offset by the inevitable inflationary pressure of a higher cost of living resulting from the higher cost, in terms of Canadian dollars, of the goods we import?

While experts and their educated guesses, it seems to us that the general public would be well advised to adopt a waiting attitude. Mr. Fleming has prescribed his remedy for our economic ills. It is not an "easy money" remedy, risking inflation. It is not a program of retrenchment, which is perhaps a fair description of the program earlier offered by Mr. Coyne. It is a "middle-of-the-road" prescription, with some unusual ingredients to give it spice. In the final analysis, it will be judged by results. It may be that what lies in store for us will not be entirely the result of the medicine provided—that, good or ill, it may come as much in spite of as because of Mr. Fleming's proposals. Still, the prescription should be judged by results. Mr. Fleming, we presume, would be happy with such an appraisal, being confident of his diagnosis and proposed treatment.

On one thing, most of the experts agree. This is no pre-election budget. We are not so sure. It is not a budget which should be expected to immediately precede an election—but the public is getting a little wary of the tired old formula of cutting taxes just before a vote and raising them again immediately afterwards. The best pre-election budget would be one which restored the economy to full health and that is, presumably, Mr. Fleming's objective. If he achieves it, then this would indeed be a pre-election budget—but the election is more likely to be next year, or even later, than next month.

MURDER IS ALL THE SAME

Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot, one-time stormy petrel of the Commons, is at it again, commenting on the Government's bill to set up two degrees of murder, Senator Pouliot said "For me there is either murder or no murder."

Not many voices may be raised in support of the Senator's stand, but we have a feeling that not many murder victims would quarrel with it.

Bloody Not Fair Cow

National Geographic Bulletin

"Ur's hard packer, mate, I'm crook, and everything's up the spout."

In this manner, a particularly Australian bloke, a man who speaks some of the most vigorous and inventive slang on earth, tells you that things could hardly be going worse.

The Australian peppers his speech with words that mean little to us, words like Woop-Woop (out of the world), crook (out of sorts), narked (fed), shella (girl), furphy, (rumor), bite cow (anything that does not meet with approval), galah (a fool approval), and wowser (a spoilsport, or killjoy).

But the great Australian adjective is bloody, a word that is avoided by polite company in England. On the continent down under, however, the word has become an accompaniment to one would hesitate to use in supreme court, the pulpit. In Aussie slang, it is just about the most flexible little six-letter word available, and it would not be stretching things to call it the perfect "One o'bloody clock, mate."

Contrary to popular notion, Australians do not speak English with a brogue. Immigrants were born within earshot of Bondi Beach or Bow Bells, but they formed only a minor part of the population. The Cockney and Australian accents are not at all alike in emphasis, intonation, inflection, or quality.

Like the American, the Australian tongue has developed out of time and circumstances in a raw, lusty country.

Going among the Australian might sleep in a wurley, gunyah, humpy, or bough shanty. All of these are aborigines' words for casual shelter.

He'd damper for breakfast—bread baked in ashes. Things would crook him, or go wrong, if he couldn't find a billabong, or water hole. He'd boil water for tea in a billy can, call a billy.

If this particular Australian were travelling in the Outback, he might run across Woop-Woop, Back-of-Beyond settlements — Hunchy Mama Creek, Woman's Grief, Mary-My-Gall, or Broken Cart. However, the Aussie proved surprisingly unimaginative in selecting place names, and the traveler would more likely encounter Anna Creek, Louisa Downs, or Alice Springs.

But you would find the bottom dollar that the first thing a thirsty bloke would look for in Alice Springs would be a cruiser (very large glass of beer), schooner (large glass), middy (10 ounces), or pony (the least).

In places where Australians come into contact with aborigines, they speak a pidgin, a kind of pidgin patois. The result is not exactly the King's English or the Australian's English, but it does have snack, primitive dignity.

Consider this pidgin translation of the second verse of the 23rd Psalm: Jehovah bilongum sheep belongum me, me no wantum. Longa nice grass mekum bimeby bullockum lie down longa, no fightum no more hurry, worka.

Australians do not go in much for rhyming slang, though it has found its way into vogues. If an Australian pot and pan (old man) had three plates of meat (wife and two children), he might send the plates (children) down to the corner for a hand o'lead (beard).

An infelicitous bit of Australian slang can go to the unofficial national song, "Waltzing Matilda." The expression's exact origin is obscure; it probably referred to a roaming man carryin his swag, or bundle, of, say rats, the latter being nothing to do with dancing or girls.

"Calming a cow? . . . on second thought I'd prefer to think of it as losing a daughter."

This Sounds Catastrophic

Christian Science Monitor

There's many a true word, or thereabouts, spoken figuratively. Take, for example, the report by the Human Society of America: There are 89,000,000 cats and dogs already in the United States, and the downward curtailment is at the rate of 165 a minute or 10,000 an hour. It makes it look as if cats are raining cats and dogs more like an umbrella.

Whenever it starts raining statistics the bitter end-to enders come out with the worms — and how many angleworms there are in any numerical proposition, only "figures don't mineb! Ninety million cats and dogs and no worms to feed you, would nap. But mix the species and even sleeping dogs, like figures, refuse to lie.

The Pied Piper of Hamelin was a nonogist, according to the spokesman of Acadamyal ad Rat Cat-chers of America who say as a rule of thumb strong if you count only the worm-packing animals. It is whenever a case of foreign competition like this comes up the union statisticians double the number of terriers who also pursue the vocation disguised in cat's whiskers.

Kipling's cat, who walked "along, by, and-with" all the second in world where the voice of the majority speaks over with one authority, 90,000,000 cats and dogs look like a formidable bloc — divided only by prejudice which they vote with yaps vs. meows.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON PARKING YOUR WORRIES

I once read an article about parking your worries while you shop.

But why park them? There they will be in the morning when you wander back for another new day. You don't have to lock up your worries. No one is going to run off with Everybody has his or her own special kind.

If you park them, you will only have them on your hands again.

So my advice is to cast your worries right out of mind and take only pleasant and happy thoughts to bed with you. Say to your worries: "Old Pals, you have been barking at my heels all day, now get lost. I don't need you tomorrow, and when tomorrow comes you won't be able to find me — for I won't be where you will be.

One of the loveliest stores I have ever read was Robert Herrick's "The Master of the Inn." It told of a man who early became disappointed and his heart filled with bitterness. But he determined to empty it and fill his heart, head, and whole being through service. So he established a night inn for the weary and the souls. And no one ever came but he left with the sweetness and beauty of God's Spirit in his life and went back to his work a new man.

When we lead our worries out, we forget that other people have worries too. And how many countless exhibited is like getting too many dogs together in a small pen — there is liable to be a fight!

Think of something, read something, do something to put in the place of your worries that will crowd them out.

If you try to make people happy, if you forget your own troubles, if you smile free and independent for what you feel is right, you will be cared for and know what happiness and success is right. No one will need to tell you.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DEFINITELY

A prominent British statesman was invited to journey from England to Canada in order to make a commencement address. His opening words were "I have travelled four thousand miles to tell you that there is a difference between right and wrong."

There is not only a difference but the difference is so marked that we could all see it if we were not so selfish, indulgent, and perverse. To be sure, real conflict of duties sometimes appear in life — but not often. Usually it is a conflict of interests. Not all problems we confront are moral problems. Watch that you do not make the mistake of advocating as a principle something that is nothing more than a policy.

But a great many of life's problems are moral problems. They are definitely a decision between right and wrong. And the division is so definite and clear-cut than most of us are willing to admit. We are prone to be warned not to try to make a moral problem out of a situation in which morals are not involved. But we will lose our souls and our futures if we do not face up to moral problems when they actually arise.

Lay down through the centuries of them all is a definite and easily discernible line separating right from wrong. Let us face life as it is, not just as we want it to be.

There is a difference between right and wrong.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLER OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 22nd, 1941.

This afternoon a small blue pennant upon which is emblazoned a red colored bull, fluttered from the city flagstaff beneath the Victory Loan banner. As its blue folds moved slowly in a warm afternoon breeze, those who looked below on the street swelled a bit with pride. For the blue pennant symbolized the fact that Hastings County had achieved its objective in the Victory Loan Campaign.

The two ladies who operate the farm pioneer Provincial Police and assured them there were undue disturbances entailed in the farm duties. Two constables hastened to the scene where they found that it wasn't a pretty little kitty in the hen house, but that the marauder was clad in a coat of white and black fur suit. They promptly dispatched it to Heaven.

The Special Property Committee recommended to the Municipal Council that plans and specifications for any house or building proposed to be erected in Belleville be first submitted to the City Engineer and the Building Inspector for approval before any permit is issued and before any construction is commenced, and that if said plans and specifications are not in accordance with the by-laws they shall have the privilege of submitting their report through the Council. The recommendation was ratified by the Council in committee and was duly accepted by the Council in regular session.

Need Realism On Railways

Brantford Expositor

Have Canadian railways become less efficient than those in the United States?

Professor J. L. McDougall of Queen's University thinks they may be.

Why should such a situation arise? Because, says Professor McDougall, the Canadian railways, and the Canadian National Railways in particular, have been reluctant to abandon track mileage when it becomes no longer profitable to operate passenger revenue. The Canadian Pacific Railway, he notes, has cut off many branch lines and branches and consequently, while it may not be making any money in the passenger business, at least is not losing as much as it used to.

This raises the basic question as to what national railways are for.

Should they be run as any private business would be run, or must they be maintained through government pressure—and financing—but out of the public purse — as a convenience to some of the public?

The people of Canada, as a whole, are using the railways far less than their grandparents did. This is a natural outcome of the new and easy forms of transport, especially motor cars. There are hundreds of thousands, indeed millions, of Canadians who have never ridden on a train. Yet the passenger business, in Canada, appears to still maintained as though there were a widespread and heavy demand for it.

Since railways are enormously costly, both as to equipment and operation, it would be rather naive to say that those who use them should be required to have large enough to ensure adequate revenue. Many Canadians, like others, are notorious for demanding services —and being somewhat reluctant to pay for them.

This, then, is a pitical rather than an economic issue. To the extent that lines are un other reasons, are not discontinued, they must be paid for by grants, allowances, or subsidies. In the long run, the political or quasi-political decision to operate uneconomic lines, or to use national economy for that is the case, must face the truth in a practical manner instead of concealing about inferior service or making a whipping boy of the head of a road. It is not the only thoroughly popular pastime for some Members of Parliament and other critics.

Rough Rules Were Sound

Windsor Star

This is a world of surveys and statistics with precise deductions to be made from them. It wasn't always so. Earlier generations had to make their own rough-and-ready calculations and rules. There was a name for them — "the rule of thumb."

That now almost obsolete term turned up the other day in New York where an housing authority remarked on a real estate "rule of thumb" to the effect that a homeowner should have an annual gross income of about half his original mortgage. If it is less than that, then he is living beyond his means.

There once was another real "rule of thumb." A man shouldn't pay more in monthly rent than one week's salary. Nowadays he would be apt to get into financial difficulties it was a rule borne out by experience.

"Rules of thumb" were a combination of experience and homespun philosophy. It was a time when people lived by them. Perhaps we could do with more of them in this modern era, in many economy based on people being in debt.

A True Acid Condition Always Needs Treatment

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about excess acid, the cause and cure."—Mrs. A. B.

In general, I am firmly convinced that the best thing people can do about "acid" is to forget it entirely.

This advice may strike you as strange, as you know that it is my daily aim to explain things, to make the workings of the human body understandable.

So why do I say forget about acid?

Because an acid condition which sounds so simple, isn't.

Acid, or acid stomach, or acid system, is a notion which got started many years ago, before we had any real idea of what we were talking about.

Most of us, I dare say, have heard these words occasionally from the time we were children. The ideas we acquire in childhood stick, even if they are wrong.

Let's take acid stomach. The stomach is supposed to contain acid digestive juices. When the juices lack sufficient acid, a special medication is needed. Some people, suffering digestive difficulties, are relieved only when they begin taking hydrochloric acid, the principal acidity, and the acid is greatly diluted in the proper amount that the stomach needs a trace of it.

However, the phrase we learned in childhood still lingers. We cry about acid stomach and are frankly told that foods may bother us — such things as citrus juices, tomato juice, rhubarb, etc.

Actually, the ash of such foods (what's left after the food has been digested) is alkaline, not acid!

To take another example, the blood of a normal, healthy individual is alkaline. There is a condition known as acidosis, but actually, except in the rare and extreme case, acidosis doesn't really become acid if it is less alkaline. And, I might add, it is not such condition going to be corrected, or even significantly changed, by the foods we eat or don't eat. The trouble lies much deeper, and treatment must be directed accordingly.

To offer just one more instance, lack of sufficient acid in the blood, through too much alkali, is not due to acid foods, but, too, is a condition that requires deeper study.

Neither acid nor alkaline is automatically good or wrong. It depends on which of the bodily systems is involved, and on the degree.

Fretting about acidity is a waste of time, unless you go into the complexities of the body. Let your physician do the worrying—if, indeed, you have an illness severe enough to cause a true acid condition of blood or other parts of the human system.

"Dear Dr. Molner: How serious is fibrillation of the heart, and can it be corrected?"—Mrs. A. C.

The Suburban Mammoth

New York Herald Tribune

Nobody ever read the mind of a mammoth that king-sized elephant that lived around 10,000 years ago and was lard of all he surveyed, which wasn't much. But whether he had a mouth may have thought about from time to time is undoubtedly never occurred to him that the day would come when anybody would be fiddling over his bones.

But here we are a hundred centuries later, with the State of New York and the County of Westchester giving a party over who shall have custody of one thigh bone and two ribs bones of a mammoth dredged in a peat bog near Kitchawan during a road building job. Scientists regard the bones as especially important since they represent a discovery, 10,000 years ago. They all probably told this mammoth he was crazy when he said he was moving out to the country where he could have some fresh air and a little room but he did it anyhow. No wonder Westchester wants to hang onto him.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Only a particular belligerent type of man, the kind who calls a spade a spade, would describe his liquor from the liquor vendor's box to the tell-tale he-m-n brown paper bag from which it emerged.

Some come with brief cases, some with satchels that one might mistake for those of doctor or parson. Others bring paper shopping bags such as you buy for 10¢ at Woolco. They are the nervous ones who fear the bottom might fall out, and they more than half give themselves away when they support the bag from the bottom, instead of trusting those flimsy cord handles. There are many devices resorted to by the many types of those striken with the gull complex inspired by liquor.

Only the confectionery scanner of the department store yesterday a melancholy gentleman brought a loaf of bread.

"Don't wrap it," he told the clerk. "Put it in one of those paper bags you've got there. A big one. I'm on my way to the vendor's."

See? He wasn't afraid of the clerk. Just the public.

Two Kingston Garage Men Denied Bail

KINGSTON (CP)—Two Kingston garage operators were remanded Wednesday to June 27 on charges of possessing stolen goods. Both were denied bail.

Roy Bilow was arrested last week on five charges of possessing stolen automobiles. An investigation by Metropolitan Toronto police led to the charges, and Bilow was re-arrested Tuesday night on 16 additional counts.

Harvey Valiquette, originally charged with having a stolen molybrook, motor and trailer, was additionally charged Tuesday night with possessing a stolen automobile.

Both were arrested in a police investigation of a Toronto stolen car ring.

Magistrate James R. Garvin said he was not granting bail because acting Crown Attorney John E. Sampson alleged evidence in the case had been destroyed and witnesses had been intimidated.

Council Refuses To Remove Curb Has No Funds

DESERONTO—All members of the council were present for the regular meeting on Monday night.

Among the items of correspondence was a merchants on the West end of Main Street asked council to consider the widening of their section of Main St. when the curb is removed between Center and Fourth Streets. Council advised that they do not consider the removal of the curb because no funds were available for the job. The merchants also asked that during the winter the removal of snow at their end of the street be given priority occasionally instead of always removing the snow for the merchants at the other end. This request was referred to the streets committee. They also asked that a trash can be placed between Center and St. George Sts. This request the council will grant.

All merchants of the town concurred in the petition to have the holiday on July 3rd instead of July 1st which falls on Sunday. This petition was granted and council will advertise in the two newspapers to that effect.

The Public Utilities advised council of the cost of installing the water main on West Dundas St. The latest price submitted has risen to over $6,000.

As a result of the request of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Assoc. council will purchase ten gallons of foam for their share of the foam bank to be instituted by this area. They also requested that the fire chief inspect the sewer to contemplate purchasing for the fire siren.

Permission was granted to the firemen to block off a section of the street for their street dance on June 30th and also gave them permission to decorate Main St. for the parade on July 1st.

Messrs. F. Boyette and E. Dorey were given permission to connect sink drain to the fifteen-inch street drain on College St. in accordance with the regulations as laid down by by-law.

Council decided to bill the Public Utilities for the repair of the sidewalk on College St.

The town clerk was given permission for two weeks holidays, June 28 to July 3rd and August 4th to August 21st. The council will also recess for the months of July and August unless it is necessary to call a special meeting.

The publicity committee were authorized to advertise in the booklet being prepared in connection with the Harmonworth trophy race to be held in the Bay this summer.

Apparently the dispute with Mr. Marsh concerning the right-of-way to the pump house has been settled because the clerk was instructed to notify Messrs. Smith and Smith that a survey of Water and Fourth Streets would not be required.

Council adjourned shortly after ten o'clock.

Body Recovered

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) The body of a woman was recovered from the Niagara River Wednesday night. It is believed to be that of Jean Stewart, 44, of Ridgeway who with her husband George and two friends from Buffalo lost their lives when their boat plunged over the Horseshoe Falls June 12.

The bodies of George Stewart, 47-year-old Ridgeway druggist, and Mrs. Stanley Tetsman of Buffalo, were recovered earlier this week. Mr. Tetsman's body is still missing.

WASHING DOWN — A good ship is a clean ship in the Royal Canadian Navy. Getting first hand instruction on washing down ship is Able Cadet Michael Donoghue (left) under the eye of Able Seaman John Lesperance of "Thunder." All of the local Sea Cadets got a first hand knowledge of the daily routine on board the Canadian minesweeper yesterday.

Budget Plans To Bring Relief Says Fleming

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming predicted Wednesday night a "substantial improvement" in the unemployment situation once the effect of his budget proposals begin to be felt.

He said he is looking for a reduction in unemployment this year"make no mistake about that."

Mr. Fleming also described as "plain nonsense" suggestions that government action in forcing down the value of the Canadian dollar would result in price increases that would pinch housekeepers' pocketbooks.

He made the statement in reply to questions from newspaper men on a CBC network television program.

The finance minister continued to decline stating the government's aim for the lower value of the "Canadian dollar. He had said a "significant discount" would be sought but it would not be appropriate "to indicate a precise range."

Sea Cadets Guests Aboard "Bay" Class Minesweeper

Belleville Sea Cadets of the R.C.S.C.C. "Quinte" were guests aboard H.M.C.S. "Thunder," together with a group of Sea Cadets from R.C.S.C.C. "Trenton" Trenton, aboard H.M.C.S. "Resolute," for a day-long cruise with the Royal Canadian Navy minesweepers from Oshawa to Kingston yesterday. The weather conditions did little to dampen the enthusiasm of the cadets as each group was integrated into their respective ship's company and, for a day, led exactly the same life as a sailor in the Royal Canadian Navy aboard a minesweeper.

No sooner were the ships out of Oshawa harbor than Lt.-Com- N. S. Jackson, captain of "Thunder," advised Belleville cadets that they were in for a real taste of shipboard life, following which they were split into watches and joined the ship's crew in washing down the decks, cleaning up ships, readying gear for use and standing duty watches at the wheel, the radar screen or "up top."

The officers accompanying the Sea Cadets soon found that there was no space for idle hands aboard the close quarters of a minesweeper when "Thunder's" executive officer, Lt. Richard Donaldson, assigned them duties as second officers of the watch. Fitted with foul weather gear they spent most of their trip on the rain-swept open bridge soaking up information on plotting courses and the operation of the ship as well as water.

TAKEN ON TOUR

Time out was taken during the performance of these tasks for both officers and cadets to be taken on a tour to familiarize them with the equipment and layout of a "Bay" class minesweeper.

The excellence of Navy cooking was also brought to the attention of "Thunder's" guests as they had their day's meals on board. A delicious chicken dinner topped off with strawberries and cream drew much favorable comment at the dinner table.

During the course of their cruise, the Sea Cadets also saw "man overboard" and rescue at sea procedures enacted, as well as the RCN tugboat "Scatart," who was on her way out of Kingston, when the procedure of salutes between ships was demonstrated.

Upon coming into Kingston harbor to tie up alongside the government dock, a number of the cadets were assigned to the parties responsible for the tying up the ship and received practical instruction in this phase of shipboard routine.

Returning to the city by early evening yesterday, the local Sea Cadets were a tired, thawing been on the go since 6.00 a.m.), but happy group of lads, having been "at sea" for a day, thanks to the hospitality, generosity and interest of the officers and men of Her Majesty's Canadian Ships, "Thunder" and "Resolute."

Would Develop Long Waterfront

TORONTO (CP) — Development of a 60-mile section of waterfront from Clarkson to Ajax was recommended Wednesday night in a report by commissioners of the Metropolitan Toronto departments.

The proposal was put forward by Metro Planning Commissioner Ross L. Clark, who advocated the appointment of a committee to supervise the preparation of a 50-year development plan.

The development would cover an area from 16 miles west of Toronto to Ajax, 24 miles east.

The report, submitted to Metro planning board, suggested provision for extensive public acquisition of lakefront areas, a lakefront parkway, a series of lakefront marinas, a heliport and a commuter service by water linking Port Credit and Ajax to the city.

ENDORSES IDEA

WHITBY (CP) — Persons lodged in county jails should not be prevented from telephoning a relative or lawyer because of lazy or arbitrary governors or jail guards, Thomas Harris, deputy reeve of Port Perry, told Ontario County Council Tuesday night. Council endorsed a resolution from Lincoln County that the provincial government be asked to change regulations to allow a prisoner, on admittance, two telephone calls — one to his counsel and one to a relative.

Three Rescued Lived on Beans For Three Days

CLEVELAND (AP) — Three men, rescued Wednesday from the "loneliest lighthouse in the world," said they lived on a couple of cans of beans since an explosion rocked the Stannard Rock lighthouse in Lake Superior Sunday.

Chances that a fourth man still was alive were remote, the coast guard reported.

Missing was William Maxwell, 34, of Houghton, Mich., father of five. Maxwell, an engineman, was reported to be still inside the tower. Search for him was impossible because of fumes from a raging fire in the lighthouse's coal storage bin.

Walter Scoble, 32, of Troy, Mich., and Richard Horne, 18, of New York, were not injured in the blast, set off, the coast guard said, by gasoline and propane gas.

Injured seriously was Oscar Daniels, 29, an electrician's mate from the Sault Ste. Marie coast guard base who had been sent to the lighthouse to repair a generator.

A coast guard unit near Manitou Mich., talked to Scoble and Horne who said they had made a tent of tarpaulin on the apron outside the tower.

The explosion had cut communications from the 103-foot tall lighthouse, 23 miles southeast of Manitou Island. It stands on a reef, which is 12 feet under water, and is 45 miles north of Marquette, Mich. Coast guardsmen call it the loneliest lighthouse in the world.

The coast guard cutter, the Woodrush, operating from Duluth, had gone in the area to investigate because there had been no communication with the crew and the light was out.

The three men were taken off the ledge and taken to a coast guard unit near Hancock, Mich. The cutter returned to the lighthouse Wednesday to fight the fire and look for Maxwell.

W.H.A. Hears Fine Account Of Nurses' Recent Congress

On Tuesday afternoon in Women's Hospital Auxiliary met in Johnston Hall. The business of the Association was completed for the summer season, all of which would give a large number of workers a well-earned vacation.

A highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of two cheques to Mr. J. N. Vanover, chairman of the Board of Governors of Belleville General Hospital. These cheques totaling $7,500, represent many hours of work of Auxiliary members. Mrs. J. B. Casey, convener of the Opportunity Shop, and Mrs. R. H. Murray, convener of the Coffee Shop, expressed their thanks to their many faithful helpers. These cheques will be used to purchase new, modern beds for the hospital.

The Coffee Shop will remain open for the summer months and Mrs. Murray asked that, in season, such fruits as raspberries, strawberries and other products from the gardens, might be sent to the Shop. The use of lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers was of great value in the making of sandwiches and salads and when making jams, jellies and pickles, would it be possible to put aside a donation for the Coffee Shop?

Mrs. G. Hume gave the financial report. Mrs. P. Allcorn announced the group making puppets had finished enough for the summer and would not meet again until September.

The Auxiliary will man a booth at the Belleville fair and Mrs. J. B. Casey will be in charge. It was also announced that Mrs. B. Burley, past president, had been appointed convener of the autumn "Fashion Show". Mrs. Burley spoke briefly concerning plans for that event.

Mrs. M. Jones, the president, spoke of the graduation class of nurses and especially thanked Mrs. I. Dickey for her assistance in decorating for the graduation reception. She also voiced her appreciation of flowers sent by Mrs. John Clarke, Mrs. S. E. Brown and Mrs. W. D. Wilson.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. E. H. Hall introduced Miss Doris Smith, director of nursing, guest speaker of the afternoon who has returned from a trip to Australia where she attended the International Congress of Nurses. Miss Smith spoke also of her tour of other far-east places, Figi Islands, Singapore, Bangkok, Japan, Hong Kong, Hawaii and New Zealand. Many were the interesting and entertaining experiences she recounted.

The first stop was Honolulu in Hawaii here the dazzling beauty of the hotels, homes and flowers was breath taking especially as it was warm summer weather. A short stay in New Zealand to visit Auckland where the wonders of the caves were enjoyed was a preparation for the thrill of seeing Australia where the Congress was held.

Here in Melbourne, gathered nurses from many places in the world to hear international speakers, noted personages give advice on working and thinking in "enna-tionality."

Sight seeing was not neglected and a cruise on Sydney Harbor — the finest natural harbour in the world, was a never-to-be-forgotten pleasure.

Following the Congress, a number of the delegates journeyed the Far East, stopping at Singapore to visit the Botanical Gardens; at Bangkok to admire the many beautiful temples, inlaid with precious stones. As Bangkok is the centre of the silk industry, it was a splendid place to shop.

JAPANESE CITIES

In Japan a number of interesting cities were on the itinerary. Of particular interest were the shrines, handicraft shops and the exotic gardens. The courtesy and kindliness of the people intrigued the visitors and noted was the fact of less hurry and tension in their way of life.

Hong Kong was the city for shopping, as merchandise was cheaper and more varied. Here a journey to a tea plantation and being a guest at a cherry blossom dance were interesting experiences.

Miss Smith concluded by expressing her good fortune in having had the opportunity of meeting nurses from other lands, discussing affairs of mutual interest.

It would strengthen that bond of fellowship with those who strive to relieve pain.

Mrs. B. Burley expressed the appreciation of the Auxiliary to Miss Smith for the graphic description of her tour of the other side of the world.

Mrs. B. Sadd and her committee served tea.

H. Murray, convener of the Coffee Shop. Mrs. W. Dallas, Coffee Shop treasurer, is seen at left, and Mrs. W. Shand, Opportunity Shop treasurer, at the right.

Home Nursing Classes to Be Conducted

Plans are now being made to conduct Red Cross Home Nursing classes in September, for Homemakers and the general public wishing to take this course.

These classes will be conducted weekly by Mrs. John Glen, Reg. N., of Belleville who recently returned from Hamilton, where she attended lectures at McMaster University dealing with the Red Cross Home Nursing Course.

Mrs. Glen, graduate from Hamilton General Hospital is active member of the Belleville Community Nursing Registry as well as a member of the executive.

Further information regarding time and place of this course will be given at a later date.

$7,500 STILL TO GO — The first half of a $15,000 gift from the Belleville General Hospital Women's Auxiliary for the purchase of Hi-Lo hospital beds, was turned over to the hospital yesterday. Auxiliary president Mrs. M. F. L. Jones is seen presenting the cheque for $7,500 to hospital board chairman J. N. Yanover, as Miss Doris Smith, director of nursing, looks on.

Strawberry Supper Held By A.O.T.S

The AOTS "Strawberry Supper", held at Tabernacle United Church on Tuesday, was an unqualified success. A large attendance was recorded, and all reports would indicate that the meal was enjoyed by all.

The men were pleased (and nearly overpowered) at the number in attendance. Preparation had been made for approximately 125 people, but upwards of 300 were fed which took some fast foot-work and a great deal of co-operation by the men. Due, however, to the resourceful and always-dependable ladies, a additional sandwiches were supplied and everyone was fed.

President Ted Spracklett expresses sincere appreciation to all who so generously supported this successful project, and extends best wishes for vacation time until September.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gordon Carleton are shown signing the register, with the officiating clergyman, following their recent marriage in Wallbridge United Church, Wallbridge, Ontario. The bride is the former Laura Anne Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woods, of Belleville, R.R. 1. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carleton, of Thomasburg, Ontario. CARLETON — WOODS

Wallbridge United Church, Wallbridge, Ontario, was the setting on Saturday June 10th at 3.00 p.m. for a lovely summertime wedding, when Laura Anne Woods, of Belleville, R.R. No. 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Woods became the bride of Lorne Gordon Carleton, of Thomasburg, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carleton. The Reverend R. M. McMullin, officiated before a background of baskets of white spirea and ferns, white chrysanthemums, pink gladioli, and lighted candles. Pink and white rosettes designated the guest pews.

The church organist, Mr. Fred Porter, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Boyd Moorcroft, of Belleville, in the rendition of "Because" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Roy Woods, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown fashioned on princess lines of skinner mirrorist taffeta lined with pelon and trimmed with imported Bourdon lace appliqued around the neckline, the skirt front, and on the sleeves. The graceful skirt cascaded to a slight chapel train. She wore a bouffant veil of silk illusion caught to a bridal crown of imported seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of pink roses mingled with lily-of-the-valley.

She was attended by Miss Marie Hollinger, of Peterborough, as matron of honor, wearing a deep-pink gown of silk organza over taffeta featuring a molded bodice, and bouffant skirt accented by twin roses of deep pink at the back, ending in a sash. Her headdress was a crown of matching pink and illusion with cathedral veil. Deep pink shoes completed her costume.

The bridesmaids, Miss Louise Woods, and Miss Lana Woods, sisters of the bride, were in re-embroidered white silk organza with bouffant skirts sashed in deep pink enhanced with twin back roses in pink, ending in sashes. White crown effect headdresses of silk illusion with circular veils, with deep pink shoes accented their costumes. All the attendants carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

The little flower girl, Miss Wendy Radford, was demure in her white nylon dress, with its floral baskets of pink flowers, and carrying a basket of pink and white sweetpeas.

Mr. Thomas W. White, Jr. of Thomasburg, attended the bridegroom; while ushers, Harold Carleton, of Thomasburg, and James Sine, Jr. of Belleville, were ushers.

The reception was held in Wallbridge Orange Hall, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in honey-beige silk organza over taffeta in sheath style, with Chanel jacket of white and honey-beige lace, bound with silk organza, beige and white accessories, and corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in grey-flowered silk-crepe with jacket, white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The bridal table was appointed in the traditional fashion with white linen damask centred by an all-white wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked by pink and white candles rising from centres of pink sweetpeas and white lily-of-the-valley.

For the wedding trip along the St. Lawrence Seaway, to Cornwall and Ottawa, the bride wore a green and yellow flowered silk chiffon, with white and green accessories, and corsage of white mums.

Guests from out-of-town were present from Tweed; Thomasburg; Trenton; Batawa, and Frankford.

Two miscellaneous showers were held in honor of the bride, previous to her marriage, one at the home of Mrs. Albert Fisher, and one at the home of Miss Marie Hollinger. A linen shower was also held at the home of Mrs. Sye Radford.

Mr. and Mrs. Carleton will reside in Tweed, Ontario.

C.W.L. Plans Coming Events

Forget about calories on the afternoon when the C.W.L. summer social event takes place.

Mrs. Domenico, head of hospitality, suggested at the monthly meeting on June 12, that a change in refreshments be made, and have strawberry shortcake rather than tea, sandwiches and cookies.

Mrs. Joseph Gallagher, president, put the motion before the members. It was carried with enthusiasm.

In past years this event was held on the rectory lawn, weather permitting, the building of the new rectory has since used the property. The strawberry social will be held in Nicholson College and will coincide with the "open house" at the new rectory.

Those attending the social will be conducted in groups by a guide through the beautiful rectory.

A valued member of the league, Mrs. F. J. Carroll, has moved to Dunnville. She has left a gap which will be difficult to fill. The league members, in appreciation of her outstanding time and effort given, will present her with a "Spiritual Bouquet"—an unwilling bouquet of prayers consisting of masses and rosaries offered for the spiritual welfare of the recipient.

Work is well underway for the pre-Christmas bazaar in November. Pull ticket are already in circulation.

Mrs. H. Brown, past president thanked all who helped with the recent sucessful tag day.

Mrs. E. M. O'Connor gave a colorful report of the activities of the Guides and Brownies.

Among the interesting events were a tour of the city hospital and the filtration plant, and a weekend at Waupoos, near Picton.

Mrs. Donaldson and Mrs. Murphy, who convened the June rummage sale, reported that it was a great success and that there was enough clothing to have another sale in the fall. Some of the clothing, at the request of the Sisters, was distributed among those in need.

There were several thank-you notes read; one from a missionary Father thanking the C.W.L. for clothing sent.

Monsignor Sullivan closed in prayer.

Mrs. W. J. Lynch, Mrs. R. Cregan, Mrs. O. Griffiths and Mrs. J. Farrell served the refreshments prepared by Mrs. Burvill and Mrs. Gooding and enjoyed by the members after the close of every meeting.

Tall Summer Coolers

By Mary Moore

A good starter for a summer picnic or party of any kind is a pitcher or punch bowl full of iced fruit punch. Lemons and oranges are indispensable now and I'm going to give you some favorites.

ORANGE BLOSSOM PUNCH (serves, 8 or 10):

3 cups fresh orange juice, 1-2 cup fresh lemon juice, 2 cups water or ginger ale, 1-4 cup maraschino cherry juice, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 tray ice cubes, 1-2 fresh orange sliced, 1-2 fresh orange sliced.

Combine ingredients and pour over ice cubes. For a special treat, add 2 quarts of lemon, or orange sherbet to punch just before serving.

ICED TEA (serves 10):

6 teaspoons tea (3 bags), 3 cups boiling water, 3-4 cup fresh lemon juice, 3-4 cup sugar, 1 tray cubes.

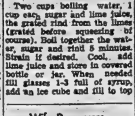
Pour boiling water over tea, steep 3 minutes. Strain, pour hot over ice cubes. Stir lemon juice and sugar together until sugar dissolves. Stir into tea.

ICED COFFEE:

For iced coffee make coffee twice as strong as usual. (In our house we prefer drip made from an extra fine grind.) Fill tall glasses with chipped ice or ice cubes. Pour boiling hot coffee over them to within 1" of top of glasses. If sugar is used, use berry sugar and add at this stage. Special cream-cooling trick: Invert the bowl of a dessert spoon over the top of the glass. Slowly pour heavy cream over the inverted bowl of the spoon. The heavy cream floats near the top of the coffee. If it is sipped through a straw the first little taste is of cream followed with strong, icy coffee and it is delicious.

RASPBERRY SHRUB:

Serve this old-time favorite recipe for raspberry season next month.



2 pints raspberries (washed and hulled), 4 or 6 sprigs fresh mint, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 1 cup lemon juice, 8 cups ginger ale.

Mix together raspberries, mint, sugar and water and cook in saucepan for 10 minutes. Strain and cool. Add lemon juice and 8 cups water. Serve with crushed ice.

LIME SYRUP:

Two cups boiling water, 1 cup each, sugar and lime juice, the grated rind from the limes (grated before squeezing for juice). Boil together the water, sugar and rind 5 minutes. Strain if desired. Cool, add lime juice and store in covered bottle or jar. When needed fill glasses 1-3 full of syrup, add an ice cube and fill to top with cold water or ginger ale. Or use to flavor and sweeten iced tea.

Wife Preservers

Hands are often more beautiful than a woman's face in obtaining admiration. Therefore, at a wedding cloth can become guest-book more befitting. Thereafter laundering are recommended.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Mother Wants Money

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Years ago my husband left home to work in Northern Canada. For a while he sent money home but this gradually stopped. I kept up our tourist business with the help of my girls in the summer and managed until they were through high school. Then my husband asked me for a divorce and I gave it to him. He was living with another woman.

My daughter wanted money for a teaching course and I gave it to her—$1,200. Later she wrote to me saying she was getting married and would I come to Toronto to help her get her dress, etc. I knew I would be stuck with the bills so I told her I had used money now I should have kept for my old age and I had quit paying her bills.

I was never invited to the wedding nor is their home. Now the marriage is on the rocks. Just recently I had a mild disorder and it set me to thinking I had better get something solid for my old age. I thought I would ask you first your opinion about going to a lawyer about the money she owes me. She makes extra good money because of her training.

Yesterday was Mother's Day but not one card from any of them. Wouldn't you think one—just one of them—would think of something I might have done?—MRS. R.C.

* * *

DEAR MRS. R C.:—Do you want her money or her love?

In the face of a tough situation you supported your girls and helped them get an education. Good for you. Now your trials have embittered you and driven them away. Bad for you.

Choose your weapons. If you continue to carry on this war about debts, you may get some money—which I expect you are entitled to. But for what? A lonely old age? You seem to want devotion, but when your daughter tried to interest you in her wedding all she got was a slap in the face. If her marriage is on the rocks she would doubtless appreciate your loving interest. Is it possible you could begin loving instead of hating?

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—A good friend of my mother lost her little boy and literally went to bed over it. The older daughters had to wait on her and themselves while she moaned and wept and really made herself ill. The father was cross and unhappy while he kept working and supporting everybody.

This happened years ago. Now the oldest daughter wants to leave home and the mother is making a great fuss. The mother is sick in bed much of the time, but the daughter intends to leave anyway and wants my mother to help her. My mother doesn't know what to do. What do you say?—FRANK.

* * *

DEAR FRANK:—Unless someone helps, the girls in the family will continue to be victims of a neurotic woman. By love, of course, she probably has pronounced physical symptoms and a right to be sorry for herself.

I'd say help the young woman to a chance for normal living—whether it's financial or moral support she needs. Obviously she won't get it at home.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Should I tell a very good friend of mine (with five young children) that her husband is taking out another woman? It seems everyone but his wife knows. Since I am very fond of her I am incensed about this.

She is an intelligent, attractive person. I cannot feel that silence is really a favor in her case.—LOOKING ON.

DEAR LOOKING ON:—Are you sure of the facts? The bearer of ill-tidings is never very welcome.

If you know positively that your friend's husband is showing serious interest in another woman, it might be helpful to her to know. If you are her very close friend—as close as a sister—you might be the one to tell her. If she has plenty of stamina she might be able to take it and do something about it. Quite a number of it's!

Even so, don't be surprised if she refuses to believe it and turns against you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—After living with him for 10 years, I have just learned that my husband is a bigamist. He says he loves me and married me because he thought he might lose me if he didn't.

This is all a terrible shock but I love him and dread the idea of breaking up. I need to be loved too and cannot face living alone. Yet I am a good church member and this is against my principles.—JENNIE.

* * *

DEAR JENNIE—Of course he married you because he thought he might lose you. He might never have you.

Is there any other reason for bigamy?

In certain tribal cultures a man may have several wives and still be respected—but in Canada? No! Your choice is a tough one because we all need human love and companionship.

If your principles are operating, your choice is clear. Sooner or later each one of us stands alone, identifying ourselves with what we believe in most. A warm heart can find love and learn to give it where this is acceptable—not necessarily to a man, but perhaps to a woman friend, or children.

C of C Enjoys Annual Tour Of Port Hope

MARMORA — Marmora Chamber of Commerce took its annual tour with their ladies, to Port Hope, on Monday afternoon, via the Franklin Coach Line bus and an escort car.

On arriving in Port Hope they were welcomed by the mayor, His Honor Mike Wladyka, at the Golf and Country Club.

The men in the group were transported by bus to the plant of the Matthew Conveyor Company and later some visited the Nicholson File Company, while others visited the A.M.P. Atomic Plant.

The ladies were served light refreshments at the Golf Club, and then visited Trinity College and St. Mark's Anglican Church, the oldest Anglican Church in Ontario, and — incidentally where Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburg attended on their visit here.

They were then taken to the Seniby Citizen's Club rooms.

On the return of the men, the party went to the Canadian Legion Hall where a delicious turkey dinner was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, followed by a social hour.

Mr. G. Melkiejohn, president of Marmora Chamber, thanked the various organizations and invited the Port Hope Board of Trade to visit Marmora.

His Worship Mayor Wladyka expressed pleasure at having the Marmora group visit Port Hope and Mr. Smart, president of the Board of Trade, and Mr. Cole Locke, secretary, also extended a warm welcome to the visitors.

Twenty members of Cobourg Little Theatre put on a short musical program, singing several numbers, which brought an enjoyable visit to a close.

Women's Activities

PH. ED. - BELLEVILLE CLUB

The regular meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies' Club was held at the YMCA on Wednesday. The president opened the meeting in the usual manner and welcomed members and visitors by reading a short poem.

The corresponding secretary was pleased to report she had sent out many cards or flowers to ill members during the past month. There were 26 members and three visitors present.

A bus trip or a picnic was discussed and more favored a bus trip some time in July. Mrs. Baird, Mrs. Bedell and Mrs. Fox are to make the arrangements.

The program opened with Mrs. Farnsworth conducting a short devotional, reading the 136th Psalm and closing with prayer.

Mrs. Martin gave two readings, "10th Anniversary On the Farm" and "Perfect Recipe for A Husband." Mrs. Gorsline and Mrs. Martin each conducted a contest, first, "Know Your Canada," the winner being Mrs. Weese, and second, "Hidden Names of Bible Women," won by Mrs. Dempsey.

Mrs. Garbutt closed the meeting.

Group conveners Mrs. Gorsline and Mrs. Martin and their assistants served a lovely lunch, bringing to a close the meetings until September.

Guest Speaker Highlights W.A. Tea, Bazaar

RYLSTONE — On Wednesday afternoon, Rylstone United Church was a bower of beauty when the front of the church was banked with bouquets of peonies, iris, columbine and spirea, while potted African violets were lovely in the windows.

The occasion was an afternoon tea and basket, when the Women's Association of Rylstone United Church entertained the following church organizations: St. Mark's Anglican Church, Boblilaw; Zion United Church, Petherick's Corners; Stanwood United Church; Gospel Hall, Rylstone and Springbrook United Church. There were also a few ladies from Campbellford.

The new carpets in the aisles and on the chair dais were a splendid tribute to the memories of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Dutton, former members of Rylstone congregation.

FINE PROGRAM

The weather was ideal for the occasion and a large crowd was in attendance. Each church group was well represented. Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, president, welcomed the visiting ladies and presided for the opening exercises and the short program, which followed. W.A. theme song, "Let the Beauty of Jesus Be Seen in Me" and the hymn, "Within Thy Tabernacle Lord" with Mrs. Ellis Jones as pianist; Mrs. Ray Stewart read from the Scriptures, part of the fifth chapter of St. Matthew and Mrs. R. Seymour offered prayer; Mrs. Ernie Rowe, Stanwood, gave a humorous reading, "Experience Needed", and Mrs. Ernest Irwin, Zion Church, read "Little Things". Mrs. Burton Woodcock of Stirling rendered a solo, "God Hath Not Promised", with her daughter, Miss Barbara Woodbeck as accompanist, as St. Mark's contribution and Springbrook Church was represented by a trio of young ladies Doreen Broadworth, Geraldine and Joan McFaul, who sang, "How Great Thou Art" with Doreen providing accompanist at the piano.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. WH Rutherford spoke a few words of welcome and introduced the guest speaker, Harold Stevens of radio station CJBQ, Belleville, who thanked Mrs. Rutherford and the hostesses for the welcoming remarks and the kind invitation, and said that she would not choose a special subject. She complimented Rylstone on the beautiful scenery and likened the gathering of the different church groups to the League of Nations, which she had had the opportunity of visiting not too long ago.

Her informal talk was greatly enjoyed as most of the ladies were anxious to see the embodiment of the voice which they listen to on Harriet's Program.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. E. S. — Our daughter gets hysterical on school mornings.

Mrs. L. O. — As her grandma, I say keep her out a year.

Mr. E. S. — A most unfortunate shift is teachers has turned our little 6-year-old from a happy, smiling schoolgirl into a fearful, miserable absentee.

Margo started first grade enthusiastically. She adored her teacher, Miss Adams had special goodness for the child and gave her all sorts of special attention, including a hug and a cuddle each morning. Suddenly, however, Miss Adams was transferred and Mrs. Travers took her place.

Although Mrs. Travers is kind and friendly, she doesn't single Margo out and Margo is pining for Miss Adams. Lately she's been acting up so badly, we're starting to worry about her health. I practically drag her to school. The teacher and principal insist that she attend. They're trying to help us with

• • •

Mrs. L. O. — Margo's mother, my daughter, and Eric, my son-in-law, have truly had their hands full with our little girl's school experience. I am most sympathetic.

With a baby son to take care of, my daughter couldn't handle the many trips to and from school which were necessary, and still see to the said quiet Margo. Eric and I have been working with the teacher to help our little girl adjust to the change.

But Margo seems to be getting worse, not better. She clings to us frantically, can't keep her breakfast down and starts worrying about Monday morning on Friday afternoon.

Despite the principal's advice, I say give the child a complete absence from school for a year. She'll return with a new attitude.

The Council — Margo's trauma is one of many symptoms (reading difficulty is another) unearthed by the school to make parents and teachers look more deeply for problems which are blocking the child's progress. Her nausea, tears and fears are part of the picture of so-called "school phobia."

Superficially the cause seems to be a change in teacher. Chilling as the dethronement may have been from teacher's pet to just one of the hoi polloi, that disappointment would not have brought on such a violent response. If Margo had not already been hurt by other emotional blows up to level A safe secure child has more bounce.

Mr. S. is wise to keep Margo at school despite the struggle. Grandma's idea of keeping her out would make matters infinitely worse. In their experience with these outbursts, the school personnel knows the accepted procedure which, in general, is to help the situation while the child continues to attend.

How? As we've said, school phobia is usually secondary to something hidden which must be recognized and corrected. Of course, as usual, the immediate school situation must be looked into. Is there a boy-aggressive classmate? Can the new teacher ease Margo's transition by being a little "special" towards her at first?

But the main job is directed toward the home and parents, particularly the mother. Here's a youngster who was an only child for a few years. Then Mommy disappears and returns with a baby brother. Evidently Margo took her mother's absence as a form of abandonment. Next, in school a motherly teacher was suddenly snatched away. No wonder she clings to what's left of her old world. She doesn't trust it! Doctors call hers a "separation anxiety."

The cure is reassurance.

Club Activities

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A.'s held a regular meeting on June 16th.

The president, Keith Helm, of Frankford C.A.'s welcomed everyone and opened the meeting with the C.A. chorus and prayer led by the Rev. B. Doan of Stirling. Vice-president of Trenton C.A.'s called on Doug Conley of Trenton to lead in hymn singing. Miss Shirley Crookwright read the Scriptures reading Romans Ch. 6:1-11. The junior choir of Bethel Temple, Trenton, sang the number, "Sunday's Best of All".

Usherettes, Miss Linda Fisher and Miss Gloria Reilly received the evening offering. Miss Connie Elliott rendered a piano solo. Mrs. Cronkwright of Trenton, led in testimonies and choruses. The junior choir sang "Because He Lives" Mr. So". Miss Nancy Spence sang a solo, "Keys to the Kingdom".

GUEST SPEAKER

The Rev. E. Zilch of Islington was the guest speaker, his text was taken from Acts 13:38 speaking on "Serving Your Own Generation by the Will of God".

The service closed with a time of prayer.

DRINKS COST $300

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Every great movement, every significant new human hope and idea, has been fostered and preserved by a small nucleus. A quick glance at the human adventure helps to document a law of history. It is always a small unit of dedicated people which shapes the life of nations, religions and cultures.

Christianity, founded and fostered by small groups of martyrs, grew atop the ruins of the Roman Empire.

In the Middle Ages Christian culture was the intimate possession of only the limited few. Here and there, in monasteries, hidden from general view, small groups of devoted people pondered their faith, wrote their classical works and kept alive the spirit of an earlier time. Indeed, without these groups, unheralded and unknown in their own day, what has become known as the Renaissance would have been impossible.

When the universities were closed in Poland during the period of Russian domination, a century and a half ago, a group of Polish patriots continued to preserve in the face of what seemed obvious cultural annihilation.

In the United States, the law of the land was exploited to convince to oppress slaves. But a tiny group, the Abolitionists, printed newspapers, lobbied, spoke, and kept up the good fight until victory was achieved. The power of an effective nucleus is summed up in the words of William Lloyd Garrison. I am in earnest, I will not equivocate. I will not retreat a single inch, I will be heard!"

When we think of any great and significant movement, or human achievement, upon closer scrutiny we find that a small nucleus was responsible for that which has come to be accepted as part of the human treasury. Indeed, this same fact applied to negative movements in human history. Nazism developed and grew as a result of the fanatical zeal of a handful of people devoted to that maniacal cause. To this day it is quite apparent that the smallest of minorities actually controls and holds a larger part of the world in thraldom as the result of its passionate beliefs in the dogma of Soviet communism.

Let it be said clear, then, that to every society that which determines its character, its progress, its future, is dependent upon the existence within it of a strong and effective minority of people who can say with Garrison, "I am in earnest. I will be heard!"

Every society consists, it seems, of at least three groups. There are always those who are busy getting what they want. There is a small number of people concerned with understanding what it is that the community needs. It is the smallest number, however, which has the perception and the courage to dedicate itself earnestly to meeting the people want what they need.

Moses sent 12 men into Canaan. Ten came back frightened and disturbed. They were unable to accept that land as a place of promise. Only two returned with a sense of hope, and with the dream of the promise still vivid within them.

This is the picture the Bible portrays. It is also a picture of our time. The future of our world, as in the world of Moses depends upon the vigor and faith of sincere minorities.

Many Awards Given at Mother, Daughter Girl Guild Banquet

FRANKFORD — Rose Lowery Hall, Frankford United Church, was the setting of the mother and daughter banquet for Frankford Girl Guides and Brownies, on Monday evening.

The head table was tastefully decorated with a centre arrangement of yellow mums and blue iris, accented with yellow candles in crystal on white linen, while similar color schemes were carried out on the remaining tables.

Mrs. A. Machala, of Batawa, District Commissioner, was the chairman for the evening. Mrs. J. Ferguson, of Trenton, Commissioner for Northumberland Division, was an honored guest at the head table.

Other guests at the head table were Mrs. Bruce Servos, badge secretary; Mrs. J. Goff, chairman of Local Association; Mrs. Frank Rabel, Mrs. P. Chase, district camp secretary, and Donna; Mrs. C. Judd and Lelsha; Mrs. F. Payne and Brenda; Mrs. C. Rose and Ruth; Mrs. Wildi, and leaders, Mrs. A. Stickle, Mrs. Forbes and Linda, Mrs. C. Mikel and Cheryl; Mrs. G. Gilmour, Miss M. Cooney, Miss M. Johns and Miss J. Cooney.

COLOR PARTY

Brenda Westlake, Bonnie Ashley and Betty Ann Lockwood formed the color party, and presented the colors before the banquet. "God Save the Queen" was sung with Jean Rose at the piano, and Ruth Judge said silent grace.

Local Association served a delicious ham supper, after which Mrs. A. Machala took charge of the program.

The toast to the mothers was proposed by Susan Chase and responded to by Mrs. H. Pilcher. The toast to the leaders was proposed by Mrs. Machala and Miss Margaret Cooney gave the reply.

Mrs. Machala welcomed all mothers and introduced head table and officials.

Mrs. T. Pilcher brought greetings from the town council.

Mrs. T. Ferguson, as guest speaker, offered words of encouragement and praise to the Brownies, Guides and leaders.

WARRANTS PRESENTED

Two warrants were presented by Mrs. Machala, to Miss Mary Johns and Miss Janet Cooney, who are Brownie leaders of 2nd Frankford Pack.

At this time, everyone was invited to attend the "Flying Up' ceremony, held in the community hall. The Brownies, under the direction of Mrs. Owls Mrs. C. Mikel and Miss M. Cooney, joined in a Fairy Ring and sang their goodbye song.

The Girl Guides, under the leadership of their Lieutenant, Mrs. A. Stickle, formed a horseshoe and the colors were again presented.

The Brownies sang their "Sixer songs" after which vesters were recited. Mrs. Mikel, Mrs. Gilmour and Miss M. Cooney presented 11 Golden Hands.

Mrs. Servos was asked to come into the Fairy Ring to present the Golden Hands. 17 proficiency badges were also distributed.

Mrs. Machala and Mrs. Ferguson were invited to take their places to receive promise into Guideland.

CERTIFICATES PRESENTED

Each Golden Hand Brownie was called to the Toadstool by their Brown Owl where they were presented with a certificate. The remaining Brownies sang a song of parting and saluted them with The Grand Howl.

The Brownies marched in pairs with large yellow paper wings on their backs through a pathway of clouds to a decorated archway. Here they traded their paper wings for Brownie wings, which were pinned on by Mrs. Ferguson and Mrs. Machala. They were met by Patrol Leaders and welcomed into Frankford Guide Company by the Lieutenant.

Two Brownies hopped into Guideland in an interesting ceremony. Each Brownie had a paper chain ring placed around her neck. Brown Owl threw the end of the paper chain to the Commissioner who in turn threw it to a Patrol Leader. The girls were led by the paper chain over the part to salute the Commissioner and be welcomed into Guideland. All Guides joined in a welcome song and the Commissioners were invited to join the horseshoe by Mrs. Stickle.

GUIDE SERVICE STARS

Service stars were given out by Mrs. Forbes. Mrs. Servos was invited to join with the Guides and present four proficiency badges. Donna Chase was then called to be presented to the Commissioners.

At this time, Mrs. Machala related a summary of the "All Round Cord," and what it stands for among Girl Guides.

Mrs. Ferguson presented "Donna" with her "All Round Cord". The commissioners and guiders congratulated Donna on her achievement. This is the first "All Round Cord" awarded in the Batawa-Frankford district. Brownie and Guide Law were sung and Mrs. Ferguson dismissed the Guide Company and Brownie Pack.

Those who received Golden Bars were: Carin Keeton, Sandra Boyarchuk, Helen Rogers, Brenda Watson, Judy Pitcher, Charlene Rugbes, Diane Roote, Vera Pirnak, Janice Lockwood, Rhonda Hall, Marjorie Carson.

GOLDEN HANDS

Those who received golden hands were: Sharon Dafoe, Brenda Payne, Jane Sharpe, Isabelle Chapman, Susan Chase, Vicki Patrick, Patsy Watson, Jackie Rogers, Kila McMillan, Gloria Patrick, Marjorie Carson. Those who received their "Golden Hand" also flew up.

Those who walked up were: Janice Lockwood and Diane Roote.

Brownies who received Proficiency badges were Jane Sharp — skater; Susan Chase — laddie, minstrel artist, collector and house orderly; Isabelle Chapman — skater, house orderly and collector; Vicki Patrick — skater, collector; Janice Rogers — skater, collector; Sharon Dafoe — skater, minstrel, book lover; Ella McMillan — knitter.

CALLED HUBBY - STEALER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Robert P. Oldham, a steel importer, left $100,000—half his fortune—to his ex-wife, blonde secretary, Bonnie Baker. Miss Baker, 32, cared for Oldham during his last illness. But Wednesday Superior Court declared the will invalid and gave the estate to the widow, Mrs. Ruth Oldham, 49, from whom Oldham was estranged when he died in December, 1959. Judge Herbert Walker called Miss Baker "a mercenary husband stealer."

B.P.W. Close Season With Chicken Dinner

Mrs. Irene Haig, newly installed president of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club, presided at the regular June meeting of the club, which was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, on Monday evening.

Club members were treated to a delicious chicken dinner, with about 30 members being present on the last regular meeting of the current year. Head table guests included: Mrs. Bernice Grills, and Miss Betty Grills, who were the guests of Irene Haig and Simcoe McFadden; Mrs. Ola Charlton was also in attendance as a guest of Mrs. Rena Sternbach.

Since by tradition, the closing meeting is always in the nature of a festive occasion, the business session was brief, with only necessary matters being dealt with. A good number of notes signified their intention of attending the coming Provincial Conference which is to be held in Hamilton during October. Mrs. George Rendell graciously offered to open her home in September for a buffet supper, with all proceeds being turned over to the club.

TALENT NIGHT

Ways and means chairman, Charlotte Strachan, announced that the club will hold a "talent night" in the fall, during Business Women's Week, one of the club projects for the coming year.

Following the business session, Irene Haig and Simcoe McFadden distributed the wonderful day they had spent in Ottawa as guests of Mrs. Lee Grills, M.P., on the occasion of the recent visit to the capital of President Kennedy. President Irene and Simcoe painted a word picture of the President and his first lady, and the many distinguished persons they had met during their visit, and extended grateful thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Grills for making such a delightful day possible.

The meeting adjourned at an early hour with club sessions due to be resumed in September.

THOMASBURG GUILD

THOMASBURG — The June meeting of the Guild was held at the home of Mrs. J. Miller on June 14th with ten members present.

The president Mrs. Morgan opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer and the Scripture lesson taken from Matthew 21-13 was read by Mrs. Miller. Plans were made to arrange to have Mrs. Wallis, naturalist, show her films of wildlife, on June 28th at the O.O.F. Hall.

The program consisted of a reading by Mrs. Lewis Kellar, and also one by Miss Ruth Morgan and a contest was conducted by Mrs. Charles Grills. The meeting closed and refreshments were served by the hostess.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

MARSH HILL — The June meeting of Marsh Hill WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Ivan Clare with 13 ladies present.

The president, Mrs. Allyn Finkle, opened the meeting with a meditation. "Mission Possible".

A letter was read from the Presbyterial literature secretary and also one announcing the School for Leaders, which is to be held in Whitby, on August 21st to 25th.

Mrs. Bert Searles, stewardship secretary, read "That is Not Mine."

The members reported sending 33 cards and making nine calls and three hospital visits.

Mrs. Allyn Finkle read a letter from the Provincial Committee of the Presbyterial United Church Women for the Belleville Presbytery.

The theme of the worship service was "Workers for God" led by Mrs. Frank Finkle.

Mrs. Leslie Finkle read "Situation of Missionaries Difficult" and Mrs. Ivan Clare read "Who Will Go For Me."

Mrs. Allyn Finkle gave the chapter "Are Missionaries Necessary?" from the study book.

Mrs. Ivan Clare read "History of W.M.S. Dates From Halifax, 1815."

After the singing of the hymn "O Lord of Life and Love and Power" and benediction the hostess served refreshments.

Many Attend Annual Piano Recital

WELLINGTON — The centennial parlor of the United Church was filled with parents and friends of Mrs. Norman Foster's piano pupils on Friday evening when they presented their annual piano recital.

After the program Mrs. Foster presented each pupil with a small memento.

Miss Annie Spriggins, on behalf of the pupils, presented their teacher with a lovely jewellery set of brooch and earrings.

FINE PROGRAM

The program was as follows: "Clothespine Waltz" and "Three Parades" by Robert Callow; "Swinging Along" by Sharon Cassidy; "Hear Those Bells", Jane Foster; "On the Levee", Robert Smith; duet, "Little Waltz," Marlene and Dorothy Parks; "Adeste Fidelis" and "Rock of Ages," Nancy Evans; duet, "Chess for the Red, White and Blue," Marlene Parks; "Old Kentucky Home" and "Home on the Range," Peggy Lane; "Silver Threads Among the Gold," Ann Miller; "All Through the Night" and "Oh, How So Fair," Dorothy Parks; duet, "Happy Farmer," Linda Holmes and Sandra Dean; duet, "Lilac Serenade," Monica Alves; "Blue Danube," Linda Holmes; "Oh Susanna" and "Turkey in the Straw," Nancy Lane; "Barcarolle," Wm. Gilman), Sandra Denard; "Minuet in G," (Beethoven), Kathy Alexander; "Toreador Song," Anne Sprigings; "La Paloma," Patsy Greenfield; duet, "Glowworm," Kathy Alexander and Monica Alves; and "Rendezvous" by Mrs. Norman Foster, who closed with "God Save the Queen."

Women's Activities

SCOTT'S W.F.

Mrs SIDNEY — A pleasing event took place in the evening at the home of the Women's Association meeting which followed the pot-luck dinner held in Scott's Church hall on Wednesday afternoon. As Mrs. McMullin wasn't remaining for the meeting Mrs. K. Ford presented Mrs. McMullin with a small gift from the ladies of the church. Mrs. McMullin though taken by surprise, expressed thanks and appreciation.

The president, Mrs. A. Martyn opened the meeting with the theme song and offered prayer.

The roll call showed nine members present, 14 cards sent and four calls made.

A report of the provincial committee was read. It was decided to have the Women's Institute in July to explain more about "The United Church Women."

The meeting will be held at the home of Grenville Sine. Program convenors will be Mrs. R. Sine and Mrs. J. Pollet. Mrs. Morley Sine will be hostess for the dinner in the church hall, on July 12.

Mrs. R. Dafoe gave the call to worship and the invocation. Mrs. M. Sine read the meditation using Scripture passages from Isaiah 6:8, Romans 10:15; Luke 18:23-30.

After singing hymn 386, "O Lord of life and Love and Power", Mrs. Dafoe closed with the benediction.

QUESTION BOX

Question — We are rather amused, and quite surprised, by an invitation to a so-called "bar party." It is to be given for a young man who is to be married next month. It has all the earmarks of a "shower," but the gift to be brought is for the groom (definitely not for the bride and groom) and somehow the home bar is suggested. Could this be a first, or is it becoming a custom for the men to try to grab some of the attention by having showers, also? Wives are invited to this shower (as we insist on calling it) but any gift is to be addressed to the groom. The old world is really getting mixed up! Have you heard of such parties? — Mrs. H. M., Parksmuir, N. J.

Answer — I can't say I have! To my way of thinking, regular "showers" for the bride-to-be are overdone to a point that is ridiculous, and I have long urged people to stop this foolishness. One or two showers for a bride-to-be are just nowadays; five or six seem to be the order of the day. Not only do these "surprise parties" become boring to those who are invited but also it costs quite a lot of money when you are "hooked" to buy five shower presents and a set of dishes. It's quite shocking, girls! The idea of having showers for the bridegroom would be just too much! Common sense has got to come into this picture sooner or later, and I feel very strongly that it should be sooner! Right now!

• • •

Question — I would like to have a question concerning an answer which you gave to one of your readers a week ago. You stated that it was considered showing off, and being affectations, to wear bracelets on top of elbow-length gloves. I would like to know if you consider Mrs. Kennedy, the wife of the President, in this category. I am enclosing a picture that was in the paper, showing Mrs. Kennedy in a receiving line. Both she and another woman in the line have their bracelets on the outside of their gloves. What is your opinion about this? — Mrs. F. R., Bellingham, Md.

Answer — In all such situations, it is my opinion that it is up to the individual to wear up her mind what she wishes to do. There are really no set rules about such things. So it's up to you.

• • •

Question — Would you please advise the proper attire for a man and wife to wear when they are attending a formal noon wedding with a reception immediately following? The wedding is to take place the end of June. — Mrs. H. J. C., Treadneck, N. J.

Answer — For the lady, street-length, not too dressy gown (a pastel-colored suit may also be worn) completed by a pretty summer hat — with gloves, purse and shoes all blending into the picture. For the man of family, a dark suit, white shirt (never a colored one) and a conservative tie, is proper.

Women's Institute

IVANHOE (W.I.)

IVANHOE—The June meeting of Ivanhoe W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. John McInroy with 22 members and six visitors in attendance.

The president opened the meeting in the usual manner. After correspondence was dealt with the convenor in charge of the Sales Barn announced that the W.I. would be catering in September at Hickson Sales Barns, Hoards. The president also spoke of the good used clothing for a bale to be packed later on, for the Scott's Mission.

Mrs. C. Wright, Home Economics convenor opened the program with a round of community singing, with Mrs. K. Bray at the piano. A reading entitled, "The Happy Farmer" was given by Edna Tanner, and also a lovely piano solo by Mrs. Paul Anderson.

Mrs. J. McInroy delegate to the district annual gave her report of the day's proceedings. Presentations of cups and saucers were made to Margaret Wright and Jayne Gay, by Mrs. Ted Pollock and Mrs. J. McInroy, who expressed the sincere regret of the members at losing these two valued members.

At this point, Mrs. C. Sills read an address of appreciation to Mrs. John Wright, a most efficient secretary-treasurer for the past number of years and Mrs. Goldie McInroy presented her with a lovely table lamp, as she is leaving the community to reside in Norval. All were sorry to lose these members, but best wishes are extended to them wherever they may be.

Mrs. C. Wright conducted a contest after which Mrs. McInroy assisted in serving tasty delicious refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Waupoos Prepares for Girl Guides

CAMPBELLFORD — Division Commissioners of the Girl Guides, Quinte area, held an executive meeting here on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. A. C. Newman. Those present were: Mrs. MacLeod Hall, Area Commissioner; Mrs. D. Stuart of Belleville; Mrs. T. Ferguson, Mrs. John Moore, Miss Eva Baker, of Trenton; Mrs. W. D. McArthur of Picton; Mrs. G. Foster and Mrs. H. Monon of Peterborough, and Mrs. D. Johnson, of Madoc.

CAMP PREPARATIONS

Business primarily concerned with Waupoos property and getting it into shape for camping. Painting the house, the eaves troughing and fire escapes were authorized. Hydro installations to the camp sites were reported as complete. A heavy duty motor with a large tank and chlorinator are being installed to provide an adequate water supply. This is especially necessary as a fire protection. Work parties are being called from each town to tidy the grounds.

A dinner for all Guide leaders in the Quinte area was arranged for Wednesday, Oct. 11, and they hope to hold it in Campbellford.

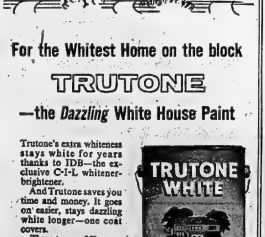
Town Suit



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Dark gray or black yarn-dyed worsted is the fabric of a town suit that is jauntily smart and never so wearable.

The feature of the jacket is found in the self-bound pockets which hang longer than the jacket.

With the suit comes an overblouse of red or black-and-white dotted crepe, its new neckline showing above the one-button closing of the jacket.

features of the budget but added that there is still a great and pressing need for a complete revision of the Canadian tax structure, and that still further tax incentives are needed to help increase the lagging growth rate.

LABOR CRITICAL

The Canadian Labor Congress in a statement by his secretary - treasurer, Donald Mc-Donald, approved several of the budget's proposals but said it contains "no improvements in social security, no real relief for the small taxpayer, and the measures that would produce substantial increases in consumer purchasing power."

Dr. R. V. Yobe, president of B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd., Kitchener, hoped the dollar wouldn't be forced down more than one or two per cent. If it went too low it would have a significant effect on living costs because of the higher cost of needed imports.

Government economists are hoping that the unused capacity available in Canadian industry—idle machines, unemployed men—will help hold the cost-of-living increase to a minimum.

If this happens then the impact of higher-priced imports according to the thinking of finance department experts, will be only fractional.

Mayor Michael J. Patrick of Windsor said elimination of the excise tax on automobiles is a step in the right direction but is by no means the whole answer to the problem of the automotive industry.

G. B. Gordon, president of Dominion Textile Co. Ltd., said in Montreal Canada's textile industry should find some genuine encouragement in the policies advocated by Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Gordon said the proposed dollar exchange rate and the flexibility of the tariff adjustments should stimulate production of textiles for export and domestic consumption.

UNITED STATES

Associated Press business analyst Sam Dawson took a look at the Canadian budget and said: Americans planning a Canadian vacation or wishing to buy goods there may be in for a break.

But if the Canadian plan to force its dollar below the value of the American dollar goes through, he added, Americans who want to sell goods there or who get dividends from investments in Canada may be on the losing side.

GREAT BRITAIN

The recession-battling budget plunged foreign exchange markets into a state of nervous tension and startled the British government, already deeply worried about trading problems.

Government and motor industry spokesmen in London expressed grave concern over the possibility that Canada may levy a 15-per-cent duty on British vehicles and parts which now enter the country free of tariffs.

The Ottawa moves complicated matters still more for the British government, which now is studying the prospects of joining the European Common Market.

The Evening News says many politicians viewed Fleming's budget as "a warning shot in the preliminaries of the larger Common Market battle."

The decision to reduce the value of the dollar in terms of other currencies will have a two-way effect on Britain. Canadian products, such as newsprint, wheat and metals, will be cheaper. But it will make the sales of British goods—and those from other countries—increasingly difficult in Canada since they will cost Canadians more in terms of their own money.

Some authorities feel the Canadian moves will help reinforce British arguments in favor of joining the economic community formed by France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

MARKETS

The Canadian dollar closed on the international money markets Wednesday worth only 97½ cents in terms of United States funds—a gain of three-eighths of a cent over the day's opening figure.

The drop, sharpest in a decade, was the immediate result of Finance Minister Fleming's depressed dollar statement.

The closing quote Wednesday of 97⅝ was registered in New York and Montreal.

The industrial index on the Toronto Stock market set a new high of 590.13 Wednesday, reflecting confidence in the budget. Papers and automobile stocks rose in price.

SOUTH AFRICA

Sir de Villiers Graaff, leader of South Africa's United party, said the announced move by the Canadian government to lower the value of the Canadian dollar in relation to United States currency was a result of Canada's "having so much capital from overseas that her cost structure had risen to the point where she could not compete in world markets."

"Our position is completely the opposite. "We are so short of capital that we've no money to develop our industries . . .

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1961

Strident Voice of Leftists Comparatively Stilled by Nation's General Prosperity

Social reformists and democratic prosperity have deprived the militant voice of many a heroine born in the United States, Dorothy Day, There are lively voices still from that end of the political spectrum and from other action groups as well.

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—While the thunder from America's far right political fringe rumbles on, voices in the corresponding clamor from the opposite flank?

The fact is, the once strident voice from deep left field has been comparatively stilled in recent years. Authorities give three main reasons why:

1. Social and economic reforms begun in the 1930s now are part of the country's basic fabric—to the dismay of some right-wind militants. Enactment of labor laws, social security, minimum wage laws and establishment of regular elections have largely or removed many a left-wind issue.

2. The country's general prosperity.

3. The discredit of the Communist party is an international arm of the Soviet Union.

IMPETUS IS LOST

Economic stress traditionally breeds left-wing agitation, and much of the impetus is lost at times when the general economic welfare seems relatively secure, as is the case today.

Unlike 30 years ago, when communism was still considered by some as a genuine untried social experiment, today the overwhelming mass of Americans have rejected it.

There still is Communist activity in the United States, though the evidence at hand hardly points to a "tightly organized number of nearly 40,000,000 Americans" as conceived by the right - wing Birch Society's Robert Welch.

National Secretary Benjamin Davis Jr. of the U.S. Communist party has from 7,000 to 10,000 members—a fraction of the enrolment during the depression.

There are other symptoms of the party's decline. Three years ago, the Communist party lost its paper. The Daily Worker, discontinued daily publication and became a weekly. It resumed subsequently his grown thinner and thinner.

UPHELD TWO LAWS

And just June 5, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld two anti-Communist laws—one requiring Communist action organizations to register with the government and another making it a crime to be an active member of a party advocating the violent overthrow of the government.

Short of the Communist party itself, who are some of the major left-wing groups?

There's the Fair Play for Cuba committee, a group formed two years ago to defend U.S. support to Fidel Castro's regime and combat the half-truths and phoney liberal rhetoric it says is coming from the "business - controlled" American press.

It claims 7,000 paid-up members and lists among its members C Wright Mills, a professor of sociology at Columbia University, to feel a desperate need for "a new country." Mills telegraphed a San Francisco "teach" help five days after the abortive April 17 invasion of Cuba. "Were I physically able to do so, I would at this moment be fighting alongside Fidelistas."

LAUNCHED A CRUSADE

The Cuban invasion provided a springboard for other, mostly left-of-centre groups to launch a crusade.

One was the non-violent Committee for Cuban Independent, Democracy (and since disbanded) coalition of four libertarian and pacifist groups: the Committee for Non-violent Action, the War Resisters League, the Catholic Worker and the Peacemakers.

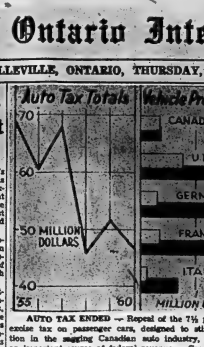
This group considered it "tragic that the economic, and social advance of the Cuban revolution are threatened by the refusal of the United States to leave the Cubans alone," It was opposed to the use of force in front of Central Intelligence Agency headquarters in Washington to demonstrate their "awareness of what is going on."

Lacking a prolonged economic crisis, left-of-centre militants these days generally have only single - issue causes to rally behind, such as the Cuban question and asserted civil rights backlash.

The Emergency Civil Liberties Committee was formed, for example, to counter the House Un-American Activities Committee. The Committee to Secure Justice for Morton Sobell was organized to appeal for a new trial for the convicted Soviet espionage conspirator; and the Committee to Abolish HUAC was organized to press for civil rights legislation for members felt the American Bar Association was derelict in not pursuing.

CCF Critic Says Companies Want Higher Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — The CCF's financial critic in the Commons said Wednesday it is "shocking" that Canadian investment companies did not purchase the full $15,000,000 offer in the first auction of government-insured mortgages.



Erhart Regier, Burnaby - Coquitlam, was commenting on an announcement by Works Minister Walker that $12,500,000 of the offering had been sold, with no bids on the remainder.

There is "coolies" of investment money available in Canada, Mr. Regier said. Banks, trust companies, insurance firms and investment dealers should be "thoroughly condemned" for passing up this mortgage purchase.

He said the inference was that they were content to see sitting back waiting for higher interest rates and profits.

Mr. Walker said the mortgages were offered in regional blocks worth $500,000 each. Five of the 30 blocks did not draw a single bid.

Replying earlier to J. R. Garland (Nipissing), Mr. Walker said the five blocks were not in any particular section — "they are located all over Canada."

AUTO TAX ENDED — Repeal of the 7½ per cent federal sales tax on passenger cars, designed to stimulate production in the sagging Canadian auto industry, will choke off an important source of federal revenue. Graph (left) shows total excise tax collected 1955 to 1960 on passenger cars produced in Canada. The tax, which was 10 per cent from 15 per cent on April 6, 1955, and lowered again to 7½ per cent on Dec. 7, 1957. Second graph shows how vehicle production in main European countries has skyrocketed in the years 1950-60 compared with Canada. Production of cars and trucks in Canada in 1960 was only slightly above the 1950 level. In West Germany is was up six times; Italy five; France four; the United Kingdom doubled. All of these countries have exported vehicles to Canada. (CP Newsmap.)

Auto Excise Tax Put on First in 1923

OTTAWA (CP)—The history of the excise tax on autos, first abolished after having served governments as a money-maker since 1920, recalls the days when the Model-T was Canada's car of cars.

Repeal of the 7½-per-cent tax means about $150 on the average $2,000 passenger car priced at $3,000 to $3,500.

When it was instituted in 1923 the tax was five per cent on autos valued below $1,200 and 10 per cent on the "luxury class" past $1,200.

Between 1926 to 1940 it was five per cent on any car valued above $650.

During the Second World War, the rate shot up to 25 per cent on autos valued at $900 or less and as high as 80 per cent on cars in the category past $1,200. In 1947 it was back to peacetime changes in the rate since 1943. It was 10 per cent between 1958 and 1957, when it last was changed.

Dr. Vincent Bladen of Toronto, who once recommendation for an auto excise tax made in his royal commission report on the auto industry and accepted by the government, called it anachronistic to regard autos as luxuries.

The excise tax hit only a few other items today, most of a luxury nature, he said.

TURNS ON LIGHTS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Niagara Parks commission's $125,000 landscape illumination was inaugurated here Wednesday night by Labor Minister Starr. Thousands of trees in Queen Victoria Park were illuminated by subergrged lights.

Highlights of Report On Auto Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of Bladen royal commission report on the automobile industry, tabled Tuesday night in the Commons:

Abolition — made effective Wednesday — of 7½-per-cent excise tax on passenger cars, lowering prices to dealers by about $150 for a $3,000 car.

Assessment of 11 per - cent sales tax at same level for imported cars as for Canadian vehicles—at the price to dealers—rather than at the lower base of homeland value plus any duty.

A 10-per-cent duty on all British vehicles and parts entering Canada-ending duty-free provisions.

Division of the Customs Act provision now allowing automakers to import parts duty-free if they do not make in Canada and if the resulting vehicle includes a certain level of Canadian content.

Duty-free entry to Canada for Canadian or foreign manufacturers—chiefly American — on any vehicle or part meeting a price schedule of Canadian-content requirements.

Stimulation of Canadian parts industry, now hurt by U.S. imports, export of parts through expanded markets if manufacturers in Canada and abroad would get more here to qualify for duty-free entry of vehicles and parts.

Parts now contributing to Canadian content in cars assembled here to count for content if contained in foreign-made vehicles sold anywhere.

Canadian auto industry not "distressed" but needs, help, especially in view of growth and strength of inbound trade tougher competition.

Special discount to car-makers in sales-tax assessment — say five per cent — to compensate for the distribution costs borne by the maker in the absence of a domestic industry.

Revision in customs provisions to remove Commonwealth content as eligible for Canadian status — suggested as a step to take account of future British parts sales or assembly of British cars in Canada.

Consumer demand—not industry fads—dictates stress on design, size and trim in Canadian cars.

Imported cars 23 per cent of Canadian sales last year, or 180,000 units. Canadian production 396,000 units against record 481,000 in 1953.

Canada's auto industry, once accounting for exporting as the world, country's second-largest manufacturing group.

Critics Applaud Third and Final Stratford Play

STRATFORD (CP) — The Stratford Shakespearean Festival apparently is in for another big season.

The final of the festival's three -Shakespearean plays of 1961 went before watchful eyes Wednesday night and, as did the first two, emerged relatively unscathed.

If anything, the main fault found in the performances of Love's Labor's Lost was not that of the director or cast, but of the author and circumstance of the author because he was comparatively young when he wrote it and of circumstance because it contains many now-unintelligible topical allusions and aspects not so palatable with a 20th-century audience as with one around 1600.

There was hardly a critic who would find fault with the way director Michael Langham and his cast handled the difficult material.

Among the actors, John Colicos probably took the honors as Berowne. His part called for many a witty exchange, especially with Rosaline, a bright Australian making her first appearance in Canada's Shakespearean centre. She did not fall him.

Orangemen Hear Joe Smallwood At Brockville

BROCKVILLE (CP)—The secession of South Africa from the Commonwealth last month was a sign of the bankruptcy of British colonial policy, Premier Joseph R. Smallwood of Newfoundland said in an address to 450 orangemen at a session of the Grand Lodge of British America here Wednesday night.

"There isn't a Canadian today who doesn't hate and despise the policies of the present government of South Africa. . . . I suggest our statesmen ought to have applied a whole country only because of a particular policy or particular administration.

"How dare they assume that this particular policy of South Africa is to remain forever? If they don't assume it will last forever, how dare they expel the whole country? must we expel a country in order to get policy? . . . Surely this is the bankruptcy of British statesmanship."

Bladen Auto Commission Plan Would Reduce Car-Prices to Canadians by $240

OTTAWA (CP)—A formula to lop $240 or more from the price of the average Canadian-made car was outlined in the royal commission report on the ailing Canadian auto industry.

Production through expansion —giving Canadian parts-makers greater volume through integration with the United States industry—is the gist of the recommendations made by Dr. Vincent Bladen, dean of the University of Toronto economics faculty.

It's an indivisible package, said the 110-page report of the one-man commission which was overshadowed Tuesday night by the new federal budget when Finance Minister Fleming made it public in the course of his long speech to the Commons.

The government speedily accepted the first step in the package—and reserved judgment on the rest—by abolishing the 7½-per-cent excise tax on passenger cars.

Public repeal took effect Wednesday, cutting about $150 from the price of an average vehicle costing the government $86,000,000 in revenue over a full year.

Mr. Bladen said pointedly he expects the manufacturers and dealers will pass on to the consumer this tax saving in full. Canada's three automakers—General Motors, Studebaker-Packard and Ford.

MIXED NEW ENTITY

Dr. Bladen's cure for the Canadian industry also contained a new proposal, however, under which long have entered Canada duty-free.

But his expansionist theme—dovetailing neatly on Mr. Fleming's budget — gives Canadian and foreign auto-makers incentives to use more Canadian parts by offering a system of "credits" to return some of their cost when import parts or vehicles duty-free.

This is aimed primarily at the United States, whose manufacturers own all Canada's auto-making plants. At one time, Canada was the second-largest car exporter in the world but the pattern has been reversed in recent years with a flood of lower-priced imports.

Dr. Bladen said that his reccommendations are aimed at cutting costs to the consumer, to stimulate demand, and to expand Canadian parts production to achieve the economies of large-scale output.

BREAKS DOWN ESTIMATE

His estimate of a potential price reduction of $240 or more to Canadians on Canadian cars —if his plan were fully executed—broke down this way:

First, $150 would come off with the abolition of the excise tax.

About $60 would come off through a system of sales-tax discount to compensate automakers for the fact that they bear distribution costs normally borne by other industries by wholesalers.

Price reductions of $30 to $90 should follow the granting of duty-free entry for parts going into cars, the cost limited to the volume of the car-maker, he said.

Cuts would be even larger in importing whole vehicles duty-free instead of the present average rate of 17½ per cent for most favored nations.

In addition to these direct price reductions, other savings which cannot be estimated with accuracy in advance would result from the adoption of my whole plan," he said.

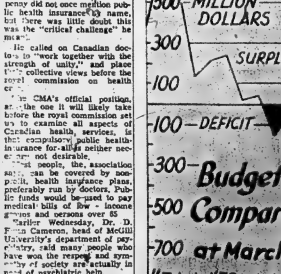
Dr. Bladen said shifting the Canadian rate of import interest add about $30 to their prices—the government last Dec. 1 moved along the 11 per cent level—a special discount so that the sales tax makes taxes levied not more heavily on the imports.

WILL STUDY TARIFFS

The government is expected to take a long look at parts of the Bladen package, but Mr. Fleming's budget — a complex, complex and sweeping" tariff proposals will require extended study.

The objectives and suggestions were welcomed but he told all facets of the auto industry , plus the general public, will have ample opportunity—he would depend on their submissions of views for analysis.

Observers could not recall when—if ever—a budget speech was employed to launch the first public disclosure of the recommendations of a royal commission report. Budgets announcing royal commissions, as Tuesday night's did for a study of financial and monetary structures, are usual.



American Policy Advisers Say K Doesn't Want War

The avalanche of threats by Premier Khrushchev to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany by the end of the year.

The three Western powers who occupy West Berlin would be placed in the embarrassing position of having to deal with East German regimes, which would have control of the access routes to West Berlin, 110 miles inside Communist territory.

The Western powers have refused to recognize the East German state and President Kennedy is reported to have told Khrushchev firmly at Vienna that unless the Western powers' join him in negotiating a peace treaty on Germany he will sign the long - threatened separate

RECORD DEFICIT — A record post-war deficit of $650,000,000 is estimated for the 1961-62 fiscal year in Finance Minister Fleming's budget. It is the fifth straight deficit budget and compares with deficits of $345,500,000 in the last fiscal year, $413,100,000 in 1959-60 and $601,300,000 in 1958-59. Mystery of Laotian Civil War Is Extent of Military Participation by Reds

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)— One of the mysteries of the Laotian civil war is the extent of military participation of Communist North Viet Nam.

Is the claim of a Communist Vietminh invasion true or not?

The question has been a source of deep frustration to foreign correspondents here since such charges were first made in the summer of 1959.

There appears to exist no reliable intelligence on the subject.

Last week a U.S. delegation spokesman at the Geneva conference on Laos said there were approximately 1,000 Vietminh forces engaged in or supporting the pro-Communist Pathet Lao in late March. Later information, he said, has raised this estimate.

Western correspondents in Vientiane have published at hearing such a figure that no American sources here had ever mentioned.

The immediate reaction on the part of Royal Army officers was a derisive "he must have dropped in here." They claim at least one division of North Viet Nam troops has been engaged against the Royal Army.

Major Commander Kong Le, who left Vientiane last December with 1st battalion, now claims to have five battalions or six of Pathet Lao are believed to number another 3,000.

If their total strength is as estimated now at 11,000, did they fill their ranks with local recruits or Vietminh? Some correspondents, exasperated by the contradictions, have asked if a Vietminh invasion unequivocally proved, flatly called it a fraud.

Neither the foreign correspondents nor any of the 300-odd American military advisers here are reported to have seen Vietminh troops in Laos.

Europeans who lived in north Laos asserted they saw Vietminh troops and heavy tanks in the Communist province.

The Catholic mission in Vientiane reports that two French Catholic priests were about to be shot by a Vietminh artillery officer during a mounting city and were saved by an officer from Kong Le's forces.

But an American officer who leads one of the small U.S. advisory teams in the field said: "I personally don't believe there are any North Vietnamese units here except padres, doctors and technicians." His opinion is similar to the guarded views of American and other Western military experts here.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Maria Giavanovic, 41, of Toronto was acquitted Wednesday on a charge of manslaughter resulting from an attempted abortion. Mr. Justice George Walsh warned her to "stop this nefarious practice or you'll be back here again." She was charged after Mrs. Justina Kolenc died following an illegal operation.

DEFICIT GROWS — Finance Minister Fleming estimated a $650,000,000 deficit in his 1961-62 budget presented to Parliament. Expenditures were estimated at a record $6,415,600,000 while revenues were expected to total $5,765,000,000. Graph shows total revenues and expenditures for selected fiscal years. (CP Newsmap.)

Red China More Favorably Disposed Toward Canada

GENEVA (CP)—Red China is more favorably disposed toward Canada than toward the United States, it is apparent at the Laotian conference on Laos here.

Meetings between the Canadian and Chinese delegates—including one Tuesday's call by Premier Chou En Lai on Canadian Affairs Minister Howard Green—have demonstrated this.

Chou not only reiterated China's gratitude for the record it made visit to Peking between the two countries but indicated a hope for further purchases.

The Chinese indicated at least some understanding of Ottawa's proposals on Laos, where Canada serves with India and Poland on the international control commission supposed to be supervising a cease-fire.

Regarding terms of reference for the commission, Chou said he was prepared to accept any terms agreed on by the three members of the commission.

But diplomatic observers felt this left in doubt the question of whether agreement could actually be reached by the commission under its conflicting pressures from East and West.

It has been hamstrung by lack of air-inspection equipment to investigate violations of the Laotian cease-fire.

In contrast with the cheery approach of the Chinese to the Canadians, Chen in the early days of the conference bitterly assailed the U.S. for fomenting war in Southeast Asia.

At about the same time, diplomatic sources reported that the Red Chinese had made an approach to the Canadians, hinting it'on an old personal friendship between two high officials of the delegations in Geneva, Vice-Premier Chen and the U.S. recognizes Communist China.

The meeting was between two ambassadors — Wang Pin-nan, who heads the Chinese mission in Poland, and Chester Ronning, Canada's envoy in India, an "old China hand."

Ronning, deputy leader of the Canadian delegation to the Laos talks, was born in China of missionary parents. He has long known Wang, and speaks fluent Chinese with an accent much like that of Chen, since they were born in neighboring provinces.

The formal purpose of Wang's visit to Ronning was to bid Mrs. A. Holmes, described as: To express Premier's thanks for the gifts sent to express thanks for the work Canada has put in as a member of the control commission in Laos; and to convey an assurance that China, which wants Laos set up as a neutral country whose status would be internationally underwritten.

A heavy wind storm on Tuesday afternoon of last week flattened the hay fields, crashed large trees and broke off numerous branches across the township.

Mrs. Milton Shaw, Ivanhoe was a dinner guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thompson.

Mrs. Vernon Harry and baby son have returned home from the Belleville General Hospital.

Among those who came from a distance to attend the 62th anniversary of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S. were four past presidents: Mrs. Thomas McKown, Springbrook; Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Canniffton; Mrs. T. F. Towsend, Belleville; Mrs. Bert Jeffs, Prince Albert; the first Baby Band leader, Mrs. Sid Demorest also Tommy Demorest, Marmora; Mrs. Harry Benson and Mrs. Milton Shaw, Ivanhoe, and Mrs. George Gazaly of Marmora, daughter of the Mission Circle leader in 1911. All had been former residents of Mount Pleasant.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

Many new Canadians who entered Canada during the year have been erroneously informed that they claim a tax exemption of $1,000. This is basically true but the $1,000 applies only when one has been a resident of Canada for the full 12 months in the year.

A person entering Canada during the year is not questioned by the tax department as to his earnings prior to becoming a resident. He will report his Canadian income only, and take exemption for the period that he lived in Canada. This is arrived at by dividing the $1,000 exemption by 365 days and then multiplying by the number of days he lived here.

If the immigrant brought a wife and children with him he should total the allowable exemptions of $1,000 for himself, $1,000 for his wife and $300 for each child, regardless of their ages, and compute as outlined above. The reason for using $300 for each child is that they are not qualified for family allowance.

There is an allowance paid on behalf of immigrants' children by the Department of Citizenship and Immigration, known as family assistance. If the taxpayer has received any payments of this nature, such payments must be added directly to his tax payable (not to his income) in order to be allowed the $500 for each child. These payments are made after the taxpayer has resided in Canada with his family for three months. In view of this, if the taxpayer arrived after October 1st in any year he would have received no payments in that year. He could claim the $500 for each child without having to add back any amount.

Question? — I arrived in Canada on April 1. My wife and two children on Oct. 10. What is my tax exemption?

Answer — It is presumed you supported your wife and children for the entire year, therefore your basic exemption for the full year would be $1,000 for yourself, $1,000 for your wife and $300 for each child, making a total of $3,000. You could also claim exemption for only half year, however you may claim $1,500.

Question — My wife and I entered Canada Oct. 1 for permanent residence. I was transferred here from the United States. I earned $5,000 in the U.S. Do I claim this on my Canada tax return?

Answer — No. Report only your Canadian income and claim personal exemption, only for the period of residence in Canada.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG — Thomasburg IOOF Lodge and Crescent Rebekah Lodge attended divine service on June 11 at 3 p.m. in Christ Church. The decorational memorial service followed immediately in Thomasburg Cemetery.

Mrs. Doris Laurenson, organ enumerator made her calls in the village last week.

Mrs. G. Dynan was hostess to the Eggleton United Church W.A. and WMS for their meeting held recently in the parsonage.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. T. Carleton (the former Laura Jane Wood) who were married in Wallbridge United Church on June 18. Mr. Carleton is employed at Roblin Cheese Factory on Highway 37 and Mrs. Carleton has been transferred to the Tweed branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Porter of Toronto who have spent the past six weeks at the home of Miss Emma Porter have returned home. Dr. and Mrs. H. Cheney of Ottawa are at present with Miss Porter, who has been confined to her room since her return from the Belleville General Hospital.

Several relatives and friends from this district attended the funeral of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Morton of Belleville in the chapel of the Thompson Funeral Home.

PRESENTATION

On a Saturday evening recently the neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Pegg to spend a social hour with them before they leave the community to make their home in Tweed where they have purchased a home on Metcalfe street. They have disposed of their farm and an auction sale was held on Saturday, June 17 to dispose of their farm machinery and some household effects. The couple were presented with a gift of behalf of the residents of the community.

ARCTIC WEATHER STATION — Canadian and United States flags fly near the joint weather station at Isachsen, N.W.T. Scientists of the Canadian Polar Continental Shelf Project have established a base camp near the station. A hydrogen-filled balloon is being released from building at left. Slanted boxes have equipment to record temperatures that fall to 56 degrees below zero and winds that blow at 90 miles an hour in March.

USED TO FLY WATER — Men of the Canadian Polar Continental Shelf Project at Isachsen on Ellef Ringnes Island, 600 miles from the North Pole, prepare to fly out onto sea ice in this helicopter to study Arctic Ocean water. Such chartered helicopters are also used as ice trucks to fly deep-water pack ice back to the Isachsen camp for water supplies. It must be at least three years old to be free of ocean salt. (CP Photo).

Canadian Polar Shelf Project Team Surrounded By Water But Can't Drink It

In this story a Canadian Press reporter who visited the Canadian Polar Continental Shelf Project in the Arctic tells of the problems of getting drinking water for the 70-man group.

By JIM WHELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ISACHSEN, N.W.T. (CP)—Nestled on the snowcovered shore of Ellef Ringnes Island and looking over a frozen bay of Princess Marguerite Adolf Sea toward the Arctic Ocean, the 70-man Canadian Polar Continental Shelf Project is surrounded by water.

But there's not a drop to drink.

Although the surrounding snow could be melted for water in an emergency, it is not practical on a large scale since a barrel of snow melts to about one-tenth of a barrel of water.

Sea ice is sometimes used—carried to the base camp from out on the bay by caravans of sled-hauling tractors — but its age must be determined first.

One-year-old sea ice is far too salty for human consumption when melted. Two-year-old ice is better. After three years, enough salt has been leached from the ice so that the water tastes perfectly fresh.

FILLED WITH BRINE

During April, the 18,000-gallon tank installed at Isachsen's eight - man joint Canadian-United States weather bureau and used by the polar shelf project, was accidentally filled with ice that was too young.

Coffee tasted as if it came from a leaky ship's hold, those who washed their hair found it standing on end for days. It was impossible to whip up a shaving lather, but any codfish would have been quite at home in the brine of the camp's four wash basins.

Not as near as the sea ice, but still close enough to Isachsen, is one of the three tiny fresh-water lakes of Ellef Ringnes, an island the size of Cape Breton. During summer, heavy tractors pull water from this lake over five miles of barren rock and foot-deep mud in 300-gallon tanks mounted on wooden sleds.

But summer makes the water problem more acute at some big field stations such as the project's Decca radio transmitting sites on the northern tip of Ellef Ringnes and the Meighen Island, about 80 miles northwest of Isachsen.

As summer melting and drifting begins at the southern edges of the Arctic ice pack, pressure throughout the pack relaxes and the ice moves out as far as 40 miles from the shores of the Sverdrup Islands.

TOO MUDDY

For the Decca sites, far from any lake, old ice in the offshore pack becomes the nearest source of fresh water. Some fresh water streams flow from the snow-capped low hills to the ocean, passing quite near the sites, but they are far too muddy for drinking.

As a result, the project's chartered helicopters are used as flying ice trucks, carrying old ice from the pack to the men at the radio stations at a price which would probably exceed that of the best imported champagne.

Expensive as all this water work is, it costs much less than drilling a well. The drills would have to be sunk through at least 1,300 feet of rock — solid permafrost — and although this may some day be done, it will be to quench the world's thirst for oil.

There'll still be room for the man who can pick up a chip of sea ice, turn it thoughtfully on his tongue and say:

"Here we are. This ice is three years old."

Tomorrow: Scientist Must be Handyman.

Wading Pool Being Prepared For Opening

DESERONTO—The Athletic Commission have been preparing the wading pool on the rink property for opening. There has been some controversy apparently concerning the supervision of the pool during the hours that it will be in use. Last year the Home and School Association were responsible for the supervision but this year feel it advisable that others take that responsibility.

Mr. McGregor, president of the Athletic Association, advises that they have a letter from the Home and School Association to this effect. As a result the Athletic Association are making a canvass of the town asking mothers and other interested persons to help them supervise the pool. It is definite that some supervision is necessary as even last year with some of the ladies present they were hard put to keep some of the youngsters under control. To prevent injury to the very young some adults have to be present at all times the pool is open. Mr. McGregor stated that while the Home and School as an organization are not participating several of the members have signified that they will assist in the supervision. According to latest reports the pool will be opened very shortly.

Race at Mosport

European Drivers Here

By HARRY CALNEK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Top European drivers began arriving Wednesday for Canada's first international sports car race—an event complicated by a United States club ruling.

Olivier Gendebien of Belgium and Joakim Bonnier of Sweden were resting after a flight from Europe. They were to be joined today by Britain's Stirling Moss, considered by many the maestro of motor racing.

The three are among 22 entries competing Saturday at the Mosport road circuit 60 miles east of here in a 200 - mile, $100,000 event organized by the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association.

The entry might have been larger except for a last-minute ruling by the Sports Car Club of America, governing body of amateur motor sport in the U.S. The SCCA told prospective U.S. entries they could lose their amateur licences if they competed in the event.

Moss is favored to take the race, to be run in two 100-mile heats over the twisting 2.3-mile, $750,000 track. He will be driving a 156-mile-an-hour Lotus 19.

Bonnier, first-line pilot for the German Porsche firm, will be handling an RS61.

Gendebien, three times winner of the Le Mans 24 - hour classic and twice the victor of the Sebring 12-hour Grand Prix, still be in the market of another Porsche RS61.

The unknown quantities in the race are the two Sakler Mark VI driven by designer - builder Bill Sadler of St. Catharines and 1960 Canadian racing champ Grant Clark of Georgetown. The Corvette, rear - engined cars, are expected to have a potential top speed of about 180 mph.

Two other races are scheduled for the program, both 75 miles in length, for production sports car and open - wheeled formula juniors.

Tee off Today

200 In Ontario Open

By AL MARKLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ISLINGTON (CP)—Ideal golfing weather was predicted Wednesday for more than 200 golfers scheduled to tee off in the Ontario Open golf tournament.

The outlook was for partly cloudy skies, light winds and temperatures staying below 75.

It was expected to take about six hours, starting at 7:30 a.m., to move the 204 professional and amateur golfers off the first tee at the rolling, tree-studded Islington Golf Club in suburban Toronto.

Eighteen holes will be played by the entire field today. The field will be cut to the top 120 and ties for another 18 Friday and on Saturday the final 40 and ties will play 36 holes to determine the winner.

Knudson, winner of the Open last year, tucked away the Manitoba Open in 1958-59-60, the Junior championship of that province in 1954-55 and the Canadian Junior title in 1955.

Par for the Islington course, cut in many parts of its 6,480 yards by a wide stream, is 72. The course record is 65 and few watchers of this tournament expect Knudson to take the event with a 13-under-par 275 last year—to break the record this year.

The 96 professionals, including four from the United States will be seeking a share of $2,500 in prize money. The winner will pocket $500.

Other highly rated pros in the field include four-time winner Gerry Kesserling of Kitchener, Moe Norman of Woodville, Murray Tucker and Bob Gray of Toronto, Rudy Horvath of Windsor and Bob Cunningham Jr. of Toronto.

Nick Weslock of Port Credit, formerly of Windsor, will try to become the first amateur to win the event four times. He turned the trick in 1946, 1949 and 1950.

The low 20 amateurs and ties from the first round, along with the low 10 and ties from the qualifying round of the Ontario Amateur July 19-22, will qualify for a 36-hole final July 24 to determine the four members of Ontario's Willingdon Cup interprovincial team.

Sports in Brief

LEADS QUALIFIERS

DETROIT (AP) — Miss U.S.I. owned by George Simon and driven by Don Wilson, led Wednesday's qualifiers for the annual Detroit Memorial Regatta with a 107.862 m.p.h. lap around the three-mile course.

Miss Supertest II, owned by Jim Thompson of London, Ont., and driven by Bob Hayward, had a 102.827 m.p.h. lap, while Gale V, owned by Joe and Lee Schoenfeldt and driven by Bill Cantrell, covered the river at 102.081 m.p.h., and Miss Detroit, driven by owner Chuck Thompson, did it in 101.313 m.p.h.

Boats must average 90 m.p.h. for one three-mile lap to qualify. Four other entries will attempt to qualify prior to the race Saturday.

LACROSSE STAR DIES

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Carl (Gus) Madsen, 48, captain of the St. Catharines Athletic teams which won Canadian senior lacrosse championships in 1938-40-46-48, died suddenly Wednesday. As well as leading the Athletics, often ranked the greatest team in the history of the lacrosse, to Canadian titles four times, he also captained two other St. Catharines clubs which won Ontario senior championships in 1939 and 1945 and lost to the west coast in the Mann Cup finals.

Madsen was generally rated the best two-way defenceman of his era.

Nixon Successor?

Ford Frick May Resign

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK (AP) — There is talk in baseball circles today that Ford Frick may resign his $65,000 job as commissioner of baseball before the end of this second term Sept. 20, 1965.

Says Frick: "I have no immediate plans to retire but I do not propose to work until I drop in my tracks. If I remain to the end of my contract it would carry me beyond the age that I think a man should work. But as of now I've lots of pep."

The names most frequently discussed as possible successors are former vice - president Richard Hanna Hedge Robert Cannon of Milwaukee; Joe Cronin, president of the American League; and Warren Giles, president of the National League.

MIGHT WAIT AWHILE

Baseball men think Frick will not want to step aside until baseball's current headaches are further along to solution. These are:

1. The expansion of the major leagues. When baseball went to 10 teams this year, the National goes to 10 next year.

2. The $2 million bidding for untried young players through the bonus system, with offers to teen - agers of $100,000 and more.

3. Legislation to protect the reserve clause and remove the threat of anti - trust action.

Frick would be close to 71 if he remained to the end of his second seven - year term. He is reputed to be eligible any time for a pension of $30,000 or more.

AGE PLAYS PART

Frick, then president of the National League, was 57 when he succeeded commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler and the supposition is strong that baseball would probably seek as young a man to succeed him. This would seem to rule out Giles, 65.

Baseball would probably welcome a national figure such as Nixon, because of the complexity of its problems. These include, in addition to the immediate ones with which Frick is contending, how to cope with television, which brings in big revenues but hurts the gate, and what to do with the minor leagues where attendance is withering.

But Nixon, 47, probably would not consider the job if he still has ambitions in national politics.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It isn't often that success comes to a man at 80. At that age, they're content to sit at home and tell their great-grandchildren about the good old days.

But not Col. K. R. Marshall. He'll be home at the racetrack and June 17, 1961, will be a day he'll always remember. That, in his own words, was "the happiest day of my life."

Here is a man who owned his first thoroughbred as a schoolboy in 1895. He rode it in a race at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto—and lost. Since then, his cerise and white silks have become known to thousands.

Although he walks with a cane, he could have tossed it away last Saturday when he made the short walk to the winner's enclosure at the New Woodbine track in suburban Toronto. A crowd of more than 26,000 stood up in tribute to him as he accepted the $5,000 Gold Cup as winning owner of Queen's Plate horse.

He has been dreaming of taking that walk for nearly 50 years. He had saddled a dozen or so Plate starters but none had finished in the money until Blue Light, an 18-to-1 shot, made it in equally the closest Plate finish of all time.

He has had plenty of thrills around the tracks in his 66-odd years of owning and riding thoroughbreds. But they were nothing compared with his plate victory.

"You get few opportunities to bring a horse along who is capable of going into the 'Plate,' he said a few moments after the race. Blue Lights win gave Col. Marshall $48,675, the Queen's 50 guineas (about $170) and a couple thousand more.

He had the $50 bet on the three - year - old which paid $39.50. "I guess I made enough for a good dinner," he chuckled.

Little is known about this man who has done a great deal for racing—and for the Queen's Plate.

For the first 84 years, the Plate was confined to horses that were Ontario-foaled and owned by British subjects resident in Ontario. The conditions of the race must have been a constant source of irritation to horsemen from other parts of Canada, particularly the late Commander J. K. L. Ross who campaigned a stable which dominated all North American racing for two years, but couldn't start a horse in the Plate because he was a resident of Quebec.

Ontario Jockey Club directors refused to change the conditions until 1943 when Col. Marshall was elected to the presidency of the OJC. At a special meeting of directors in Toronto on Sept. 29, 1943, the board approved his suggestion that the Plate should be open to any Canadian-foaled three-year-old owned by any Canadian.

The next year, Cum Laude, bred in British Columbia and owned by Dr. L.H. Appleby of Vancouver, finished fifth in the 85th running of the Plate.

Since then, many out-of-Ontario horses have been entered but none has won.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Now's the day and now's the hour
See approach proud Yankee power.
Fire the Gordon, hire the Bauer,
On to victories.

So hammred Trader Frank, the long Lane that has no yearning to keep off-again-on-again Joe Gordon in the baseball family.

Twice before Lane had gone to the managerial mound and hurled strikes at the balding Gordon. This time he tossed his final ball and struck him out—but good. Then he signalled his pitching pair for ex-Yankee Hank Bauer to pull on the managerial togs.

Lack, or was it is a brilliant piece of inaugural strategy, that enabled the former Bomber outfielder to pull a winning rabbit out of the Kansas Hat? He inserted Wes Covington as a pinch-hitter and the ex-Brave scrowged with a game-winning homer.

The Lane-Gordon nuptials have never been happy ones. But there should be a law or something setting the limit on the number of times a general manager can divorce a baseball manager.

The last time Lane gave Gordon the heave-ho was last August when he gave the pinkslip to Gordon and broach cloots of the Cleveland Indians.

The first marital split also occurred at Cleveland the previous September when the Chicago White Sox squelched the Indians and Chief Gordon to win the American League pennant.

On that occasion Lane gave Gordon the cin one-two plus a coat but lengthy piece of oratory as to why he had not fired Joe long before.

But—the unpredictable Lane pulled another head-liner. He called a press conference the next day and the slaves of the written word fell off their chairs in surprise. Lane announced his new manager. . . Alexander Gordon. Lane had rehired him with a two-year contract.

But what the typewriter mob did not know at the time dished behind the closed doors of the log brass where there had been a conference. Fire-Chief Lane was the central figure. He had been told by the camp-fire council to give Geraldine Gordon back his eldest head-dress or he could pack his own wampum and seek solace with another tribe.

So they started another season as friendly as a couple of bull elephants at mating time. The Indians slumped. By August they dropped 18 of 25 games. Meanwhile over in Detroit the Tigers under Jimmie Dykes had lost 12 of 15 tilts.

Bill DeWitt, general manager of the Bengals and Trader Frank had something in common. Both had field managers who were, to them, big pains in the neck. Lane wanted to get rid of Gordon and DeWitt desired to see the last of Dykes.

So they got together and the outcome was one of the more sensational stories to hit the sports pages. Two field managers were fired and the same two hired. Actually it was a deal with a deal—but no questions asked nor cash given.

Gordon donned the stripes of the Tigers. Dykes with no trial concessions was made the Indian field chief. Both the Big Chief and the Tribe were pleased. . . Exit DeWitt. He went to the Cincinnati Redlegs.

But all was not going well with Gordon and the Tigers. Everybody He strolled out of the lair for good and went to Kansas City to the end of the season.

But what of Mr. Lane? He rehired Mr. Dykes as chairman of the 1961 season. Then his fortunes changed. Charles Finley, millionaire owner of Kansas City, who had just acquired the club, hired Lane to help him get rid of some of his excess fat.

Meanwhile the Indians hired Cobbe Paul to replace Lane. This made Paul boss of Dykes whom he had fired as manager of the Redlegs a few years earlier when both were in the National League.

The soup thickened. The word got around that it looked like Lane was soon to part company with Finley. It was wrong. Lane will stay with the K.C.'s. Now Bauer is in the middle. He will have to listen to Lane and Finley at the same time.

As of now DeWitt, fired by the Tigers, is with the Reds and they are leading the National League. The Tigers top the American. Lane fired at Cleveland has a fat contract with Kansas City.

And Gordon? He is out. Who said a diamond is a boss's best friend?

Tigers Idle Yankees Win

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Well, look who's back in business in the American League!

It's the long lost Chicago White Sox, bounding back from the bottom with 13 victories in their last 14 games after almost blasting the Comiskey Park scoreboard apart in an explosive doubleheader sweep over Cleveland Indians.

The Sox, playing before a capacity crowd of 45,125 at home where the scoreboard crupts with a fireworks display for a Chicago home run), crashed six homers among 29 hits while trouncing the third - place Indians 15-3 and 11-1 Wednesday night for a six - game streak.

Roy Sievers and Al Smith walloped five homers and drove in 15 runs. Sievers hit three home runs and drove in nine runs, collecting seven RBI on a pair of homers and a pinch-hit grand slam, in the opener.

While little Luis Aparicio has been the big hitter in Chicago's 14 - game streak, batting .474, Sievers and Smith each have hit 12 home runs in that span. Sievers has batted .310 with 18 RBI in his last 14 games, while Smith has hit .410 and driven in 16 runs.

COMING ALONG FINE

It all began with the White Sox in last place, 15½ games out of first, after a seven - run one game slay of the first division and a lack of first-place Detroit Tigers.

Detroit was rained out at Washington, while the Tigers' lead was trimmed to one game when New York whipped Kansas City Athletics 5-3. Two homers by Mickey Mantle drove in all of the Yanks' runs. Baltimore Orioles scored seven runs in the ninth to win 11-8 victory over the Twins at Minnesota and Los Angeles Angels ended Boston's winning streak at six games by whipping the Red Sox 5-4.

Sievers, after getting only one hit in four games, was 5-for-7 against the Indians, who now have lost four in a row for the first time this season. Both of Sievers' first game shots were off reliever Johnny Antonelli with the slam coming in an eight - run fourth inning that chased loser Gary Bell (4-8). Righthander Dolf Larsen, (5-3), blanking the Indians on seven hits over seven innings, was in relief — his first victory in 10 decisions with Cleveland.

The White Sox; picking up 11 unearned runs in the twinbill, beat Wynn Hawkins (5-5) with a four - run second inning in the nightcap. Smith then belted his two homers, both two - run shots, and Sievers added a solo homer. Southpaw Juan Pizarro (3-0) gained his first complete game in the AL although Bubba Phillips homered in the ninth.

DALEY SHAKES JINX

Mantle hit a three - run homer in the first inning of Kansas City and then wrapped it up for the Yanks with his 22nd home run, with a man on in the seventh off Bob Shaw (3-6). Former Kansas City southpaw Bud Daley (5-6), making his second start for the Athletics after losing five in a row. He needed relief after a two - run homer by Haywood Sullivan in the ninth.

Jim Gentile drove in three runs, two with a homer for the Orioles. They came from behind in the ninth when reliever Chuck Stobbs hit one batter and walked another with the bases loaded. Harmon Killebrew socked a pair of two-run homers for the Twins. Rookie Bert Cueto (0-1) lost and Hoyt Wilhelm (6-2) won, both in relief.

Righthander Ken McBride (6-5) allowed seven hits while beating the Red Sox and broke a 1-1 tie with a single in the fourth inning off rookie Dan Schwall, who lost his first start after five relievers. Ted Kluszewski homered for the Angels.

Joyces Meet Flyers Tonight

Joyce Real Estate will play host to the Belleville Flyers in an 8.15 Belleville and District softball league game at the Fairgrounds here tonight.

The city squad is currently tied for second place while the Flyers are in the cellar but getting quickly. A win for RCAF tonight would tie them with Bobcats and Picton.

Last night's scheduled game, Bobcats at Picton, was washed out.

Beavers May Shift To Windsor

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers may be moved to Windsor for next season's Eastern Professional Hockey League campaign, Beaver president Steve Monteith said Wednesday.

He indicated that the decisive factor would be the attitude of the Kitchener Auditorium commission to a Beaver request for a lower rink rental arrangement.

Last year the Beavers paid $800-a-game and during the season paid out a total of about $32,000 in rent. They are asking that the rental be reduced to about 20 per cent and that they be given program rights.

At a meeting in North Bay Tuesday, EPHL president Ed Houston said Windsor still is being considered as an entry "and if certain arena commissioners aren't careful Steve could be a switch."

Monteith agreed that this was a reference to the Kitchener situation.

Like North Bay, meeting the league conditionally admitted Niagara Falls and Long Island franchise vacated by Montreal Royals.

The Kitchener situation is likely to come to a head next week when Monteith has been asked to meet with the auditorium commissioners to discuss rental terms.

Two Dodgers Threw Balls Then Fists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A flat fight between shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles Dodgers and his teammate, first baseman Norm Larker, put Wills out of action for two days last week, the Los Angeles Examiner reports in a copyrighted story.

News of the fight leaked out despite apparent efforts to conceal the incident which occurred here June 15 before a game against Chicago Cubs.

Bob Fluhrer, Examiner baseball writer, says the fracas started while, Larker, hitting during infield practice, drove several balls at Larker, striking him in the leg.

As they went to the clubhouse for a pre - game meeting, the fight broke out. Gil Hodges stepped in to break it up and was struck on the nose. Frank Howard, rushing in to stop the battle, slipped and fell on his back.

Wills left for the game, and in the next two against the Cubs was forced to sit out two against Milwaukee Braves last weekend because of a bruised shoulder suffered in the skirmish.

Wings Stop Jets With One-Hitter

Herb Mofford of the Rochester Red Wings was 'em big, sometimes ,really big.

The classy r i g h t h a n d e r chalked up his third International Baseball League shutout of the season Wednesday night, and it was a one - hit masterpiece over the league - leading Columbus Jets in the sightless of a doubleheader.

The Jets won the opener 5-4 but didn't stand a chance against Mofford and some heavy hitting by the Wings in a 10-0 nightcap loss. All other league games were rained out.

Mofford, giving up only Ray Meijaer two - out single in the first, walked two and fanned six to tie Jersey City's Orville Jones and Dick Veale of Columbus for the most league shutouts.

The Red Wings clinched the nightcap with a four - run first inning off Al Jackson.

Jim Worrall of Toronto president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said the new regulations could affect athletes of any country who accept athletic scholarships or attend special training camps. But the exact effects were unclear. He said until an IOC special committee makes an interpretation of the new rules.

COULD EXPLODE

Worrall said the new code appears to create a potentially explosive situation.

"Who is going to do the policing of these new rules?" he asked. "If they delve into government training camps, scholarships and loss of time payments, every country now participating could be affected, the whole thing perhaps worse than anybody."

Athletes who attend the Canadian Junior Olympic training program at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto each year could also be affected he said.

"Where are we supposed to draw the line? Do we call all these young athletes professionals simply because they travel to Toronto for a week's training camp at the behest of somebody else's expense?"

Effergy asked: "How are they going to judge other countries with different setups? Many Russian athletes are employed by the army and paid during their athletic training."

THREE HORSES HURT

TORONTO (CP) — Three horses were injured in last Saturday's running of Dorsey's Plate. Conn Smythe's Jammed Lucky, who finished eighth after being tabbed as one of the favorites, suffered a broken bone in the left foot which will prevent the horse from racing until at least late fall. Bill Bradley's Ramblin Wreck, who finished, is also out for a few months. Fire Brigade's front leg injured in the starting gate. Fifth - place Grampy Pride has been sidelined with bucked shins.

Minor Softball

The Red Sox downed the Giants 19-12 in a Pepwee, "B" group, minor softball league game at the Queen Elizabeth School.

Home runs were hit by Smith, Harold Townsend and Ron Whalies while Leland had a triple.

Lew Beats Giants, Dodgers Take 2

By ED WILEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Are Milwaukee Braves finally on their way in the National League race? Or have they just set themselves up for another flop?

The Braves haved edged back into fifth place by winning their third straight win behind complete - game performances by Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette. The streak may not be much, but it matches the Braves' longest string of successes this season, and they've built it against the second-place Los Angeles Dodgers and the third - place San Francisco Giants.

After losing four straight games to San Francisco, the Braves made it two in a row against the Giants with a 5-3 victory behind Burdette Wednesday night. Spahn beat San Francisco 3-1 Tuesday night.

The win left the Braves nine games behind the league - leading Cincinnati Redlegs, who knocked St. Louis to sixth place by beating the Cardinals 2.

REDS' LEAD CUT

Los Angeles shaved the Reds' lead to one game by taking two decisions from Chicago Cubs, 4-2 and 7-5. The Philadelphia - Philadelphia game was rained out.

Burdette (6-5) followed up a 3-1, five - hit victory over Los Angeles in his last start with a five - hit decision over the Giants, who now trail by three games. The big righthander retired 11 straight batters after the Giants broke a 3-0 tie with Willie Mays' 14th home run of the season in the sixth inning.

The Braves, coming from behind on Joe Torre's two - run homer in the fifth inning, nailed it down against Jack Sanford (3-4) on a two - run double by Eddie Mathews in the sixth.

DROVE IN RUNS

The Reds, winning seven of their last eight games, took a 2-1 lead in the first inning against loser Ernie Broglio (4-5) and romped in as Gus Bell and Frank Robinson each hit a homer and drove in five runs between them. Rookie Ken Hunt (4-3) won his third in a row, although allowing nine hits.

Reliever Larry Sherry saved both games for the Dodgers. He struck out pinch - hitter Ed Bouchee and Jerry Kindall with two men on base in the ninth inning of the opener, saving the victory for Stan Williams (6-6). Then he blanked the Cubs on one hit over 3 1-3 innings in relief of southpaw Johnny Podres (7-4) in the second game.

Gordie Windhorn's first major league hit, a three - run fourth - inning double, won the first game for Los Angeles and beat Dick Ellsworth (5-3). The Dodgers scored twice in the fifth inning getting the runs on a single by Norm Larker and an error, to wrap up the night-cap against Don Cardwell (5-5).

Waterloo May Go Senior

WATERLOO (CP) — Operation of a senior hockey team in Waterloo Area is a step closer with the permission of the arena commission now obtained for the use of Sunday afternoon dates for the projected team.

Ron Boddell, chairman of the commission and organizer of the senior club, said the club hopes to play with seven other senior teams — Galt, Chatham, Woodstock, Stratford, Strathroy, Ingersoll and St. Thomas.

The new club would be an offshoot of an intermediate A club of last season, Boddell said, and will rely largely on local players.

Patterson To Fight McNeeley

BOSTON (AP)—Floyd Patterson is expected to defend his world heavyweight boxing championship against unbeaten Tom McNeeley indoors either Sept. 23 or Sept. 25, it was learned Wednesday.

The news came after an application by Champion Sports Incorporated of Massachusetts to the state boxing commission for a license to conduct the title bout.

Brothers Tom and Al Bolan, top officials of the one-day-old state corporation, are reported to have said they and Patterson had agreed upon McNeeley, who has won 22, over Eddie Machen and British heavyweight king Henry Cooper as the most desirable next opponent for Patterson.

GETS NEW POST

LONDON Ont. (CP) — Capt. John Hand, former marshall, Western Ontario area, has been appointed to a similar post for the Manitoba area at army headquarters at Winnipeg. Capt. Hand, who won the Distinguished Flying Cross while a member of Orde Wingate's Chindits in Burma, has served in London for two years. His new appointment is effective early in July.

20-Sport Program for Olympics

ATHENS (AP)—The International Olympic Committee Wednesday accepted a 20-sport program for the Tokyo Olympics.

Volleyball and judo were included for the first time.

As the IOC wound up its 1961 annual meeting the question of the Tokyo Olympics was settled by a compromise. The Japanese organizers had wanted to drop canoeing and the modern pentathlon, replacing them with judo and volleyball. European and South American countries fought to keep canoeing and the modern pentathlon.

In a vote, the IOC put all four on the program. Archery and handball were the only two sports deleted by the IOC.

The other sports approved for Tokyo are track and field, rowing, basketball, boxing, cycling, fencing, soccer, gymnastics, weight - lifting, field hockey, wrestling, swimming and diving, equestrian, shooting, water polo and yachting.

Cleroux Miteff Go Tonight

MONTREAL (CP)—Al Hackman, out to drum up the third shot at the Canadian heavyweight title for Bob Cleroux, looks to tonight's ten - rounder with Alex Miteff as the first phase of a contest between Montreal and Toronto.

Title — holder George Chuvalo's bout with Willi Besmanoff in Toronto next Tuesday is the second part.

"We'll see how the two bouts draw at the gate and that should decide once and for all whether or not the third Cleroux-Chuvalo fight should be held in Toronto or Montreal," said Bachman.

Both earlier fights were held in Montreal and went to 12 round decisions. The 23 - year-old Cleroux stripped Chuvalo of the crown last July, and the Torontonian won it back last November.

Miteff, the Argentinian Cleroux meets tonight, also has fought Chuvalo twice, drawing and losing. Cleroux holds a decision over Besmanoff.

SET FOR 10 ROUNDS

The bout is a scheduled 10-rounder.

Miteff, 26, has won 23 bouts, lost nine and drawn one.

Cleroux, in 29 fights, has posted 26 wins, two losses and a draw.

The bookmakers have established Cleroux as an 8-5 choice.

Racial Segregation Not One Of Aims of Major Political Action Groups in the U.S.

Among the elements which have produced a rise in conservative militancy in the United States is the desegregation battle in the South. This week and next The Intelligencer presents articles by an Associated Press writer on the political action groups for the 1960's, deals with their attitudes toward racial issues.

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP) — Racial segregation is not one of the announced aims of any of the major political action groups in the conservative wing in the United States.

Yet the militant white supremacist finds an area of agreement in many pronouncements of right-wing groups.

Among the tensions giving impetus to political militancy today, desegregation is one. Communism's advance in the cold war is another.

Some segregationist action groups freely identify their opponents with the "Communist conspiracy." Militant right-wing groups, while not concerned with integration as such, propose states rights principles and opposition to federal intervention in that area — tenets also, of activist pro-segregation groups.

RESISTED SWEEP

For example, a tract printed in Greenwood, Miss., by the Association of Citizens Councils said the south has been unfairly called undemocratic "because it resisted the onward sweep of centralizing governmental power" alien to our federal republic."

A broader area on which both groups stand, however, is their reliefidea that communism is the villain that is upsetting their conception of the American way of life, which in many corners involves racial segregation.

Typical of this tendency is a citizens councils pamphlet cartoon which shows a sunbonnet sleeping while insects labeled "Red termites" eat away his home.

In Birmingham, Ala., recently a group of "Freedom Riders" was greeted with the cry, "You dirty Communists, why don't you go home to Russia?"

Throughout the south, there are more than 70 local groups dedicated to fighting integration, some of smaller number than listed four or five years ago.

Distribution of racist literature in the south also has diminished considerably — although it has by no means vanished.

ATTACK JEWS

"A recent tract of the Elmore County (Alabama) white citizens council attacks "the ridiculous myth that the modern American jew is a Whiteman. The jew has a colored background," the publication declares. "He is a racial mongrel and not a Whiteman," and "this fact explains why so-called Americanjews are very partial to Asiatic Communist Russia."

Another group operating in Alabama is the Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan Inc., an organization of undisclosed membership led by 31-year-old Robert M. Shelton of Tuscaloosa.

Besides fighting integration, Grand Wizard Shelton also wars against water fluoridation ("a Communist plot to poison the American people") and mental health programs ("they can perform an operation on you, give you the mentality of a 3-year-old, and teach you to be an integrationist or anything else").

In the neighboring state of Georgia, another vocal contender dedicated to fighting the "Communist conspiracy" as manifested in racial integration is Lester Maddox, a bespectacled, bald ing cafeteria proprietor who heads group called Georgians Unwilling to Surrender — GUTS. Maddox claims a following of about 1,000.

At another point on the militant segregationist spectrum are types of segregationist groups—the moderate variety.

Best organized among this group, and the only one of significant size, is the well disciplined racial-religious sect headed by Elijah Muhammad. It preaches hatred of the white man, and adherence to the Mosaic tradition.

(True Moslems disassociate themselves from this group.)

He urges Muslims to "fight like hell with those who fight like hell against you, and the world of mankind will respect us as equals, and white rule in America will be overthrown by 1970."

William Holden Castigated For Living in Switzerland

By BOB THOMAS

STOCKHOLM (AP)—William Holden, formerly of California and now a resident of Switzerland, finds himself the centre of controversy for that reason.

He has been attacked by Congress, lashed by his fellow film workers of Hollywood and criticized indirectly by the Actors' Union of which he was once an officer.

He is defiant.

"I'm living the kind of life that I think is best for me and my family," he says. "I'll continue to do so, no matter what laws are changed and what anybody says."

Holden is the most noted and the most articulate of the film personalities who have taken up life in Switzerland. Hollywood columnists castigated him for allegedly aiding Conaway production of American films abroad.

The Kennedy administration has recommended eliminating tax havens overseas for the likes of wealthy actors. Some U.S. senators have agreed.

So has Holden's own union. The Screen Actors Guild.

Was he disappointed in the guild's stand?

DISILLUSIONED

"I'll tell you a story that expresses my point of view," he says.

The story goes more or less like this: Two psychiatrists are operating in both offices in one elevator. As one gets off at the fifth floor, he plays the other across the face. The other psychiatrist proceeds calmly to the next floor. The moral of the story man is prompted to ask the psychiatrist about the incident.

"Oh yes," is the quiet reply, "that's His problem."

Holden added: "What the senators and the guild are talking about is their problem. It couldn't bother me less."

Then he talk about all the American stars who are living in Switzerland," Holden said. "Well, who are they? David Niven? He's English. Deborah Kerr? She's English. Peter Ustinov? He's English, Noel Coward? He's English. Audrey Hepburn? she's Dutch-English. JUST ME LEFT!

"Then they mention Ava Gardner. But wait a minute—she's living in Spain, isn't she? So who does that leave? Me. That's all."

Holden admitted that he gained certain tax advantages but might be harmed by Congressional action. But he added: "I still have residual payments on pictures like River Kwai and The Key, on which I pay American taxes in the 90-per-cent bracket. This will be going on for 15 years or more. And I also pay income taxes in the countries woere I work—right now in Sweden, for example, while I'm making Counterfeit Traitor.

"They can change the laws any way they like. That won't make things any different for me. Living in Switzerland has been the most rewarding experience of my life."

Canada Outdoors

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec has lit a red light of warning against the use of minnows as bait in an effort to protect some of the country's best fishing spots.

The use of minnows has been banned in some parts of the province and will be permitted in other parts only under specific conditions.

The success of the program depends on the co-operation of anglers and of minnow dealers. If the program fails, the government has indicated it will ban the use of minnows everywhere. A similar ban now exists in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The game and fisheries department had been asked by some this year to impose the ban immediately. But others argued that restrictions throughout the province would not make sense because many lakes and rivers already are infested with undesirable types of fish.

The department devised a compromise, but its new regulations were so complicated that most anglers were left confused. A spokesman for the department admitted it would take some time for everyone to understand the new rules. In the meantime, a good rule of thumb would be this: When buying minnows check with the dealer on where and how minnows will be used and may be used.

Dealers will require permits to net and sell minnows under varying conditions. For example, a dealer in an area where there is a good trout lake and six infested lakes will get a permit on condition he sell only for fishing in infested waters. This he will have to do to make clear to the minnow purchaser.

No dealer will be allowed to sell perch, catfish, stickleback or sunfish (minnows). They are the type which quickly take over a lake and spoil game fishing.

A check is to be kept on minnow dealers and if they break the rules they will be subject to fines ranging from $1 to $1,000.

Briefly the new minnow regulations mean this:

Minnows alive or dead may not be used in the entire eastern area of the province from Bellechasse County eastward on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River and from Portneuf County eastward on the north shore. This area is free of undesirable types of fish now and the aim is to keep them clean. In other parts of the province minnows may be used in already infested lakes or streams, but not in lakes comparatively free of undesirable types of fish.

Dr. Gustave Prevost, head of the game and fisheries department's biology office, says:

"Minnows are a worse threat to game fish than poachers using nets, spears, or even dynamite, because the damage they cause is irreparable."

Many lakes, once main tourist attractions because of their abundance of game fish, now are infested with undesirable fish because careless anglers had released unused supplies of minnows.

Dr. Prevost said undesirable minnows reproduce at a rate of 50,000 a season and within two or three years take over a lake. They eat game fish eggs and fingerlings, monopolize feeding areas and force game fish into deeper parts where food is scarce.

Minnows eaten before they were able to reproduce also destroy fish.

"We have discovered that most minnows are infected with some disease or other," Dr. Prevost said, "and when a game fish eats them it becomes infected too."

'Physical Comedy Is Out' Says Actress Nancy Walker

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedienne Nancy Walker, one of the stars of Do Re Mi now playing and a guest on Ed Sullivan's Show next month, says that there are fashions in comedy just as there are in clothes.

"Physical comedy is out now" she explained the pint - sized performer. "You don't see many people working with props and using their bodies instead of words for laughs."

The change became noticeable four or five years ago, she said, when writers stopped turning out pure comedy shows.

"I've been changing my style to meet it," she continued. "I've started to move into areas that are not comedic but involve acting.

"But just because physical comedy is out, no new areas have opened. It's true in TV but it is also true on the stage and in the movies: You still can't do anything that indgers or touches people's beliefs — and I'm talking about satire. Only tried a funny funny sketch called Rainy Day in Georgia, the storm-powered submarine.

Steve Allen and spouse, Jayne Meadows, doing summer stock, now are touring the two parts in The Four-Poster in Chicago.

Red Barber now is believed to be the No. 1 candidate for Arthur Godfrey's hosting spot next season in Candid Camera on CBS.

Tony Martin Finally Plans To Try Legitimate Stage

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tony Martin is going to fulfill a dream this summer — even though it will cost him $75,000.

A decade or more ago, the producers of a then flourishing Broadway musical offered Tony the starring role.

Tony, newly married to Cyd Charisse, turned it down.

"Cyd was under contract to MGM," he says. "It would have meant that we would be living in a continent apart, so I turned it down and have wasted my time since making money.

"I've often dreamed of what would have happened if I'd taken the show. Now I'm going to find out, at least partly."

The show was Guys and Dolls. Tony was offered the role of Sky Masterson, played by Robert Alda.

LOSE MOVIE PART

Later, when Sam Goldwyn made it into a movie, the veteran producer offered the part to Tony.

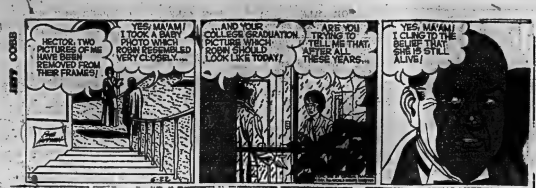
"This time I was ready, willing and able. Then Joe Mankiewicz was hired to direct. He reserved an actor over a singer—so the part went to Marlon Brando."

Tony, who has never worked the legitimate stage before, will finally play the role in summer stock.

"If I get stage fright," he produces at a time, "I'll just tell the conductor to switch to Begin the Beguine."

$75,000 DIFFERENCE

Tony estimates the difference in pay between summer stock and cancelled night club engagements at what cost him $75,000.



"And it's worth it. I'm a singer and a number. Once it cost me $2,000 to walk across the Sands Hotel casino in Las Vegas to a newspaper interview. Once, during the war, he got involved in a hot gin rummy game in a plane flying over the hump in the Far East.

"Jap planes attacked us but none of us looked up from the game," he recalls. And that should make him ideal casting for gambler Sky Masterson.

General Tendencies: The morning finds many delays in effect, so don't try to force matters, but wind up whatever you have already commenced to please attention. Then the afternoon and evening find you able to gain the good will of those who delve deeply into whatever is obscure and you, yourself, can investigate with profit whatever you do not understand. P. M. Be romantic, too.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Better plan to handle all of your affairs through this A.M. since partners are most too busy with their own. Later, use more modern methods for completing any important matters at hand. Plan to dine sumptuously in P.M.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Be very careful you do not go off on a tangent this A.M. instead of becoming more proficient at your own job or business. Tonight, however, you can get out with associate for a pleasant social evening or other favorite recreation.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Get to beauty or barber shop early, or take the health treatment you need in A.M. Then tackle any important work with vim. P.M. Tone up apartment or home so that all sparkles, is more artistic, comfortable. Fix wardrobe.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — Be sure to maintain peace at home in A.M. Get busy on work that needs to be done there. The afternoon is best for creative endeavors and contacts should be socially pleasant, if you plan early and are at your charming best. Grow.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) —Important you drive most carefully this morning and act courteous with all you meet. Later, if you take greater interest in the suggestions made by close ties, you will be able to improve conditions in all spheres of your life.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) —Be sure to zip your purse shut A.M. The afternoon is best time to shop and keep appointments, especially of a business nature. Then tonight should find you having a wonderful time at the recreations of your choice. Be gay.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —If you are clever, you will be able to get your talents before the right people today. Be tactful at your very best, P.M. Get coming days' activities planned properly so that you have far greater income.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov 21) —Anything that requires your personal attention should be handled in a poised and positive fashion during morning hours, then the remainder of the day and evening success will come through social contacts that are worthwhile.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be patient with that good pal who is upset and takes your time telling you of his, or her troubles, but be sure you don't argue. Get together this evening with close ties and attend meetings, social affairs of your choice.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Concentrate on increasing income this A.M. instead of getting into some unnecessary discussion or argument with others. Evening, however, is excellent for fraternizing and increasing popularity through courtesy, Smile.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Stay in your own backyard this morning, as it were, whether in business or personal relationships. However, this evening is good for contacting experts and higher-ups for support you need. Strive for advancement, higher credit.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Work patiently during A.M. and be sure not to envy others. Then the afternoon becomes very successful if you hit on a new modern plan or method for handling your daily affairs. Evening will find you being emotionally happy.

If your child is born today, there will be such charm and sweetness in this nature that others will want to do for your child all the time, but you must early teach to work and earn so that real happiness can be known in life, which comes only through being industrious. Be sure to give a fine education in both academic and practical lines, since upon reaching majority they will be a burning desire to become a great success in life.

Many people who have suffered from Painful Digestion, Backache, Rheumatic Pains, and Nervous Rundown Condition due to constipation, tell of the grand relief they have obtained by taking a short treatment of Syniona Herbal Compound.

"Gave Quick Relief"

Mr. Ovide Beauvais, 315 McKinley St., Sarnia, Ontario, said in a recent report:

"I had rheumatic pains (or sciatica) in my limbs, joints and muscles. They were stiff, sore and painful. Also, my digestion was very bad. I was troubled with gas, indigestion and would break up so bad, sour liquids arise almost every meal. Often I could not get proper sleep.

"I read about Syniona helping so many people and decided to try it myself. From the first bottle was finished I felt better. Now after I have used 3 full bottles and I enjoy better health. The rheumatic pains, my digestion is good, I eat better and feel like a different person."

Why not let this great herbal medicine help you, too? It is pleasant to take and results are really surprising.

Syniona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

WHAT A WONDERFUL

HOME !

AND SUCH a grand place to live—at the corner of Bridge and Dufferin, George. You have modernity combined with attractive exposure with its spacious grounds. In this big solid brick residence are found four apartments. The owner's apartment is really "out standing" with — such a huge living room, 2 bedrooms, kitchen and bath. There is a lovely family-size dining room — and with this apartment there is a 3-piece bathroom and a nice 4-piece bath — and still on the same floor and with the owner's apartment there is a utility room and a storage room. Revenue from these three units are included— and also a good size garage. Finished with lots of room. Only briefly described the one apartment — and there are three other units each completely self-contained. We are at your service to show this property outstanding that we say it is. Why not sell it to you and if not, we feel you will want to have it for your very own. This property is very beautiful and independently priced. Terms can be had at 5%. Don't think about the full price of $19,900 — but the equity in it. Many of these units could be had that after your down payment the revenue from the apartments will provide you with "free" living. What would you like ? — see it! Just call

REMAINS MYSTERY

HALIFAX (CP) — Magistrate R. E. Inglis ruled Wednesday it is impossible to determine what happened the night two young sailors died of gunshot wounds in Shadacona naval barracks here. However, the magistrate said in a decision, the "circumstances indicate" that Marcel Jean — Guy Jutras, 19, of Montreal shot himself May 5 after killing Raymond Michaud, 20, of Immaculate Conception, Que. Magistrate Inglis concluded a magisterial inquiry into the deaths of the barracks' mates.

DESERONTO

Indian Lad Chosen to Act As Page Boy

DESERONTO — When Daniel Lavallee, Indian lad, was selected to act as page boy at the Full session of the Ontario Legislature, he was the first from the Mohawk Band of Tyendinaga, Bay of Quinte, to be chosen Indian boy to have that privilege. When he alone, of the group he was among, was asked to return for the session which is concerned in Indians, it was a tribute to Danny and those who selected him as an outstanding example of a fine Mohawk boy. He was the only one to serve at both sessions.

As far as can be ascertained, Danny is the first ward of the Children's Aid Society and the first member of the proud Indian Race to have acted in this capacity. He became a favorite of all with whom he came in contact at the Parliament Buildings. He impressed them with his quiet reasonerly conduct, his dispatch in carrying out his assignments, and his always cheerful countenance.

While he attended to all his duties diligently, he still stood up for his rights generally and stoutly. One of the larger boys tried to ride Danny, so Danny invited him to the basement to settle the issue. From that time on Danny was accorded the consideration he gave the older page boys.

In his duties Danny reports that one of his toughest assignments was to phone the wife of a member to tell her that her husband would not be home for dinner.

TUTOR SUPPLIED

At home Danny lives with his grandmother, Mrs. Gordon Zachariah, who also cares for his sister, Marilyn, 14 and Cheryl, 10, and his brother, Leon, aged 8. He attends the Public School on the reserve and his teacher, Mrs. L. Claus and the principal, Mr. Allen report him as an apt pupil. Because the page boys were supplied with a part time tutor while in Toronto, he suffered no loss in school work.

Chief R. M. Hill and the Tyendinaga Band was instrumental in having Danny supply for the position. When he was notified to report on November 1 he rented a room by his class.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mrs. R. Philp of Belleville spent a couple of days last week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Shipley.

Trenton Legion schools played a friendly game of baseball at the Turner's school ground on Friday afternoon, with the Turner's school, team the winner.

Friends were pleased to learn that Mrs. G. Nelson was able to return home from Kingston Hospital last Wednesday.

Mrs. A. Fryer, census enumerator for part of Sidney Township was through this line on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Reid of Winnipeg visited part of last week at home of their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bridges.

Mrs. and Mrs. M. Kirkey were Sunday dinner guests in the home of relatives in Belleville.

Dessert social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ashley were: Mr. G. Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. H. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. R. Morgan, all of Foxboro. Also relatives from Norwood on Sunday and Mr. and Mrs. H. Clarke on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. McMullen, Wayne and Keith motored to Ottawa on Saturday.

Mrs. M. Clancy, census enumerator for the southeast quarter of Hawdon Township called at the homes on this line last week.

Mrs. R. Smith and children of Spencerville spent the weekend with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gallivan and also visited other relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarke and family of Camelot, Mrs. W. Petherick and children of Petherick's Corners were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Clarke.

Wed., Miss Miller of the Children's Aid Society of Belleville assisted him to prepare for the trip. Under the direction Aid Society provided the necessary clothing and arranged for Danny to pay visit to Mr. and Mrs. Graham Cutler, under the supervision of the Metropolitan Children's Aid, while in the city.

Since his return home, his teachers speak highly of the improvements made by Danny. On one occasion he took charge of his class and gave an interesting discussion on the work done in the Ontario Parliament Buildings. With confidence he handled all queries directed to him by his class.

CASTRO AT INTERROGATION — Fidel Castro has emerged with greater political strength as a result of the failure of the United States-directed invasion of Cuba in April. Here, he speaks into a microphone at an interrogation of prisoners captured during the ill-fated assault. (CP Photo).

Ill-Fated Cuban Expedition of April 16 Is Still Causing Numerous Post-Mortems And Much Soul-Searching in United States

What really happened in the Cuban invasion attempt in April? Why did it fail so fast? This story combines facts from many sources and gives a comprehensive review of the ill-fated effort to knock out Castro.

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Alert! Alert! Look well at the rainbow . . . the fish are running."

This coded message, broadcast by Cuban invasion forces and picked up on marine and aviation radio bands, heralded what President Kennedy has called the Cuban "episode."

It was a venture that utterly failed and it still is causing post-mortems and soul-searching in the United States.

The ultimate aim of the U.S.-directed assault by Cuban exiles in mid-April was to topple Premier Fidel Castro.

Once during the fighting radio monitors did intercept an electrifying news broadcast by Cuban officers on the battlefront.

"A bomb fell just where Fidel was."

But a diplomat in Havana later reported "Fidel is fine, just fine."

He emerged not only unscathed but apparently with greater political strength than before.

QUESTIONS REMAIN

While the "fish" were indeed running the night of Sunday, April 16, the story of the expedition opened long before.

The chronology provides more questions than answers. The reckoning is far from over.

How, for example, were those who directed the operation misled into believing Cubans would rise up in support of the invasion?

Why did they choose a vast swamp, where mobility was difficult, for their beachhead?

As early as January the New York Times reported that Guatemala was a training camp for the invasion force. This was confirmed afterward by prisoners in Havana.

Some said they took their early training in the United States and went to Guatemala, particularly Retalhuleu camp on the Pacific coast, for war conditioning.

Elementary training camps have been reported in Louisiana, Texas and Florida, many of the men drawn from the 40,000 Cuban refugees who regarded Miami as a home away from home.

There were also a number of recruiting offices in New York.

STAGED BY U.S.

The Corn Islands, leased by the U.S. from Nicaragua, were reported as staging bases.

The commander of the invasion force, Capt. Manuel Artime, 29, has since testified as a captive in Cuba that the final staging area from which the main attack force sailed was Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua. He said the fleet was escorted by two U.S. destroyers.

As to published statements that the expedition was sponsored by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, Artime declared the United States organized, directed and financed his force.

Before the landing there were two weeks of intense activity by guerrilla forces and saboteurs through the island of Cuba. There was fighting in three mountain areas. Havana's biggest department store, nationalized by Castro after he seized power Jan. 1, 1959, was burned. An aqueduct was dynamited, cutting off water from the city for a time. There were numerous bombings and more than 5,000,000 pounds of sugar was destroyed in a series of fires.

BOMBED AIRPORT

On Saturday, April 15, low-flying planes — pilots reportedly said they counted six—attacked Havana airport and two other airfields, killing eight persons.

Before dawn April 17, between 1,200 and 1,500 men were landed, mostly by sea though some paratroopers were dropped.

Although Castro claimed to have had advance knowledge of this, wild excitement gripped his defending forces when the comparatively tiny invasion hit the eastern shore of Bahia de Cochinos (Bay of Pigs) in the big swamp of the Cienga de Zapata in southern Cuba, about 100 miles from Havana.

Intercepted military wireless messages early April 17 gave a vivid if fragmentary picture of violence and confusion as Castro's officers shouted orders to each other. It appeared a larger attack had been expected.

The radio network was shut down abruptly because an officer said the message exchanges were causing alarm among Cubans who were listening in.

Castro started a crash program of arrests. Estimates of the numbers taken into custody have ranged from 50,000 to 250,000 or more. He clamped a blackout on all tuitable communications.

FALSE CLAIMS

Confusion was compounded when a statement, issued in the U.S. in the name of the Cuban Revolutionary Council, indicated a full-scale war had broken out.

"Before dawn," it said, "Cuban patriots in the cities and in the hills began the battle to liberate our homeland from the despotic rule of Fidel Castro and rid Cuba of international communism's cruel oppression."

As it was later determined, the statement was untrue.

Precisely what happened on the beaches still is not known but from information from prisoners, statements by Castro and leaks from secret hearings in Washington, it is clear just about everything went wrong for the invaders who lacked even the benefit of surprise.

A U.S. magazine, The Reporter, says:

"The invasion troops penetrated into the swamps during the first hours to points approximately 20 miles inland. Their advancements were restricted to a narrow footpath that twisted through the bogs onto an old narrow-gauge railway bed and to a stretch of new road that traverses almost parallel to the coastline. There was no place for them to go."

FORCE VANISHED

One of the mysteries is that a supporting rebel force apparently stood offshore for a time and then vanished without a fight.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, is reported to have told senators the worst initial blow to the insurgents—the rebels was the sinking of an old Liberty ship carrying most of their communications equipment and ammunition.

A U.S. Senate hearing was told that rebel planes supposed to bomb Castro's airfields arrived late—in daylight—when Cuban machines were already in the air.

Several prisoners said they had been led to believe a general uprising would occur with their arrival in Cuba and they knew didn't have a chance against Castro's tanks and planes.

On the evening of the first day rebel claims—issued by press agents—contended that thousands of Castro's militia were changing sides and the principal battle would be fought in a few hours. It was further claimed the Isle of Pines had been taken and 1,000 political prisoners held there released.

Wendell Rollason, Miami public relations counsel, announced, in the presence of rebel leaders, there was good reason to believe that Castro had been incapacitated by bombing and probably was insane.

CHANGED THEIR TUNE

By the time Castro was announcing his 72-hour victory, the rebel statements that started with such gusto and soaring promise had changed drastically in character.

They began to stress the limited nature of the expedition, saying it was primarily a supply operation for mountain fighters and that the bulk of the invaders had achieved their aim of linking up with them.

Manuel Penabaz, former Havana lawyer who described himself as chief legal officer of the invasion, said after his escape that Castro had succeeded in preventing the landing force from reaching the underground inside Cuba.

Of the invaders, more than 1,200 fell into Castro's hands. How many died is not known. On April 23, Castro said 87 of the government forces were known dead and the total might reach 100. The rebel side has given no official figures. One rebel report set rebel losses at more than 25 killed. Castro claimed his men killed 200.

DENIED USING MIG

Castro denied a rebel claim that he was using MIG jet fighters. This was later supported by Senator Wayne Morse, chairman of the U.S. Senate Latin American affairs subcommittee.

Morse said there has been "a lot of misinformation given the American people about the extent of Russian arms in Cuba . . . The planes that were used against the planes of the Cuban forces were American planes that Castro got possession of as a result of our first making them available to Batista."

These included six T-33 jet trainers converted to bombers, six British-made Sea Furies, five B-26s, light bombers of Second World War vintage. And Castro claimed to have destroyed 10 planes for loss of two during the invasion.

One of the mysteries following the action was the whereabouts of men, perhaps wounded, who escaped capture. A well - informed Washington source finally confirmed press reports that they were taken—he didn't say how or by whom—to Vieques Island, a Marine base near the U.S. territory of Puerto Rico.

KEPT IN DARK

By April 25, the New York Post and Time magazine were reporting that the CIA had set the date for the invasion, picked the spot and carried it out without letting the Cuban leaders in on any phase of it.

The Post said statements put out in the name of the revolutionary council and other Cuban—some in Florida and others through a New York public relations agency—were prepared and distributed without the council's knowledge in the first days of the invasion.

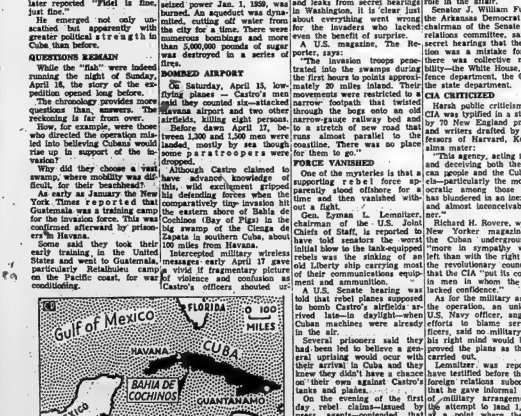
The accounts said that on the afternoon of the invasion Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, the 58-year-old former Cuban premier who headed the council, and other members were taken to Florida and there, learning of the result of the action.

In the early stages, Washington officials publicly insisted that nothing about the invasion other than what they saw in press reports. This changed after President Kennedy said he was the sole responsible officer for any U.S. role in the affair.

Senator J. William Fulbright, the Arkansas Democrat who is chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said after secret hearings that the operation was a mistake in which there was collective responsibility—the White House, the defence department, the CIA and the state department.

CRITICISM

Harsh public criticism of the CIA was typified in a statement by Walter Lippmann, columnist and writers drafted by 40 professors of Harvard, Kennedy's alma mater:



"This agency, acting in secret and deceiving both the American people and the Cuban rebels—particularly the most democratic among them—has blundered in an inexcusable and almost inconceivable manner."

Richard H. Rovere, writing in The Reporter, says the Cuban underground was "more in prospect" than the left than with the right wing of the revolutionary council" and that the CIA "put no confidence in men in whom the Cubans lacked confidence."

As for the military aspects of the operation, an unidentified Navy officer, quoted by efforts to blame service officers, said no military man in his right mind would have approved the plans as they were carried out.

Lemnitzer was reported to have testified before the Senate foreign relations subcommittee that he gave informal approval to military arrangements for the attempt to land 1,500 men at a point where they could join guerrillas.

The chairman of the joint chiefs added, however, that his conditions included the prior destruction of Castro's air force and the realization of the CIA's prediction that the underground would rally. It didn't.

INVASION AREAS — Mystery still surrounds much of what really happened in the Cuban invasion of April.

The invaders who landed in Cuba's Bahia de Cochinos (Bay of Pigs) apparently sailed from Nicaragua after assembling at Puerto Cabezas.

As early as January they were reported in training in Guatemala, especially at the Pacific coast Retalhuleu camp.

The Corn Islands, leased by the U.S. from Nicaragua, were reported as staging bases. — (CP Newsmap).

Senator Admits No Proposals For Fees Made

Courtemanche Received $66,000 From Hospital

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Henri Courtemanche and Roland Bellemare, former business manager of Montreal's Jean Talon Hospital, crossed swords Thursday before a three-man commission set up by the Quebec government to investigate the hospital's affairs.

Mr. Courtemanche, first to appear, denied he had ever asked for or received kickbacks on government grants to the hospital.

He told the commission he received $66,000 in payment for legal services to the hospital between 1954 and 1960. But he made "no definite proposal" as to a fee for his services.

Mr. Bellemare told reporters he solicit grants from the Quebec government and considered the $66,000 he did collect was a fee as part of his legal work for the hospital.

The figures he quoted indicated he received more than $10,000 a year for lobbying the late premier Maurice Duplessis and his provincial Union Nationale government for grants.

Commission chief prosecutor Andre Villeneuve asked Mr. Courtemanche why he did not present a bill for his services to the administrator, Vancouver - born Dr. George Hori, for services rendered.

"It was not the type of work that I could charge for," Mr. Courtemanche replied. "I knew I could discuss it with Dr. Hori, and I was quite satisfied."

Mr. Bellemare disagreed, repeating his testimony that Senator Courtemanche asked for and received a 10 - per - cent commission on all grants—federal and provincial — made to the hospital.

The former administrator said he personally had handed the senator payoffs totalling $22,000.

DID NOT KNOW

Quebec Health Minister Albany Paquette said Mr. Courtemanche's father-in-law — superanuity judge — nothing of the deal at the time, Mr. Bellemare testified.

Witness said when the senator the second $10,000 payment, Dr. Paquette said: "It is wonderful," he said. "He sent me to Dr. Paquette."

He said Dr. Paquette his son-in-law was receiving the 10-per - cent fee. He was surprised and annoyed. He told me not to pay it any more."

Mr. Bellemare said Mr. Courtemanche was "extremely upset" when he told of the visit to Health Minister Paquette.

"From that time on," the witness said, "Senator Courtemanche was reduced the payments to 10 per cent."

Senator Courtemanche said he knew nothing of the dates or amounts of payments made to the hospital, and "I personally received only one of the cheques sent to the hospital as payment of grants."

Mr. Bellemare then produced a letter under a letterhead of the hospital's health department addressed to "Mon cher Henri" and advising that $22,000 would be paid to the hospital as the first instalment of a grant.

DENIES GETTING IT

Senator Courtemanche denied receiving the money. "Or if I did, I don't remember receiving it."

He admitted his $52,000 house in Montreal's north end was financed by two mortgages — one worth $22,000 and $20,000—held by W-P Investment Company, a firm operated by Dr. Hori.

Mr. Bellemare said Mr. Courtemanche had a letter of credit to make payments on these mortgages. He quoted the senator as saying he owed nothing to Dr. Hori.

Task of Naming Laotian Govt. Left to King

GENEVA (AP) — The East-West conference on Laos appeared destined today to dawdle along dismal little until King Savang Vathana picks a new government after the strife-torn Southeast Asian kingdom.

The prevailing view is that Prince Souvanna Phouma, self-styled neutralist backed by the Communists, is sure to be named premier. But unless the normal pace of developments in Laos is accelerated, that won't happen for weeks.

The job of forming a new cabinet was thrown to the Laotian king Thursday by the three princes who head the warring factions in the little country.

They ended a four-day conference at Zurich with a vague statement calling for national unity and invitation to let the king name a coalition government. They pledged only that all three factions—pro-Western conservatives, pro-Communist Pathet Lao and neutralists—must be represented but did not specify how the posts should be divided.

Delegates from 13 other countries marked time here all week hoping the princes would produce a coalition government to represent Laos at the conference and tell it what the Laotians themselves will agree to.

But the joint statement issued at the end of the Zurich meeting admitted any mention of when a delegation might be formed, or even when the princes would meet again. The Geneva conference called a recess until Monday.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Thursday, June 22, 1961

The Liberal and CCF parties moved today in motions of non-confidence in the government's budget proposals.

The CCF motion criticized the government for not giving adequate consideration to social and economic planning.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) said the Conservatives have consistently exhibited a "total lack of judgment" attitude in their approach to government.

The government gave notice last night regarded as the first parliamentary step in moves to oust James. E. Coyne as Bank of Canada governor.

Legislation to impose maximum life sentences on drug traffickers and to stamp out the illicit "goofball" trade in drugs was given first reading by parliament addressed to "Mon cher Henri" and advising that $22,000 would be paid to the hospital as the first instalment of a grant.

DENIES GETTING IT

Senator Courtemanche denied receiving the money. "Or if I did, I don't remember receiving it."

He admitted his $52,000 house in Montreal's north end was financed by two mortgages — one worth $22,000 and $20,000—held by W-P Investment Company, a firm operated by Dr. Hori.

Mr. Bellemare said Mr. Courtemanche had a letter of credit to make payments on these mortgages. He quoted the senator as saying he owed nothing to Dr. Hori.

Convicted Wife Slayer Injected With Cancer Tissue 3 Years Ago

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Convicted killer Dr. Sam Sheppard was to be returned to Ohio penitentiary here today after undergoing tests to determine if a lump on his chest was caused by cancer or something else.

The former osteopathic surgeon, a prisoner at the Marion (Ohio) correctional institution since last Jan. 5, was injected with cancerous tissue in an experiment at the penitentiary three years ago.

Maury Koblentz, chief of the Correction Bureau here, said in announcing that Sheppard will be brought back here for medical tests, said prison physicians have "a very, very grave doubt" that the lump on his chest has anything to do with the cancer experiment.

Koblentz said Sheppard has "a swelling about the size of a penny" on his left chest and a swelling under his left armpit.

CLAIMS FLEMING FILCHED MANY BUDGET ITEMS

Pickersgill Opens Bitter Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming was accused Thursday night of taking a "robbed-with-violence" attitude.

Liberal J. W. Pickersgill, making the statement in the Commons, said Mr. Fleming had also flicked all his budget proposals — one exception from Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada, now facing removal from his post by government legislation.

Mr. Pickersgill added that Mr. Fleming had been "contemptuous" to the Coyne proposals in his budget speech — "not even polite—to depreciate the Canadian dollar —showed the finance minister rejecting the feeling of confidence in the principle."

The bitterly worded speech by the member for Northumberland's Bonavista - Twillingate riding, followed by three non-confidence motions and two withdrawals by Mr. Pickersgill—with "mental reservations"—was the highlight of the six - day budget debate's opening round.

It followed the budget delivered Tuesday night, and included the first mention of public confidence in the government presented by Conservative and CCF as traditional moves.

The CCF motion proposed increased old age pensions, family allowances and basic income tax exemptions. Speaker Roland Michener rejected criticism on whether the CCF motion dealt with the increased spending in government expenditures which cannot be proposed to parliament by private members.

WILL OPPOSE SPEND

Mr. Pickersgill served notice at the end of the debate that the Liberals will oppose any move of the government to speed legislation to depose Mr. Coyne. He said the request for the dismissal of Mr. Coyne is "a request for the senator to resign."

The government's chief spokesman, Finance Minister Fleming and A. Bell, Mr. Fleming's parliamentary secretary, who said the Canadian economy will respond directly to Mr. Coyne's dismissal.

Liberal criticisms had been vague, hollow, lame and ineffectual, Mr. Bell said before Mr. Pickersgill spoke—that the Liberals were being pickerbug to strengthen the stoppage.

Mr. Irvine issued his order after the two building contractors dealt out triple blows against the union.

Magistrate W. F. B. Rogers ordered a six-month jail term for Gianino Stefanini, business agent for the international Brotherhood of Bricklayers (CLC) for obstructing police. The magistrate said the stiff sentence is a striker in the current dispute, was designed to deter others from similar offences.

The main contractor on the southern part of the strike - hit Universities Avenue subway project, Johnson - Perini - Kiewit, applied Wednesday for an Ontario Labor Relations Board

See Berlin Showdown Near, Agree It Could Spark War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress generally agrees that the West faces an early showdown with Soviet Premier Khrushchev over Berlin that could erupt into a world war.

This view is reflected by weekend debate — particularly in the Senate—stirred by the suggestion of Senator Mike Mansfield, Montana Democrat, that all Berlin be declared a "free city." Its neutrality and safety guaranteed by both sides. He called this a "way out" of the stalemate.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, warned in the speech a week ago that the commitment to defend West Berlin ranges all the way "to a final pledge of the lives and fortunes of every man, woman and child in this land."

Most of those who have spoken opposed Mansfield's solution, but some urge action to depreciate the Canadian dollar —showed the finance minister rejecting the feeling of confidence in the principle."

Most of the speakers, particularly the Republicans, agreed with Republican Senator Kenneth York Republican, that the United States should not "run down" a policy of keeping Western troops in West Berlin by withdrawing its own troops on the basis of free elections.

Senator Thurmond offered a resolution to put the Senate on record in support of that stand. He said that "we face a grave risk," but it is imperative to choose "what risks we will run the harder way, but what is by far the more secure and surer way."

The Republican pressure for new commitments by the administration is in the oft-repeated policy of standing firm on West Berlin built up during the both President Kennedy himself had declared his own similar position on his return from Vienna talks with Khrushchev.

Kennedy told the American people he informed Khrushchev that U.S. security "cannot be allowed to erode right to West Berlin and "we are determined to maintain these rights at any risk."

And, after Mansfield's speech, State Secretary Dean Rusk said there has been no change whatsoever in U.S. policy on Berlin, and that none was contemplation.

Mansfield said he was floating no "trial balloon" for the administration, but was speaking for himself.

Still, the Republicans who criticized Mansfield's speech said it was difficult for other nations, particularly West Germany, to discount a speech by the administration's top spokesman on foreign affairs as the views of the administration itself.

Rusk moved again at a press conference Thursday to try to clear up any possible doubts.

He said the Russians cannot extinguish the rights of Western powers in Berlin.

The Western powers, he said, have a perpetual responsibility in a clear obligations that cannot be wiped out by conquest or anything such as signing a separate peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

The possibility of feeling run through congressional speeches that Mansfield's speech recalculates the Western stand could be read as a weakening.

High U.S. officials confirmed today the West is planning to stand firm on Berlin. Behind the Western powers, the informants said, are planning to quicken the tempo of their Atlantic alliance forces in Europe and to increase their state of readiness.

The Opposition objected.

There is no unanimous consent," said J. W. Pickersgill (L —Bonavista-Twillingate).

PLACED ON RECORD

Speaker Roland Michener ordered the bill put on the Commons order paper for debate "at the next sitting of the house," which enables it to be called for debate at the government's wishes.

The bill is planned to cut short what normally would have been a seven - year $50,000-a-year post —a length of service that would be transferred to 1966 this year under normal circumstances.

Notice of the government's intention to introduce the measure was given by Finance Minister Fleming.

Opposition Liberals would be vigorously supported by the Liberals was ruled out Thursday by Speaker Roland Michener, permitted to hear such protests. Surplus commodities could be shipped to other countries countries only if they were produced without federal assistance.

Under the new policy, the department generally will allow shipments of any surplus goods if the importing countries agree to pay for them with convertible currency.

Subsidized items involved include flour, cotton and cotton textiles, rice and non - fat dry milk.

In Regina, Sask., Federal Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton declined Thursday to comment on the new shipping.

Mr. Hamilton said he will get in touch with Ottawa to learn the full impact of the policy change before making a statement on its effect on Canadian overseas grain sales.

C. W. Gibbings, president of Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, called the U.S. action "a new threat" to Canadian wheat producers.

CHICAGO (AP) — Representative Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.) Thursday blasted the AFL-CIO Thursday night of denying equal rights to Negro union members, and said the AFL-CIO Means is presiding over a "degeneration of American labor."

BILL TO OUST BANK GOVERNOR IS INTRODUCED

Lengthy and Hot Debate Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's bill for the ouster of James E. Coyne as Bank of Canada governor was introduced in the Commons today.

The short bill is entitled An Act respecting the Bank of Canada.

It says:

"Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:

"The office of the governor of the Bank of Canada shall be deemed to have become vacant immediately upon the coming into force of this act."

An explanatory note that follows says:

"The purpose of this bill is to declare the vacancy in the office of governor of the Bank of Canada shall arise upon its coming into force."

The bill will come into effect automatically once it receives royal assent, expected sometime next week.

PASSED FIRST STAGE

It was introduced by Finance Minister Fleming and received first reading, on which there is no debate.

The Liberals refused the necessary unanimous consent for second reading of the bill today and insisted on debate which had served notice Thursday night.

The bill will be debated— which the government's majority considers enough time next week.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said: "I object to the government's proposal to exchange the invitation leaders for Francisco (The Hook) Molina, a self-confessed hop who is awaiting sentencing New York on a conviction of murder charge, Albizu Campos, a Puerto Rican nationalist leader imprisoned in Atlanta, a hospital in Puerto Rico, and Henry Winston, an American Communist party leader now in prison.

U.S. Will Sell Farm Surpluses To Red Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commerce department announced a policy change Thursday to permit the sale of subsidized farm surpluses to Russia and her European satellites.

In the past, only Poland was permitted to buy such products. Surplus commodities could be shipped to other communist countries only if they were produced without federal assistance.

Under the new policy, the department generally will allow shipments of any surplus goods if the importing countries agree to pay for them with convertible currency.

Subsidized items involved include flour, cotton and cotton textiles, rice and non - fat dry milk.

In Regina, Sask., Federal Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton declined Thursday to comment on the new shipping.

Mr. Hamilton said he will get in touch with Ottawa to learn the full impact of the policy change before making a statement on its effect on Canadian overseas grain sales.

Castro Rejects Offer Of 500 Small Tractors

Denies He Has Altered His Price for Captives

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Fidel Castro today rejected the latest offer of the tractors-for-freedom committee, saying the committee did not tell the truth when it stated Castro had changed his proposal in order to confuse public opinion, Havana radio reported.

Castro was quoted as saying, however, that he is willing to let the committee of prisoners go once more to the United States, and this time meet with the tractors-for-freedom committee and to explain his new position to the American public. The prisoners went to the U.S. originally to negotiate the exchange.

Havana radio quoted Castro as saying that from the first he had clearly specified the number and type of tractors he wanted.

Castro originally offered to exchange 1,214 prisoners captured in the April 17 invasion for 500 bulldozers. In his proposal, made May 17, Castro used the word "bulldozers."

After meeting in Havana with representatives of the Tractors for Freedom committee, Castro said he would accept smaller tractors, but that he still would have to receive 1,000 of them.

The radio further quoted Castro as saying that the committee had changed its original proposal to exchange the invasion leaders for Francisco (The Hook) Molina, a self-confessed hop who is awaiting sentencing New York on a conviction of murder charge, Albizu Campos, a Puerto Rican nationalist leader imprisoned in Atlanta, a hospital in Puerto Rico, and Henry Winston, an American Communist party leader now in prison.

Seek to Suspend Shipping Strike For Sixty Days

WASHINGTON (AP) — Employers and unions, deadlocked in the U.S. shipping tieup, today pondered a government peace plan to end the eight-day strike short of an inflation - expected court injunction.

President Kennedy is ready, if the ship owners and six striking unions agree, to name a three-man committee to help all issues and come up with a recommended solution.

The plan calls for a 60-day strike suspension.

In New York there was no immediate comment officially from ship owners or from the various unions representing the striking seamen.

With hopes already counted in millions of dollars, more than 1,000 men idle and ships stalled at their docks, Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg said this is a time "when extraordinary" at a time when every effort is being made to stimulate the economy."

Boy Disrobed, Left on Tracks By Women

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A five-year-old boy was found naked and partly disrobed Thursday by a woman who found him away from some playground equipment. He told police he was a New York Central Railroad flagman on the city's west side.

The boy, Richard Eddington, was the second child to be treated in a similar manner in the last two months.

Police said the boy was not sexually assaulted.

He was taken for a walk by a near-hatted woman. Police said the woman tied his hands and feet with twine, stripped him of his underclothes, and pulled a plastic bag over his head.

The boy loosened his bonds and crawled to a nearby house. Police said he had suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — A developing storm moving across Lake Huron and Georgian Bay is causing rain over central and northeastern Ontario today and scattered showers across Southern Ontario. The showers will end in southern regions today promising at least partial clearing for Saturday. Showers will persist in the north Saturday.

Bright Weekend With Showers Is Forecast

TORONTO (CP) — A bright weekend with showers and thunderstorms was predicted today for Southern Ontario.

Weather officials said northwesterly winds will push out the rain and bring improved weather to southwestern Ontario this afternoon and Eastern Ontario tonight. It will be partly cloudy Saturday, with temperatures slightly higher than normal. Showers may fall Saturday afternoon.

Isolated weather conditions are expected by Sunday, with showery skies and warmer temperatures over all of Southern Ontario.

Telegram Publisher's Name Brought Into House Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—The name of publisher John Bassett of the Toronto Telegram was brought into Commons budget debate Thursday night.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista - Twillingate) started it by referring to a question answered Wednesday by Finance Minister Fleming had ever received a suggestion from Mr. Bassett that Mr. Fleming should "do something" about the governor of the Bank of Canada."

Mr. Fleming had replied that no such question was received "any person whatever."

Mr. Pickersgill said Thursday night:

"The minister knows perfectly well that in the presence of a large number of witnesses Mr. Bassett assailed him because he (Mr. Fleming) had not the moral courage to fire the governor of the Bank of Canada."

Retorted Mr. Fleming: "That is a false statement."

"It is not a falsehood and the minister knows it," Mr. Pickersgill said. "The witnesses can judge that."

He added in the exchange that Bank Governor James E. Coyne, whose removal from office is the objective of government legislation being brought before Parliament:

"The minister also knows that Mr. John Bassett, a favorite of the government, the owner of a powerful newspaper, apparently has more influence with the government than matters of this kind with the properly constituted authorities."

In commenting from Toronto on the original Commons question, Mr. Bassett said the government "certainly did get a suggestion from me." He added that they should dismiss Mr. Coyne—beyond knows they have read its editorial pages over the last three years."

Mr. Bassett added in his initial comment:

"I don't remember that in the midst of the last general election campaign the governor of the Bank of Canada made his annual statement and was severely critical of the fiscal policies on which Mr. Fleming and his party were seeking re-election.

"The Telegram thought this was a most improper course of action and merited dismissal—and said so at the time. I can only hope . . . that these editorials did indeed influence the minister of finance in his decision.

3-Month-Baby Chewed by Rat Is in Critical Condition at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Three-month-old Timothy Conover, admitted Wednesday by a field rat as she slept in her crib, remained in critical condition in hospital today.

The tiny tot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Scott of Fournier, Ont., about 45 miles south of here, had her nose chewed off and her lips, gums, arms and legs bitten.

Doctors, fighting to save her life, said today if she is not damaged her of years before plastic surgery will be able to replace the features of the child.

The Scotts have six other children, rushed the baby to hospital Wednesday after finding her in a pool of blood in the room where she slept with three sisters, Donna, 10, Lorna, 8, and Sandra, 5.

Mrs. Scott, 29, said she saw a rat about eight inches long beneath the kitchen sink last Christmas. The rat was never seen.

Council OKs Liquor Lounge Vote if City Does Not Pay

Query Property Owners About Paying for Dam

Questionnaires to ratepayers within the Moira River, asking whether they would be agreeable to a 3.50 mills levy for 10 years on their assessment to help pay the cost of the proposed Colleg Street flood control dam, have gone out from city hall.

Under provincial legislation three quarters of the city's share of the dam can be assessed against ratepayers who would directly benefit.

The estimated cost of the dam is $440,000 of which 50 per cent would be paid by the city of Belleville. City council has looked favorably on the suggestion that the part of the city subject to flooding should pay three quarters of this cost with the remainder of the city within the watershed paying the other quarter.

The questionnaire as to whether taxpayers in the flood threat area would approve, has gone out from city hall under the name of Ald. George Wishart, the city's representative on the Moira River Authority.

Hiring of Meat Inspector Was Referred Back

Hiring of an inspector to inspect all locally slaughtered meat before it is offered for sale in Belleville, will be held up until details of the man's salary are worked out.

The by-law for appointing the meat inspector to commence duties on September 1st was up for approval at last evening's meeting of council, but was referred back when members sought more information on how the man was to be paid.

Under the terms of the by-law the inspector was to have received $30 per day for a maximum of three days a week.

Board of Health committee chairman Alderman Eugene Harrison said the cost of the inspector's salary would be recovered by the city by fees charged to local slaughterhouses and through a provincial grant.

Alderman Temple, however, objected that if fees were charged for inspection, the cost would simply be added to the price of meat.

He said that about 50 per cent of the meat coming into the city was already inspected at government inspected abattoirs.

The by-law was tabled for further consideration.

Parkdale Area Mail Delivery Starts July 3

Mr. M. A. Murray, Postmaster of Belleville, states that door-to-door delivery by letter carriers in the Parkdale district will commence on July 3rd.

All residents in this area who have conformed to postal requirements regarding the erection of house numbers and letter slots or receptacles, will be given delivery.

Residents who have not provided the necessary postal service will be required to pick up their mail at general delivery, until such time as requirements have been met.

Mr. Murray said it would be appreciated by the postal service if the residents concerned would advise their correspondents of their correct postal address, which will be to the street and number, in place of their rural route number, which is incorporated in their address at present.

No Parking Edict Fails To Get Approval

City council yesterday failed to go along with a traffic committee recommendation calling for no parking on the north side of Victoria Avenue between Church Street and McDonald Ave.

Council members disagreed on the benefits of the suggested no parking edict and failed to approve of the recommendation.

Council did approve of a recommendation calling for three-hour parking on the east side of Coleman Street opposite the International Hardware company plant.

Traffic committee chairman Ald. Walter Elliott said the three-hour parking limit would allow motorists time to shop and would also give better access to the Riverside Park.

Council also approved of the installation of a flasher light signal at the CNR crossings on Cannifton Road and on Grier Street.

Lou Smrke Says City Owes Him Two Years' Pay

Belleville's Senior OHA hockey debts have still not all been paid, members of city council learned yesterday.

At the council meeting a letter from Lou Smrke, player with the Belleville McFarlands during 1958 and 1959, stated that he believed salary for the two years had not been paid.

In view of collection by the city of the regular levy, the letter said it had been expected the salary payments would have been included by now.

Mr. Smrke wrote that he had been unable to find steady employment in the Belleville area and this had forced him to use up his savings.

The letter made no mention of the amount of salary claimed to be owed. The letter was referred to the city finance committee.

Will Automate Victoria St. Pump Station

TRENTON — At a meeting called to discuss the 1961 budget, members of the Public Utilities Commission have voted to start work immediately on the automation of the Victoria Street pumping station to the exclusion of other changes or modifications in PUC equipment budgeted for at the beginning of the year. The station will be operated from the filtration plant when the new system goes into operation. The project will cost an estimated $46,000, but will save money over the remainder of the long run as the three operators necessary to run the station on 8-hour basis, will be placed in other positions, thus eliminating the taking on of additional help. Other projects have been removed from the 1961 budget to allow for this expenditure.

In the water department, the estimated revenue is $238,554. Operating expenses are set at $128,510 and capital expense at $92,366.

Manager Jim Page will be asked to submit progress reports on the weeks started, every three months.

Lions Club Hears Report On Convention

TRENTON — Nostrand Sprague last night reported to the Trenton Lions convention in Kingston. He complimented members of the Frankford and Havelock clubs on their floats, clubs entered in the parade.

Capt. Cynthia Robbins told the club that her transfer to Bowmanville has been cancelled and that she will be living in Trenton in charge of the Salvation Army corps there.

Nelson Sallee, who has served as treasurer of the club, announced that he will move to Grimsby in August. Mr. Sallee has been an accountant in a bank.

Harold Jamieson told the members that he had received a promotion and would be moving to Toronto. Mr. Jamieson holds the executive position in a local company.

The members voted to donate $50 to a student who will attend the summer course for high school students at Kingston this year and also voted to sponsor Bill Thompson as an area Lion who will be running for a position on the Lions International directorate.

Club Closes For Summer

TRENTON — The Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club ended its meetings for the summer with a picnic banquet near Picton, Wednesday.

Mrs. Jennie Wills was presented with the past-president's pin.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Annis Dowling, commenced with "get acquainted" stunts, followed by a musical number by the B. and P. singers telling the story of the provincial organization's efforts to improve the status of women "working on the government." Miss Vera Clark directed an "I've Got A Secret" panel, wherein the panel's questions provided much merriment.

2 Applications For Licences Heard by Board

Judgment was reserved in connection with two applications received this morning for liquor licences at a hearing before the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, Belleville, 366 Front Street, Belleville, and the Cobourg Golf Club. There were no objections to the Belleville application and the representations were told they would hear from the Liquor Control Board on their application and hold consideration.

The meeting was held at the City Hall chambers this morning.

The second application was received from the Cobourg Golf and Curling Club. Objections from Rev. E. C. Kellaway were listened to by members of the Liquor Control Board. Mr. Kellaway said, in effect, was strictly personal as head of the Cobourg Ministerial Association. He said he was unaware of the reason the application was being made. Mr. Kellaway said there is a population of about 10,000 in Cobourg and there are about six hotels in operation with licences, a brewer's retail store, an officers' mess, Armories and the golf club canteen.

"It is my opinion and that of the Ministerial Association that there are sufficient hotels in Cobourg at the present time. It is my understanding this is to obtain a stronger membership and that there are a number of young members. It is my own personal feeling they will be adding to difficulties they are at the present time trying to correct," Mr. Kellaway commented.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Joyce and Mrs. P. Ketchenson from Hamilton township also objected to the approval of this licence.

H. Brent, acting on behalf of the golf club said it was true that there was a number of young members, and that they were children of adults already members. He stated that these young members had their own locker room and were not allowed in the room where drinking was taking place. They had their own refreshments and were restricted from this room. Members of the club felt it was desirable to be able to buy alcoholic beverages other than beer. "We feel it will be a much nicer operation if we had liquor permits".

Mr. Kellaway asked vice-chairman W. H. Nugent, of the L.C.B.O. what assistance would be made available to those using the golf course, who were visiting Belleville and not a member of that club. He was given the understanding that they would not be.

Mr. Nugent said the club would be hearing from the Board in the near future as to their decision.

N. Electric Club Elects 1961-2 Officers

At a meeting of the board of directors recently of the Northern Electric Club, the following committee, members were elected for the 1961-62 term: president — Stan Creegan; 1st vice-president — Jim Williamson; 2nd vice-president — Al Simpson; secretary Mrs. Marjorie Miller; treasurer — Ed Meguigan.

Chairmen: athletic — Ted Hurst; social athletic — Jim Williamson; 2nd vice-president Jim McBride; assistant entertainment — A. Simpson; publicity — Jerry Mahoney; membership — Mrs. Helen Goodwin; assistant membership —Walter Clarke; constitution and nominations — Ernie Pugh; finance — Peter Amie; equipment — Doug Sauble; ladies — Mrs. Jean Gardner; assistant ladies — Olive Innes.

On Monday evening at the regular meeting of Franck Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 127, held in Franckford, Grand Master Guy Austin of Frankford, was made a regular member of this lodge. His grandfather, A. G. Austin of Wooler, was made a member of Franck Lodge on October 10, 1921, and was Worshipful Master in 1926. His father, K. S. Austin of Frankford, was made a member on December 31, 1942, and was Worshipful Master in 1949. Both were present at this meeting. This makes three generations, all active members of Franck Lodge. This is the only time in the history of the lodge this has occurred. Left to right: A. G. Austin, K. S. Austin and Guy Austin.

Library Board May Rent Space In Shop Centre

Rental of space for a branch library in the east end of the city, is under consideration of a small building for library purposes in that area, is a question being pondered by the Corby Public Library Board.

City council has been asked to consider both proposals and after hearing a delegation from the library yesterday agreed to refer back a finance committee recommendation disapproving provision of funds either for a new building or for rental of space.

Charles L. Hyde, library board member, and Miss Olive Delaney, local librarian, appeared before council seeking approval on the branch library question.

COULD RENT SPACE

Mr. Hyde said the library had the opportunity of renting space in the new east end shopping area for an amount not exceeding $1,700 per year.

However, it had been suggested by Mayor A. M. Haig that the carrying charges on a library building costing in the neighborhood of $15,000 to $20,000 would be little more than the rental cost.

Yesterday Mayor Haig said he favored the building but in the view of present money problems in the city he did not know whether the Ontario Municipal Board would approve the construction.

To a question by Ald. Aldermen Ben Corke, Mr. Hyde said the $1,700 rental would be the entire cost of renting space in the shopping area.

Mr. Hyde said the establishment of branch libraries was being considered in both the east and west ends of the city.

There was no problem regarding the west end, as space was available at the Collegiate School. No school space was available in the east end, he said.

Farley Parnell District Deputy Grand Patriarch

At the sessions of the Grand Encampment, I.O.O.F., held in Toronto last week, Farley Parnell, a member of Stirling Encampment No. 80, received his commission as District Deputy Grand Patriarch of District No. 20.

JOINED ORDER AT MADOC

Mr. Parnell joined the Oddfellow Lodge in Madoc in 1947 and after coming to Stirling to reside transferred to Stirling Lodge, No. 239, in 1954. He joined Stirling Encampment in 1952 and filled the office of Chief Patriarch in 1958-59.

He has devoted much of his time to the work of the Order and his election to the office of District Deputy Grand Patriarch is being well received by the brethren of the district. Mr. Parnell now resides at 25 Goldfinch Road, Belleville.

INSTALLATION

His installation took place last night at the regular meeting of Stirling Encampment and was witnessed by several dignitaries of the Order, including Ken Sine, of Peterborough, Grand Patriarch of Ontario; R. F. Fox, Stirling, Past Grand Patriarch; Chas. Anderson, Carryine Place, Grand Sentinel; Ralph Hubbs, Picton, Past Grand Patriarch, and Howard Akey, Belleville, Past District Deputy Grand Patriarch. Ralph Hubbs, P.G.P., presided for the installation.

No Approval For Roadway, Get Pathway

City council will not approve of the extension of Symington Ave. as a roadway until it has given consideration to provision of a 10-foot pathway for its use, Ald. Rollins Drew.

Council was told yesterday that the extension of the roadway as requested by residents in the area would be beneficial to them considering the use to which the roadway would be put.

Yesterday's recommendation from the finance committee called for no further action with respect to the street extension, but this was amended to allow for the pathway. The recommendation carried.

Thousand See Water Safety Demonstration

Close to a thousand people lined the shoreline of Victoria Park yesterday evening to view the water safety display put on by the Royal Canadian Air Force search and rescue unit in their waters of Belleville harbor. One of the RCAF's newest helicopters on hand and drew the close attention of those present.

During the evening's program this boat was shown in operation and an Otter aircraft of the search and rescue unit also put in an appearance. The RCAF band also provided entertainment during the course of the evening.

Also taking part in the program were the Quinte Aqua Divers, who put on both a static and practical display of their equipment and some of the various techniques used for diving with SCUBA (self contained underwater breathing apparatus) equipment.

Patrol boats of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Ontario Provincial Police were also present and handled the traffic in the harbor to keep the demonstration area clear. Information on water safety and safe boat handling was available for those desiring it.

This evening the Quinte Water Safety Council's program for water safety week will continue with a display at the Kinsmen Swimming Pool on East Dundas St. Competitive swimming, life boat handling, life-saving practices and an aquatic display will be held in the pool. There will also be displays of various items of equipment used by the police and fire departments. Other organization will also be participating with either static or practical displays of their activities in relation to water safety.

Fleming On Trade

If anybody still believes that one can tell a Tory from a Grit by trading with him, we refer them to Hon. Donald Fleming on tariffs and trading blocs.

In the midst of bringing down what might perhaps be fairly described as a middle-of-the-road budget on Tuesday evening, Mr. Fleming took time out to outline his trading philosophy.

There were days when every Tory in the House would have risen to his feet and roared his disagreement. But not now. The Tory finance minister is a middle-of-the-roader when it comes to trade, too. Paraphrased, what he said about high tariffs was the same as what he said about regional free trade blocs — "a plague on both your houses" describes his reaction.

But, of course, it is with respect to high tariffs that this makes news for those not already adjusted to the idea that "protectionist" in the old sense no longer is a true label of today's Conservative. To urge that we "move towards economic self-sufficiency supported by a highly restrictive trade policy," said Mr. Fleming, is a "counsel of fear and even despair."

Ditto for advice on "merging Canadian industry and agriculture in some regional economic grouping."

If there is any difference between Conservative and Liberal trade policies these days, it is difficult to discover it." True, here in Canada Opposition Leader L. B. Pearson has been suggesting an Atlantic free-trade union, but it cannot realistically be claimed that this is any longer an exclusively Liberal outlook, for in Britain the Conservatives have been advocating an exactly similar policy, though involving the European Common Market countries.

Differences in trade policies therefore, depend today more on economic circumstances in the country of a man's residence than they do upon his general political outlook.

It is even conceivable that there may come a day when a Liberal finance minister is deploring regional trade blocs—and high tariffs, of course—while a Conservative opposition spokesman pleads the case for regional agreements.

For the present, though, nobody except a man of gay direct and party affiliations, like James Coyne, is likely to advocate high tariffs — and even Coyne made it plain such high tariffs should be only temporary.

The pendulum, though, may swing back eventually. Despite Mr. Fleming's views about them, for which a strong case can be made in the case of Canada, the economic tide favors trading blocs. If, however, countries get too strong a dose of this medicine, as they got too strong a dose of excessively high tariffs in the pre-Roosevelt days, the trading bloc may eventually fall into disfavor.

So This Is Summer

Nice spring we had!
Don't bother to answer.
Summer's here now. At first taste, the bother changing was a waste.

Truth is, alas, that Wednesday's weather may be something akin to normal for the coming month or so. The long-range weather forecasting boys say the temperature in this area will be below normal for that period.

Sometimes we wonder whether we were not all better off before we were told of troubles to come. There's something to be said for a warning which allows one to brace oneself for a shock—but there's something else, and more of it we think, to be said for taking every day as it comes to awaking with hope even if one retires with bruises—or duck-bumps in the circumstances under discussion.

Summer—bah. We would settle for spring —the real thing, that is.

But one man's wet feet are another man's balanced budget. As we slopped the water out of the garbage can the other day, a neighbor greeted us with the warmest breeze we have felt since we poked our head into the oven to inspect the Christmas turkey. "Lovely weather," he chortled. "Everybody will be getting colds and rheumatism and . . ." We slammed the door. You guessed it—he's a drug salesman.

Now where the heck's that oil man?

Always smile, but never laugh. Love to listen, but not to speak. Enjoy serving others, but not to be served yourself. Look lovely in a modest way that will not attract attention.—Japanese moyia star Kishi Keiko, with advice to western women.

Uneasy About U.S. Policy

London Daily Mail

As American political writer makes a remark which is very true—and very false.

He says the British both enjoy and resent American world leadership. He adds that we secretly enjoy Kennedy's threats to Laos, Cuba and elsewhere.

There is undoubtedly malicious satisfaction in some circles whenever the Yanks are discomfited, but the "secretly" does not represent the country.

Leadership, with it both power and presidential power which once belonged to us has passed to America. We are not sorry.

A setback for the U.S. is a setback for the whole free world.

Thinking people realize these truths. But though they may feel no resentment at American leadership, they regard it with uneasiness, and they have good reason for doing so.

Let us first acknowledge that without unstinting American help through dollar aid Western Europe, through sheer inanition, might long ago have fallen prey to communism.

But American leadership has not been a matter of unalloyed success. On the contrary, as we glance back over the post-war years, we see there a series of monumental errors.

President Kennedy's baseless suspicion of British motives and his touching faith in Russian good will led to Yalta, which betrayed Eastern Europe to communism.

President Truman, though he learned better later, has started these wrong notions, with the result that Khrushchev's Russian troops to occupy Berlin and advance far into the West.

Truman's pre-war intervention in Korea and the Berlin airlift were political successes, but his policy of "containment" crumbled to pieces under President Eisenhower.

It sometimes seems that the West always steps back, always gives way. The latest example comes from the nuclear test ban talks.

Britain and America held out for 30 inspections under the proposed control scheme. Russia insisted on three. Now the West says that it would accept 12. How long will it be before we are down to six or even to three?

Now the lead in the West is taken by Mr. Kennedy, young, ardent, and deluded. But cliffs showed that he has much to learn.

His decision to spend untold millions of dollars de a race to the moon and his announcement that an American would be first there by 1970 show that his judgment of the Russian man may still need to mature.

all at once it creates a major surgical problem."

It is possible to place severe restrictions on the use of guns. It is a different matter when it comes to cars. Nevertheless it is wise to remember that the car can be used precisely the hitting power of a single gun bullet, but can fire many bullets. It can be a very dangerous weapon, even though its use is sometimes truly accidental.

Furthermore, the automobile is actually being used as a lethal weapon. Every day there are grim statistics, and the statistics are almost predictable. The increase in fatalities which are caused by cars on holidays, for instance, can be almost accurately computed with considerable security.

The automobile cannot be eliminated. It cannot even be reduced in numbers. The number of cars is growing and will continue to grow. The most that can be done is to legislate to use under controls, and to try to enforce those controls.

Eventually, radical changes in design, or in traffic regulations, or in road systems may serve to place the automobile in the carefully controlled category that its lethal nature warrants. In the meantime, increased public awareness about by the knowledge that "today's accident may be yours" is the hitting power of 100 service club talks, "accidents" can be greeted at every opportunity.

Italy's MDs Dislike Tax

Cape Breton Post

Italy's doctors — 75,000 of them altogether — went on a 24-hour strike recently in protest against proposed new tax rules which they say threaten professional secrecy. They say if it never happened before in the country's long history.

The Italian Government is seeking parliamentary approval of a tax system that calls for members of certain professions to pay a minimum tax on a survey of betting has opened in London.

The doctors claim that the enactment of this bill would enable tax inspectors to see their records and thus violate the confidential relationship between doctor and patient. For some reason not yet known to mathon, the doctors are more concerned about the rich than their patients.

The inspectors are not as interested in the personal affairs of individual taxpayers as some people let on, prone to gossiping. Nor are census takers. There's something about rows of figures that eliminates the personal quality and that equates everybody in terms of statistics. But the fear of village-gossip tattletales persists.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WATCH OUT FOR THAT ATTITUDE

Thomas Huxley once wrote that the sense of uselessness is the severest shock which our systems can ever sustain."

Some people need to experience that shock because they are selfish and indulgent. Others experience it in a very pathetic fashion when the children grow up and move away, when the day of retirement arrives, when invalidism sets in, when old age begins casting its shadows across one's pathway.

Let us face life as it is. God would not have created us if He had not had something for us to do. Yes, you say, but my life is all finished. Not so. Dooley's life appeared to be behind him when his medical colleagues had to tell him that he was marked for death within a year or two. But this noble soul used every minute of that time to make himself one of the most useful persons of his generation.

The time will come when it will be as natural for people to think in second career terms at sixty-five as it is for boys to think in first career terms of being a first career at twenty-five. Yes, the greatest usefulness may come when your children have grown up and established their own homes. Milan painted his finest picture while he was going blind. Helen Keller, unable to see, could not see to read one of the world's most useful citizens.

Uselessness is not a reality — it is an attitude of mind.

Betting Shop Bookies' Foe

Watertown Times

A new type of betting operation, licensed by the British government, is in operation in London for a month now. And while some of the bookmakers and betting officials are worried, the difficulty getting accustomed to working out in the open, there are indications the program is moving smoothly.

London newspapers refer to these centers as betting establishments as betting shops. Here in the United States we would probably call them bookie joints. While they are legal in every respect, these London betting shops are not to be confused with the regulated, prohibit spectacular advertising. Operators are depending chiefly upon word of mouth advertising for expended business.

Bets are written on paper slips which are then exchanged at the counter for a time-stamped ticket. Betting odds as well as posted the day's form guide, various regulations, and the usual betting office air of expectancy prevail. The new betting shops are the result of a recent law which legalized betting shops but limited their number to 370 for all of England. The small number — the ratio is about one betting shop for each 100,000 persons — has created a profitable situation for the bookmakers, operating from street corners and back rooms and carrying the well worn, capacious leather bag.

Operators of these new betting shops feel they will put the bag-and-back-room bookies, who the street bookies and runners will disappear from the London scene. Many will be expected to be absorbed as employees in-side the shops as clerks. A survey of betting has opened in London.

Auto Strikes Like 100 Guns

Montreal Gazette

The power and danger of an automobile when it is used as a weapon was described by a British surgeon who is visiting Montreal, Mr. William Gissane, in these terms: "Today's automobile can have the hitting power of 100 rifles and bullets and when it strikes the head,—chest and abdomen

Would Join Manitoba

By Vince Leah
in the Winnipeg Tribune

The blood of rebellion flows in the veins of Alf. Bert Limbick, a third-party veteran of Lakehead politics. Alf. Limbrick, who admits his grandfather was a "Fenian" in the native Ireland for the same reason and who was so disgusted with the Liberal defeat of his family names of Limbrick and Limbrick that he wants Thunder Bay country to secede from Ontario and join Manitoba.

This is not a new thought in the neck of the woods. Lakehead people occasionally discover their representation in the Ontario House is too thinly outnumbered they feel they are not getting their money's worth. The idea of joining Manitoba has been bandied about before but it never reached the legislative stage. It has even been brought to Premier Duff Roblin who deftly slipped around it by suggesting it was a matter for Ottawa.

"I'm not sure the rest of Ontario even knows what we are doing," said Limbrick.

"Winnipeg is the centre of trans-shipping in the country but Manitoba hasn't an outlet to the sea. Here we have 'we're young down here and so are you. I think we belong in Manitoba. Then we would rank like 36 miles of waterfront!"

Actually, it was John A. Macdonald who has his surveyors draw the Manitoba-Ontario boundary at Fort Point to the east of Fort Arthur. But some brisk politicking by everybody eventually had it pushed west of Keewatin.

If Manitoba had our seaway facilities its future would be unlimited," says Limbrick. There are 87 people in the Ontario government. Seven come from Northwestern Ontario but they do not have much of a chance. We'd do better in Manitoba."

Frankly, Manitoba would do worse than annex the Twin Cities if only for its Seaway facilities. Lakehead has the finest storage and transit sheds serving Fort William. Yesterday Arthur, a new general cargo terminal soon will be ready for use and Port Arthur's harbor commission has dredged 30 feet to accommodate large ocean ships.

Fort William town planner Dave Thompson, an expatriate from St. Ives, calls Port William "the Seaport of the Prairies" and he is undoubtedly right now that the big canal can wend their way up from Montreal ending almost to the West's front door.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 23rd, 1941.

Members of the three local Masonic Lodges held their annual St. John's Day church parade on Sunday to the Tabernacle Church with upwards of 200 attending—the Lodges to which they belong being No. 11, A.F. and A.M., The Belleville Lodge No. 123, A.F. and A.M. and the Eureka Lodge No. 283, A.F. and A.M. Rev. Wm. Bros. Chas. Brown, Ken Bird and Lieut. Fred Symons as reverend Presiding Masters.

While rains of inestimable value fell over the city and district on Sunday morning, bringing much needed relief to parched pastures and crops, a hailstorm that wreaked havoc with farm and other buildings, struck with terrific fury, struck savagely at the district between Napanee and Kingston. The storm struck an area about six miles in width and 20 miles in length, leaving in its wake. Hailstones nearly egg-size ripped windows from houses and buildings, in some cases shredding blinds and curtains. Every word left unbroken the barrage while grain, potatoes, roots and other plant crops were levelled.

Five hundred strong, the 2nd Battalion Prince Edward Regiment will leave for summer military camp at Connaught Park in Ottawa some time over the week-end. A detachment of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Battalion in Belleville is also scheduled to leave for the same place for a summer military training period.

Antibiotic Drugs Help Painful Mastoid Infection

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What helps a mastoid infection? I have a mastoid, or discharging ears?" — M. B.*

The mastoid area, lying behind the ear, is one which used to be extremely painful. Today it is less so, because we can combat infections with antibiotics. But mastoid infection is still not trivial.

The mastoid bone is a somewhat porous section of the bone of skull, with an antrum, or cavity, which connects to part of the middle ear.

Two, three, or more decades ago many of us saw schoolmates who came back from operations with a head heavily bandaged. Afterward, when the bandages were removed, we could see very considerable scarring behind the ear.

The reason infections got into the mastoid region. I do not by any means claim that in many if not every ear ache is mastoid trouble, not that every ear infection spreads to the mastoid. But when infection establishes a strong grip there, it is not easy to drive out.

In older days, unless the body's own defences could cope with it, the infection ate away the bone, impaired hearing, formation of an abscess which, after great pain, could break through to the exact location of the abscess, leaving a fistula or opening which would permit germs to seep into the brain itself with dangerous consequences.

Hence it used to be necessary, very frequently, to go in to the area surgically and remove the infected portions. This is not always a completely dangerous procedure, yet mandatory.

For still another problem, the infections had the unpleasant habit of working right next to our bone and attacking it.

Antibiotics do not do away with the need for surgical drainage, but they do cope with the infected world in a scientific age.

A complete antibiotic world requires a blending of facts and skills to a high degree of perfection.

Antibiotic drugs have greatly reduced the need for surgery to the mastoid region.

However, once infection establishes itself chronically in the mastoid tissues, treatment usually has to be continued over an extended period.

The patient may get tired of the long treatment if that proves to be necessary, but there is no quick, time-method. Even if there is no clear-cut victory over the infection, it still is far, far better to keep the infection under control than to risk having it flare up into loss of hearing or worse. . . .

Dear Sir: . . . constipation caused by neglecting to drink enough water and other fluids? I am 58. . . . E. H.

Yes, that is one of the very frequent and too often unsuspected — causes.

By the way, I am told that every ear ache is mastoid trouble, not that every ear infection spreads to the mastoid.

But when infection establishes a strong grip there, it is not easy to drive out.

In older days, unless the body's own defences could cope with it, the infection ate away the bone, impaired hearing, formation of an abscess which, after great pain, could break through to the exact location of the abscess, leaving a fistula or opening which would permit germs to seep into the brain itself with dangerous consequences.

Hence it used to be necessary, very frequently, to go in to the area surgically and remove the infected portions. This is not always a completely dangerous procedure, yet mandatory.

For still another problem, the infections had the unpleasant habit of working right next to our bone and attacking it.

Antibiotics do not do away with the need for surgical drainage, but they do cope with the infected world in a scientific age.

A complete antibiotic world requires a blending of facts and skills to a high degree of perfection.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Having defeated Nature in so many ways, it is no wonder we have developed a mighty fear. We have practically mastered gravity, and laugh at it when it is cold, and cool when it is warm. We have conquered all plagues and pestilences, and we no longer worry about. We read about hurricanes and tornadoes for green vegetables and fruits have no season any more. Even the old bogy of earthquake some eyes. All eyes. Not some legs. Everybody's legs.

Obviously, we have conquered Nature in all but a few typhoons and floods and the odd little quiver of earthquake, the next thing is to conquer gravity and get out into space. And this we are doing. In small jumps it is true. But we all get them. (Where? Ah, that's an unfair question.) Indeed, we're grateful now for "the small jump, small step in the obliteration of Nature." The steps is not the machinery is in motion. We are going to make all mankind intelligent.

How serious can we be?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON AND ON

I can find nothing in this life that is of itself easy, so long as it is worthwhile.

And I discover myself thinking the opposite today to what I thought yesterday. This is not disturbed, for I am travelling. Yesterday I walked through a lonely valley. Today I am high on the hills and look down on the valley. And valleys look different from high places.

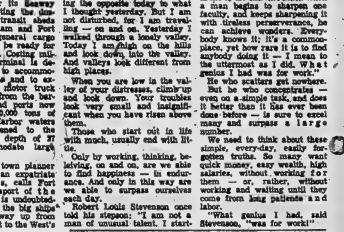
When you are low in the valley of your distresses, climb up and look down. Your troubles look very small and insignificant when you have risen above them.

Those who start out in life with much, usually end with little.

Only by working, thinking, believing, and acting, are we able to find happiness — in endurance, and only then will we be able to surpass ourselves each day.

Robert Louis Stevenson once told his stepson: "I am not a man of continual labor, I start-ed out with very moderate abilities; my success has been due to my really remarkable industry — of developing what I had to the top of the line." When a man begins to sharpen one faculty, and keeps sharpening it with tireless perseverance, he can achieve wonders. Everybody knows that in the competitive race, yet how rare it is to find anybody doing it. It is rare to the uttermost as I did. What genius I had was for work."

He who scatters everywhere.



But he who concentrates — on one single thing, does more and better than it has ever been done before — is sure to excel himself and surpass all the rest number.

We need to think about these simple, every-day, easily forgotten truths. How many want more money, easy wealth, high salaries, without working for them — or, rather, without working and waiting until they come from long patience and endurance.

"What genius I had, said Stevenson, "was for work."

INCAPACITATED HORSE OWNER — 16-year-old Ontario Intelligencer carrier boy, Murney Bradshaw of Foxboro, is seen with colt foaled by his 4-year-old mare "Flicka." Murney broke his pelvis in-school accident and will be in bed for another four weeks. He couldn't get to the barn to see the colt, so his father brought the colt to his bedside. Sister Janis, also seen with colt, is carrying on the paper route.

MOTHER AND FOAL — Here is Murney's mare "Flicka" with her colt "Goldie", seen with Murney's father, Mr. Glenn Bradshaw.

Owner of Colt Views Animal For First Time From Bedside

Confined to his bed for still four more weeks following a school accident in which he suffered a broken pelvis, Ontario Intelligencer carrier boy, 14-year-old Murney Bradshaw of Foxboro, felt sort of left out of the picture when his four-year-old mare gave birth to a colt Wednesday night.

But when the handsome leggy young colt turned up at his bedside the next morning he was greatly pleased and more than a little surprised.

Knowing his son would be anxious to see the colt, Murney's father carried the hours old foal from the barn to the boy's bedside. Murney is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bradshaw, 5th concession of Sidney township a mile west of Foxboro.

The four-year-old mare, "Flicka" is the result of Murney's burning desire to own a horse. He saved up the profits from his paper route and two years ago paid out $300 for the then two-year-old part Belgian mare.

BRED TO PALAMINO

Last year the mare was bred to a district owned Palamino stallion. Murney will call the colt "Goldie."

Murney suffered the broken pelvis two weeks ago at Foxboro school when he was participating in athletic trials preliminary to a school field day.

The trials had shown he was a shoo-in to make the school team and then during a running broad jump had the misfortune to be injured.

"It is rather tough on Murney to have to stay in bed, especially so when he was so active and also at this particular time of year," noted his mother.

Murney was a big help on his father's farm, helping to do the chores and driving the tractor.

But his Ontario Intelligencer paper route is not being neglected during his enforced idleness. In the meantime his 11-year-old sister Janis is looking after her brother's interests.

Fluoridation By-law Passed But Council Is Given Notice Of Move to Hold Plebiscite

City council yesterday approved by by-law the fluoridation of city water supplies, but at the same time received notice that it would be asked to approve of a plebiscite on the matter.

The council vote on the fluoridation by-law was 8-7, the vote coming after a recommendation to defer the matter until after the summer recess had been ruled out of order.

Several weeks ago council voted by a substantial majority in favor of fluoridation and the necessary by-law was prepared for council approval.

SEEK DELAY

Yesterday two members of council who had favored fluoridation, Alderman W. E. Jarvis and Robert Temple, moved to have the previous motion rescinded and the matter tabled until after the summer recess.

"I voted for fluoridation and still feel it would be a good thing," stated Alderman Jarvis, "but I am not convinced that council has the right to force fluoridated water down the throats of a captive audience."

He said whether or not Belleville water was fluoridated should be a matter for the people to decide.

Alderman Temple also said he was in favor of fluoridation but noted the legislation passed had been "permissive", allowing municipalities to fluoridate water. Many of the people in Belleville were opposed, but he hoped a majority would approve by a referendum.

OTHERS OBJECT.

Alderman John Barlow, however, could see no reason why the city should not proceed to fluoridate its water supply as soon as possible.

He said this was one of the more important bits of legislation passed by council which could result in much benefit for children up to 12 years.

Alderman Harrison said the people opposing fluoridation had been misled as to the cost of the program, which they believed would cost the city a lot of money.

This he said, was not the case. But Alderman Walter Elliott said he had it on good authority that it would cost $44,000 to put the program in operation. This would be the cost of equipment and a building to put it in, plus the cost of materials.

Alderman Barlow, noted, however, that the building mentioned by Ald. Elliott, would be necessary at any event as the filtration plant was "bursting at the seams."

MAYOR FAVORS VOTE

When the fluoridation by-law came up for approval Mayor A. M. Haig said that he too had been in support of fluoridation but since the council vote had had some misgivings.

He was now convinced that the matter should go to the people.

He said segments of the population had seriously opposing views on the matter and this was not merely because of the cost. There were moral, religious and other aspects, he said.

"I feel we would be very presumptuous to force it on all the people", he said.

He noted that advocates of fluoridation had said that any persons not wanting it to be fluoridated would had the right to get their water supply elsewhere.

"On the other hand people who want fluoridation can go to the drug store and buy pills", said the mayor.

He said a matter such as fluoridation should be decided by plebiscite and plebiscite only.

WISHART DIFFERS

Alderman George Wishart said he had been told by health authorities that fluoridation of water supply so far was the only satisfactory method of providing protection against tooth decay for the masses.

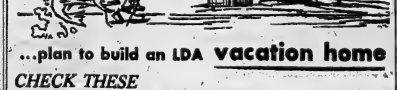
A motion to refer the by-law back was defeated and when the by-law came up for approval it was approved on a 8-7 vote. Opposed were Mayor Haig and Aldermen Corke, Elliott, Jarvis, McDougall, Temple and Whalen.

Favoring the by-law were Aldermen Bailey, Barlow, Deacon, Reid, Ellis, Harrison Ireland and Wishart.

Alderman Temple then brought in notice of motion which at the next regular meeting of council will ask members to approve of fluoridation being decided by a vote of the people.

Helps Addicts To Quit Drugs

SEATTLE (AP) — A major breakthrough in curing dope addiction without the withdrawal agonies usually suffered was reported Thursday by a Seattle research physician.



Dr. Paul O'Hallaren, chief of staff of Shadel Hospital, said amazing success had been achieved in experimental treatment of addicts with a substance known as DPN.

O'Hallaren said the use of DPN, an abbreviation for Diphosphopyridine Nucleotide, had enabled addicts to stop using narcotics immediately and permanently without going through the agonies usually experienced in withdrawal.

County Opens New $27,000 Service Garage at Foxboro

A long-felt need on the part of the Hastings county roads and bridges department has been realized this week with the completion of a new $27,000 service garage north of Foxboro.

The new garage, part of which is to be heated for winter maintenance of equipment, has a floor area of approximately 2,400 square feet with a mezzanine storage area over one section of the building.

The garage has two main bays with doors of sufficient height to take the highest equipment, a paint shop, general office and utility room.

Yesterday the county officially took possession of the new garage from contractor Wieger de Jong of Stirling. On hand for the inspection were County Warden Harleigh Hamilton, roads and bridges committee chairman Harold Varty, county engineer Larry Langlois and Mr. William Watson, the architect.

"The garage will fill a long felt need on the part of the county," noted Warden Hamilton. "We've had the building planned for several years but until this year have been unable to carry out our plans."

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Twiddy R.R. No. 2, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ilyne Jeanette, to William Ralph Frisken, son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Frisken, Napanee. Marriage to take place at Stone United Church, on Saturday, July 15th, at 11:00 a.m.

At the recent Woods — Hollinger wedding in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Miss Marie Hollinger, of Tonbridge, was maid of honour. Guests also attended from Batavia, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Allen were recent Sunday callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Kleinsteuber, of West Lake.

Mrs. Olive White spent Tuesday with Mrs. Roy Williamson of Albury.

Miss Janie Parks was a recent caller at the home of Miss Gale Kleinsteuber, West Lake.

Mr. Cecil Pitcher, Q.C., and Mrs. Pitcher, of Victoria B.C. have been visiting the Quinte district the past few days. Mr. Pitcher, a native of Bellevile, practised law in Regina for twenty-six years as a public prosecutor, but now has retired. They are staying at the Quinte Hotel until Sunday when they return to their home.

Bride-to-Be Feted With Fine Gifts

FRANKFORD — A bridal shower for Miss Edith MacDonald of Stockdale was held last Friday at the home of Mrs. Harry MacDonald, Frankford.

A large number of friends were present for the occasion. An enjoyable evening was spent and the bride received many beautiful gifts which were arranged on the dining room table, centred with pink bow streamers and a bride doll cake adorning the centre.

Edith graciously thanked her friends and she hostess, after which delicious refreshments were served.

Miss MacDonald's marriage to Neil Nicholas of Campbellford will take place on July 8th.

92 Attend Farewell For C. and M.A. Missionaries

Last evening a farewell get-together was held by members and friends of the Cherietian and Missionary Alliance Church in honor of the Revere and Mrs. Cecil Smith, and their family, who, after a year's furlough, are returning early in July to their field of labor in Ecuador. There were 92 present.

Mrs. Smith, younger daughter of Mrs. F. S. Veley, well-known music teacher of this city, grew up in the Alliance Church and Sunday School. After completing her collegiate education, Rena prepared for Bible School in Regina, where she met her husband-to-be, whose goal in life, like that of Renke's, is to take the Gospel to the "Regions Beyond." For four years this young couple were faithful to their trust. God has also blessed them with two children, a girl and a boy, who have become quite well acquainted with the Spanish language.

The evening was a shining example of Christian fellowship, and light-heartedness, beginning with the singing of the favorite hymns, led by the pastor, the Reverend Sackville Ayers, who also acted as master of ceremonies.

Following the invocation by Mr. Lawrence Gale, the Scripture reading by Mr. Clarence Beattie, several musical numbers were rendered by instrumental "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," with piano and violin, by Miss Ferne Millard and Mr. Murray Dixon; a quartet by the Leonard family, "There is a Balm in Gilead," accompanied by the Sunday School; and a duet by Mrs. R. Atyeo, and Mrs. E. Pickard, "O Father, Lead Me," representing the Women's Missionary Band.

The lighter portion of the program, directed by Miss Pamela Dick, included games which necessitated quick response, such as spelling matching, and a skit, "The Honeymoon Couples", which kept the audience in gales of laughter.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation by the pastor on behalf of the assembly of a "love gift" to the departing missionaries, in appreciation for their presence during the furlough, and the great, impact their lives have made on the church and district. Mr. Cecil and Rena expressed their thanks for the gift, leaving with their hearers their desire for continued prayer support.

2 Canadian Doctors Fight Quackery, Superstition In Tiny Village of India

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Canadian women doctors have come to grips with quackery, superstition and ignorance in the fight against disease in a tiny village in India.

Doctors Margaret Kaur Siddoo and Sarjit Kaur Siddoo, daughters of a retired British Columbia lumberman, were back on a visit after more than two years operating a 15-bed hospital and the Punjab village of Asr.

Quacks are numerous in India, they said, because anyone can set up as a doctor without a license.

Tragedy, History and Farce

By ROBERT TAMBER

From tragedy, through history, to farce; so runs this year's Stratford Festival. Not unlikely is the total a word in describe the entertainment value of Hilmshaken frolic "Love's Labour's Lost" this season's smaller than those of the last other two plays presented this season, joined the chain of the worst, rather of the only viewer for which he apparently wrote his own plot. A satire on the Elizabethan court mannerisms and attitudes, it spent three acts in pointless and labored forms of ridiculation then current. Like much of his comedy, there is considerable emphasis on punning and similar forms of word play, and it must be confessed that it contains passages of genuine poetry unsurpassable by the modern ear.

For this reason the play presents a considerable challenge to the director and company, to a challenge which, in spite of the obvious delight of the audience, Wednesday night's performance unfortunately met.

Perhaps the first thing which this production proves is the great versatility of the Company. On Monday night we saw Douglas Campbell in the most virtuous Caricaturer, Wednesday night he was completely lost in the fantastic mannerisms of Don Adriano de Armado, strutting, posturing and prancing with great gusto and wasted to every last drop of effect.

Douglas Rain puts off the small cloak of Cardinal Wolsey and becomes Berowne, one of Shakespeare's most difficult roles, with consummate ease. Unfortunately, he is not quite equal to the task. Berowne is the only character in the play who is given any real depth, and it must be played with a subtlety and sensitivity which Rain does not possess. Nevertheless, he gives a good performance, and his voice is a joy to hear.

Sunday School Lesson

The Complications of Sin

By ROY L. SMITH

On no single matter is the modern Christian doing more funny thinking than the simple matter of sin.

To the mind of the average person the word sin suggests immorality of some form, and of course any immorality is sinful. But sin, actually, is something more complicated than simple wrong doing. It often happens that we sin without having vicious or sensual, or even lustful.

The first century Christians were left without guidance in many matters, and found themselves compelled to come to their own conclusions as to the sinfulness of much of the paganism that went on all about them. Jesus did not deal in specific matters except on rare occasions. Apparently He left the matter of defining sin to the Holy Spirit who was to follow Him.

This means that the Christian conscience is under the necessity of going on ahead of rules, laws, prohibitions and definitions. Christian morality is the result of the judgments of millions of sensitized spirits who have undertaken down through the ages to love the Lord their God with all their soul and strength and mind."

It is one of the ancient mistakes of the Church that it has all too often forgiven vicious sins because the vicious declared they "believed" correctly.

In a certain community there was a man whose private life was a scandal, but publicly he was a model of theological accuracy. He knew all the arguments with which a Christian should be armed, but he had none of the attributes with which the Christian should be fortified. He could "prove" that Jesus was the Son of God, but he lived the life of a rake. He gave generously to the support of good causes, and then made a considerable portion of his income out of a business that demoralized young men of the community.

The Uniform Sunday School Lessons for June 25: "The Spirit of Judgment," John 3:16-21; 5:22; 8:50; Galatians 5:22-25.

It seems to be so very easy to forgive the person's indiscretions, if their theology happens to agree with our own. And we are apt to rush to the defense of the man who "lives for our church."

Paul said, "I, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." Those who accused unbelievers doubted in the case of those who "said faith," which was another way of saying that they held to the same religious delusions. Therefore they were not to be criticized.

James was perfectly correct in insisting that both faith and works are necessary—equally necessary.

Wasn't it Jesus who said that it was the business of fig trees to bear figs? Bright green leaves may be beautiful, and thick shade is to be appreciated, But a fig tree without figs is like a Christian without works — only a name, and a disappointment at that.

HAPPY ARE THE STEADFAST

In our town there is a man who goes on a spiritual binge about once a year. From one short space of weeks he is in church every Sunday; he helps with the ushering and takes up the collection; he calls every man "brother" and most other women "sister." And in it all he is completely sincere. I am not putting on an act. At the moment, he is apologetic for the fact that he has been undependable, and asks everyone to forgive him. He assures the pastor that "from this time on I'm through."

Then comes the usual spring rush down at the store, and Sunday is the only day we have, you know." His pledge gets behind because "our bills seem to have piled up something terrible." And someone else has to take his place ushering and gathering the collection. "You'll have to excuse me, I guess. I've got more on my hands than I can take care of, and I'm sorry!" And he probably is.

He isn't a wicked man. He just lacks steadfastness. And lacking steadfastness, he lacks the Holy Spirit.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Interest Allays Grief

DEAR DORIS:—I think your column is wonderful. You give people such good practical ideas. Now I want to tell you what happened to us.

DORIS CLARK

We went on a winter holiday with our 18-year-old boy and he was killed when he ran into a tree on his skis. He was our only son and we were down in the depths. Life looked absolutely pointless to both of us without him.

Then one day my husband got a letter in the mail that started the wheels moving again. It was an enquiry about an invention he had been working on months before in his spare time. He had been trying to perfect a special door lock.

Well, it was just enough to get him on and I encouraged him. Soon he was spending every spare minute at his bench. He wrote letters to government departments, interviewed officials to get the invention patented. Really got excited about it.

Now it is launched and in production. I thank God for this unexpected project, which came along just at a time when we needed a lift very badly. We miss our boy but now we know we can carry on.—NORTH STAR.

DEAR NORTH STAR:—You deserve a prize for your part in promoting his new interest.

Thank you for this true story. It will help others who have been devastated by death.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—My problem is one which I think worries quite a number of parents with teenagers. It's about having the car.

I am a professional man and need one car for my work. But there is a second car, bought for my wife's convenience, which stands in the driveway when she is not using it. My son thinks this second car ought to be his property or anyone who needs it, and that this is usually him.

I grant you he does have a long walk to school, but if the car is gone my wife is stuck when it comes to buying groceries doing her church work. When this is explained to him he says well, then, how about evenings? What should my answer be? He is only 17.—GEORGE.

DEAR GEORGE:—One parent says no car at all for his son until he's 21. Another took him his own car to school. Another gives him the keys to the family limousine whenever he asks for them.

The fairest answer takes into account the needs and rights of everyone. Your boy will probably be driving his own car in a few years' time and is likely to be a better driver if he learns when he is eager to prove himself reliable.

Walking to school is a time-honored practice which never hurt anyone. What about letting your boy have the car one night a week? Then he can fit his plans to suit himself. Or, you could suggest that he earn money for paying some little makes for appreciation of the expensive and dangerous toy—or convenience—which is paid for by you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—My prize example of foolish economy is this one:

Mr. and Mrs. Whoosis went north with their boy and girl for a summer holiday. On their first hike they were delighted to find a whole hillside of raspberry bushes ripe for the picking. They hustled back for boxes and pails and proceeded to pick.

From then on it was a race to pick and preserve as many raspberries as possible, presumably against a long hard winter. When they came to, their holiday time was nearly over and they were exhausted.

All they had to show for it was bad sunburns and several shelves of raspberry jam. Is this economy? — R. BUSH.

DEAR R. BUSH:—I can match it. Mine is about a family who bought apples by the bushel because they were cheap. Then they found there were some going bad. They cut out the bad spots and made applesauce. By that time more were going bad, so they had to be used next. I don't think anybody ever ate an apple from that bushel before it had a bad spot on it.

Wouldn't you think they would have made a special concoction and filtered good apples on Sundays and holidays?

Remarks American Farmer Gets Tired of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks as American farmer gets tired of earing:

"The government has decided it can't pay you next year for not growing corn. Is it okay instead, if we pay you for not growing soybeans?"

"The farmers used to borrow from the banks. Now the banks are borrowing from the farmers."

"Daddy, I found an old comic magazine in the attic full of jokes about the farmer in overalls and the hired hand. Just what is a hired hand?"

"Oh, you farmers are always bellyaching about something. You'd complain if they gave you a whole country on a silver platter."

WHAT'S A HORSE?

"Sorry, we just sold our last push-button plow. There's an old-fashioned hand plow in the back lot we can lend you—that is, if you know where to find a couple of horses to pull it. I haven't seen a horse in this neighborhood in years."

"Lemme see now. First we put the harness over his head, and strung it along his back—I think. Then we bent down and tightened a cinch here—or was it on the other side? To tell you the truth, it's been so long I kinda forget."

"I'm afraid you'll have to use the Volkswagen, Jed. Junior and Sis took the Cadillac to drive down to the dance in Greenville."

"I just saw a farmer down the road wearing overalls. What's going on? Are they making a movie about how we lived in the old days?"

"I don't care how much better you like them, I'm not going to stand over any steaming stove this year pickling up tomatoes. If frozen vegetables are good enough for city folk, you can turn to like them, too."

"The supermarket over at Greenville bars raised the price of eggs five cents a dozen again. What do they think farmers are made of — money? Sometimes I wish we still kept our own chickens."

NO GOLF TODAY

"Sorry, Jed, I can't play golf with you today. This is the day I plant in my crop. But how about tomorrow — or any day next week?"

"No, you won't find him in the bath. . . . He's watching television."

"I know you hate to sell the place where your grandpa was born, but this farm is ideal for a suburban development—and I'm offering you $3,000 an acre."

Dear friends,

We think the custom of expressing sympathy by sending flowers is a beautiful one. There is comfort in these floral expressions.

Those who say "I prefer to give my flowers to the living rather than to the dead" should remember that flowers at a funeral ARE for the living. Flowers may also convey a tribute to the deceased, but this again is for the comfort of the family.

Respectfully,

John R. Bush

Panic That Gripped Luanda When Terror of Nationalist Uprising Felt Is Subsiding

AP correspondent Peter Gross went from his port in Leopoldville recently to Angola, travelling on an old visa. Author of the heavily censored Portuguese colony told him to depart on the next plane. That was three days away, so Gross looked and listened and later put this uncensored dispatch.

By PETER GROSE

LUANDA (AP) — The Portuguese ladies of Luanda, Angola no longer carry little pearl pistols in their handbags when they go to cocktail parties.

The panic that gripped this colonial city two months ago, when the full terror of the nationalist uprising was first felt, has receded. In its place is an undiscussed sense of inevitable and impending doom under an artificial screen of assortment and pleasure.

Nightclubs crowded with tourists in happier days are still full, but now the crowds are predominantly local — government officials, businessmen and officers and their wives dancing with relieved abandon to the latest pop tunes until well into the morning.

"Why shouldn't we enjoy ourselves while we still can?" sighed a petty civil servant who acts as a police informer on the side.

Portuguese soldiers roam the hilly streets of Luanda, and the isolated outbreaks of racial violence. Two months ago it was the loyal citizens themselves who took the law into their own hands.

"I don't go around armed any more," said an engineer. "Once we caught shooting a native who got out of line now would probably be punished."

Two months ago natives were shot dead in broad daylight when they did something to annoy a passing white man in the streets of Luanda.

If pressed, the settlers in Angola will admit the contours of colonialism are passing swiftly. But there is little in the colonial facade to remind them of this grim truth.

Four months ago, before the terrorist uprising began, Luanda was the jewel-like resort centre of Central Africa.

Nearly a quarter of its 200,000 inhabitants are white and the Portuguese point proudly to the lack of a social color bar in Luanda, today. Instead of native communes in the city there are simply poor districts, and natives live in shacks alongside native Africans.

Politically however, the color bar is strict and absolute. The plan to give natives privileges of citizenship — "assimilado" — there has not had overwhelming success. Nearly 4,000,000 natives of the total 4,500,000 are illiterate.

GENEVA (Reuters)—The executive committee of the World Council of Churches called on Portuguese government Thursday "to refrain from declaring a state of emergency" and to desist and maiming of thousands of Africans in Angola."

A statement was issued as Gen. Venancio Deslandes, the Portuguese governor-general, left Lisbon with the task of quelling Angola's four-month revolt.

The statement, one of the strongest ever issued by the church committee, declared that the Portuguese "will forfeit the sympathy and respect of other nations" if it continues its present policy.

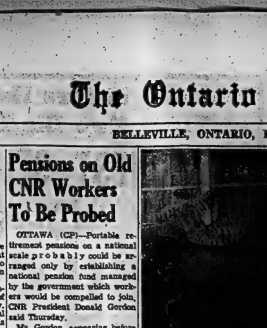
Pensions on Old CNR Workers To Be Probed

OTTAWA (CP)—Portable retirement pensions on a national scale probably could be arranged only by establishing a national pension fund managed by the government which workers would be compelled to join, CNR President Donald Gordon said Thursday.

Mr. Gordon, appearing before the Commons railway committee in a special hearing into the pensions of old CNR workers, said the company will have another look at the position of old pensioners but gave the committee little hope of any improvement without direct government treasury help.

The problem turned over to the committee by the Commission for study is the plight of CNR pensioners whose continuous employment with the railway was interrupted by long periods of layoff in the 1930s.

NEEDS NEW SYSTEM



Committee members said that is needed was a system which would help employees leaving the CNR for other jobs to hold take their pension rights with them and meld them into the pension plans of their new employers.

Finance Minister Fleming announced in the budget address Tuesday night that the federal government will seek the co-operation of provinces in a program to make pensions portable.
